ANOTHER BIG STRIKE

The Chicago Carpenters' Struggle Commenced To-Day.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE POLICE.

No One but Regular Officers Will be Allowed to Make Arrests.

The New York Central Strike and the Board of Arbitration—An Effort to Show that the Board is Not Legal. President Depew Starts To-Morrow on His Homeward Voyage.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Chief of Police Marsh to-day issued instructions to the police inspectors relative to their course during the carpenters' strike, which began to-day in earnest. The inspectors were told that they would be held responsible for the preservation of peace and the full protection of life and property in their respective divisions. No intimidation or any other interference whatever with workmen, union or otherwise, employed on any building will be tolerated. The inspectors are also ordered to make necessary details to carry out the instructions of the chief.

When the carpenters decided to strike at their meeting a few weeks ago, they prepared and sent to the Mayor and Chief a vigorous protest against the city countenancing the employment of private detective bureau hirelings. It was the belief of both Mayor Cregier and Chief Marsh that the city could amply protect owners against any threatened or proposed interference on the part of the strikers without the aid of private police or so-called detectives. Accordingly no one but regular policemen will be allowed to exercise any authority, and this order of the chief has had an excellent influence on the men who to-day begin their fight.

IS THIS BOARD LEGAL?

It Is Said the New York Board of Arbitration Has No Existence.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—A question at issue in connection with the New York Central strike and the proposed ventilation of the grievances of the Knights of Labor before the State Board of Arbitration, is whether the State Board has a legal existence.

The law which created the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, passed in 1887, provided that the Governor, with the approval of the Senate, should appoint three members to constitute the Board.

Their term of office was for three years. The members of the present Board were appointed May 20, 1887. Their terms expired May 20 last.

There was no provision made in the law for the existence of a Board after the expiration of the three-year term, nor was there any provision made for the appointment of their successors.

There is nothing in the Tenure of Office act covering this case, and the question is now raised whether the Board of Arbitration has not legally ceased to exist.

When the Board of Arbitration meet to-day to hear the grievances of the Knights of Labor, Joseph H. Choate, as special counsel for the New York Central, and Mr. Loomis will protest against their proceedings as a State Board.

NORVIN GREEN TO RETIRE.

George Gould to Succeed Him as President of Western Union.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—It is understood in Wall street that Dr. Norvin Green is about to resign as president of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Dr. Green is growing old and is quite feeble, and he wishes to be relieved from the cares incident to so responsible a position.

He is to be succeeded by George Gould, whose ambition to pose as the president of every Gould company is well known.

Gen. Thomas T. Eckert, the general manager of the Western Union, hopes to succeed Dr. Green, but he will have to put aside his wishes to make way for young Mr. Gould.

FOUGHT FOR HER LIFE.

A Widow, Aged 75 Years, Brutally Murdered in Her Home.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The village of Westport is again excited over another tragedy. The authorities were informed that the Widow Taylor, aged 75 years, had been found dead in her house, situated in a lonely spot on the road near the schoolhouse.

There were many evidences that the victim had not surrendered her life without a terrible struggle. Nearly all her clothing was torn off, her face was shockingly battered, and about her neck were finger marks that led to the belief that she had been strangled. The house had been ransacked and everything was in confusion. What plunder was secured is not yet known. Mrs. Taylor's home was isolated, there being no neighbors near by, and the road is seldom traveled.

Charles Wright and two others are under arrest on suspicion of having committed the deed. Wright yesterday went to the house nearest the Taylor homestead and reported that he had heard shrieks from the vicinity of the widow's home. This led to the discovery of the awful deed. As Wright was seen going in that direction he was at once suspected and put under arrest. The coroner is investigating.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Ex-Coroner Daniel Sharp was on his way to his home at 11 p. m., he met Stephen J. McConnell and Wm E. Vogt who were escorting two young ladies to their homes.

It is alleged by the two men that Sharp made an insulting remark reflecting upon the character of the ladies. However that may be, they attacked Sharp and pounded him so that his injuries proved fatal and his death took place at noon.

He had been unconscious most of the time since the trouble and had been unable to tell his story intelligibly. He was 53 years old and leaves a family. Vogt and McConnell are in custody.

Sanborn, of Concord, Mass., was then presented.

New Hampshire Democratic Convention.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 2.—An unusually large number of delegates to the Democratic State and Second Congressional district conventions were present at the opening of the conventions to-day. The general feeling is favorable to the nomination of Charles H. Amsden for Governor, although Col. Thomas Coggswell will receive a large complimentary vote if he allows his name to be used. It is conceded that Warren B. Daniel will be nominated for Congress.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

News from Minister Mizner Anxiously Awaited.

MR. GIBSON'S INCOME TAX BILL.

Provisions of the Measure Just Introduced in the Senate.

The Raum Investigation—Representative Smyser Discharged from the Committee—The President Postpones His Trip to Cresson Springs—Changing a Word in the Reciprocity Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The State Department officials are anxiously awaiting dispatches from Minister Mizner, which they expect will contain a full account of the facts surrounding the attempted arrest and shooting of General Barrundia. Only a meagre cablegram has as yet been received from him, and it is not deemed good policy to make its contents public until further and more extensive details of the affair have been received.

There is no reason to believe that the State Department has called upon Minister Mizner for any special report of his connection with the unfortunate affair. Until the contrary shall be brought to the attention of the department it is assumed that Minister Mizner's conduct was what it should have been.

Acting Secretary Wharton denies most emphatically that he had ever criticised adversely Mr. Mizner's diplomatic capacity, as he is quoted as doing by a New York morning paper. On the contrary he says that Minister Mizner is entitled to the confidence and support of the department until it is clearly shown that he is not worthy of it. Certainly he will not be condemned on mere hearsay.

"Yes. The Guatemalan Government has consented to allow Mr. John Hollander to return to Guatemala temporarily to wind up his affairs," said Acting Secretary Wharton. "Minister Mizner has just informed the department of Guatemala's decision in the matter. The request was preferred by the department some time since, and now it is granted without conditions. Mr. Hollander has been informed of Guatemala's decision.

AN INCOME TAX BILL.

Provisions of the Measure Just Introduced in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Mr. Gibson introduced in the Senate a bill to provide an income tax. The bill provides that there shall be collected for 1891, and annually thereafter, a tax of two per cent. upon the gains, profits and income of every resident of the United States, or citizen temporarily residing abroad.

This tax is to be upon all property, rents, interests, premium on gold and coupon, gains and income of any employment or vocation, including salary as a member of Congress.

It is provided that military or naval pensions, and the sum of $2,000 of the income of any person shall be exempt under certain conditions. The salaries of the President of the United States, the Judges of the United States and officers of any State are to be exempt. The tax is to be assessed and collected by the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue under an elaborate system provided in the bill.

The Raum Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—In the House Mr. Cooper rising to a question of privilege stated that one of the members of the committee investigating the charges against Commissioner Raum—Representative L. M. Smyser, of Ohio, was one of the stockholders of the refrigerating company of which Raum is president. He therefore offered a resolution discharging Mr. Smyser from the committee. Mr. Smyser thereupon asked to be discharged and the request was granted.

Aldrich's Reciprocity Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Mr. Aldrich reported from the Finance Committee to the Senate a modification of the reciprocity amendment heretofore reported by him. The modification consists in the change of a single word. Where the amendment read that the President is empowered to act when other countries impose duties on American products "reciprocally unequal and unjust," the word "unjust" is struck out and the word "unreasonable" inserted in its place.

The President's Trip to Cresson.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Private Secretary Halford said that there was so much important public business requiring the President's attention that he had determined to postpone his trip to Cresson, Pa., until the latter part of the week.

Ex-P. M.-General Cutler Dead.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Ex-Paymaster Gen. George F. Cutter, U. S. N., is dead at his residence here. He was in his seventy-first year. The remains will be sent to Mount Auburn, Boston, for interment.

Assemblyman Gibbs to be Expelled.

THE TRADE UNIONS CONGRESS

The Largest Gathering of Labor Leaders Ever Held in England.

Osman Digna Marching on Cairo—A Nephew of the Archbishop of Canterbury Joins the Roman Church—Trying to Prevent the Spread of Cholera. Confession of a Murderer.

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—A melancholy incident occurred yesterday in the small village of Rnaid.

Judge Scodik, 70 years old, who has been a local justice for many years, married a girl of 18 about six months ago. The bride was an innocent country girl who had never been nearer to a large city than the small town where her husband dwelt, and was possessed of such surprising beauty that she at once became a sensation when introduced by the judge to the local society.

The meeting of this maiden and the judge was romantic, she being at her home on a distant farm and the judge en route through the country. When the newly made husband found that his wife's beauty created such a sensation he became insanely and morbidly jealous, curtailed her enjoyments, limited her going out and coming in, bridled her in every possible manner, and rebuked her in the presence of her friends or strangers for fancied errors in her conduct.

This treatment began with the second month of their marriage, and continued to increase in severity and unreasonableness until the wife's life became unbearable. Yesterday the judge was entertaining company among which were two young men who he thought had admired his wife rather more than they should, and he therefore forbade her coming into the library where they were.

During the afternoon, and after smoking and drinking in a friendly way, the judge invited his guests to the parlor for the purpose of examining some rare Dutch paintings. They entered the room, and had got well into the centre, when a horrible sight met them. There, hanging from a curtain pole in the window was the dead body of the young wife, clothed in her white wedding dress, bearing upon her head a chaplet of orange blossoms, and at her feet two lighted candles, while pinned to her dress was a paper, and upon it written:

"The cruel suspicion of my husband makes life more than I can bear."

The young woman had fastened the rope around her neck, bent her knees so as to clear the ground, and slowly strangled to death.

TRADES UNION CONGRESS.

Burns Warns the Delegates to Keep the Labor Movement Out of Politics.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The opening of the Trades Unions Congress at Liverpool was marked by the greatest enthusiasm. The prominent labor agitators—Burns, Mann, Tillett and others—were wildly applauded.

In the course of his address John Burns warned the Congress that it was necessary to keep the labor movement out of politics, as it was essentially an economic question and had nothing to do with Liberalism or Conservatism as such.

The Congress is by far the largest and most important of the kind ever held. The steady growth of trade-unionism, its importance to all men who labor in large bodies, the victories it has won for its supporters, all combine to make the present meeting significant, as much depends upon its decisions and decrees. Employers of labor are keeping as anxious a watch over the deliberations of the body as the workmen who are represented in it by delegates.

Joined the Church of Rome.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Rev. Sidney Benson Thorpe, a nephew of his Grace, the Archbishop of Canterbury, has joined the Roman Church, owing to the effect produced on him by a diligent study of the works of the late Cardinal Newman.

Was He Murdered?

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 2.—John McGuery, a young man residing near Whiteport, in the Ulster cement region, was found dead at Brinewater yesterday. There is every indication that he met his death by violence. Seventy dollars in money and a watch which he was known to have in his possession are missing.

PULLED DOWN A FLAG.

Junior O. U. A. M. Men Tear the German Emblem to Shreds.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 2.—The German flag was pulled down, torn to shreds and trampled under foot last evening in Allegheny by Junior O. U. A. M. men. It was carried by the bakers' contigent in the labor parade. At Arch street and North avenue, an aid was prevailed upon by some influential members of the Junior O. U. A. M. to order the obnoxious flag hauled down. The bearer refused and raised the banner higher and unfurled it to the winds. The aid rode off and the spectators began to jeer.

There were a large number of junior order men around, and they were particularly incensed. They called back the aid and insisted that the German flag be removed. The officer thus urged rode into the ranks and took hold of the banner. He tried to take it away from the man who carried it, but the men in the ranks quickly surrounded the aid and essayed to beat him off. Policeman Diebold, of the Allegheny force, dashed into the thick of the fight and beat the horse and rider with his mace.

For a time it seemed that the champions of the flag would win. Therefore the Junior O. U. A. M. men who had encouraged the aid to remove the flag took part. Canes and fists were used, resulting in black eyes and torn clothes. Policeman Diebold was roughly handled.

Despite the efforts of the bakers and policeman, the flag came down. The junior order men secured the banner, and in about a minute all semblance to a country's emblem was gone. The silk was torn to shreds, and the men trampled them under foot. Having won the victory, they shouted: "America for Americans," "The Stars and Stripes the only banner on our streets," and other patriotic sentiments. They retired, and the bakers closed up their ranks and proceeded on their way, but they were angry and will not cool down for some time. They threaten vengeance. No arrests were made.

EXCURSIONISTS ROBBED.

Held Up on an Eastern Train in the Wild Western Style.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The Dunkirk, Alleghany & Pittsburg excursion train from Lily Dale was the scene of a bold robbery.

When the train stopped at the station a general rush for seats was made. Mr. F. V. Jackson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., had just seated himself when he was grabbed by the men. One held him while the other took his pocketbook. Both men disappeared in the crowd. The robbery was done so quickly that Jackson had no time to make an outcry.

At the same time Mrs. John Stape, of Dunkirk, who was in the next car ahead, was robbed of a pocketbook containing $100 in the same manner. A jewelry store in Lily Dale was robbed of $450 worth of goods.

Double Murder and Suicide.

Gallagher had been drinking heavily of late and committed the crime because of his wife's refusal to give him money to continue his debauch.

Their bodies were found in the ruins. One was recognized as William Pryor, a Western Union lineman; the others could not be identified.

KILLED BY HIS BROTHER.

Careless Handling of a Defective Gun Causes a Distressing Accident.

Eight-year-old Freddie Kissam, son of Wm. Kissam, whose home is on the road from Fanwood to Rahway, two miles from Fanwood, was accidentally shot by his fourteen-year-old brother, Charles, late Saturday afternoon, and died next day in great suffering.

The elder lad, gun in hand, left the house at about five o'clock to shoot a crane which had been flying about the place during the day. Freddie persisted in accompanying him, in spite of his protests. When but a few yards from the house Charles wheeled suddenly about to order his brother back. His gun, which was at half-cock, almost fell from his grasp, and he gave a sudden grip to recover it. His fingers tightened on the trigger, and to his horror the contents of the weapon were discharged into Freddie's side and breast. The boy's lungs were riddled with shot. Freddie was carried into the house, and Dr. J. B. Harrison, of Westfield, was summoned. The physician was able to relieve the boy's pain somewhat, but found it impossible to save his life. The lad died Sunday afternoon.

Freddie's brother is frantic with grief, refuses to eat or drink, and says he wants to die.

An examination of the fatal gun reveals the fact that the hammer is defective, and falls whether at half-cock or full-cock.

Lieutenant Flannery Receives a Sword Wound.

During the parade at Red Bank, yesterday, of the Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, of New Jersey, Lieut. J. E. Flannery, of Crescent Division, Plainfield, was wounded in the fleshy part of his thigh by a sword thrust from some one marching behind him. The Knight behind was carrying his sword out of its scabbard, and it was accidently stuck into the Lieuteanant's leg because he got out of step. The wound was dressed at a neighboring drug shop.

Others present from this city at the parade which was a great success, were Grand Officers Lieut-Col. George H. Polhemus and Quartermaster John C. VanDyke. Crescent Division was led by Capt. J. H. Carney, Lieut. J. E. Flannery, Herald, J. M. Hawkins and Recorder, S. J. Robinson.

Death of N. W. Fine.

N. W. Fine, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Fine of West Front street, died yesterday after a long illness. He had been treated for softening of the brain, which was attributed to the depositing of a clot of blood on the brain from the bursting of a blood-vessel. It was a matter of surprise to the physicians that he lived so long under such suffering, and his case was called one of the most remarkable in medical annals. The patient took scarcely any nourishment, and was kept alive merely through his own force of will-power. He was in his thirty-sixth year.

The funeral services will take place to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Hoffman, adjoining, which were entirely destroyed. The barn was 14x36 and contained a cow and a lot of hay. The cow was rescued, but everything else was destroyed. Hoffman's loss was $300 uninsured.

Smith had an insurance of $1,000 on his shop and contents which were entirely consumed.

Next Time it Will be Her Legs.

The little daughter of John J. Ackerman, of Warren street, North Plainfield, fell from a seesaw yesterday, resulting in a fracture and a dislocation of her right arm. It is a very bad case, but Dr. Long has it in charge and the little one is doing remarkably well.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

CRESCENTS TAKE THREE STRAIGHT.

The Cuban Giants, the Alerts, and the Ridgewoods, All Defeated by Plainfield's Crack Team.

Modest Michael Gregg saved the game from the Cuban Giants in the 9th inning, last Saturday, and won it for the Crescents a few minutes after. It was the closest and quickest game ever played on the Plainfield grounds—not a run made until the fight finished, yet the visitors came dangerously near home on a number of occasions. The head work of Gentle Gregg, the superb playing of Freddy Jones as a back stop, and the fielding of Gillis, McIndoe, Martin and Lufberry, pulled their team out of several holes during the afternoon.

As Manager Bright told a PRESS reporter, the Cuban Giants had not before put so fine a team in the field this season. It consisted of six of the original colored champions, and was no more like the team that played at Somerville a few weeks ago than the Boston League nine is like the Bayonnes. The game they put up Saturday was one of the finest ever witnessed. There was not an error of judgment throughout, and no approach even to an error of any kind except in the case of an unaccepted chance in the ninth inning, when a high fly of McIndoe's was allowed to drop in the faces of Bell, Boyd and Garrison who all rushed after it.

In the first inning Martin got to first on a bunt and stole second, but died there. In the second inning McIndoe got to first on a safe hit but was caught stealing second. After that nobody of the Crescents reached a base until the sixth, when Douglass who was afraid to let Hatfield have a chance at him, gave the latter his first on balls. In the seventh it seemed as if the home team would get a run. Lufberry, the first to the bat, made a safe hit; but Wiegand fouled out, McIndoe hit his to first base and Gregg hit his into the pitcher's hands. In the eighth, Jackson again gave Hatfield his first on balls, and also Gillis. Then the Crescents had two men on bases for the only time during the game. But Lee struck out, Jones flew out to Nelson, and Martin batted a little one that was thrown to first before he could get there.

The way Gregg saved and won the game in the ninth inning when the score stood 0 to 0, is this. The Giants were first at the bat, and their coachers shouted "Here's where we win! Its all ober but de cheerin!" B. Jackson faced Gregg with admirable confidence, but gentle Michael struck him out. Then the fire works begun but did not worry Gregg a bit. Nelson knocked a liner into right field and reached second on Lufbery's failure to hold the throw in. Catto stepped up and after two balls and one strike had been called, hit the ball right into Gregg's hands. Catto thought he was out, but Gregg smiled kindly at him and turned his back. Nelson was playing away down the line towards third base and Gregg smiled at him, too, and waited. Nelson, however, could not make up his mind which way to go, so Gregg started to chase him to third and kept the run up until Nelson was within four feet of Lee, then Gregg lined the ball to the latter and there were two out and a man on first only. Had Gregg thrown Catto out at first, as it is natural for an infielder to do every time he gets a short hit in his hands, two runs at least would have been scored in the ninth by the Giants, because W. Jackson followed with a hit that would have brought Catto home and Douglass' hit would have brought W. Jackson home. But Gregg is always figuring away ahead. The result was that although the Giants eventually filled the bases in the ninth, Gillis made a fine catch in centre field of Boyd's savage hit and the visitors were out without a run.

The Crescents went to the bat in the ninth amid the plaudits of twelve hundred. But Lufbery flew out to Garrison on the first ball pitched, and Wiegand struck out just two minutes after. McIndoe then stepped up and knocked a high fly that everybody was sure Bell would clutch with ease. But three players ran for it, as told above, and no one got it. McIndoe had reached second and Gregg was at the bat, but there were two out and the scorers began to fix their sheets for ten innings. Then occurred one of those seeming impossibilities that about once a year happen so unexpectedly to a ball nine. Gregg hammered the ball into the right field bleachers, making a home run himself and bringing McIndoe in ahead of him. The excitement was terrific. One of the largest attendances of the year was present and the shouting was deafening. Those who had backed the Giants began a cry of "foul ball." This claim was ridiculous, but of course it at once found supporters enough to stir up trouble. The right fielder of the Giants who ran to get the ball, made no claim that it was foul but had gone to the dressing room to take off his uniform before he heard there was any dispute about it. A PRESS reporter hurried over to the bleachers and found the man who had been struck by the ball. He had not moved from his seat yet, and there was a crowd of fifty people around him who could all see that he was "inside" of the foul flag. The man said his name was Goff, and that he would make an affidavit himself and get a hundred witnesses to testify that it was a fair ball. The score was:

Earned runs—Crescents, 1. First base on errors—Crescents, 1; Giants, 2. Base on balls—Crescents, 3; Giants, 3. Two base hit—Woods. Home run—Gregg. Passed ball—W. Jackson. Files caught—By Crescents, 7; by Giants, 9. Time of game—1:15. Umpire—Mr. Berriman.

Monday morning's game was more like the handle on a jug, than was really expected. Of course everybody realized that Elizabeth's team of semi-amateurs, were not in it with Plainfield's semi-professionals; yet when the former came on the ground quite materially strengthened, the 700 people present thought the game might at least be interesting. Then, too, Shaw was put in the box to give Gregg a rest before the afternoon's game, and Hatfield was brought in from the field to catch.

But even under all these circumstances the result of the game was never in doubt. The Crescents earned five of their fourteen runs, and could have earned a dozen more. McIndoe made one of his holiday hits over the fence, bringing in two runs ahead of him. Shaw pitched a model game, and if the Crescent outfielders had not played entirely too deep, the Alerts would have had but two hits. In the fourth inning Shaw only pitched four balls before the Alerts where out and in the next inning he struck out the whole side.

The Alerts two runs were given them. In the sixth inning with two out and no runs, the third man hit to Lee who fielded it to Wiegand. The latter dropped it and gave the runner his base. The next at the bat knocked a high fly into Shaw's hands and he let it twist out. The next batter, after two strikes was given his base on balls, and the bases were full. Mills then made a little hit and two runs came in.

The afternoon game was played under a great strain on both sides. The Crescents wanted the victory more than any of the season. There was standing room only when the game commenced, and during its progress 1500 people shouted themselves hoarse. One excited man with $19 on the game, left his seat and chased McIndoe to second base in the eighth inning. Peter Collins, formerly of this city and now one of the employes on the Brooklyn L where all the Ridgewoods work, offered a silver bat to the member of the latter team who should make the longest hit. It was won by Helser in the eighth on a two-bagger down in the corner of left field.

Hammond was put in to pitch for the Ridgewoods at the start. It was plainly visible in the very beginning that he was not the man to win the game. Hatfield, the first of the Crescents to the bat, got his first base on four bad balls, his second on a passed ball, his third on a wild pitch and scored on Lufbery's hit to left. In the third inning, a single by Martin, a three-bagger by Lufbery, and a double by Wiegand followed in succession. Two more runs were scored, and with the game 3 to 0 for the Crescents, Livingston was substituted but too late to win. For the balance of the game the Crescents got but two hits neither of which scored.

The Ridgewoods earned one of their runs. The other two were made on an error of Martin's, and Jones' only passed ball for a month. Haley being still timid about the hand he split when playing here before, changed places with Fritz in the last two innings. Mr. Berriman's umpiring in all three of the above games, was thoroughly satisfactory to the visiting teams, because it happened that all the close decisions were hard on the Crescents.

PLAINFIELD WILL HAVE TO PLAY.

Westfield's Last Three Games Show That it Has a Strong Team.

On Saturday the Westfield team went to Staten Island and played a game with the Corinthians on their new grounds at Port Richmond. This turned out to be one of the closest long games that has been played anywhere this year, as shown by the score:

| | | | | | | | | | | | |

Errors—Westfield, 4; Corinthians, 9; Base Hits Westfield, 6; Corinthians, 5.

Yesterday Westfield lost a game to, and won a game from the Allertons of New York. In the morning game the Allertons had Sworback to pitch and were reinforced by several Metropolitans. Westfield had in O'Neil and McManus, the regular battery. The score was:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Westfield | 1 | 1 | 2 | 0 | 3 | 4 | 0 | 2 | 1 | —14 |
| Allerton | 1 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 2 | 0 | 5 | 0 | 0 | —9 |

Errors—Westfield, 3; Allerton, 7; Base Hits—Westfield, 13; Allerton, 6.

In the afternoon game Westfield put in Johnston and McManus, and the Allertons had Galligan of the Bayonnes. The score was:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|

Errors—Westfield, 4; Allertons, 2; Base Hits—Westfield, 9; Allertons, 12.

The Westfields were short in both games the services of DeWitt and Sansom, who were relieved from duty in base ball in order to win the singles in tennis in the League tournament at Fanwood. This they did easily.

"Five years ago I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and had been given up by my physicians. I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after using two bottles of this medicine, was completely cured."—Anga A. Lewis, Ricard, N. Y.

NEW USES OF ELECTRICITY.

ELECTRIC hoisting engines for dock use are among the latest devices introduced.

A REVOLUTION in coal mining is expected from the use of a machine operated by electricity.

THE perfection of ventilation is now attained by electricity. The new United States man-of-war Baltimore is supplied with an electrical ventilator which will change the atmosphere of the engine-room in two minutes.

AN important discovery has been made in etching, and especially in photogravure. As usual, the drawing is traced on a plate of zinc, either by an artist or by photography, with a suitable etching ground. The plate, backed with asphaltum, is then laid in a bath of dilute acid, and put in circuit with a dynamo, the other pole being merely placed in the acid. The acid bites the plate with great rapidity, and the depth of the etching can be easily controlled.

TWO FRENCH biologists, MM. Apostoli and Laquerrier, have hit upon a new weapon against all diseases occasioned by bacteria. This weapon is none other than a constant galvanic current of a low degree of intensity. Remarkable practical results have been accomplished by this simple method. It is believed that the current itself does not destroy the germs, but that their extinction is due to the disengagement of acid and oxygen by the current.

THE electric light is being turned to very artistic use by a prominent wall-paper manufacturer of New York City. The dark, clear-cut shadows caused by the play of the electric light among the foliage of trees have often been remarked, and the gentleman in question has been for some time making, by means of photography, a series of records of these beautiful effects, which he intends to use in connection with his business. The collection is a valuable one, and some of the designs which have already been made from it are of exceptional merit.

THE increase in the tractive adhesion of locomotives by electricity is destined to enable the railroads of the near future to haul with their present engines much longer trains than they can now do, increasing the carrying capacity of the road, saving the wear and tear of tracks and bridges, and enabling better speed and time, notwithstanding unfavorable conditions of weather. A recent report of a large railway contains the suggestive statement that an increase of one-fifth of one car per train augmented the revenue of the company by $50,000 in six months, so that it can readily be imagined that the increased earnings of the railway companies when the new system comes into general use will be enormous.

THE GULF STREAM.

An English Writer Calls It the Grave-Yard of the Atlantic.

The Gulf Stream, after sweeping between the coast of Florida and the islands of Cuba and the Bahamas, runs northward along the American coast until it reaches the shoals of Nantucket, when it swerves off to the northeast and, passing to the south of Sable island, stretches across the Atlantic eastward to Europe. The cold, ice-laden current of the North passes out of the Arctic ocean, along the east coast of Greenland, and there, joining with another current from Baffin's bay, sweeps along by the coasts of Labrador to the banks of Newfoundland. There it meets the north edge of the Gulf Stream and splits in two. One part, from its greater density, sinks below the warm current of the Gulf Stream and continues its southward course as a submarine current. The other portion, after striking the Gulf Stream, turns off to the west and sweeps along the coast and bays of the northern continent. This is the current which mariners dread, and which in the neighborhood of Sable island runs at such a rate as to carry them out of their reckoning before they are aware of it. Then there is a third current, which, detaching from the polar stream at the south end of Labrador, rushes through the Straits of Belle Isle, joins the outflow of the St. Lawrence, and becomes the Gulf of St. Lawrence current. This third current skirts the east side of Cape Breton, and, passing south, strikes the westward-flowing portion of the great polar current in the neighborhood of Sable island.

There is this sand heap in the midst of a swirl of waters, which, as they are affected by the prevailing winds, will put a ship all round the compass in twenty-four hours.

A curious illustration was found by one of the superintendents, who one year had his provisions devoured by the rats and had seen large masses of the island washed away. He became alarmed for the safety of his company before the arrival of the relief ship in the spring, and thought to dispatch a message to the mainland for help. A small boat was put together, and, letters being put on board, the sail was hoisted, and she was dispatched before a southeast gale in the hope that she would either be picked up by some inbound vessel or be blown onto the mainland. Thirteen days later the boat floated right onto the beach six miles from the place from which she had been dispatched!

In calm weather an empty barrel will circle around the island again and again; and, indeed, one is often sent adrift on this journey for the purpose of testing the velocity of the currents. Bodies from wrecks will also make the same ghastly circuit in full view of the watchers, who, when the wind is offshore, will go to the opposite side from that on which the wreck occurred in order to receive the sea-tribute.—All the Year Round.

FOUR-LEAF CLOVER.

To Find Them Requires Nothing Save Training of the Eye.

The mass of people have strange ideas about the finding of a four-leaf clover—that is, about the ability to find them. Two persons out of every three will say when the subject is mentioned. "Why, I never found a four-leaf clover in all my life." Yet four-leaf clovers are a great deal more common than people think. The trouble is that most people do not know how to see them. The general impression is that the ability is the result of a kind of spirit of divination or some special sense of perception which is bestowed on only a few specially lucky mortals. It is nothing of the kind.

It is a simple training of the eye. It is the eye that finds the clover, not the person. It is precisely the same education of the eye that enables a trained proof-reader, for instance, to detect instantly the least departure from the ordinary appearance of a word. One may find hundreds of four-leaf clovers without giving it one conscious thought, if one's eyes have only got in the way of it. The eye, when trained, wanders over the patch of leaves and instantly detects the slightest variation in the trefoil pattern, just as the eye of the proof-reader sees the variation in the look of a word. So, you see, there isn't any more luck in that than there is in most other things in the world.

That's the physiological explanation of the matter, and no doubt it's the true one; but it isn't half so pretty as that an old Irish coachman once gave a sweet young girl who found the four parted leaves everywhere: "Orrah, miss," he said, "you'll find them where non at the rist af us cud. For wheriver your swate feet touch the grass, the four-leaf clover springs up to kiss thim, and so ye'll always fin' thim."

To go back to the training of the eye required to find the four-leaf clover, do people ever suspect, we wonder, that that is the only trick in learning to spell? The education is of the eye and not of the mind. An accurate speller is simply a person whose eyes can be trusted to take an accurate photograph of the appearance of the word, and to recall that appearance of that word in the mind at will, as he recalls the face of an absent friend. The eyes spell, not the mind.

And the exactness with which the eye reproduces depends upon the keenness with which it has been trained to observe. Is, then, the drill of the old spelling book, with its droning of a-b, ab, b-e-y, abbey, all for naught? Not at all, because the ability to reproduce through sound an idea that has been gained by sight necessitates accurate observation in the first place and is excelent discipline for the power concentration in the second place.—N. Y. Evening News.

—London Engineering says it need excite no surprise if before many years the first-class Atlantic ships maintain an average speed of thirty to thirty-five miles an hour, and a four days' journey between Queenstown and Sandy Hook is probably not at all an impossible thing in the future.

SOME SOCIAL PLEASURES.

O, free and easy neighbors are so nice to have about;
The daytime isn't lonely when they're running in and out,
They give a sense of safety from the burglars in the night—
Oh, yes, a social neighborhood is ever a delight.

It's pleasant in the morning, when you're busy making cakes,
To have old Mrs. Jones drop in to tell you all her aches,
And when she's gone see Mrs. Todd come puffing up the walk
To cheer your drooping spirits with how people of you talk.

It is indeed enjoyment when the servant from next door
Comes for a cup of sugar or a pinch of tea or more;
It's fun to lend your papers, books and tools, because, you know,
To get them back necessitates a call you likely owe.

It's pleasant in the afternoon, when dying for a nap,
For Mrs. White to visit with her baby on her lap,
And have to say it's beautiful and cunning—when it ain't,
And kiss it when its squalling tries the patience of a saint.

It's nice when neighbor's children in your garden come to play
And pluck your choicest flowers which they, after, throw away,
And trample with their muddy feet your cleanly stoop and hall,
And raise so grand a racket that you can not think at all.

And when your neighbor's chickens, goats, pigs, cows, and dogs and cats,
Come in to scratch, root, howl and bite and fight ferocious spats,
The day is never lonely for you're busy throwing stones,
Nights, robbers never hurt you for you can not rest your bones.

It's pleasant in the evening, when you want to go to bed,
To entertain late callers while they talk you nearly dead;
You like to hear their merry laugh and loud discussion long,
And have them wake the baby with a jolly midnight song.

Indeed it is delightful to sit patiently and smile
When these familiar neighbors of the free and easy style,
Run in to chat or borrow—while the ones you care to see,
For fear they are intruding, stay away so modestly.

Yes, for a fact, it's pleasant to have neighbors all about;
They find you're very handy when they feel like going out.
They "accidentally drop in"—a dozen times a day—
And give you such enjoyment that you wish they'd stay away.

—H. C. Dodge, in Goodall's Sun.

THE STRANGLER VINE.

A Horrible Plant in Yucatan, the Grip of Which Is Death.

A Prospector, While Searching for Wealth, Falls Into the Clutches of the Deadly Creeper—His Terrible Struggle for Life.

OU want to know how those marks came there, do you? Well, you would guess a mighty long time before you would come near it, so I'll spare you the trouble and tell you the story."

He held up his brown right hand as he spoke, says the San Francisco Examiner. Across the back of it were two livid lines. One of these lines passed inside his hand and wound around his little finger. This finger was twisted and broken and bent backward. Right up to the finger-nail extended the fiery thread-like line.

The second line was a deeper red, wider than the other, and from it other filament-like lines branched, covering the wrist with a network of scarlet tendrils. The main line could be seen to wind once around the wrist and was then lost up the speaker's sleeve.

"Well," he resumed, "you remember the excitement that followed the discoveries of silver in Yucatan in 1877. The Indians had been bringing down small quantities of horn silver for some time and selling it at Merida. Finally one of the half-breed merchants of that town got an Indian drunk and induced him to tell where they obtained the silver. They say it was one of the mines from which the Aztecs, or whatever race it was that built the cities the ruins of which cover so many miles in that country, used to get silver for their temples. At all events the merchant came back with two burros laden with almost pure silver. He said that there was silver enough in sight at the mine to load a fleet of steamers. He told in a general way where the treasure mountain was, and started out with a pack train for more. One of his mules strayed back nearly a month later, but that was all that was ever heard of him.

I THOUGHT I COULD TRACE THE OUTLINES OF TWO HUMAN FORMS.

"I was one of the swarm of prospectors that started out to find the old mine. It had taken the merchant two weeks to make his first trip, so we could calculate about what distance he had traveled. I had for a companion a Balise Indian hunter, who knew something of the interior country. We traveled ten days through the wildest country that any one ever heard of. Mountains whose snowy tops were thousands of feet above the clouds and whose sides were covered with jungles so thick that for days together we simply had to hew our way through it. At last we reached a valley, the other side of which was bounded by a separate chain of mountains. These, from where we stood, seemed perfectly unassailable, but my companion said he had been on top of them.

"'From the summit,' he said, 'you can see the Chihuandassi.'

"I had heard of the Chihuandassi. The name means Table of Dead Men, and the Indians say it is covered with plants that have the power of motion.

"'Have you ever been on the Chihuandassi?' I asked.

"'No man has ever gone there and returned to tell of it,' he answered.

"We crossed the valley, passing through the ruins of a great city built of almost transparent quartz, and finally struck the trail he spoke of and two days later stood on the top. On the other side was a narrow gulch and beyond it a sheer wall many hundreds of feet high. Still the top of this was lower than we were and we could look down upon the Table of Dead Men. The mesa on the other side of the gulch seemed perfectly level, and as far as we could judge was surrounded on all sides by just such a precipice as we saw. The country is all sandstone, and the swift little rivers have nearly all worn deep channels for themselves. In many localities you can walk one hundred miles, be able to throw a stone into the river, and yet you may die of thirst, so high and erect are those fearful walls. The Chihuandassi was covered with some low vegetation, and there were a few trees in the distance.

"'That is the flower that travels,' said my companion.

"He noticed my look of amused incredulity and resumed rather angrily:

"'You don't believe it? I have seen it move. Look there!'

"I looked. The table was agitated and looked like the waves of the sea. The whole green surface seemed to approach the edge nearest us. My hair rose for a moment, then I burst out laughing. 'It is only the wind tossing the snakeweed,' I said.

"'But there is no wind here.'

"He spoke truly. The air where we stood was perfectly still. Yet, I explained, it might be a breeze engendered by the nature of the country that did not extend to our side.

"'No, no,' he insisted. 'The Indians who have lived here for years know better. Those flowers are devils. No one who goes ever comes back from there.'

"Two Indians who loved one woman went up on the Chihuandassi to battle. Human eyes never again saw them alive. We are told that they fell victims to the flower that creeps.

"I had a first-class pair of glasses with me and I directed them to the plateau. Half covered with the vines and creepers I could see something white. There were two spots that might be skulls, and I thought I could trace the outlines of two human forms. They might have been rocks, and were doubtless what originated the Indian legend.

"An idea suddenly occurred to me that this story of certain death to whoever went up to that mountain-top was a story of the Indians to prevent any one from going there.

"'I'll bet a horse,' said I, 'that the mine is there, and I'm going to see.'

"Well, to cut it short, I left him there, and, with one mule, started for the Chihuandassi. I calculated that I could get around in three days, and told him to camp there and wait for me. It was nasty work getting down into the river-bed, but I did it before night, and had the satisfaction of camping on an old trail that night. Early the next morning I entered a fissure at the base of the lone mountain. It was a dry water course, not more than a dozen feet wide, and wound around between high sandstone walls. It was, however, comparatively free from brush, and I got along famously for a time. There were many rattlesnakes and centipedes along the old water course, but nothing more.

"I had been going up the old channel for probably four hours, getting higher every step. The walls of the water course were getting lower, and at this point I was not more than forty feet below the surface. As I turned a sharp bend, however, I came right up against a bowlder that completely filled the creek bed. The trail ended right there. It appeared as if the rock had recently rolled down to where it lay. I thought that if I could climb over it I could continue on up the water course. So I started to climb. The bowlder was rough enough to enable me to gain holds for my hands and feet, and though it was slow, hard work and I often slipped back, at last I managed to surmount it and stood on top. To my intense surprise I found myself within a dozen feet of the floor of the mesa and just above me one arm of the giant cactus I had seen from the other mountain. Then I determined, instead of continuing in the dry creek bed, to scale this wall and so reach the mesa where I expected to find the silver mine.

"The sandstone was soft and I had a strong knife. Besides, at the edge I saw some vines hanging over that looked strong enough to bear my weight if I succeeded in reaching them. So I began to climb the wall.

"At last I grasped the hanging vines.

"The stems were covered with fine points like a prickly pear, but I could not let go without falling. I reached my other hand higher and grasped another vine.

"In an instant its tendrils were around my wrists, other stems fell over the edge of the cliff. They curled around my arms and waist like snakes. Then they began to draw me up, and almost before I realized it I was dragged over the edge of the chasm almost to the foot of the cactus.

"The vines dragged me on, other stems curled about my legs and drew tighter and tighter.

"Then I realized that the Indian story was no fable. The idea of being in the power of this constricting thing that covered acres of land paralyzed me for an instant. The hand that had first touched the vines was being crushed in the devilish tendons. My little finger was broken backwards by the power of the vine. The pain brought me to my senses, and I began to fight for my life. One hand was still free, and in it was my knife. I began to hack at the snake-like coils of the devilish vegetable. As fast as I could cut away one running stem another would coil around me. Fight as I would, the vine was stronger, and on and on it dragged me.

"My foot struck something and I felt it crush and crumble beneath my heel. I looked down. It was a human head, one of those white spots I had seen through my glass. The body, fearfully shrunken and emaciated, lay there among the coiling, twisting vines. Near it was another.

"I realized it all while I backed and struggled. These two had been caught in the toils of the awful monster like myself and strangled.

"I was getting weak. The pressure about my limbs was unbearable. I had cut myself badly in cutting the strangling bonds. I looked over the mesa with a wild hope of seeing some one or something to help me.

"The mesa was all in motion. The vines were twisting, curling, falling, rising, trembling. It was a moving mass like the ocean and the waves were reaching and falling towards me.

"It was not the wind, blowing the snakeweed. The fiendish plant had life and motion, and every fiber of it was straining to reach me. I knew that if those advancing waves of black ever reached me I was lost. I would be like those shriveled bodies by the giant cactus.

IN AN INSTANT THE TENDRILS WERE AROUND MY WRISTS.

"I made a final effort to escape. I could hear the muscles crack and strain as I pulled. I cut the thickest stem that enveloped me, and, for the first time since the struggle began, was able to make a step backward. But the fight was not over yet. A dozen smaller tendrils, like so many whip-cords, were tangled about me, cutting into my flesh with a terrible power. I had kept my throat free, though the vegetable serpents seemed to strive to coil about it. So I cut and struggled backward. A final slash, a jump, and I was over the edge and on the bowlder in the dry creek. But the demon's arms followed me. I knew that they would seize me again before I could get down, so I dashed to the other side of the water-course and clambered up there.

"How I thanked God when I found nothing there but greasewood and cactus. I saw the vines swing and sway over where I had escaped, and then I fainted.

"When I came to, the mesa was quiet again. The vines had receded, and if it had not been for my aching, swollen limbs I would have sworn it was all a nightmare. But there laid the two dried-out bodies. While I lay there I recognized them. It was the half-breed merchant from Merida. The other was doubtless the Indian who betrayed the secret of the silver mine."

SALT AS A DISSIPATION.

Perilous Effect of Its Excessive Use on the Gentler Sex.

Salt, the least harmful of condiments, if such a necessary article of diet can be termed a condiment, is by the medical profession recognized as a species of dissipation in its excessive use among many women. Every one knows how flat and flavorless all food becomes when the system is a trifle deranged; it is just then, when men resort to bitters and burning sauces to tone up their jaded appetites, that women find their sole recourse in the apparently innocent salt cruet. It is the old story of giving an inch to yield an ell, and before the victim knows it her palate demands a double or triple quantity of the mineral to savor every morsel she eats. Some go so far as to salt not only the substantial dishes, but tea, coffee, fruit, nuts, sweetmeats and wine. They begin by taking a pinch extra now and then to pique their tastes, and before long steal a bit to keep in the pocket, or buy a crystal to nibble on the sly. Nature's revenge on her weak daughter is as insidious as the result her immutable laws have suffered. She flies her first signals of distress in a deadening of the skin, replacing the pink glow of health by a dim, yellowish pallor. Lips and cheeks blanch alike, this change being accompanied by a deepening of every shadow on the face. This is as nothing, however, to the destruction this morbid habit works on a woman's crowning glory, her hair. And it is astonishing how sensitive the the hair is to every fluctuation of one's health. Soon, each time the comb passes through it brings great handfuls of long, shining strands. No lotion or tonic is effective in checking the loss, and, unless corrected, the abnormal amount of salt in the system will produce partial baldness. Even now quite a number of women are under treatment, some avowedly and others secretly for this form of cases.—Illustrated American.

GUIDE-BOOK VACATION.

How Young Yardstick Made the Most of a Poor Thing.

There is nothing in this world that is a livelier factor in one's happiness than being able to make the most of a poor thing. And it is the happy temperament of the imaginative clerk who can not get away for a vacation in the mountains or on the shore that enables him to be as serene in his third-story back hall bed-room.

Here he can be in all the resorts in the country in his imagination without leaving the house. We are all well aware that the anticipation of the circus intoxicates the soul of the small boy much more than the circus itself, and anticipation and imagination are about the same thing. Therefore, the clerk in his imagination enjoys something that can not be clouded by disappointment, when he fancies the joys of a place that he can not visit.

He has guide books and photographs without number, and with these he may well murmur, his soul bubbling over with dreamy joy:

"Here I am climbing Mt. Whiteface, while sitting on a soft bed in my slippers. I can look up to its grand old bald head on which there are no flies, in any sense, and from the top of it enjoy Tahawus and the Druids to my heart's content without feeling that on returning I have got to hold on to saplings and lower myself to its base like one descending from a burning building on a rope. If this mountain climbing gives me a huge appetite, I have not got to travel two hours to reach Grizzly Lodge to get a meal about three sizes too small for a dwarf. As it costs nine dollars per week here and $17.50 at the Grizzly Lodge, I can not consistently feel that I am at all unfortunate in not being able to get away.

"At Grizzly Lodge, if you complain of the smallness of the portions, you are told that they are in reality large, but appear diminutive to your vision only because your vision is acted upon by your gnawing mountain appetite. Therefore, in this house I may enjoy Grizzly Lodge at its best—which is the guide-book description, and still be within half a block of a first-class restaurant.

"It costs fifteen dollars to travel from Grizzly Lodge to Campobello, but in my hall bed-room I can make the journey in a second by turning a page. Here I am in Campobello in a first-class hotel—in the guide book—and, looking at the picture, I see the wavelets curling like weary tiger lilies beneath the silvery moon. Ah, the grand old ocean, this is the way I like to lay hold of its frothy —Oh, ouch, ah—!——!!——!!! I never thought I could split a head-board with my knuckles before. How delightful, how picturesque is the grand old sounding main, when enjoyed in this way, where its freezing air can't chill you through, and the land breeze can not thrust you into a swarm of hungry mosquitoes.

"I tell you, Horatio, there is nothing so pleasant as a guide book vacation, because there is no disappointment; you don't have to tip the waiters, you don't have to sleep in a room so narrow that you can not turn over in bed without falling over your trunk, you don't have to attend to your correspondence by sitting on the bed, having your feet against an elastic wall, and writing on your knee, and you don't have to sleep on a bed that's so uneven that you awake round-shouldered and bow-legged.

"I am the old optimist that believes firmly in the guide-book vacation, for it stretches through all the year, enables you to paddle among the lilies in December, to catch fish out of season, and shoot in great quantities animals that are really extinct. Pray, excuse me, gentle reader, for I am an impecunious dry-goods clerk, and I tremble until the very scissors, jingle in my vest pocket, when I think of to-morrow, and the rural mob that swarm the place on every bargain day, and I want to lose myself in the howling wilderness of the North Woods, and float off into rosy visions to the murmurous melody of the sparkling silvery Ultowana.

Where the steak is sweet and tender
As the lily on the stream,
Where the lovely maidens render
Life a rosy posy dream.
Where by Towser's bark Peruvian
We at night are not unnerved,
Where no hen that's antediluvian
On the table's ever served.
Where the atmosphere's delicious
And the views as fine as silk,
And the cocktails as nutritious
As the cream upon the milk.

—R. K. Mumkittrich, in Once a Week.

Enterprising.

"I tell you Hooks, of Radical City, is an ornament to the profession," remarked the president of the Real Estate Agents' Association, at a recent meeting.

"I heard they had him in jail there," said a member.

"So they did; but they couldn't keep him in. Why, in less than three days he had sold ten lots in his Highland addition to the guards, dickered the sheriff out of his pistols and handcuffs, taken a mortgage on the jail, and sold the balls and chains and part of the gratings to the junkman. Oh, he's enterprising, Hooks is!"—Puck.

The Printer Had Been There.

Irate real estate boomer (entering business office of a daily paper)—See here, what does this mean? I wrote in my advertisement of the "Elysium Addition" that is fifteen minutes walk from the postoffice and you printed it "fifteen miles."

Business Manager—Well, the fact is the proof reader undertook to walk out there yesterday, and when the proof come to him this way he thought it was correct.

A Foolish Question.

Bobby—Pa, are you very busy to-night?

Father—Well, I'm just reading the paper, Bobby. What is it?

Bobby—There's a race of little people called Pigmies, isn't there?

Father—Yes.

Bobby—Well, pa, when they grow up are they Hogmies?

Father—Bobby, you can go to bed at once.—Munsey's Weekly.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—The people of Munich consume the enormous quantity of 485 quarts of beer per head per annum.

—The cultivation of tobacco has been forbidden in Egypt and the duty upon the imported article raised.

—A reduction of postal rates in Japan was expected to cause a deficit in the revenues, but instead they showed an increase.

—Almost 54,000 Frenchman belong to the Legion of Honor, 32,021 of them being connected with the army, and the rest civilians.

—The German colonists in Southern Russia will be compeled, it is said, to emigrate, the authorities at St. Petersburg having determined to get rid of them.

—An olive tree, with an authentically recorded age of five centuries, was recently destroyed by the wind at Beaulieu, France. It measured thirty-six feet in circumference.

—The common attachment of a boy for his nurse has been carried to the extreme by Herr Gerhardt, a wealthy Bremen merchant, who has just married the woman who was once his wet nurse.

—Between April 1, 1889, and April 1, 1890, the Prussian Department of Forestry sold at cost to Prussians 35,397,244 young trees; 2,807,288 of them were shade trees and the rest evergreens. The department is making strenuous efforts to increase the amount of standing timber on private grounds.

—Some curious statistics on the amount of artificial lighting supplied per head in Paris have been laid before the Societe International des Electricians. Thirty years ago the lighting was equivalent to 3,765 candles per annum for each inhabitant. By 1872 the amount had risen to 6,000, and by gradual increments it in 1889 reached 11,300, which was equal to about thirty candles per head per day.

—The second parade of the Royal Botanic Society in Regent Park was a brilliant success. All kinds of vehicles wreathed in flowers formed a charming procession. The most original and striking device of the day was a dog cart draped in white, shaded by a huge umbrella, which gave the effect of an elephant's howdah as it appeared in the distance of the grounds. Near at hand this chariot was seen to be entwined with plaited straw and white marguerites.

—One of the most beautiful sights in the world will soon be seen in India. The unparalleled beauty of the Taj Mahal will be made visible at night, and still further idealized by electric-light illumination. Within the next month powerful arc lights will be placed in each of the front minarets, on each of the back minarets, and on the Musjid and Jawab. The effect will be all the more striking from the fact that the main building will have no light stationed upon it, so that the points mentioned will be thrown into magnificient relief.

—The Royal Academy is confronted with trouble of a most novel sort. A prominent non-member seeing his picture placed in the center of the wall, but above the line, requested that it should be taken down and returned to him. That, of course, was impossible. Such a precedent would make the exhibition liable to be pulled to pieces immediately after it was hung. Then the artist daubed his work all over with white, by which he nearly killed the painting below, and wrote "sketch" in black letters in the corner. The picture now is no longer the picture that was accepted by the committee.

RUSSIAN OFFICIALS.

How They Manage to Live High on Very Small Salaries.

When we descended into the street Herr von Hamilton told me that the nacselnik, whose official salary is £600, is supposed to make an income of about £3,000 to £4,000 a year. Nothing is done, nothing is carried out under his regime, but something remains in his palm behind. Every official request must be accompanied by a ruble note, or a bundle of that commodity of proportionate value to the matter in question. A merchant, say, wishes to undertake a journey, and forwards his passport, together with a five-ruble note, to be vise. A week passes, his departure is imperative—no passport! The Russian merchant knows better than to show any temper. He presents an humble request between the leaves of which a ten-ruble note is gracefully sandwiched, and lo! he receives his passport—he is a happy man. The proverbial spoonful of oil goes further than the bottle of vinegar, and in dealing with Russian officialism gentle persuasiveness is the means of gaining your end.

A characteristic episode led to the removal of the last nacselnik. He had conveyed to an old Bendzin Jew that his son could be got off serving in the army by the payment of a thousand rubles (for a short time ago (before) it was a usual thing for the officials who were connected with this matter, from the nacselnik downward, to sell exemptions and share the spoil). This Hebrew's son happened to be a weakly creature—almost a cripple—and by some misunderstanding the old Jew wrote to the authorities at St. Petersburg averring that his son would make at best such a poor soldier that he thought that he was not worth more than five hundred rubles. After that expose the nacselnik was no longer comfortable in Bendzin, so he was sent to the Caucasus—kicked up-stairs into an even more lucrative position!

We had not walked far before another meeting took place, and in broad daylight the usual kisses and affectionate accolades. "That man," said Herr von Hamilton, "was up till lately the secretary of the nacselnik. His official salary was about £80; still he managed to take his wife and family to Italy every year, and when he was removed—perhaps for being too energetic—he had managed to save 60,000 rubles besides."—Gentleman's Magazine.

TAKING TESTIMONY

State Arbitrators Investigate the Central Strike.

MR. WEBB A WILLING WITNESS.

He Said He Hired the Pinkerton Men Before the Trouble Began.

Master Workman Lee Told Why He Ordered the Strike—Several Discharged Workmen Testify—A Letter from Mr. Powderly Read Advising Caution—The Leader of the Knights on the Stand.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The State Board of Arbitration is now in session in the Superior Court room, taking testimony regarding the strike on the New York Central Railway. All three members of the Board are present and several witnesses have been examined. Among them were Third Vice-President H. Walter Webb, Terence V. Powderly, James J. Holland, E. J. Lee, John Devlin and a number of the ex-employes of the company.

Mr. Webb was the only witness for the company. The others were against it. A notable feature of the affair was the indifference manifested by the attorneys for the corporation regarding their opponents' testimony. They did not cross-examine a witness. Frank Loomis, Hamilton Harris and D. W. Sears appeared for the company and Roger A. Pryor for the strikers.

Mr. Webb's Testimony.

Third Vice-President Webb took the stand and in reply to counsel said the company had not had any controversy with the men. On August 8 a body of men left the employ of the road, which was now being operated without them. To General Pryor Mr. Webb said that 78 men had been discharged, 17 of whom were Knights of Labor. Of these Engineer Truax had been discharged because work was slack; Engineer Lee and employes named McCarthy, Converse, Molloy and Brown because their work was unsatisfactory. Lee, Mr. Webb said, had told Mr. Toucey that if he did not get money from the road he would make trouble for it. Mr. Webb said he had declined to discuss arbitration with Mr. Powderly or Mr. Holland. As to Pinkerton's policemen Mr. Webb said he had them before the strike and at the time the newspapers began to talk of it. He declined to answer, when asked, what he paid them, and admitted that he employed them before asking for police protection.

After Mr. Webb left the stand Mr. Harris announced that the New York Central Company had told all they knew about the case, and that for the present, at least, they had no more testimony to present.

The Strikers' Side.

General Pryor announced that he had several witnesses. William A. Valentine took the stand and said he was 26, and had been employed by the Central as trainman until August 4 last, when he was discharged by written notice and without assigned reason. The note was signed by J. W. Stevens, assistant superintendent, who accused witness of saying to other employes that if they did not join the Knights of Labor they would be sorry for it. Witness explained the nature of his conversation with the other men on the road to Stevens and the latter went away, after advising him to keep quiet about his connection with the Knights of Labor, and that his connection with that organization would probably get him off the road and would certainly interfere with his promotion.

Why the Strike Was Ordered.

Master Workman Edward J. Lee, of District Assembly 246, was called. Mr. Lee said he had been an extra engineer on freight trains and was discharged on July 9 without being told what he was discharged for.

He claimed that the strike was ordered because the officers of the New York Central road had violated an agreement between them and the company providing for promotion by seniority, and because the men were discharged because they were Knights.

On one occasion, after the strike was decided on, he said he told Mr. Toucey, when the latter called him an agitator, that he would not be false to his organization, and that if they would only reinstate the other discharged men he would not ask to be taken back himself, upon which Mr. Toucey said: "They are as bad as you are."

Powderly's Advice to Lee.

General Pryor read a letter from Mr. Powderly dated February 8, 1890, in which the writer commended Mr. Lee and his associates for their course, and warned them against rashness or precipitate action in the future. He reminded them of the unfortunate strike on the Reading road and its result, and bade them avoid the same mistakes. He also reminded them that the railroad company had rights which the employes were bound to respect, and bade them to sacredly regard the company's rights while endeavoring to secure their own. General Pryor then read Mr. Lee's response dated Feb. 12, written in the same spirit.

Powderly Testifies.

General Master Workman Powderly was called to the witness stand and was asked to describe the interview he had with Mr. Toucey and Mr. Webb on August 19. He said that it was to secure arbitration that he had decided to meet the officials of the company.

"They refused arbitration," said Mr. Powderly, "and then we asked to have the men brought in and examined in our presence, and were refused in this also. They would not meet us on any ground whatever."

"You did not imply in this interview that the company had no power to discharge employes for cause?"

"Not at all, but we did want to ascertain whether they had or had not been discharged because they were Knights of Labor. We firmly believe that they had been dismissed on this account."

"You claim that the company had no right to discharge them on that account?"

"Most assuredly not any more than they should discharge them because of their religious views."

"And you would strike on such a ground as that?"

"Certainly. We are fighting for existence and it was an issue that had to be met. If the company was attacking our organization we were willing to go any length to meet the issue."

THE CHICAGO STRIKE.

Over 6,000 Men Quit Work and All Sides Surprised.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The second great strike of the carpenters this year was a surprise. Of the 8,000 members of the craft in this city less than 2,000 resumed work and by to-night it is expected that most of those will have joined the strikers.

The strike is much more general than had been anticipated by either of the employing associations, and far more unanimous than the promoters of it had hoped for.

The men demand the eight-hour day, 47½ cents an hour and arbitration of all disputes. The strike differs from the one inaugurated last May in that any contractor that concedes the terms demanded will be furnished men by the Carpenters' Council.

SAFE ON AN ISLAND.

A Connecticut Picnic Party Found Suffering from Hunger and Exposure.

NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 3.—Yesterday noon Misses Lucy and Nellie Hoyt, nieces, and Lyman Hoyt, nephew of ex United States Treasurer James W Hyatt, and Misses Annie and Ida Hosegood, and Charles Hosegood, went in a small skiff on a picnic. Their failure to return, coupled with the fact that a heavy sea was on, caused great anxiety, and searching parties hunted for them all night.

During the morning a special steamer found the party all safe on a small piece of land called Betts Island, though suffering from hunger and exposure. The heavy weather had carried them farther out than they intended to go, and they were carried ashore on the island.

The G. A. R. of Pennsylvania.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—At the business meeting of the G. A. R. of Pennsylvania, it was decided to hold the next summer encampment of the department at Williamsport, provided that city would guarantee to bear all the expenses. Resolutions were passed favoring the transfer of the body of General Grant from New York to Arlington if the removal shall meet the wishes of Mrs. Grant.

Addressing Central Strikers.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 3.—J. H. Hart of Scranton, Pa., and J. H. Meltin of Boston, Mass., prominent members of the Knights of Labor organization, addressed a meeting of New York Central strikers and sympathizers here last night. Both speakers insisted that the strike had only begun, and Hart told his hearers not to be surprised if they heard "something drop within a week."

Veterinary Doctors in Session.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 3.—The semi-annual meeting of the State Veterinary Medical Association is in session in this city. BOSTON, Sept. 3.—It is reported that a note of the Worcester Steel works for $5,000 had been protested. The capital of the company is $500,000, but a commercial agency gives it no rating. The failure is an outcome of the suspension of Potter, Lovell & Co.

ARMED PINKERTONS

A Congressional Committee to Consider the Subject.

WORKINGMEN MAKE AN APPEAL

Federation of Labor Delegates Urge Congress to Take Immediate Action.

Senator Hale Discusses His Reciprocity Amendment—Mr. Sherman Thinks the Plan a Startling One—He Talks About Canada's Trade—The Surplus Described by Congressmen of Both Parties.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Representative Quinn of New York appeared before the Committee on Commerce and urged that action be taken on the resolution introduced by him relative to the unlawful employment of Pinkerton detectives by the New York Central Railroad Company.

He presented to the committee Messrs. Ferry, McCann and Schultein, from the Federation of Labor, each of whom spoke of the necessity for Congress to take some action in the matter and put an end to the illegal appointment of irresponsible parties by corporations.

A committee was appointed to consider the matter and report a resolution at an early day.

TALKING FOR RECIPROCITY.

Mr. Hale Advocates His Amendment in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—In the Senate Mr. Hale offered the reciprocity amendment of which he gave notice last June, and spoke in support of it. Discussion of reciprocity he said had resulted in grave and pertinent suggestions from eminent men of the country during the last thirty years. Whoever had seen the gradual falling off of American trade with Central and South America and the islands of the sea must have witnessed those conditions with the greatest impatience. The people of all those countries had a common interest with the people of the United States.

Mr. Hale referred to the reciprocity message of President Harrison and to Mr. Blaine's attitude in support of it, and to the increasing and earnest discussion of the subject; also to Mr. Frelinghuysen's letter of the 14th of December, 1884, transmitting the Foster treaty with Spain; also the reciprocity resolution offered in the Senate by Mr. Aldrich in December, 1886, and to a report of Mr. Abram S. Hewitt in the House of Representatives to carry into effect a convention between the United States and Mexico, which showed that Hewitt was influenced by the same idea that now prevailed with a vast majority of the American people.

Mr. Sherman said that the proposition of Mr. Hale's amendment was a startling one. It authorized the President of the United States without further legislation to declare the ports of the United States free and open to all the products of any nation of the American hemisphere upon which no export duties are imposed. Was Cuba, he asked, a nation? He knew that the Senator, Mr. Hale, said to-day that he meant to include Cuba. But was Canada embraced in that list of nations?

He had asked the Senator that question and the Senator had replied, "No, no; that is quite a different thing." And yet Canada was an independent Government to all practical purposes, except as to the tie which bound her to the mother country. But if any reciprocal trade arrangements were made with any country they ought to be made with Canada. The amendment would authorize the importation of all products, including the mezcal, or whiskey of Mexico.

Mr. Hale referred to the trade tables with Central and South America to show the unfavorable position of the United States in regard to those countries, and said that there was a sentiment among the people that something should be done to remedy that condition.

Coming directly to the question of putting sugar on the free list, Mr. Hale said that no one could tell what benefit would come to the consumer by the unreserved repeal of the sugar duties. No one could tell whether the prices of sugar might not be proportionately increased by the sugar producing countries.

Two Estimates on the Surplus.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—In the House Mr. Cannon made a statement of the probable surplus after all appropriations are made for the fiscal year 1891. He estimated a net surplus of $17,000,000. Mr. Sayers for the Democrats also submitted an estimate in which he produced figures which he claimed would show a net deficiency of $11,500,000 for 1891.

The Anti-Lottery Bill.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Mr. Sawyer, from the Postoffice Committee, reported in the Senate the House Anti-Lottery bill and gave notice that he would ask for its consideration as soon as the Tariff bill was passed.

Fasted 154 Days.

WHITEHALL, Pa., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Adam Wuchter has, it is asserted, fasted 154 days. It is positively affirmed by her friends, who are continually at her bedside, and by her attending physician, that no food or nourishment of any kind has passed her lips in the time mentioned.

Gov. Hill and the Grant Monument.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Governor Hill sent a special messenger to the Grant Monument Fund Committee to say that he would be glad to co-operate with them in any way. The committee will meet to-morrow to consider the plans presented by the various architects.

The regular umpire failing to appear in time for the first game, Nagle of the Chicagoes was selected. After the first half of the first inning had been played, Fessenden, the regular official, arrived. The Bostons refused, and Nagle decided the game forfeited to Chicago, 9 to 0. Fessenden in the meantime had called upon Chicago to proceed under penalty of forfeiture, and as they also refused, he gave the game to Boston, 9 to 0.

Interesting Exercises at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—Ex-Governor A. G. Curtin presided at the exercises held by the Pennsylvania Reserve Association, which were held in the presence of a large assemblage. The monuments were presented to the Battlefield Memorial Society by Gov. Beaver, and were received on behalf of the society by Provost Major C. W. Hazzard. The Sixth, Tenth and First Cavalry held individual exercises.

Six of the new men who took strikers places were discharged during the morning because of incompetency.

MIZNER IN DANGER

Gen. Barrundia's Followers Threaten to Kill Him.

HIS FRIENDS URGE HIM TO FLEE

The Minister Will Not Accept the Advice But is Badly Frightened.

The Legation Guarded by Squads of Policemen—The Abortive Attempt of Barrundia's Daughter to Shoot Mr. Mizner Still Discussed in Guatemala. The Woman Taken to Prison.

CITY OF GUATEMALA, Sept. 3.—United States Minister Mizner's friends are urging him to abandon the city if he would save his life. The followers of General Barrundia threaten to kill him on sight. Incensed by his order to Captain Pitts to surrender their chief, they hold him responsible for the subsequent tragedy on board the Acapulco. The failure of the attempt of Barrundia's daughter to shoot Mizner seems only to have whetted their appetite for what they call their revenge.

Up to the present Mr. Mizner shows no signs of accepting the advice of his friends—to flee from the city—but the almost open threats of assassination have badly frightened him, and the legation is constantly guarded by squads of policemen.

Nothing is talked of but the abortive attempt of Barrundia's daughter to kill Mr. Mizner. Undoubtedly the woman, who was recently married in this city, was made temporarily crazy by the story of the killing of her father.

When she appeared at the Legation she was very pale and trembling with excitement. In her hand she carried a Colt's revolver, and she had forced her way into Mr. Mizner's private office before any one had presence of mind enough to arrest her.

While the servants were disarming the woman, it is now said, Mr. Mizner ran into the street, crying loudly for help. A crowd quickly gathered among them being a number of policemen, who arrested the woman and marched her off to prison.

THE LABOR CONGRESS.

Unskilled Workingmen Represented at the Liverpool Meeting.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 3.—The distinguishing note of the great labor congress now assembled in this city is the large representation of women and of unskilled labor. These two classes, the importance of which is not to be denied in the face of recent developments, have been completely neglected by the old trades unions, and have only lately been really recognized as forming powerful factors in the complicated labor problems of the day. Their promince, therefore, on this occasion is noteworthy and significant.

President Watkins in his address said the time had undoubtedly arrived when an energetic attempt should be made to secure eight hours as a day's work. He did not advocate that a measure should be forced through the House of Commons immediately, irrespective of the wishes and desires of the industries affected, making eight hours a day's work, but he saw no reason why such a concession should not be made immediately to the occupations which unmistakably wanted it. He advocated a direct representation of labor in Parliament, the control of the railways by the State and the solution of the land question by naturalization.

The delegates to the Congress represent a constituency of 1,500,000 workmen. The morning hours are devoted to business, while the afternoons are given up to recreation and sightseeing. The latter, however, is largely of a practical nature.

In Memory of John Boyle O'Reilly.

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—A large audience filled Tremont Temple last night for the purpose of paying tribute to the memory of the late John Boyle O'Reilly. Mayor Hart called the meeting to order, and Charles Levi Woodbury presided. The Hon. P. A. Collins, Col. T. W. Higginson, Gen. B. F. Butler, Col. Charles H. Taylor, Vicar-General Byrne and others made addresses, and appropriate resolutions were adopted.

New York Complains About the Census.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Board of Aldermen to-day passed resolutions alleging that the recent census of the city is defective; that the local statistics indicate that it is deficient to the extent of not less than 200,000 persons, and applying to the President of the United States, the Secretary of the Interior and the Superintendent of the Census to order a recount.

A Mother's Leap for Her Child.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—Mrs. David S. Lafferty was sitting on an eminence in Mount Zion Cemetery, overlooking the Schuylkill Canal at this place, with her 13-months-old child in a baby-coach by her side. Two children, in playing, started the carriage in motion, and it rapidly descended an embankment and then plunged 40 feet perpendiculariy into the canal, followed by the mother in her frantic efforts to rescue her baby. The woman was taken out of the water alive, though severely injured, but the baby was drowned.

A Mortgage for Over Three Millions.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—A mortgage for $3,000,998, representing the par value of the stock of the Iron Car Equipment Company of New York, was entered here yesterday. This company is a new organization and succeeds the defunct Iron Car Company. The claims for labor will be paid this week and the works will resume operations.

THE SAWTELLE TRIAL.

Fifty Witnesses for the State Arrive at Dover, N. H.

DOVER, N. H., Sept. 3.—The witnesses who will appear before the grand jury in the Sawtelle case are all here. There are 50 of them altogether, who, in the presentation of the case before the jury, will appear for the State.

Mrs. Hiram Sawtelle has arrived, as have also Captain Martin White and Special Officer Shields from Boston, and Inspector Cogan is on the way here.

The trial of Isaac B. Sawtelle in a week or two will mark an era in New England history. Outside of general interest in the case and the horrible features of the alleged fratricide, as a legal fight it will come very near standing unparalleled in the annals of New England courts of justice. Both sides have made endeavors to present a strong case, and each propose a surprise to the other.

SUICIDE AT SEVENTY.

Mary Patterson Had Worked Fifty Years in One Mill.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 3.—Mary Patterson, 70 years old, was found dead on her bed in her squalid quarters at 29 Cross street, about 9 o'clock.

An empty two-ounce laudanum bottle was standing on a chair near her bed and the marks of where some of the liquid had spilled on her shin.

She had been employed at the Dolphin Jute Mills in this city for the past 50 years, but has not been seen by any of her neighbors since last Thursday.

Her poverty was great, and being too proud to beg it is believed that she took laudanum to end her existence.

THE VERMONT ELECTION.

A Light Vote Polled—The Republicans Carry the State.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 3.—This State voted for State officers, two representatives to Congress and a full list of State Senators and Representatives.

The returns thus far received indicate that the vote is very light. Fifty towns out of 242 in the State give Page (Rep.), 8,198; Brigham (Dem.), 4,862; Allen (Pro.), 240; scattering, 3. The same towns in 1888 gave Dillingham (Rep.), 12,554; Shartleff (Dem.), 4,477; all others, 337.

The Republican majority over all in towns so far heard from is 3,373, as against 7,750 in 1888.

"The Manly Art of Self Defence."

Giving "blow for blow," is often more thought of, than that other "art of self defence," which consists in defending one's own system from the assaults of disease and neglect. When dyspepsia, biliousness, "liver complaint," jaundice, and the like lay hold of the system, the best defence is the immediate use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; tiny, sugar-coated Granules, made from concentrated vegetable extracts; one a dose.

WHEELMEN OUT FOR A LARK.

They Have a Good Time and Rescue a Lady's Pocketbook.

Messrs Frank L. C. Martin, Stuart H. Patterson, E. L. Walz, Jr., David H. Lenox, and A. L. C. Marsh, of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, left New York with their wheels on the steamboat Albertina last Saturday afternoon, got off at Navesink Highlands, and rode to Seabright, where one of the party, Mr. Patterson, left and rode to Belmar, while the others rode to Red Bank, where they remained one night. Next day they rode back to Seabright, and spent the morning sailing on Pleasure Bay. In the afternoon they wheeled through Long Branch and Asbury Park to Belmar, where they were again joined by Mr. Patterson. On the road between Avon-by-the-Sea and Belmar a scramble was indulged in between the wheelmen for a lady's pocketbook, fashioned of handsomest snake skin, that lay in the road. Messrs Marsh and Martin saw it about the same time, and both made a dive from their wheels. Mr. Martin was the successful grabber. The purse was found to contain about $50 in cash, with no card or name in it to serve as a clue to find the owner, save a check drawn on a Philadelphia bank. Mr. Martin is now in correspondence with the party who drew the check and thinks he will be able to find the owner so as to return the lost money.

The wheelmen stopped over night at Belmar, next day riding down as far as Sea Girt and riding back to Asbury Park, where after a surf bath they had an excellent dinner, returning to Long Branch and taking the boat for home. The trip was one that will long be pleasantly remembered by the participants.

Thorne, Jr., and A. E. Benary, indulged in a stag dance. Messrs Martin, Raser, McCredy and Benary taking feminine parts.

Another Benefit Asked From the Big 6.

One of the many good things the "Big 6" has done for the city, is the purchase of fire department horses and putting them to work on the streets, in place of hiring the horses of others. These horses have already earned $433, while their cost of keeping during the same time, was $52.

Now let the "Big 6" give the city a system of electric fire alarm, and then such mistakes as occurred Monday night won't occur again at a time when the mistake might result in the loss of much property and possibly some lives. The alarm bell the city now has rang Monday night for a fire in the North Plainfield district, and the call sent over the telephone was for "Seventh street," whereas the fire was on Front street and beyond control when the firemen found it.

—The official census figures show that Plainfield's increase is greater than that of New Brunswick and Rahway combined. The bureau at Washington announces the following: New Brunswick, 18,459; increase, 1,293. Plainfield, 11,250; increase, 3,125. Rahway, 7,090; increase, 635.

The gormandizer likes it because it is fine, The workman likes it because it quenches his thirst, enriches his blood, and strengthens his muscle. It is cheap. The mother likes it. It keeps her boys at home. The women of America like it, because it takes the place of intoxicants. This Hires' Root Beer.

SOUGHT TO KILL THE ITALIANS.

Harsh Treatment of the Dagoes by Young Men From Jerusalem.

Wm. Perrine and Del Pheasant, natives of Jerusalem Road, beyond Scotch Plains, went on the warpath against ex-Street Commissioner Angleman's gang of Italians working on the county roads. Perrine was pounding Tommy Delenco, and Pheasant was pounding Eggie Blounie, when James Connelly and other valiant young men went to the rescue and, in the face of a shower of stones which drew blood in several places, drove the two young men away. Subsequently the belligerent twain returned in a wagon, armed with a jug of whisky, an axe, and two revolvers. They flourished their weapons promiscuously, but were chased, and Perrine was captured. Connelly brought him, a prisoner, in a wagon to Plainfield, in spite of his drunken plea to be allowed to go to Summit to dig for clams, and he was given a hearing this morning before Justice Nash, who held him for the grand jury, on the charge of assault and battery, and sentenced him to thirty days imprisonment in the county jail, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Perrine vowed that he would get square by killing the Italians.

Plainfield Well Represented at the State Building Loan Convention.

Pursuant to invitations from Hon. James Bishop, Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industries, delegates from the various Building and Loan Associations of New Jersey met as a convention in the Assembly Chamber at Trenton, yesterday morning, and continued in session through the afternoon. About one hundred and twenty duly appointed delegates were present, among them being Treasurer Codington and Secretary Harper of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association, and President Rushmore, Secretary Struthers and Attorney Stillman of the Home Association of this city. Ex-Speaker Armstrong, of Camden, presided in his usual able and dignified manner.

The primary object of the conference was to agree upon the form of an annual report made obligatory upon each Association by a recent act of the Legislature. After recess, the committee to whom the matter had been referred, submitted as the result of their labor, a comprehensive and practical form of report, which was taken up for consideration, item by item, and finally, with but slight alterations, adopted by the convention and recommended for official approval. The remarks of various members were highly interesting and instructive, and evidenced zeal in the work, and the great and growing benefits derivable from all well conducted Associations.

The convention also inaugurated the idea of a State League, by requesting the different Building and Loan Associations to consider the propriety of giving to such suggested action organized authority.

We Named Them and We're Proud of it.

A correspondent asks: "Who first gave the 'Big 6' Councilmen, that title?"

Early in the year Mayor Male nominated Wm. Hand as Street Commissioner. He was not confirmed, and the Mayor was therefore very much in the humor of permitting Commissioner Angleman to hold over, much to the disappointment of the people and Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith and Spangenberg.

On February 7, in speaking of the circumstance, THE PRESS said: "Still there is this sprig of hope sprouting in the breasts of the Big 6. The Mayor has been known to change his mind. It is said that he promised he would not sign the contract employing constructing engineer Hering; and he didn't—for a while."

Thus it was that they were baptised with a name that will last, like their good deeds, for years and years.

Glad News for Plainfield and Somerville.

A series of base ball games between the Somerville and Plainfield teams, will be arranged for the Saturday afternoons of September 13, 20 and 27.

This will be glad news to the base ball cranks of both places. It is the intention now of having one game on each team's ground, and the third chosen by tossing a cent.

Make no mistake about the nine Somerville will put in the field. It will not be the same as has played during the past few months. It will be much strengthened.

It is no more than is just to pitcher Harkins and the Somerville people, that he should have better support than he has had.

Plainfield's team will not be changed. It could hardly be bettered. If we lose it can't be helped and Somerville will deserve heaps of credit.

Shot So Close as to Burn His Clothes.

Further particulars that are obtainable as the excitement subsides over the accidental shooting of six-year-old Freddy Kissam by his older brother Richard, are: The little fellow as soon as the charge of shot struck him, turned and ran for home. He ran so fast that although the bigger boy started after him, he could not catch him.

When Freddy got in the house he threw himself down on a lounge and cried out to his mother that he was going to die. He said, further, "And Dick ought to be shot too, for shooting me." The little lad's clothing was ablaze from the closeness of the explosion, and the first thing the mother had to do was to put out the fire.

In scaffolding, flooring, shedding, etc., 1,000,000 cubic feet of timber were used. From first to last 1,300 tons of mere service bolts were needed to hold the mass of material together. Scores of hydraulic jacks, sixty miles of wire rope and rams innumerable were also among the temporary appliances.

A younger but also profitable mine, situated in the same vein, is the Tamarack, with stock at about 207. The Calumet and Hecla has 100,000 shares, the Tamarack 50,000.

SEVERAL newly hatched chickens (so the story goes) were recently found in a bale of hay at Belfast, Me. The owner of the bale thinks that the eggs were probably pressed into the hay when it was green, and were hatched by the heat generated.

THE inspector of streets of St. Louis has adopted a novel method of marking the names of streets, so that the darkest night will not render the way difficult to find. The names of the streets are painted upon the electric light globes, and the shadow resulting throws the name upon the ground so plainly that it can be read fifty feet away. The letters on the globes are three-quarters of an inch, and the shadow name is five feet wide.

A PORT HURON bicycle rider attempted to ride past a calf, a farmer and a connecting rope. The two calves scared the one, and the calf from the country bounded all over the road, bellowing as if the shambles were in sight. The walking-beam calves saw an opening and made for it, but were too late. When the dust had risen sufficiently to permit an observation, the velocipede was in the ditch broken, the rider was on his head broken, the farmer on his back broken, and the calf, tail in air, was half a mile down the road with a rope and a bellow trailing out behind it like the rudder of a kite.

A CORRESPONDENT at Saratoga noticed the dinner order of a modest and fragile-looking little woman in one of the big hotels. It comprised the following articles: Little Neck clams, turtle soup, blue fish, roast beef, cold boned capon, fricasseed chicken, lobster salad, stuffed green peppers, boiled new potatoes, string beans, green peas, New England pudding, cake, wine jelly, ice-cream, assorted fruits, nuts, raisins and coffee. And he adds that she partook more or less of all these dishes. Her husband tasted of a little soup, had a bit of roast beef with mashed potato and some crackers and cheese.

Mr. Seader's Pension Was Allowed at Once, When Senator McPherson Moved in the Matter.

Eleven years ago Jacob Seader of this city, an aged veteran, sorely wounded in the service of his country, applied for a pension. He was not as many already drawing pensions, just past middle age and able to earn a comfortable living at a trade or behind a counter; but he was 70 years old and utterly incapacitated by the results of his army service from earning anything. Yet his application filed in 1879 dragged along without success. He was examined time and time again, and passed upon favorably, yet nothing came of it.

Seader was told by a member of the Winfield Scott, G. A. R., Post, of this city, that he could not get his pension allowed until he joined the Republican ranks. That as long as Seader voted the Democratic ticket he could not get a cent of pension, no matter how much he deserved it. Seader thought different, but as the years went by, and his Republican friend—who was in good health and working every day at his trade, yet drawing a pension for incapacity—kept saying "I told you so," Seader began to feel there was some truth in the statement, which he also heard from others, that he must join the G. A. R., and vote the Republican ticket, or he'd get no pension.

But a philanthropic citizen—who is an officer of the late war and a good Democrat, but who will ask for no pension himself—heard of Seader's case and brought it to the attention of the Democratic U. S. Senator, John R. McPherson. The latter gave it his personal attention at once with the following result:

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 27, 1890.

The Hon. J. R. McPherson, U. S. Senate,

Dear Sir:—The pension claim of Jacob Seader of Plainfield, has been allowed. * * * * As you have called up this case by letters of inquiry, I deem it but courteous that I should advise you of the final action, as above set forth.

UNRAVELING THE PLOT.

SOME OPENING CHAPTERS THAT SHOW HOW THE SCHEME TO BREAK THE WATER CONTRACT IS BUT A STEP TOWARDS ROBBING THE PEOPLE.

If John Kean's Tool, the "news," Succeeds in Driving Out the Company That Corporation Counsel Marsh and Councilman Newhall Have Bound Down to Low Hydrant Rentals and Reduced House Rates, Then a Company Controlled by That Monied Boss Will Fasten Its Clutches Upon the City and Compel the Payment of Unrestricted Charges for Every Drop of Water Used.

I—THE DEMAND FOR THE TRUTH.

Large numbers of letters received every day of the same tone as that published in these columns of Tuesday last, signed by H. P. Reynolds, call upon THE PRESS to disclose, so far as is within its knowledge who are the indirect projectors and what is the motive of their attack upon the consummation of the contract to build at last in this city the water works that Plainfield has so long needed for the comfort of its residents and the attraction of an increased community. Mr. Reynolds' letter may well be given space again in these columns, though it is only one of many of like nature received during the past ten days. Mr. Reynolds is one interested alone for the welfare of all, and he signs his name to what he says like a man:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—It should be the chief end of the local newspaper not only to print the local news, but to watch the interests of its community, to warn against dangers, to advocate whatever is beneficial. THE PRESS, therefore, acts in its line of duty in printing all that rightly concerns the people of Plainfield in reference to an enterprise of such vital importance as the Water Works.

The City Council of 1889—in good part made up of able business men having considerable interests at stake in our city—concluded a contract with responsible men for the construction of a water works on terms approved by the city's attorney, by the Mayor, and, in a general way, by the people. It has never been charged that any city official had any improper interest in the promotion of the enterprise. The construction of the works is now going on subject to the approval of the city's engineer; no complaint has been published in regard to the character of the work; and the people of Plainfield, with more or less impatience, are awaiting the abundant supply of pure water which they have a right to expect within a year. There is no doubt that such a supply will add to the comforts and safety of our people, and will add to the attractiveness of our city as a residence, in many ways.

At this stage of the work a voice is raised against its progress, an obstacle—in the shape of a threatened law suit—thrown in its path. Is it a citizen of, or even a dweller in Plainfield who thus protests? Oh, no! the complaint of Israel cometh from an alien, a man of Jersey City. Neither Israel nor his attornies are known here, and few of our people know aught of the old charter which is to be dragged out of the past as an obstacle.

What, then, means this attack? Who are its projectors? What are their motives? These are questions which the taxpayers and citizens of Plainfield will ask, and it is the office and duty of THE PRESS to investigate the source and object of the attack, and truthfully to publish every detail relating thereto. Your efforts in this line will gratify the people, will enhance the value of your paper and so yield a sufficient reward.

Let us have the truth.

H. P. REYNOLDS.

Every honest reader of the above, single-minded like THE PRESS for the City's fair treatment and prosperity, will join in repeating that last line, "Let us have the truth!"

II—THE FIRST SIGN OF THE SPECTRE.

During the last month of last year, the Republican Council of 1889 was holding frequent meetings in order to grant the franchise for the building of water works in Plainfield before the Council of 1890 stepped into their shoes and gained some of the glory. The old Council naturally wanted to leave on the record of their existence the culmination of as many good acts and creditable accomplishments as possible. By the evening of December 23, matters were nearing completion. An adjourned meeting was then held entirely for the purpose of hearing the Committee on Water Works, Councilmen Newhall and Erickson, report their progress. The bid of Mr. Moore for the Water Works Company of Plainfield had already been accepted, and the meeting discussed the several clauses of the contract presented for adoption.

Among the spectators present was Engineer Bassett, who, as the representative of the Commonwealth Water Co., had been one of the many whose bids were too high. But he would not give up without a last kick, and he accompanied it with a lightly veiled treat. He said he was present to present the claim of the "Plainfield Water Supply Company," organized by an act of the Legislature in 1869, and holding a perpetual contract to furnish the city with water. This company, he said, was prepared to make more liberal terms for the introduction of water works than any yet submitted. Mr. Bassett said it was the intention of the Company to merge the perpetual franchise into a more favorable contract. He asked for an opportunity for representatives of the company to be heard before final action was taken.

No attention was paid to him, however. Those present who ever knew of the "Plainfield Water Supply Company," believed its charter had lapsed and the Company had allowed itself to drop out of existence. That the company was dead, needed no better proof than that one of its members, Councilman Erickson himself, was a member of the Committee recommending, and one of the Council voting to award a contract for the building of water works, to another company.

Four evenings afterwards the Council had another meeting, and Mr. Bassett's company sent in another warning. It was a communication alluding to the alleged perpetual contract to furnish Plainfield with water, that had been granted by act of the Legislature in 1869, and still in the possession of the Commonwealth Company, adding that it was the intention of the Company to merge the contract into a proposition, and that the same would be ready in three days. This second threat was also treated with scorn; and among those who voted to file the communication without attention, was Mr. Erickson, a member of the "Company" from which the Commonwealth Company had secured an option on the old water charter they were using as a bugaboo.

III—PREPARING TO RESIST ATTACK.

It is not necessary to state that every step taken by the Water Committee of the Council of 1889, was only after extended deliberation and upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh after the consideration of every possible point that could arise in the future. It will be first told here, however, that the Water Committee and the Corporation Counsel, weighed and found wanting the very action that is now taken, seven months after the contract has been awarded by the city, signed by its Mayor and accepted in good faith by J. Herbert Johnston, residing in New York city and Plainfield; Cornelius N. Hoagland, residing in Brooklyn, N. Y.; William Foster, Jr., residing in New York city; James Moore, residing in Elizabeth, N. J.; Samuel Knox, residing in Elizabeth, N. J.; Jno. R. Moore, residing in Elizabeth, N. J., and Geo. K[illegible]te, residing in Fanwood, N. J., who are the Water Works Company of Plainfield.

Over seven months before, then, Chairman Newhall and the Corporation Counsel forecasted the very action taken by the City's enemies and their tool, the news. The constitutionality of the law was a question that was gone into very deeply before the awarding of the contract was recommended. It was the point of most vital importance, and the Corporation Counsel called the attention of the incorporators of the Water Works Company to it. Councilman Newhall, however, as well as every other sound mind and authority THE PRESS has consulted, agrees that there is not the least shadow of suspicion on the law. The Atlantic City water works, representing an investment of three million dollars, were constructed under its provisions, and so were the works at Bound Brook and other places in the State. The attornies of all those corporations undoubtedly satisfied themselve also, before such large sums were invested by their clients, that the law was constitution l. As to the matter of the charter granted twenty years ago to the Plainfield Water Supply Co., it was agreed that any life it had had, lapsed long ago—in fact it is said that members of the company acknowledged they believed it "dead." With the eyes of all parties wide open then to the possibility of just the antagonism that has arisen, the contract was issued by the city and accepted by the company.

IV—TRUSTFULNESS PRECIPITATES OPPORTUNITY.

As in all steps taken in the matter of securing water works for Plainfield, the city—thanks to Councilman Newhall, Corporation Counsel Marsh and others concerned—has secured the best of the deal (except in the appointing of a supervising engineer at a salary of $5,500, when as good men in every way and better in many ways, would have accepted the work for half that money). In fact a very bad bargain did the Water Works company make for themselves, and an unprecedentedly good one did the city make for itself in the matter of hydrants, for instance. Look at just that one item in the deal so beneficial to the city, that its enemies are trying to break. The Company agree to put in the hydrants at a rental per year of $15 each, when the facts are that the hydrant itself costs $26, and the average rental throughout the country is $35 a year. The entire rental received for the public hydrants in Plainfield, therefore, in two years, would be just four dollars more than each hydrant costs. Yet subscribers to the bonds would have been forthcoming if the ex-Hon. John Kean, Jr., had not said that he wanted to furnish the funds himself, and thereby stopped the sale to any outside investors.

V—THE MONIED BOSS REBUFFED.

The bonds, therefore, were not floated, the incorporators were not called upon to build the works out of their own pockets, and the Company rested on its trust in shrewd John Kean, Jr, one of the sureties on its bond. Then he thought he saw the chance to possess himself of the contract—peacefully if possible, by threats or legal violence if necessary. As soon as ready money was wanted, he suggested that the company come to him. He would be happy to advance it. They fell in this second trap but never in another. Kean said if the Contractor and Mr. Kyte, one of the company, would just draw a note for $5,000 and send it to his bank, he would take care of it. They did so, but when it came due a few days ago, he informed the makers that they must pay it. They refused, a suit was begun, and they filed as an answer the statement that they had a good and sufficient cause for their action. This was the first move to force the Contractor in a hole and compel him either to sell out, or throw up the contract for want of funds or fear of the law. Then followed the action brought before the Supreme Court to break the law under which the contract was given. This served at once the purpose of closing while the suit was pending, any possible channel through which the Company might have secured money to continue the work; and it is hoped by the news and its masters, that in the end the law will be declared unconstitutional and the present contract and the present Water Works company, will be wiped out of existence.

But in another and a more peaceful way did John Kean, Jr., bring pressure to bear to get the contract into his own possession. He offered a price for it; but the contractor said "no." The price was bettered, but the answer was still an emphatic refusal. How would he be treating the members of the company if he sold out, was a thought that undoubtedly came to his mind. The tempter suggested probably that they only went into the scheme as a personal favor to the contractor. Then, thought the latter, there is all the more reason I should deal honorably with them and keep my faith with the people of Plainfield. He utterly refused to give up the contract, then the threat was made that will appear further on in this tale.

VI—HOW THE ENEMY WAS ORGANIZED.

Knowing that the Plainfield Water Supply Co., had resurrected itself and its charter; because Engineer Bassett had been given an option on the latter to use it in an attempt to scare the Council; and knowing that that option had almost expired, the writer said to a member of the Water Supply Co., one day in July: "I have been expecting every day you people would have an injunction put on the Water Works Co., stopping their progress But maybe you are only waiting until the work is nearer completion." The reply was: "Oh, we've got no right to do anything of that sort. They have been given a contract by the city to do a certain work. Our charter doesn't give us any power over them."

But not many days after a call was made for a meeting of the Plainfield Water Supply Co., for the "annual" election of a board of directors. This call was signed, if THE PRESS is not mistaken, by E. R. Pope, J. C. Pope, J. F. Hubbard, J. W. Murray and E. N. Erickson. This was just the number required for a call, and it will be noticed that in order to find sufficient members in existence for the purpose, it was necessary to have the name of ex-Councilman Erickson who was one-half of the committee who had in charge the making of the contract with the Water Works company.

This election was held on Monday, Aug. 4. There was a shuffle of the cards, and lo! a new Board came out in the deal. Frank S. Bergen, Kean's keen lawyer, was President, and among the directors were Kean himself and H. G. Bunkle of this city who is also interested in gas and water works all over the country. It may be that Kean promised to deliver into the hands of the Water Supply Co., the Water Works Co's contractor and his contract. Anyhow, the contractor was offered stock in the Supply company if he would drop out of its way. He refused. Then he was offered cash in lieu of the stock, and he again positively refused to break his faith with the Plainfield people and sacrifice the incorporators of the Water Works Co. Then John Kean, Jr, said: "I will bring an action to bust your corporation, and the minute I do that you won't find an investor that will advance a cent for your works," the substance of which he has since repeated to a reporter of the New York World.

VII—WHAT WILL A VICTORY BRING?

Some will say, why should John Kean, Jr., who is an endorser on the bond of the Water Works company, seek to "bust" it? Will he not in such event be the sufferer financially? No! Even if he could be held for the whole amount of the bond he would reap a profit in the end. But if the law is declared unconstitutional, the contract granted under it would be wiped out and the bond given as surety for its completion would be abrogated.

The result that Kean hopes for and expects in this case—and in fact has desired for other reasons before the Plainfield contract was thought of—is, therefore, that the law should be declared unconstitutional. Then the advantageous contract the City now has would be annulled, the work now progressing would stop where it is, and as there would no longer be a law under which the City had the power to make a contract, it must either bond the people to build its own works, or do without.

Except—and here is the reason for suspecting that the Supply company, with John Kean, Jr., as one of its directors, is at the back of the fight that is being made through the news and the Courts to break the present contract no matter at what cost to the City or damage to the community's interests and prosperity. Free from competition, and master of all it surveys, the Plainfield Water Supply Co., will step up with its resurrected charter, build works as it will and charge the City and the people any rates it may please.

VIII—THE BRANDING OF A LIE OR TWO.

The enemy's Tool has printed a decision of Vice Chancellor VanFleet's which the paper claims already "criticises" the giving of the Plainfield contract under the law in question. The news says the Water Works company's counsel was not "aware" of this decision. One of these claims is false, and the other foolishness. The decision was only on the question whether a contract awarded under the law gave the contractors an exclusive franchise. The decision was thoroughly sifted by Corporation Counsel Marsh and the Water Works Co's counsel. They found it had no bearing on Plainfield's action, as the City did not claim to give an exclusive franchise, and the Water Works Co., never asked or expected such monopoly.

Of course the news is not to be condemned for all the lies that appear in its columns concerning this matter. Everything that is grammatical is written by some one outside who is working the tool. But the talk about an effort to sell the bonds of the company to the "people of Plainfield," is of course understood to emanate from the brain of the editor because of its inanity; and the talk about the Company's "mulcting" the city, is of course from the same source, because of the same nature. Everybody views the state of affairs in this way—if anyone is being "mulcted" just now its the poor Water Works Co., who are compelled to pay $1,000 a month to the City on a contract that the Supreme Court is asked to take away from them.

IX—THE FIRST STEP THE CITY SHOULD TAKE.

Chairman Newhall of the Water Board says he does not consider that any action taken so far in the courts, should be considered as an injunction, or even a stay, on the city. He believes the law will stand, as the question of its constitutionality was thoroughly considered before the granting of the contract.

Yet while the Court's decision is in doubt, and must be awaited for months probably; with a possibility that in the end the present Company will be thrown out and the work postponed a year longer; Constructing Engineer Hering's preposterous salary—which the Water Works company may now be paying, but which the city may have to hand back—should be summarily cut off.

The Pasco Murder Trial.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—The trial of Cal Wood for the murder of Leander Pasco was begun at Caldwell. The defense challenged the entire panel of 100 names of jurors on the ground that the extra panel was not drawn according to the statute. Judge Fish sustained the challenger and ordered a new panel of 100 jurors drawn. The defense entered a plea of insanity.

Two Carpenters Killed.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 3.—A swinging scaffold on a building in course of construction on Claremont avenue fell, precipitating four carpenters who occupied it a distance of thirty-five feet to the ground. Theodore Brand and Herman Matthias were killed, and the other two were badly injured. It is claimed that the ropes supporting the scaffold were rotten. The coroner will investigate.

PEPPERY PLEASANTRIES.

"WHAT is your salary, Mr. Stiggins?" "My salary," said the clergyman, slowly, "is $3,000. But my pay is about $1,200."

SHE—"Did you notice what a magnificent pair of shoulders Mr. Youngfellow has?" He—"Yes; I wish I knew his tailor."

MODERN CHIVALRY—Awkward Miss (with an umbrella)—"Beg pardon!" Polite gentleman—"Don't mention it. I have another eye left."

Mrs. Cumso—"Any one who met us could tell that we were man and wife." Mr. Cumso—"How, my dear?" Mrs. Cumso—"By the way you hold the umbrella."

HE—"I notice you have a piano, Miss Clara." She—"Oh, yes, but it is my sister who plays on it—not me." He (rapturously)—"Clara, I love you. Will you be my wife?"

"CAN it be only six o'clock?" said John, opening his watch. "There goes the factory whistle." "That's not the whistle dear," put in Mrs. John. "It's the new cook singing in the kitchen."

GIRL friend (kissing the Chicago bride ecstatically)—"Oh, Fan, you did splendidly at the altar, and this is only your second!" Bride (complacently)—"Yes, I've really had very little practice."

"How does your husband spend his evenings?" "He stays at home and thinks up schemes to make money." "And what do you do with yourself when he is thus occupied?" "Oh, I think up schemes to spend it."

COUNTRYMAN—"Can I sell you a wagon-load of apples this morning?" Proprietor—"No, sir." Countryman—"Why, I supposed this was a cider factory." Proprietor (angrily)—"That's what it is. Jacobs, show this man out."

THUMP-RATTLETY bang! went the piano. "What are you trying to play, Jane?" called out her father in the next room. "It's an exercise—'First Steps in Music,'" she answered. "Well, is there nothing you can play with your hands?" he asked.

"AH," she remarked, "I see that they are reviving the old style of the reign of Queen Anne. Patches are becoming fashionable for ladies." "They have been stylish for gentlemen for some time," he thoughtfully replied, caressing his trousers.

"My dear," said a vain old man to his wife, "these friends here won't believe that I'm only forty-five years old. You know I speak the truth, don't you?" "Well," answered the simple wife, "I suppose I must believe it, John, as you've stuck to it for more than fifteen years."

THE salesman in the music shop has succeeded at last, after an hour's hard talking, in working off a cheap, wheezy, screeching fiddle on a customer at four times its value. "Where shall I send it?" he inquired. "To No. 14 Slugg street." The salesman's jaw fell. He had moved with his family the day before to No. 15 Slugg street, on a two years' lease.

IF a woman does not like a man, she can characterize him as no man ever can. A certain young man, Mr. Smirk, was noted for an extraordinary and perennial smile. A lady who knew, but did not admire him, described a meeting with him thus: "As I was going out of church, I saw a smile down by the door; when I came nearer I discovered Mr. Smirk was around it."

A NOSEGAY OF PRETTY POEMS.

Where Is the World?

Oh! where is the world that we used to know
In the bright, glad days of the long ago?
And where is the smile of the broad, blue skies
As they beat down low to our youthful eyes,
And where are the songs of the birds and bees
And the oft-told tales of the whisp'ring trees?
Where are the voices soft and low?
Oh! where is the world that we used to know?

Oh! where is the world that we used to know?
And where are the roses that used to grow
About our paths; and the fragrant phlox,
And the dear old-fashioned hollyhocks?
And where are the friends whose songs with ours
We blended as blends a wreath of flowers?
Yes, where are the ones we cherished so;
Oh! where is the world that we used to know

Oh, where is the world that we used to know?
And the murmuring brooks that used to flow
Through the dew-kissed meads of clover bloom
Where the bees were drunk with the sweet per fume?
And where are the joys that the snows would bring,
And where is the charm of the new born spring,
And the summer's gold and the autumn's glow;
Oh! where is the world that we used to know?
—Chicago Post.

Philopene.

In playful mood he placed his black straw hat
On top of Madge's curly, bronze brown hair,
And thought in all his life he'd never seen
A maiden half so ravishingly fair.

Her blue eyes sparkling in a roguish way,
Her dimpled cheeks just red enough to show
The cherry ripeness of her luscious lips,
Just fetched him, and of course he wasn't slow

To seize the opportunity, likewise
The half-resisting Madge, and plant a kiss
Or two, or more, just where they'd do most good,
His aim was true—he never made a miss.

He thought she might be angry, but his fears
All vanished as he reached the hall door mat
She said: "Next time you come be sure to wear
That tricky—mean—old—lovely black straw hat."
—N. Y. Herald.

Waiting at the Door.

When the shadows gloom and gather,
And the need of rest is sore;
When the light of home is gleaming
On the way that lies before,
And the world's great heart is pulsing
With the memories of yore,
It is sweet to find my mother
Standing, waiting at the door.

Of the good things God has given
From the fulness of His store,
And for which I humbly thank Him
As upon my path they pour,
There is nothing of the earthly,
That so nearly I adore,
As the dear, old, patient mother
Standing, waiting at the door.

But a time of grief is coming,
I have thought it o'er and o'er,
It may come at noon, at night time,
And the years be less or more,
I will need a higher wisdom,
From the book of sacred lore,
When I find no loving mother
Standing, waiting at the door.

When the shadows float behind me
And the soul begins to soar,
In the subtle, swift transition,
Gliding to the other shore;
When the shining portals open,
Sending life through every pore,
I will surely find my mother
Standing, waiting at the door.
—Mary A. McKee, in Interior.

There's Music Everywhere.

Whene'er I walk abroad I find
There's music everywhere;
The mountain has a heavy base,
A sail can take the air;
Against the harbor-bar the swells
With dashing volume come;
The humming-bird flits gayly past—
I hear the kettle-drum.

The fisherman can castanet
And catch a score or so;
The hautboy cries: "With pain high C
The cornet by the crow;"
The grocer runs the scales and makes
Them weigh a pound full soon;
The bagpipes with a will, the staff
Can carry any tune.

The cobbler tries a measure,
Full forte lyres fill
Our ears with sound; the Jew's-harp too,
Accordion to their skill;
The sky has tone, the pines have pitch,
The sea the quay also;
And lovers, ere they reach the tie,
Are pianissimo.

'Tis thus, whene'er I walk abroad,
Such tuneful sights I see
As prompt to happy rhymes like these
That speak of melody.
The beach is sweet with hims, and soft
The belles salute the heir;
The ocean has a thousand sounds—
There's music everywhere.
—Mrs. George Archibald, in Judge.

Worthy of It.

I may not reach the heights I seek;
My untried strength may fail me;
Or, half way up the mountain peak,
Fierce tempests may assail me.
But, though that place I never gain,
Herein lies comfort for my pain:
I will be worthy of it.

I may not triumph in success,
Despite my earnest labor;
I may not grasp results that bless
The efforts of my neighbor.
But though my goal I never see,
This thought shall always dwell with me:
I will be worthy of it.

The golden glory of Love's light
May never fall on my way;
My path may always lead through night,
Like some deserted byway.
But though life's dearest joy I miss
There lies a nameless strength in this:
I will be worthy of it.
—Ella Wheeler, in Phrenological Journal.

The Modern Martyr.

As soon as teacher leaves the house I jes' sits down an' looks
At yellow men an' azure dogs in great big picture books;
I'm always fixed up pretty, an' my dresses are so neat
That I'd be mos' sure to spoil 'em if I went out on the street.
My ma is in society, an' though the weather's warm,
I dasn' play out doors becos it Ain't Good Form.

I think that poor folks' children have an awful jolly time,
When I see them from the window—how they run an' jump an' climb!
An' they tear their clothes jes' frightful, an' they never seem to care;
I wish that I was with them as I watch them playing there.
But I'm mother's little lady, an' I know that she would storm
If I went out on the sidewalk, cos it Aint Good Form.
—Philander Johnson, in Puck.

The Mouse.

Anna Belinda sat quietly thinking,
And Sally Hypatia sat reading a book,
When, out from a corner, with little eyes blinking,
A visitor crept with a wondering look;
And though he was timid in manner, and shrinking,
Yet Anna Belinda cried: "Mercy, I pray!"
While Sally Hypatia, not even once winking,
Jumped over the sofa and fainted away.
—Mrs. J. T. Greenleaf, in Good Housekeeping.

A G. A. R. BUTTON.

The Part It Played in a Nice Little Romance.

"TWO years ago, while I was journeying toward Chicago," says a gallant Captain of the late war, "I had a most interesting conversation with a good-hearted and social Western man who sat beside me in the smoker; and it was he who told me the greater part of what I shall relate. He said that in his neighborhood there lived a certain Colonel Fifer, a veteran of the late war, who was a millionaire. Although he had the means to surround himself with every comfort and every pleasure, he had for several years lived in the plainest manner and had cared nothing for the gayeties of the world. But it was not surprising that he lived as he did, for fate had dealt him cruel blows. In one year not only his wife, to whom he was most tenderly attached, but also two idolized children, a daughter sixteen years of age and a son of twenty, were swept from his side by death. At the age of fifty years he was left alone. The chief object of his life had been to promote the comfort and happiness of his family, and they were gone. He had his great riches, but there was no one near and dear to him with whom he could enjoy them. Some men, visited by a similar misfortune, would have yielded to despondency, but he was a man of too much resolution and good sense to allow himself to become morbid and to let his life go to waste.

"One day, in the course of his travels, he visited a small Western city for the purpose of examining the inducements to invest in real estate.

"While making his inquiries in the city he chanced to see standing in the doorway of a grocery store a man who had a pleasant, intelligent face. The appearance of the man impressed him so favorably that he obeyed a sudden impulse to make his acquaintance. Accordingly Colonel Fifer introduced himself to the man, who proved to be the proprietor of the store, and, finding him very polite and friendly, soon told him what his business was. The man—Joseph Decker was his name—said that, although he was not pecuniarly interested in the real-estate business, he thought he could give the Colonel some valuable information. They had not been talking long before Colonel Fifer noticed that the store-keeper was gazing intently at the lapel of his coat, to which was attached a small bronze G. A. R. button.

"'I see that you are an old soldier, said Mr. Decker.

"'Yes, I have seen a little service,' the Colonel modestly replied.

"'I know you were a good soldier, by your looks,' said the other, eagerly, 'and I wish you would allow me to shake hands with you, for I have been a soldier, too.'

"They shook hands heartily, and soon were engrossed in reminiscences of the war, as only two thorough veterans could become engrossed. Although each of them refrained from recounting his own valorous deeds, it did not take them long to become convinced that each had seen hard service and had been a brave soldier. Mr. Decker became so much interested in his new friend that he insisted that he should go home with him to dinner, and should be his guest throughout the remainder of the day, the Colonel having informed him that it was his intention to leave the city on a late afternoon train. The Colonel felt that he ought not to accept so much hospitality from a stranger, and endeavored to excuse himself; but in vain. Mr. Decker would not take no for answer. It was then noon, and they immediately started for Mr. Decker's home. In ten minutes they reached it.

The house was evidently not a fashionable one, but it was a comfortable home for a man of modest means, and was situated in a roomy yard where there were fine shade trees and plenty of green grass. As they left the gate and went up the graveled walk toward the front door, Mr. Decker's only daughter ran forth to meet them. She had a winning face, a lithe and graceful figure, and the tender feeling that beamed from her eyes as she spoke to her father convinced Colonel Fifer that she was a dutiful and affectionate girl.

"I SEE YOU ARE AN OLD SOLDIER."

"They went into the house and seated themselves in the pleasant parlor. Dinner was soon announced, and then Colonel Fifer met Mrs. Decker for the first time. She proved to be a very agreeable woman, and was not less anxious than her husband to make their guest feel at home. It seemed to the Colonel that he had never met with a family that interested him more. They were so kind to each other, so desirous to please their guest, that he felt his heart warm toward them as if they were old friends. After dinner they insisted that he should take a ride with them.

"When it was time for Colonel Fifer to take the train, Mr. Decker drove to the station, and the Colonel parted with the friendly family with much regret, after having extended a hearty invitation to them to visit his home.

"About a year passed away, during which the Colonel did not hear any thing concerning the family that had interested him so much, although pleasant recollections of them often came to his mind. One day he picked up a daily paper and began to read an account of a cyclone that had done much havoc in the West. Much to his alarm he noticed that the city where Mr. Decker lived had been partially destroyed by the tornado, and among the list of killed he found the names of his friend and his amiable wife. The picture of the happy family returned to him and his soul was filled with sadness. It seemed cruel and wrong that so great a misfortune should visit people so worthy. He looked for the name of the daughter in the list of dead, but could not find it. Probably she had escaped, and he immediately formed a generous resolution. He packed his valise and made a journey to the unfortunate city. When he arrived he went immediately to the locality where his friend's house had stood. A sad sight greeted his eyes. All of the houses in the vicinity had either been blown down or had been partially torn to pieces. In place of pleasant homes were heaps of unsightly ruins. Mr. Decker's house had been laid flat, and he and his wife, who were supposed to be in an upper room at the time, had fallen into the cellar and had been killed instantly. Their daughter was visiting a school-mate in another part of the city, outside of the cyclone's track, and, frantic with apprehension, ran home only to find her worst fears realized. The terrible shock overpowered her, and it was at first feared that she would have brain fever; but youth and a good constitution were in her favor, and at the time of Colonel Fifer's arrival she was considered to be out of danger. She had gone to live with a married sister of her mother until she could find something to do for a livelihood. It was necessary that she should support herself, for her father's store had been destroyed by the cyclone as well as the house, she would inherit only a little property, and her relatives in the city were in moderate circumstances.

"All of the foregoing facts were learned by Colonel Fifer as he talked with citizens of the place, and served to strengthen his resolution to carry out the plan that he had formed. He sought out the girl. She remembered his visit well and was very glad to see him. She told him that her parents had often spoken of the great pleasure that his visit had afforded them, and had hoped that they should see him some time again. Overcome by recollections of the happy days that she had spent with her beloved parents, and by the consciousness of her own loneliness, the beautiful and amiable girl burst into tears. Colonel Fifer hastened to comfort her and then unfolded his plan for her welfare. He told her that he had no family, that he was rich, and that he wished to adopt her as his daughter and heir. She listened astonished, and at first refused, saying that she could not take so great a favor. But he persisted, told her that he was glad to return the kindness that had been shown him by her parents, and that, now that he was alone in the world, he greatly desired to adopt one that could be as a daughter to him. He argued so well that she finally consented to do as he wished. She soon had good reasons for being glad that she had given her consent, for a kinder man than Colonel Fifer is does not exist. He immediately placed her in one of the best boarding-schools in the country, being resolved that she should have the finest education obtainable, and he frequently visited the school and manifested the greatest interest in her progress. Miss Decker was as bright intellectually as she was amiable in disposition, and made excellent use of her opportunities.

"And now comes the conclusion of my story, that part which to me is the most interesting of all, and a part which I am certain will surprise you. Not long ago a young man in whose welfare I am greatly interested, and in whose abilities I take much pride, became acquainted with the charming Miss Decker, and, as was extremely excusable, and even commendable, all things being considered, fell desperately in love with her. He proposed, and to his vast astonishment he was accepted, for he was a very modest young man. Colonel Fifer inquired as to the character and ability of the young man, and was so well satisfied that he readily gave his consent to the marriage, first stipulating that the young couple should make his house their home, 'and cheer him and take care of him during his declining years. When he is gone they will inherit his property, amounting to a million or more dollars. Next fall the wedding will occur; and now, who do you suppose the bridegroom is? He is my son."

The gallant Captain sat down amid the hearty applause of his comrades, and they all declared that it was the best camp-fire story they had heard for a long time.—J. A. Bolles, in Boston Budget.

CREEPING AND FLYING THINGS.

A HUGE lobster was caught by Henry Dunbar in the bay of Penobscot. It was thirty-four inches long and weighed twenty-one pounds. The guests at the Penobscot House had the pleasure of discussing the lobster, which was served soon after the catch.

AT Americus, Ga., as the workmen commenced their labors on the roof of the furniture factory, which is three stories high, a huge rattlesnake was discovered coiled on the highest point of the building. The snake was soon killed. Just how he got in to his elevated position is not easily understood, but it is possible that he may have been concealed in one of the rolls of roof tin.

A COCOA (Fla.) citizen witnessed an exciting race between a big rat and a snake of the variety called coachwhip. The man was sitting on his front veranda when his attention was attracted to a swiftly-moving object approaching the house. On closer inspection it proved to be a monster rat pursued by a coachwhip. They dashed under the house, where the rat eluded the snake among some empty orange boxes.

AN odd result of rivalry between two tiger snakes is recorded by D. LeSouef, assistant director of the Melbourne Zoological Gardens. One of the snakes was large, the other small. "Not long ago both happened to fasten on the same mouse, one at each end. Neither would give way, and the larger snake not only swallowed the mouse but also the smaller snake. In about ten minutes nothing was seen of the smaller snake but about two inches of its tail, and that disappeared next day."

THE London Daily News says that at the freight station of Jessen a little wagtail has this year built her nest, choosing a chest in a freight car. The bird deposited four eggs, and remained firmly fixed in that place till she had hatched her young. The car made from six to eight journeys a day, but the bird was in no way incommoded, and remained in full possession of her nest throughout all the bustle of the service. When a stoppage was made at the end of the journey she quietly fed her young.

OF all roosting places imaginable the hands of a clock would seem the last place a bird would seek. But, nevertheless, a feathered warbler of some description took up quarters for the night on the hour hand of the Lima, O., town clock, and was as cozy as a "bug in a rug." It was first noticed about 10:30 o'clock, and, as the hands would soon pass, an interested crowd looked on, anxious to know what the bird would do. Well, that bird knew its business, and when the minute hand drove up in front of it demurely hopped aboard, and, taking a seat on the extreme end, rode safely by. The danger over, it resumed the former position on the hour hand.

A HORDE of noisy sparrows has chosen for a roost a tree in the yard of a citizen of Orange, N. J. For several evenings he has been experimenting with a sparrow disturber, which is at least a partial success. He has tied stout cords to to nearly every limb of the tree and gathered the ends at his window. When the sparrows settle down for the night he goes to the window and jerks the string. The sparrows become "rattled" and flit away in the dark. Another citizen of Orange has a fine growth of ivy on the side of his house, and the sparrows have been inhabiting it throughout the year until recently. He has driven them away by going into the attic and sifting Scotch snuff and cayenne pepper down through the vine.

AFFAIRS OF AMERICAN WOMEN.

A MAN who was carting away ashes from Mrs. W. C. Whitney's residence at Newport found in the rubbish an envelope containing a check for $6,375 payable to Mrs. Whitney. He promptly returned it and was handsomely rewarded.

EVERY window in Mrs. George W. Childs' Long Branch cottage is filled with a bright scarlet box thickly planted with palms, ferns, hanging vines, and flowering plants. The contrast of the scarlet and green is most striking and very beautiful.

MRS. GARFIELD is rich, besides having $5,000 a year as the widow of a President. Her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Brown, has purchased a fine lot in a Washington suburb upon which she will build a house, where, it is believed, Mrs. Garfield will take up her residence with her.

MISS BLOUNT, daughter of Henry F. Blount, received as a birthday favor a very curious and valuable Japanese cabinet from a celebrated English savant. In the compartments are bits of mummy cloth, a scarab, the pocket compass carried by Admiral Nelson and a number of antique coins.

MRS. PORTER, wife of Dr. William Porter of St. Louis, Mo., wears an opal that has a history. It was given to the doctor by one of his patients, who was a Polish exile living in the United States. The man assured the doctor in giving him the gem that it had once been one of the crown jewels of Poland.

THE wife of Senator Davis, of Minnesota, is able to make this extraordinary statement: "When I was ten years of age my aunt bought me a pattern, some navy blue cloth and some black velvet, and told me I must make myself a gown, which I did greatly to her satisfaction and my own and the envy of my little playmates. From that time to the present I have never paid one cent to a dressmaker or a milliner, nor has any one else done so for me. Every dress, hat and bonnet I wear is made and trimmed by my own hands."

MRS. ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS WARD has relinquished her lot at Eastern point, Gloucester, Mass., where it has been her intention to build a permanent residence. The site is the one on which her world-wide known book, "Gates Ajar," was written. The place has been a favorite resort both of Mrs. Ward and her husband. Together they matured the plans of an ideal home to be erected on that site; waiting only till the isolation and inaccessibility should be obviated by neighbors, but the permanent location of the whistling buoy at Eastern point has caused them to abandon their intention.

FOREIGN PEOPLE AND EVENTS.

CHANCELLOR CAPRIVI, Bismarck's successor, it is reported is betrothed to a niece of General von Waldersee, Commander-in-Chief of the German armies.

THE Roumanian Government has offered prizes to the architects of all nations for the best plans for its new Assembly and Senate chambers. The first prize for each building is $3,000; the second $1,500; third, $600.

THE London tower is so far on its way to become an accomplished fact that a site of three hundred acres has been purchased. One-half of this ground will be used for a site for the tower and the other half will be laid out in pleasure grounds.

COUNTESS DE BIRON, nee de Lesseps, drives about Paris in her $1,800 victoria dressed in white paneled silk with hand-painted flowers. Her white parasol is ornamented with a Dresden china handle the cost of which would pay for a whole tea set.

CARRIER swallows are now used in France by the military authorities instead of pigeons. A test was recently made at Rauboix, and fifteen of the birds were given absolute freedom of wing for the first time. They flew in different directions, and in about twenty minutes one came back and perched on the trainer's outstretched finger. In half an hour every swallow was back.

THE Empress of Russia, who, as the Princess Dagmar, was one of the royal beauties of Europe, is now so thin and haggard that the friends who have not seen her in half a dozen years do not recognize her. Since her accession she has lived in continual terror of assassination, either for herself or for her husband and son; or in the still more grim companionship of the fear that his consciousness of perpetual danger would unsettle the Emperor's wits.

A VERY rich vein of iron ore has been discovered in Kherson, near the village of Privolna about 300 sazhen from the river Ingula. It is estimated that the yield will be sufficient to keep fifteen iron factories at work. The Minister of Mountain Works has ordered engineers to sink shafts and to begin mining as soon as possible. With the rich yield of coals in that district it will be easy in a very short time to work the new mines for all that they are worth.

IN Mr. Gladstone's library of twenty-five thousand volumes are two which were given to him in 1815, when the future statesman and bibliophile celebrated his fifth birthday, one of the two shabby little booklets being the gift of the admirable Mrs. Hannah More—his "holy Hannah," as Horace Walpole used to call her—then already seventy years of age, but taking great delight in clever children, in which class her young friend "Billy" Gladstone was conspicuous.

SALI, the black boy who traveled with Stanley throughout his long and perilous expedition, is a youth of some resource. Until his terrible book had got into his master's brain the boy had been accustomed to free access to Stanley at all hours; but now things were different; every time he approached the den the least thing he expected was that the ink-stand would be thrown at his head. He no longer ventured therein. One day he originated a new way of saving his head; he had a telegram to deliver, so he ingeniously fixed it on the end of a long bamboo, and getting the door just ajar, he poked it into the room and bolted.

LAUGHS AT LOVERS.

"THESE are my household gods," he said to her as he entered his bachelor apartment. "But you lack something," she remarked. "What?" "A household goddess."

THEY were rustic lovers and they were courting. "Don't sit so near me," she exclaimed. "I ain't sitting near you," he declared. "Well, if you ain't you mean to—I know you do," she cried. And her fears were at once realized.

"WHY, Clara, you look radiant! What has happened?" "I've just received an invitation to a wedding." "Well, there's nothing particular in that to go into raptures over." "Yes, but it happens to be my own," and she showed the new engagement ring.

A BASHFUL young man escorted an equally bashful young lady. As they approached the dwelling of the damsel, she said, entreatingly: "Zekill, don't tell anybody you beau'd me home." "Sary," said he, emphatically, "don't you mind; I am as much ashamed of it as you are."

A PHILADELPHIA bachelor has a large frame filled with photographs of young ladies, under each of which is pasted a newspaper clipping. With a pathetic accent the poor man exclaims: "They are pictures of the only girls I ever loved, and those clippings are their marriage notices."

A YOUNG man got married without consulting his parents or friends. After seeing the bride, one of his friends asked him: "How did you come to marry that girl? She has not got a pretty face, her figure is not good, she is not rich, neither is she intelligent. What did you find attractive about her?" "Well, you ought to see how prettily she sneezes!"

A SPOONY couple in Paris hailed a cabby, and the gentleman thus gave his directions: "You will go up the Champs-Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe, then to the entrance of the Bois, and then—let me see—oh! then back again, but go very slowly all the time." Cabby took note of the pair and replied, touching his hat, respectfully: "All right, boss; only my horse is rather tired; if you don't mind, I'll just stand still."

A YOUNG woman, on becoming engaged for a second time, was somewhat astonished at receiving from number two the identical ring she had returned to her first love. "Why, Charles," she said, "this is the same ring I had when I was engaged to Harry." "I know it," replied the young man. "Harry is an old friend of mine, and when he heard of our engagement he came round to congratulate me, and offered to sell me the ring for half cost. He said you liked it very much and it fitted, so I took it. Good scheme, eh?" The young woman's sensations are not de-

NEW YORK'S CENSUS

Mr. Porter Says There Is No Occasion for a Recount.

HE DENIES CERTAIN CHARGES.

New Jersey's Returns Will Explain Why the Population Is Not Greater.

Senator Edmunds Opposes the Reciprocity Amendment—The Steamer Kearsarge Ordered to Proceed to Aspinwall at Once—President Harrison Sends a Dispatch to Gen. Barrundia's Widow.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Concerning the resolution adopted by the New York Board of Aldermen relative to the population of that city under the recent enumeration, and demanding a recount, Superintendent Porter said in an interview that there is no reason for ordering a recount in that city, all the collateral evidence serves to corroborate the accuracy of the enumeration.

The official returns from the State of New Jersey when published will probably give an explanation of the fact that the population of New York did not increase during the last decade as rapidly as some anticipated it would. As the business of the city has encroached upon the residence quarters the residents have found homes in what might almost be called surburban towns adjacent to New York in New Jersey. From the returns already tabulated in the Census Office there is every reason to believe that the results of the New Jersey census will in a large measure explain the apparently small increase in New York city.

An increase of nearly 43 per cent. in Brooklyn also means that a large number of people who carry on business in New York have sought homes in Brooklyn.

Porter denies the charge that politics had anything to do with the work of making up the census in New York.

THE SUGAR SCHEDULE.

Senator Edmunds Opposes the Reciprocity Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—In the Senate Mr. Edmunds, in discussing the sugar schedule of the Tariff bill, said if the duty of two cents a pound were taken off from sugar he did not believe the price of sugar would fall two cents a pound. It would be apt to turn out as coffee had turned out. He did not want to be led into putting sugar on the free list on what he believed to be the fallacious and illusive idea that because sugar was now two cents a pound cheaper in London than in New York, it would then be the same in both places. But even if the wholesale price of sugar did fall by means of the removal of the duty the price at the grocers would not fall. Somebody else than the consumer would make the money.

He spoke of the reduction of the duty on coffee of three cents a pound in 1872, and stated on the authority of the American Minister to Brazil that, as soon as that reduction was known at Rio Janeiro, the price of coffee there was put up three cents a pound. The same thing occurred, he said, two years afterwards, when coffee was put on the free list.

Experience has shown, from that day to this, that the American consumer, had profitted nothing whatever from the taking off of that duty. But on the other hand, the United States had lost nearly $150,000,000 which it would have received from the duty on Brazilian coffee alone.

As a practical farmer and farmer's son, he thought that the farmers in the region where he lived understood that sort of business, and were not extremely anxious that he, as one of their representatives, should go into anything of that kind now.

ORDERED TO ASPINWALL.

The Kearsarge Will Proceed at Once to Protect American Interests.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Orders were issued by the Navy Department for the United States steamer Kearsarge, now at New York, to proceed at once to Aspinwall.

It is supposed that this action is based upon rumors of a threatened railroad strike at the place. Information to that effect has been received at the State Department from Consul General Adamson at Panama.

The latter said he heard the rumors through the consul at Aspinwall, and that he had requested the Columbian authorities to protect American interests in the event of trouble, and had been assured that it would be done.

A Woman's Body Found in a Canal.

READING, Pa., Sept. 4.—The almost nude body of a young woman apparently about 30 years of age, the features much distorted, was found in the Schuylkill canal dam several miles below Reading last night. It is believed that the skull is fractured. The woman is not known. City officials are making an investigation. The body has the appearance of having been in the water at least 10 days.

Drowned in Two Feet of Water.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 4.—John Kilday, employed as a night watchman on the Brooklyn Water Works extension, was found dead early in the morning, lying face downward in two feet of water at the bottom of an excavation. Kilday came from Amsterdam, N. Y., where he has a family.

Narrow Escape of Hotel Guests.

DANBURY, Conn., Sept. 4.—The Ives Grand Central Hotel was partly burned in the morning. Many people were asleep in the hotel at the time and some narrowly escaped suffocation.

THE STRIKE INQUIRY.

The Board Adjourns to Meet at 9 o'clock To-Morrow Morning.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The State Board of Mediation and Arbitration continued its investigation relative to the New York Central Railroad strike, but it adjourned at 11:15 to resume its labors at Albany to-morrow morning.

Superintendents Toucey and Vorhees and Foreman J. W. Stephens of the Central gave some testimony regarding the dismissals of the men before the Board adjourned, but the testimony was unimportant.

After the Board adjourned Mr. Powderly said that he and his colleagues were pleased at what had been developed in the investigation. It proved, he said, that the company was waging warfare against the Knights of Labor.

The correspondence between General Master Workman Powderly and Master Workman Lee, excited much comment, and it was thought that the giving of it to the press was an evidence that the strike would be declared off. Mr. Powderly refused to talk about the matter. A. W. Wright said there was no prospect of the strike being ordered off. The letters, he thought, were not an evidence of weakness. The fight would be continued. The strikers held a meeting and resolved to remain out.

SHE HAS TWO HUSBANDS.

The First One Just Heard from After an Absence of 25 Years.

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 4.—William S. Davis, of No. 4 Dodge street, this city, received a letter from California containing the information that his father, who left his mother and little children at Pittsfield, Me., in 1849, was living, but very ill at Rockland, Cal. It was signed "Unknown Friend" who proved to be the postmistress.

Wm. W. Davis, the father, who is now 80 years of age, left his home with the gold-seekers of '49, telling his wife that he would return rich. She heard nothing of him afterward. About 25 years ago she heard he was killed by the Indians, and then she married a man nam d Plummer, with whom she still lives at Pittsfield.

The facts indicate that the absent husband and father has kept trace of his family during his self imposed exile. The father is now anxious to see some of his friends from the East.

Military Affairs at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 4.—The directors of the Battlefield Memorial Association re-elected the old officers and transacted other business. The 14th Indiana monument will be brought to the crest of East Cemetery hill, and the 4th Ohio memorial, which had been ordered removed, will be permitted to remain where it now is. The 11th New York memorial also stays on the front line. Lieut. Calvin Hamilton was made secretary, vice John M. Krauth, deceased.

Races at the Elmira Fair.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The New York State Breeders' Association races at the Interstate Fair were well contested. Capt. Waters won the race for stallions who had never beaten 2:40. His best time was 2:35¼. The Nursery stakes was won by Sunshade Patchen. Best time, 2:51¼. The race for stallions without records better than 3:20 was won by Sunrise Patchen. Best time, 3:26.

Knights Templar at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 4.—To-day is a field day here for the Knights Templar of the State of New Jersey. The headquarters of the Grand Commandery are at the Ocean Hotel. There will be a big parade and prize drill this afternoon. Eighteen commanderies are expected to participate, and their families and friends arrived on special trains early in the day.

The Chicago Strike Nearly Ended.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The carpenters' strike is to all appearances already ended. At the headquarters of the strike committee of the Carpenters Council it was stated that fully 4,000 men returned to work at the rate of pay and terms demanded and that not over 600 men are now idle on account of the strike.

National League of Republican Clubs.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 4.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the National League of Republican Clubs it was decided to not advise incorporation under the laws of the National and State Leagues as proposed. April 21 next was chosen as the date of the next National Convention to be held at Cincinnati.

Watching for Ghosts.

DUBLIN, Sept. 4.—Excitement runs high in this city over the report that the recently discovered ruins of the old Chapter House of Christ Church Cathedral are haunted by ghosts, and crowds assemble nightly to witness the appearance of the spirits, who are said to have the forms of priests and nuns.

Fatal Fire in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—A fire at 1502 Germantown avenue early in the morning caused great excitement. Three unfortunates, a mother, her daughter, and adopted daughter, were suffocated to death. The names of the victims are Mrs. Sarah McIntyre, aged 59 years; Mamie McIntyre, aged 10; Agnes Rogers, the adopted daughter, aged 17 years.

To Arbitrate the Brick Boycott.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—By invitation of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration the Board of Walking Delegates of the Building Trades met the former last night and agreed to submit the question of the brick boycott. A similar invitation was sent to the Manufacturers' Association, who replied that the matter would be submitted to their meeting to-day.

MR. REED IN BOSTON

The Speaker Warmly Received at the Hub.

BIG AUDIENCE IN FANEUIL HALL.

He Thanks Massachusetts Republicans and Praises His Party.

In His Speech He Said the Democrats in Congress Were Parsimonious—He Does Not Disclaim the Title of Partisan—Pension Legislation and the Surplus Touched Upon Briefly.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Speaker Reed, who is on his way to Maine to participate in the political campaign in that State, addressed a large audience last night at Faneuil Hall. It was a very enthusiastic gathering and Mr. Reed was given a rousing welcome. Chairman Burdette, of the Republican State Committee, opened the meeting, introducing Jonathan A. Lane, president of the Boston Merchants' Association, as the presiding officer. Mr. Lane made a brief speech, touching upon the tariff question, and then introduced Mr. Reed as the first speaker.

This was the signal for a storm of applause which completely drowned the music and for ten minutes prevented a sound of the Speaker's words being heard. Mr. Reed said:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—I am willing to admit that a more cordial reception was never extended to me before, for which I thank you. I accept it as a tribute to the party I represent. At a former meeting in Boston a similar scene attended the anticipation of my policy, and I rejoice to see you applaud its fulfillment. Such kind feelings are gratefully received. No soldier so brave but feels better when, in the thick of battle, he feels the consoling nudge of his comrade's elbow, and I am like the soldier.

As I said at a former meeting in Boston, I now repeat, if the country wants anything done it must come to the Republican party. Such has been the condition of affairs for the last thirty years. The world is growing. Progress is ever creating new situations.

The present Congress with all its shortcomings, gives evidence of a willingness of the Republicans to meet all requirements. The progress of the country necessitates new laws. The nation cannot be run on dead issues. Look for yourselves and name one issue of vital national importance that the Democrats have advanced. Tell of any measure affecting finance, trade or human liberty that has not been decorated with Democratic opposition.

Such being the history of the two parties, is there not good reason for a man being proud to belong to one and not to the other? All progress is over the ruins of old institutions, and the upholders of such fight desperately when their breastworks are invaded. In battle tongue is not considered; parliamentary expressions are forgotten.

Looking over the headlines of the opposition papers, published during the last eight months, some idea can be obtained of the views of some well known gentlemen whose breastworks are being taken. It is amazing to notice the great measures of public interest due to the Republican party. When in power it has been the sole end of the Democracy to undo these measures. The interests of the country have not been consulted by them.

They have devoted their whole time to cutting down appropriations with a view of making the surplus as large and unwieldy as possible. Then they petted and lectured the surplus. Out of power they have concocted all sorts of schemes to dissipate the surplus, so they stand in the position of being happy with or without a surplus.

Despite all this the Republican party has made a record of supporting the surplus and at the same time reducing the national taxation $40,000,000 annually. Pension legislation has proven the most difficult attack on the Treasury which the Republicans have successfully met. It is a subject very little understood by the people at large.

In the East the farmer is satisfied with what the government has done and is going to do for him, but in the West and the Mississippi region he is carried away by the tales poured into his ear of untold Treasury wealth, and he is wild over all schemes to draw a stream of gold from the public treasury. It is due to the Republican party to have met this craze and have vanquished it.

Mr. Lodge followed in a brief address, in the course of which he urged the necessity of passing the Elections bill.

WALKED IN HER SLEEP.

Out of a Second-Story Window and Not Hurt.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Sept. 4.—Miss Bertha Shaw, a well-known society young lady, had a narrow escape from death while walking in her sleep. She had accompanied a gentleman to a picnic. After her escort had left her at her house Miss Shaw went into the parlor and fell asleep on the sofa.

Suddenly she arose and yet while asleep went upstairs to the second story, opened the window and walked out. She fell on soft grass without being injured. The fall brought her to consciousness and she soon began calling for help, which was responded to by her father and mother.

Explaining Dr. McGlynn's Visit.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The Single Tax conference adjourned after passing resolutions of thanks to the press for the accurate reports of the convention. President Post, in speaking of the visit of Dr. McGlynn to the convention, characterized it as a movement to stampede the convention in favor of protection theories.

Mysterious Poisoning Case.

Vice-President Morton at Rhinecliff.

JAY GOULD'S GIFT.

A Monument to the Memory of John and Betty More.

ROSENDOUT, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Nearly 5,000 people were present at the unveiling of a monument at Roxbury, Delaware County, to the memory of John and Betty More, the original settlers of the village about 130 years ago.

A reunion of the family descendants from all parts of the United States and Canada occurred. Charles C. More, of Poughkeepsie, delivered the address of welcome.

When the monument was unveiled, Hon. J. H. More, of Michigan, spoke of the life and times of John More. Mrs. Sarah B. Northrop, sister of Jay Gould, also delivered an address.

The monument is of Scotch granite, and is the gift of Jay Gould, whose native town is Roxbury.

On Trial for Killing His Rival.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Frederick Collett was assassinated near Farrisburg, Vt., Sunday evening by Alphonz Shackett, who crept up to Collett's house and without warning emptied the contents of a shot-gun into Collett's head. Shackett was arrested shortly after and his examination began to-day. Shackett was a rejected suitor of Mrs. Collett's, and he swore vengeance against Collett, who successfully wooed the lady.

DEATH TO YANKEES

The Cry of an Excited Mob in Guatemala.

MINISTER MIZNER UNDER GUARD.

The United States Legation Surrounded by an Angry Crowd.

Every Visitor Closely Questioned Before Being Admitted—General Barrundia's Daughter Kept a Close Prisoner—President Harrison Sends a Dispatch and Is Awaiting Details.

CITY OF GUATEMALA, Sept. 4.—"Death to Yankees!" was the cry of an angry and excited mob that surrounded the United States Legation all day.

Threats of stoning the building and mobbing the inmates were freely uttered, but no overt act was committed in the face of the strong force of police that guards the premises day and night. Every visitor is closely questioned before being admitted to the offices, and is, more or less, under surveillance while inside and until he emerges again.

Whenever Mr. Mizner has occasion to leave the Legation he is surrounded by a body guard of armed police. Rumor has it that these are to be superceded by blue jackets from the Thetis, who are also to form a cordon of safety about the Legation.

Sympathy grows for General Barrundia's daughter, who is kept a close prisoner for her attempt upon Mr. Mizner's life.

The President Awaits Official Details.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Acting Secretary Wharton sent the following telegram to the widow of General Barrundia in reply to her message to the President: "The President desires me to say he has received your telegram announcing the death of your husband General Barrundia. While deeply sympathizing with you in your affliction, he awaits official details of the occurrence necessary to determine his action in regard thereto. The matter, you may be assured, will receive most careful attention."

Mexico's View of the Case.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 4.—The public and the Mexican press generally speaks of the killing of Barrundia by the Guatemalan authorities as an atrocious deed, and believes that the United States Government should take action at once for the punishment of his assassins and an indemnification for his widow and children.

WATCHING THE CONGRESS.

Radical Socialistic Utterances and Demand Cheered by the Delegates.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Conservative organs editorially minimize the importance of the Liverpool Trades Unions' Council, though they, as well as all the other newspapers, devote columns of space daily to reports of its proceedings and comments upon the speeches and resolutions.

A noticeable feature of the congress is that the most radical socialistic utterances and demands are cheered to the echo.

John Burns' speeches display an unexpected amount of temper, and it is evident that Burns is much more cautious and wise as a leader in action than he is as a speaker.

The Congress has voted to accept an invitation for an international labor conference in Brussels in 1891. A number of meetings were held last night in different parts of Liverpool, at which delegates to the council delivered addresses.

GONE TO FIGHT A DUEL.

The Marquis de Leuville and a Newspaper Man to Fire Pistols.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Marquis de Leuville left this city for Boulogne, where he arrived and registered at the Hotel Marine. It is reported that the Marquis has gone to fight a duel. The other fellow is a French correspondent for a syndicate of Paris newspapers.

The origin of the duel lies among the other relics of Mrs. Frank Leslie's visit to England two months ago.

Last week the French correspondent undertook to interview the Marquis about Mrs. Leslie. De Leuville threatened to kick him out of the house, but found out that he couldn't. Then the newspaper man got saucy and called the Marquis all sorts of disagreeable names. Finally he was put out.

The next day De Leuville sent the correspondent a challenge, it is said, and it was accepted. The meeting was arranged to take place to-morrow morning. The London police have warned the Bologne officers to stop the affair however.

Mr. Blaine at a State Fair.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 4.—Secretary Blaine, with Gov. Burleigh and staff, attended the Eastern Maine State Fair here. Twenty-five thousand persons were in attendance.

The Sawtelle Murder Case.

DOVER, N. H., Sept. 3.—The Sawtelle murder case is now before the grand jury of Strafford County and that body is examining the witnesses summoned to appear before it.

Gilbert and Sullivan's Earnings.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The litigation between the famous operatic collaborateurs, Gilbert and Sullivan, has revealed the fact that the profits of the partnership in eleven years were $1,350,000.

A GIGANTIC BOYCOTT.

The Pittsburg Exposition to Suffer on Account of a Labor Difficulty.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 4.—The second annual exhibition of the Pittsburg Exposition Society opened in the Exposition buildings in this city last night. The exhibits are numerous and unusually attractive.

During the preparation for the exhibition an annoying strike occurred. Union men refused to continue work on the building where non-union employes of the Westinghouse Company were erecting the electrical display. The completion of preliminary work was accomplished under difficulties and by union men, it is claimed, in violation of promises given by the society. It is authoritatively stated that the different trades unions in Western Pennsylvania have already or will at once take action on the matter and refuse to patronize the exposition.

The action already taken by the Carpenters' Assembly indicates that a gigantic boycott will be inaugurated at once. That the effect will be more or less disastrous to the society cannot be denied when it is asserted that over 40,000 trades unionists and their families will withhold their patronage and support.

IS DEVOTED, LOCALLY, TO THE INTERESTS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, ITS SUBURBS AND ITS NEIGHBORING TOWNS; AND, POLITICALLY, TO THE ADVANCEMENT OF "THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER."

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED ON ALL MATTERS OF PUBLIC CONCERN, BUT PUBLISHED ONLY WHEN ACCOMPANIED BY THE NAME OF THE WRITER, IN CONFIDENCE, AS ENDORSING THE TRUTH AND HONEST INTENT OF THE COMMUNICATION.

ADVERTISING RATES MADE KNOWN ON APPLICATION AT THIS OFFICE. NOTES OF CHURCH ENTERTAINMENTS, FAIRS, SOCIABLES, LECTURES, CARDS OF THANKS, LODGE RESOLUTIONS, ETC., INSERTED FREE OR NOT, AS CHARITY OR JUSTICE MAY DEMAND.

W. L. AND A. L. FORCE, - PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

A. DEMAREST, - - MANAGING EDITOR.

BY THE WAY.

—The Red Men of Plainfield will visit the New Brunswick Indians September 13.

—Rand, the stationer, has a full line of school books and supplies. See advertisement in today's PRESS.

—Miss Mattison resumes piano instructions on Monday next. Her card appears in our educational column.

—Even such distant papers as The Hotel Mail express themselves in rapturous notes over the new Howard Club car.

—The regular business meeting of the Reform Club will be held this evening at eight o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

—The Olympia club house and bowling alleys on Sycamore street, will be rented by the Crescent League until such time as their new house is completed.

—Crescent-Westfield base ball game at Westfield, next Wednesday, September 10. Grand stand reserved seats, 50 cts., can be had by mail of Frank T. Lent, Westfield.

—The annoying flea pest of which several Plainfield families complained seems to have subsided, and now Newark and Harlem are suffering from the lively little creatures' bites.

—Jacob Seader, the old veteran whose pension was so long delayed as told of in THE PRESS of yesterday, received today a check for $798.83 back pay and notice of an allowance of $24 a month hereafter.

—A Plainfield housewife advertised in a recent issue of THE PRESS for a waitress. Fifteen minutes after the paper was issued a satisfactory applicant, who had learned through THE PRESS of the vacancy, was permanently secured.

—The Trentons, who play ball here Saturday, were defeated by the West Ends, at Somerville, Monday. Saturday's game, therefore, may afford a means of judging where Plainfield will stand and land in the coming series with Somerville.

—Saturday's ball game is against the Trentons. This is the only team the Crescents have met this year that they have not defeated. If Plainfield's team wins, they will have the unprecedented record of beating every nine they have played against.

—A mania for disfiguring the bill-boards about town seems to have taken possession of some of Plainfield's urchins. The law provides for the punishment of those who deface signs, and if the offenders are caught they will pass through an unpleasant experience.

—The Directors of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association have voted, pursuant to the constitution, to raise a third series of shares. The number will be limited to 500, the payment of dues commencing September 22. The treasurer of the Association, Judge Wm. R. Codington, will impart all needed information.

—Plainfield Engine Company, No. 2, made a great success of their picnic Monday evening. The committee of arrangements, which is given great credit for its management of the affair, consisted of A. Kahrman, R. D. Eick, F. B. Randolph, C. J. Newman, Frank Shuck, Hiram K. Voorhees, W. F. Townley, W. S. Marsh, W. T. Sherwood and C. W. Smith.

Col. Teeple Won It With His Ithaca Gun.

The third shooting match for the silver trophy, took place at Campbell's Club House yesterday afternoon at half-past three o'clock. "Colonel" Teeple, with his brand new Ithaca gun THE PRESS has told about, won after a long and hard contest.

Smith and Teeple tied on seventeen breaks out of twenty. On shooting off the tie each broke four out of five. On the next five Teeple won, breaking four to Smith's three, and making a total score of twenty-five out of thirty. The following is the score at 20 blue rocks: E. Teeple, 17; C. Smith, 17; Dan Terry, 16; Tee Kay, 16; R. B. Manning, 13; S. G. Smith, 13; T. Brantingham, 12; H. Campbell, 7; Dug Darby, 7.

The former winners of the trophy were Councilman S. G. Smith and T. Brantingham. The next shoot will take place in two weeks.

"Five years ago I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and had been given up by my physicians. I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after using two bottles of this medicine, was completely cured."—Anga A. Lewis, Ricard, N. Y.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. Jesse L. Hurlbut and family are at home again.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Woodruff of East Second street, are guests at The Arborton, Ocean Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Stillman left town yesterday for Castine, Me., where they will spend several weeks.

The Misses Gertie and Annie Cogan, of Laurel Hill, L. I., have returned home after a two weeks' visit with their uncle, F. M. Whitely, of North Plainfield.

Emma A. Jones has transferred to John J. Poillon, land on East side of Kensington avenue, 150 feet from North side of Putnam avenue, 150x173 feet, for a consideration of $2,250.

Frederic R. Coudert, the eminent New York lawyer and Plainfield real estate owner, who was severely injured by being thrown from his horse near New Market several weeks ago, is recuperating at Fire Island. His physicians say that it will be a month more before he will be able to use his injured leg.

Karl Feininger writes from Berlin that his voyage to Hamburg was a very pleasant one, and his reunion with his family a thing to be long remembered. "I cannot say," he continues, "that I anticipate the coming separation on September 12, but I must be in New York again before October 1, and resume lessons." Those who want to join his Plainfield class may address him at Steinway Hall, New York.

At Valois, on the St. Lawrence river, the other day, Willie McClure, the fourteen-year-old son of Counselor McClure of this city, won the second prize in the single-scull race. Young McClure had only two weeks' training and pulled in a borrowed shell that was some pounds too heavy. The large crowd present at the races loudly expressed their appreciation of his fine work, and experienced oarsmen said that if he had as good a boat as the winner, he would have been first at the finish.

Those Games With Somerville.

The talk of the town is the series of games arranged between the ball teams of this city and Somerville, which news was first told in THE PRESS. They will be played on the last three Saturdays of this month. The first, on September 13, will be at Somerville and the other two on following Saturdays in this city. The managers of the two clubs will hire in New York a professional umpire unknown to both. Each club will pay an equal share of his salary. An effort will be made to secure the one who umpired the Princeton-Yale matches. The entire receipts of the first game go to the Somerville club, and the entire receipts of the second game will go to the Crescent League. The receipts of the third game, after deducting the umpire's salary, will be equally divided between the two clubs.

The Crescent League's team will remain as it is. There will be no changes. The Somerville team, however, will be strengthened. The battery will be Harkins and Bowes. The rest of the team will probably be—O'Rourke, first base; Farrell, second base; Williams, third base; Howe, short stop; and Davenport, Bergen and Carbonell in the field. It is a strong team but the Crescents can beat it.

There is no one to be afraid of in this Somerville team. Galligan will be the extra man to go in the box if Harkins is hit, but he can't hurt anybody. Bowes caught for Plainfield in a game that the Somerville's won. Howe played here with the Metropolitans and could not hit over Martin's head besides being struck out by Gentle Gregg. O'Rourke played with the Crescents a year ago, and Farrell is a back number. All else that can be said is that Williams is a good one, the outfield is strong, and Harkins is a hitter from way back.

Councilman Spangenberg Breaks Away.

A rupture has occurred in the Big 6 and for a righteous reason, too. Councilman Spangenberg refused last evening to vote to grant any more "wholesale" liquor licenses. He says he has not joined a temperance society, and is still an advocate of high license; but he considers that there are enough beer peddlers now, and those who have paid $700 for a license to sell by the glass, should be better protected from the cheap dealers.

North Plainfield Transfers.

During the past week the following changes in Borough real estate, have been recorded:

Wm. E. Marsh et al to Anna M. Marsh, tracts of land in North Plainfield. (Power of Attorney.)

Mary A. Marsh et al., heirs, etc., to George N. Nelson and Albert E. Nelson, property in North Plainfield, $400.

A Small Circle but They Do Much Good.

The "Whatsoever Ten" Circle, King's Daughters, members of Trinity Reformed church, met yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Mabel Woodruff. They sent to the New York Flower Mission for distribution in the tenement house district 138 bunches of flowers. They have met every Wednesday during the Summer and sent flowers.

"The Manly Art of Self Defence."

Giving "blow for blow," is often more thought of, than that other "art of self defence," which consists in defending one's own system from the assaults of disease and neglect. When dyspepsia, biliousness, "liver complaint," jaundice, and the like lay hold of the system, the best defence is the immediate use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; tiny, sugar-coated Granules, made from concentrated vegetable extracts; one a dose.

A PITFALL FOR BOROUGH FEET.

Unguarded Excavations Receive a Victim, and Yawn for More.

Residents of the Borough say that their lives are in peril every time they pass Richard Elliott's vacant lot and gravel pit on Somerset street after nightfall. The ground has been excavated from the back of the lot close to the sidewalk line, and besides being considered an eyesore is a constant source of danger. It is a dark spot, after sundown. A few planks are usually laid across the edge of the opening, but no handrail or other guard has been erected, and no light is ever displayed: consequently, pedestrians may at any time, without warning, step off into space, and serious injury may result.

Last Monday night a woman, a resident of Duer street, returning from the grocers' excursion, congratulating herself on having passed the day without mishap, had occasion to pass the gravel pit. To avoid crowding others, she took a step aside, and fell headlong into the great hole beside the walk. She was stunned by the fall, and lay unconscious several minutes. When she recovered her senses two men with considerable difficulty lifted her out, and assisted her home. It is considered extraordinary that no bones were broken, nor serious internal injuries received.

The Borough authorities are the proper ones to see that every precaution is taken along their thoroughfares, to prevent such accidents. If they don't heed the case in point they may yet be taught a very severe lesson.

The Misses Levy Will First Appear in Plainfield.

The comedians, Evans and Hoey, appear here for the first time on Monday evening, presenting their great comedy success, "A Parlor Match," Edition De Luxe. Among the new specialties introduced this season are the Levy sisters, three in number, who will make their first appearance in America in Plainfield. They have been the talk of London for the past two seasons and will be without a doubt the talk of this country for there is seldom seen such large women or any so clever.

Awful.

On Thursday Friday and Saturday we will put on sale ten cases of ladies' and misses oxford ties at 50 cents that have sold for $1.00 and $1.50 all Summer. Also a broken lot of ladies' and gentlemen's shoes some as low as 75 cents a pair. Come early and get your pick for they are all to be closed out in three days. Rogers Bros., 12 West Front street.

SYRACUSE CRAWFISHED,

And Then He Retired and Tied His Head Up with a Towel.

When five or six men get together and begin to tell stories there is always more or less lying done, especially if they are only casual acquaintances. Going down on the boat from Natchez there were three or four "rings" which hung together, and each of us told some pretty tall stories. There was a man from Syracuse who laid himself out for a whopper, and when the rest of us were through he settled back and said:

"Gentleman, the ship which was carrying me to India was burned off the island of Borneo, and I got away in a boat with a single sailor."

"When was this?" asked a native Mississippian, who was taking a lot of mules down the river.

"In 1858."

"Exactly—go ahead."

"We had neither water nor provisions in the boat," said the man, "and after drifting for three days I wanted to draw lots to see who should die. The sailor refused."

"His name?" asked the Mississippian.

"Foster, I believe."

"You are right; go ahead."

"I suffered one day more, and then, as he slept, I killed him with my knife and drank his blood. It saved my life. Next day I was picked up by a ship."

"And you killed the man, did you?"

"I did."

"And drank his blood?"

"Yes."

"Well, you are the man I've been looking for these many years. That sailor was my brother—my big brother—the only brother I ever had!"

"No!"

"Yes, he was. Some of those who got away in another boat saw him go off with you and told me of it. Stranger, the man who drinks my brother's blood has got to die!"

"But you must be mistaken. I—I hardly think his name was Foster."

"Oh, yes it was. Name was Foster—ship got afire—off the island of Borneo—drifted about in a boat. It's all straight, and now I want satisfaction. Have you got a bowie knife about you?"

"Look here, boys," said the Syracuse man, as he caught his breath, "I'm in a box and I have got to make a confession. I was lying about that adventure from start to finish."

"Sure of it?" demanded the Mississippian, while every body else laughed.

"I know I was."

"Didn't kill my brother and drink his blood?"

"Certainly not."

"Well, then, that's all right and I'm glad to hear it. I'm as humble as a lamb on ordinary matters, but when it comes to killing my brother—the only brother I ever had—why, who wouldn't fight?"

We asked the Syracuse man to give us something else, but he wouldn't do it. He went off to his state-room and tied his head up with a towel.—N. Y. Sun.

A Chicago Custom.

Gazzam (taking up card)—Who in the world is this? "Mrs. Annie Laker-Smyth-Cregier-Van Shooten-Livewayte-Penuckle."

Mrs. Gazzam—It's a Chicago lady who has adopted the new style of hyphenating each husband's name as fast as she marries—Jury.

First Reunion Since the War.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 4.—The survivors of the Twenty-ninth New Jersey Volunteers held their first reunion since the civil war at Keyport, the armory of the Puritan Guards. Adjutant-General William S. Stryker, of the New Jersey National Guard, delivered an oration. Ex-Superintendent Walling, of the New York Police, led the veterans in the march that preceded the banquet. Four hundred veterans of the old regiment were in line.

Broker Frank Work Injured.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—While Mr. Frank Work, the well known broker, was driving in Central Park one of his horses became refractory and the team ran away. Mr. Work jumped out of the wagon and was dragged some distance, sustaining severe contusions.

Murdered by an Unknown Man.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 4.—An unknown man shot Harry Waterhouse, an Englishman, about 50 years old, here during an altercation. Waterhouse died in about an hour. The murderer was arrested, but refused to give his name. He is a stranger in the place.

Fatal Ending of a Spree.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—John H. Wyle, a soap manufacturer of Camden, N. J., ended a spree by committing suicide in Gee's Hotel, on Eighth avenue, last night. He took poison.

Potters and the Knights.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 4.—The Potters' National District Assembly are in session here. Delegate Henry of Ohio introduced a memorial giving among other reasons why the Potters should leave the Knights of Labor, that the order kept the Potters in trouble because of its constant strikes, and that the assessments were too much of a drain. In the west the Knights are becoming blacklisted because of the many strikes they get into. The resolution accompanying the memorial wants the Potters to form a separate trade organization. J. J. Holland, of the Executive Board arrived, and further discussion was postponed.

Banquet to Henry George.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Henry George was entertained at a banquet and reception at Coney Island by the Brooklyn Single Tax Club. Many single tax men made addresses and delegates were present from the leading single tax clubs of every State in the Union.

"It goes right to the spot," said an old gentleman, who found great benefit in Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He was right. Derangements of the stomach, liver, and kidneys are more speedily remedied by this medicine than by any other. It reaches the trouble directly.

Sick Headache

IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

THE WATER COMPANY WILL CONTINUE ITS WORK.

ITS COUNSEL HAS A CONFERENCE WITH THE CITY'S ATTORNEY, AND OFFERS TO JOIN FORCES.

President Moffett Courteously Intrusts the Whole Matter to the Present Water Board —Other Doings of Interest in the Common Council, Including Signs of Mutiny Among the Big 6.

The harmony that usually characterizes the deliberations of the Plainfield Common Council was considerably disturbed last night by the squawkings of a human voice trying on a new opera, whose notes, bereft of melody, went floating across the housetops and through the open windows, piercing the ears of all in the Council chamber with holes large enough to drop nickels in; and there followed, as a seeming result, a surprising chopping-up of the balloting over nearly every question. Councilmen voted for or against a thing just as everybody seemed to think they wouldn't, and the uncertainty of what the vote would be on each important matter arising added a spice of excitement to the interest of the session.

When the Council assembled, the subject uppermost in many minds was that concerning the water-works, and it was one of the first matters reached. The Corporation Counsel lost no time, after his return from Europe, in preparing his views on the subject, and they were presented in the following communication:

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—On August 21st, last, Supreme Court Justice Magie allowed a writ of certiorari applied for by Israel Dewis against J. Herbert Johnston, William Foster, Jr., Cornelius N. Hoagland, James Moore, Samuel Knox, John B. Moore and George Kyte, incorporators of the Water Works Company of Plainfield, and the Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, for the purpose of reviewing the resolution of the Common Council adopted December 27th, last, purporting to give consent to the incorporation of such company, the resolution of the Common Council purporting to accept the offer and contract of said J. Herbert Johnston and others, and authorizing and instructing the Mayor and City Clerk to execute the contract with the said company, and the contract purporting to have been executed in pursuance thereof, together with all matters and proceedings of the Common Council touching and concerning the said resolutions, offer and contract.

The probable purpose of the prosecutor is to test the constitutionality of the act of the Legislature adopted April 21, 1876, under which the Water Works Company of Plainfield was formed.

With respect to this question, it is sufficient at this time to say that long before the incorporation of the said company the Corporation Counsel of this city called the attention of the proposed incorporators and of their counsel, Mr. Hill of New York, to the fact that the constitutionality of the statute under which the incorporators proposed to organize, had several times been called in question. The titles of all such cases, and the books and pages in which the same were reported, were furnished by me to the company's counsel, and were carefully examined by such counsel, before the company was incorporated. The act in question has never been declared to be unconstitutional. As was declared by Vice Chancellor VanFleet in *May, 1888, "The question whether that statute is valid or not is an unsettled legal problem * * * The question, though twice before the Supreme Court, is still unsettled."* The remarks of the Vice Chancellor are as true today as when he uttered them. The committee of the Common Council then having the matter in charge, considered that as there appeared to be no other law under which any company having necessary powers of condemnation could be formed for the purpose of supplying water in this city, and as the proposed incorporators, after having their attention called to the cases in which the constitutionality of this law had been questioned were willing to invest their money, and take the risk of the statute being subsequently declared unconstitutional, the city could well afford to consent to the proposed incorporation, and to the proposed contract, whereby the whole expense of construction, including the supervision of the city's engineer, was to be borne by the Water Company.

The counsel for the water company adopted the view that inasmuch as the law had despite all attacks stood upon the statute books for some fourteen years, and several cities and towns were supplied with water pursuant to its provisions it was highly improbable that the courts would declare the act invalid, and, if they did, he believed that there would be little difficulty in procuring the necessary remedial legislation which all such cities would, with one voice, demand.

The counsel for the water works company of Plainfield called at my office today and informed me that the company were making arrangements to proceed with the execution of the contract in strict accordance with the terms thereof, and that the company would be glad to unite with the city in taking any action that might be deemed advisable, looking to the full and entire completion of the contract in good faith as originally contemplated. The counsel for the company also offered to join forces with the city in defense of the action brought by Mr. Lewis in case the city should deem such concert of action advisable.

The writ was granted expressly on condition that argument should be had at the ensuing November term of court. The importance of the case renders it probable that a speedy decision will be handed down.

I advise that your honorable body refer the matter to some appropriate committee with power to act in conjunction with the Corporation Counsel in taking such action as the interests of the city may seem to require.

Dated September 3, 1890.

Respectfully submitted,
CRAIG A. MARSH,
Corporation Counsel.

Promptly following the reading of this report came the adoption of the suggestion that a committee of three be appointed to act with the Corporation Counsel in the matter. Before the committee was appointed, however, Councilman Newhall requested the privilege of being excused from serving on it.

"Giving this matter in charge of a new committee," he said, "will relieve the Water Board of a great responsibility. This responsibility we don't shirk, but we are willing to be relieved. Though in the natural course of events such a question should go to the Water Board, I hope that the Chair will grant me the courtesy of leaving me off the committee."

President Moffett listened quietly to Mr. Newhall's statement, and appointed the Water Board, with Mr. Newhall as chairman, as the committee.

The only other mention of water works appearing during the session was caused by the introduction of the "seventh report of progress" by Supervising Engineer Rudolph Hering.

Mr. Hering stated that the wells, connecting pipes and other essentials for collecting the water from the ground had been completed, and the erection of the pumping station was well under way. The building was being constructed of mountain stone and cement, hard and durable, and the workmanship was satisfactory, but the external appearance was coarse and inartistic, and the attention to architectural requirements demanded by such a conspicuous site had not been given. He had the assurance of the company, however, that they would yet give the building a thoroughly attractive appearance.

Two-thirds of the time—the report continued—for the completion of the water system, had expired, and though bids for material had been received the contract for the purchase of street mains and connecting pipes had not yet been completed. Even if a large force were immediately put to work it was not practicable to finish the water works properly by January 1, as the contract demanded.

Mr. Hering's report was referred to the Water Board, whose chairman, Mr. Newhall, "called attention to statements now made for the first time by Engineer Hering that the time had passed when it was possible to complete the works under the strict terms of the contract. Besides," he continued, "though the company has paid the $2,000 reported delinquent at the last meeting of the Council, there is now a few days overdue another $1,000. We should like, therefore, to have this entire matter referred to our Board with power. We want authority to take whatever preliminary legal proceedings the Corporation Counsel may deem necessary."

Mr. Newhall concluded with the statement that though he desired such action he didn't wish to make the motion himself, and Councilman Smith moved that the Water Board be given full power to take whatever preliminary legal proceedings Counselor Marsh might advise concerning the water company's fulfillment of its contract. The motion was unanimously carried.

Another matter concerning which much public interest had been aroused was the proposition which has been under consideration some time to give the city a perfect fire alarm system, and the popular local advocacy of the scheme was gratified by the awarding of a contract to construct in Plainfield the best system in the world.

The Committee on Fire and Buildings reported that after a careful examination of the several systems proposed, and a thorough consideration of the various contracts suggested, they deemed the offer of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company the most advantageous and the best. The committee had secured the addition of several advantages to the original proposition, and the company had agreed to furnish privileges worth $200 or $300 more than they had mentioned at first, with no increase of the original price, $3,125. For this sum they stood ready to construct, within four months after the signing of the contract, a perfect system of fire alarm, complete in every particular, and including a central or battery station, a signal station with thirteen connecting signal boxes, placed advantageously throughout the city, with five keys for each box, a whistleblowing machine to be attached to a whistle on the electric light works, gongs for the engine houses, and tappers for the house of the Chief Engineer and other fire officials. By the mere pulling down of a hook in each signal box the exact location of the fire is registered, and an alarm is automatically sounded indicating in just what part of the city fire is discovered. The boxes also contain signal keys for police service. The company proposed to use twelve miles of hard-drawn copper wire in the system—eight miles of bare wire, and two miles of insulated. At the completion of the system, in four months, and the payment of the specified sum, $3,125, it would become the property of the city, and the city would be licensed to use it under the Company's patents. It would be put in operation as soon as the Board of Engineers and the Committee on Fire and Buildings had inspected it and accepted it.

Mr. Newhall suggested, when the reading of the proposed contract had been finished, that all danger from electricity ought to be very carefully guarded against. He thought that all the wires used in the service ought to be insulated; it would be safer and more satisfactory in the end. He also deemed it advisable that an agreement be procured from the company guaranteeing the proper working of the system for a certain length of time.

Councilman Hetfield said that he didn't consider it necessary that all the wires should be insulated. The use of bare wires except in the neighborhood of electric light wires was entirely safe, and wholesale insulation would but add to the expense.

Chas. Wann, of North Plainfield, a representative of the Gamewell Company, was accorded the privileges of the floor. He stated that the cost of insulated wires would be about $30 per mile more than bare wires. The wires would be placed at the top of the present telephone and electric light poles, out of reach of the other wires. Insulation, he continued, was necessary only in proximity to electric light wires, which also were insulated. The thirty years' experience of his company had demonstrated the thorough success and safety of bare wires where no other wires than telephone or telegraph were near. Other cities mingled fire alarm, telegraph and telephone wires freely. As to a time guarantee, his company had so much confidence in their apparatus that any defects in mechanism or construction that manifested themselves inside of two years would be made good at the company's expense—and if there were any defects they would be discovered in less time than that.

Mr. Newhall expressed himself entirely satisfied with the statements of Mr. Wann, but still felt a dread of stringing any more bare wires along the streets or across buildings and lots. He felt that too much caution in such matters could not be exercised.

Mr. Hetfield still thought entire insulation a needless expense.

Mr. Smith agreed with Mr. Newhall that all the fire alarm wires ought to be insulated, to guard against every possible accident.

A motion was already before the Council to agree to the contract submitted by the Gamewell company, and Mr. Newhall moved to amend the contract by providing that the company give a time-guarantee satisfactory to the Committee on Fire and Buildings, and also providing that all the wire used in the system shall be insulated, a fair additional amount being added to the cost for such additional insulation.

For the amendment all voted aye except Mr. Hetfield who explained that he was in favor of the time-guarantee, but opposed to entire insulation as a useless expense.

The original motion, to accept the Gamewell Company's proposition, was then unanimously adopted as amended, and the Board of Engineers and the Committee on Fire and Buildings were authorized to fix the locations for the signal boxes.

The report of the Board of Fire Engineers was presented, stating that the cost of the new 10-inch steam whistle to be purchased by the city for use in connection with the Gamewell system of alarms would be about $300, while the old bell and tower could be sold for $400. The whistle would be perpetually connected with a strong head of steam, free of charge at the electric light works. The Board also recommended that the inlet to the fire well at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, be changed, at a cost of not over $50, from the forebay at French's Mills to the raceway, as now it constantly failed when most needed. The report was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

Wm. E. Johnson, sexton of the Methodist Episcopal church, was appointed keeper of the town clock at a salary of $2 50 per month.

Edwin H. Dobbs was appointed regular policeman in place of Eugene A. Laine, resigned, and Patrick Kiely was also appointed a regular policeman.

City Judge W. B. Codington reported that during the last quarter 73 prisoners had been brought before him, and $220.50 in fines had been paid. Overseer of the Poor J. Oakley Nodyne, reported that $1,095.63 had been expended by the city on the poor the past three months, and forty-eight families and single persons had been assisted.

Several residents petitioned for relief from the constant submersion of the roadway North of the railroad track near the Netherwood station, stating that in Winter the place was almost impassable, and that even in Summer the road was often a foot under water. The Committee on Streets will consult with the Land Improvement Company owning the adjoining property with a view to remedying the difficulty.

On motion of the Finance Committee the City Treasurer was authorized to borrow $1,000 for the poor fund, $5,000 for the general fund, and $2,500 for the fire department fund, and was authorized to pay two $500 fire bonds now due.

The Committee on licenses stirred a breeze by reporting as not approved the application of James Day for a hackman's license and Joel C. Giddis for a license to operate a stage line between Plainfield and Dunellen, giving as their reason the statement that the city had enough hackmen already.

Mr. Hetfield protested against discrimination concerning men going into the hackmen's business. This was the first instance, he said, where any attempt had been made to prevent a hackman from entering his chosen line of work.

Mr. Roberts and Mr. Smith considered that North avenue was already blockaded by too many vehicles.

Mr. Spangenberg thought it inadvisable to try to shut any hackman out at this late season of the year.

A vote was taken on the application of Giddis, and the first noteworthy split of the evening—outside of the nine-to-one vote on the fire alarm insulation question—occurred. Councilmen Dunham, Hetfield, Jenkins, Johnson, Moffett, Newhall and Spangenberg voted to grant the license. Councilman Gallup, Roberts and Smith voted no.

Then a vote on Day's application was taken, and Councilman Roberts pursed his lips and said "we might as well all vote aye," and voted aye himself. Consequently only two Councilmen—Johnson and Smith—voted against granting the license.

Liquor license applications next attracted attention. August H. Krohne of Plainfield avenue, asked for wholesale or "quart" license, and the License Committee reported that the application conformed to the laws and ordinances, and was correct in form.

Mr. Spangenberg instantly announced his intention of voting against the application.

"We have enough of such places already," he said. "Those to whom we have already granted licenses have paid high fees, and we ought to protect them against encroachment."

Mr. Smith held that Krohne's business would not interfere with that of anybody but the one other wholesale dealer.

Mr. Dunham at this point threw a little bombshell that he had been nursing in silence all the evening.

"I," said he, "dare to say that this man who now applies for a license has been selling illegally, in defiance of the law. It's a farce for him to seek our protection now. And what's more I believe there isn't a man here that doesn't know that Krohne has been selling illegally."

Mr. Smith retorted that Mr. Dunham's remarks were entirely wrong, as Krohne had not been dispensing illegally, and Mr. Hetfield stated that he for one hadn't known and didn't know (as Mr. Dunham charged) that Krohne had been selling against the law.

A tie vote resulted, Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts and Smith voting in favor of granting the license, and Councilmen Dunham, Jenkins, Johnson, Newhall and Spangenberg voting against it. The application was declared not granted.

The application of Michael F. Watson for a "quart" license next came up, and was defeated by the following vote:

To grant—Councilmen Hetfield, Moffett and Smith—3.

To refuse—Councilmen Dunham, Gallup, Jenkins, Johnson, Newhall, Roberts and Spangenberg—7.

Only one "quart" application was left—that of Matthew Kilpatrick. It was refused.

To grant—Councilman Gallup—1.

To refuse—Councilmen Dunham, Hetfield, Jenkins, Johnson, Moffett, Newhall, Roberts, Smith and Spangenberg—9.

Mr. Spangenberg announced that because he had voted against these application it must not be inferred that he had joined a temperance society; the reason for his voting as he had was because he was in favor of high license for all. At this Mr. Dunham gave one of his cutest winning smiles, said that as for him he didn't think that temperance societies would hurt anyone, and rolled his eyes like cherub-marbles across the room towards the high license man.

Two stepping-stones presented to the city for use at the Public Library were accepted with thanks.

An ordinance was presented having in view the macadamization of Plainfield avenue from Seventh street to the city boundary line.

Mr. Hetfield objected to macadamizing streets in the outskirts and neglecting thoroughfares in the heart of the city. Ordinances for macadamization of Third and Fourth streets [and Elm place, Councilman Jenkins interposed] had been adopted long ago, and yet those streets were in many places in very bad condition.

Mr. Smith, Chairman of the Street Committee, said that those thoroughfares would be attended to as soon as the property-owners subscribed the customary percentage of the cost. Plainfield avenue was one of the oldest thoroughfares in Plainfield, and for eleven years no street had been in a more disgraceful condition. The property-owners had subscribed $2,000 more than one-half the cost of improvement, and the purpose of the ordinance was to keep faith with the subscribers and to put the avenue in first-class order, even going so far as to curb it in places where washouts frequently occurred.

Mr. Hetfield insisted that the streets in the heart of the city ought to be given attention before Plainfield avenue. Such streets as Madison avenue, Central avenue and Richmond street had been macadamized entirely at the city's expense; and why couldn't Third and Fourth streets be perfected now without demanding subscriptions?

After further discussion the ordinance was adopted by a vote of seven to three, Councilmen Dunham, Gallup, Johnson, Moffett, Newhall, Roberts and Smith voting in favor of it, and Councilmen Hetfield, Jenkins and Spangenberg against.

The Committee on Lights were given power to place electric street lamps along the improved Plainfield avenue.

On motion of Councilman Jenkins, the Mayor and Street Committee were appointed a committee to confer with the North Plainfield authorities concerning the widening and opening of Peace street.

Councilmen Smith and Newhall together framed a motion that when Council adjourn it be to meet Monday evening, September 15, in special session, to consider street railway matters, the water works question, and the proposition to audit city laborers' bills every two weeks.

Mr. Hetfield moved to amend by adding the matter of street macadamization to the list of items for special consideration. The amendment was lost.

For the amendment—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Jenkins, Moffett, Spangenberg—5.

Against—Councilmen Dunham, Johnson, Newhall, Roberts, Smith—5.

The original motion was then carried unanimously, and the Council adjourned for two weeks.

THE CRANKS.

There is one kind of man has accomplished much good.
Though often without a sole thank;
Because his intentions were misunderstood,
The man to you known as a crank.

When Noah his ark in the days of old reared,
The rabble around him were frank
To tell him a flood was something unheard,
And to laugh at the commodore crank.

But when the tide rose o'er the mountain tops wide,
And they strove in the sea's bosom dank,
They thought of the truth they once did deride,
And remembered the words of a crank.

When Columbus first told to the Castilian court
Of a country rich, verdant and rank,
They laughed him to scorn, and made him their sport,
And doubtless some called him a crank.

But when a new world he discovered full soon,
Their puns and their railleries sank;
Each strung up his harp to fit a new tune,
And praised the wise thought of the crank.

When Fulton his steamboat was building, 'tis said,
Folks thought it a lunatic's prank,
And deemed his fit home in a house for the mad,
For fools, you know, laugh at a crank.

But when the invention, completed at last,
Moved off mid machinery's clank,
They opened their eyes as she swiftly steamed past;
Not one of them called him a crank.

When Pasteur his mission attempted to show,
Some called him a fool mountebank;
But now they are forced to acknowledge we owe
A paean of praise to the crank.

His thoughts are all twisted and tangled one way,
Like the strands in a thread knitter's hank;
But this will be righted and straightened some day,
And then all the praise to the crank.

Like a foreign hand-organ that grinds but one tune,
When turned by an Italian lank,
His mind ever dwells on one thing; only one,
The onederful mind of the crank.

Perpetual motion oft claims his thought,
Though to others 'tis almost a blank;
If his wished-for invention should ever be brought
To work, it will be by a crank.

On this you can bet with assurance your gold,
And high on your winning can bank,
Though hatless, though homeless, though houseless and pld,
The smartest of men is the crank.
—Yankee Blade.

SAVED BY A BANK-BOOK.

Disastrous Experience of a Greenhorn on a Florida Homestead.

I HAD been a clerk in a city store ever since I was old enough to work, and I was green. There is no doubt about that in my mind now, though I spurned the thought then. I had sold the stony little farm on the bleak Vermont hillside, which had come to me after my father had worried himself into his grave trying to get rich on it, and had landed in Florida full of guide-book opinions of the balmy climate, the fertile soil, the clamoring market for sub-tropical fruits, and the ease with which they could be raised in that "land of the cypress and myrtle."

"I took up a homestead on the long, narrow strip of land that divides the Atlantic ocean from the Indian river. I did not go to see it before 'entering' for it at the land office, because I knew that to be unnecessary. The guide-book said that strip was wonderfully fertile, salubrious and easy of access. I found a good many homesteads on it not yet occupied, and I wondered a little that a greater rush of settlers had not been made for it. However, I set this down to my own good luck in being so early in the field, and figured on selling off enough of the homestead in a year or two to pay for a fine house on what I retained for my own use.

"I reached the spot by sail-boat from Titusville, at the head of the river, and was delighted to find that I had neighbors, not far away to the north, and also to the south. They were 'crackers.' That is the name which one native Floridian applies to other native Floridians whom he does not like. They had orange groves, to be sure, but they did not seem to be growing rich on their crops. This I attributed to their shiftless method of agriculture. Instead of clearing their land of the big pine trees that cumbered it, they merely girdled the trees, and left them standing, dead and bare, a constant menace to passers-by and to the young orange trees which were planted among their roots, as well as an eyesore on the landscape.

"I determined to cut my trees down, in the good old New England fashion, clear the land thoroughly, and raise vegetables between the rows of orange trees till they were old enough to bear a golden harvest. First I set to work on the underbrush, and then came my first experience with palmetto roots. If there is one thing more exasperating than another to get out of the ground, it is a palmetto root. A palmetto as high as your waist, with a stem as thick as a baby's arm, will have a root as big around as a boy's leg and as long as the whole boy. This root runs along, just under the surface of the ground, sending down a fringe of tough feelers into the subsoil, that holds it like the suckers of an octopus.

"But the most exasperating thing about it is that when you have dug down and got a fair hold on the thing, with your hands, if it's a little one; with your hoe (a big, strong, heavy affair, made for the purpose), if it's a middle-sized one; and with a chain attached to a mule, if it's a big one; the pesky thing breaks off in joints about a foot or two long, at the first good pull; and you have to hitch on all over again.

"Well, by the time I had two acres of palmetto roots pulled out and a wilderness of big trees down on top of them, my back was almost broken, my ready money all gone, and no prospect of a crop in sight. I had come down in the early fall and now it was about Christmas. The season had been a pretty dry one and the logs looked so full of sap that I thought they would burn, though too green to burn fast. So I set them on fire.

"That was the most disastrous fire I ever lit. I forgot that the sap of these trees was mostly resin. The way the flames crept along through that mass of underbrush and leaped up every resinous pine tree it met was terrific. I fought it as long as I could move a limb and then dropped, exhausted and despairing, and watched it roar off through the woods like an evil spirit that I had raised and was powerless to control. It was sundown when I gave up the fight, and I could do nothing more that night. Too wretched to eat, I drank freely from my little store of whisky and threw myself on my couch.

ALL ARMED WITH SHOTGUNS.

"The liquor and the exhaustion made me sleep far into the next day, and I was awakened a little after noon by loud knocks at my door. Opening it I was confronted by five or six big, rough men, all armed with shotguns and with an ominous look on their faces. They strode into my cabin and shut the door behind them.

"'Stranger,' said the spokesman, gruffly: 'You have started a fire here in your darned Yankee ignorance of farmin', and all the good you've done is to burn the rawsun and the bark off a lot of green trees, and now ye've got a lot of black logs on your hands that are a derned sight meaner to handle than ever. But yer derned fire has spread into the groves of yer neighbors, where the dead trees were still a standin', and they have been burned to the ground, as anybody but a natural-born fool might 'a'-knowed they would, and our orange trees is ruined with them. Such varmint as you isn't fit to live in this country. Say yer prayers, mister, for we're going to plant you before we go back.'

"I was terribly frightened, for I could see they were in dead earnest. My teeth began to chatter, but a bright thought struck me. I had deposited some money in a bank at Jacksonville on my way down, and had a check-book with some blank checks left in it, though the money had all been drawn out long ago.

"'Gentlemen,' I said, 'I am clearing this place for a Northern syndicate, who are going to make extensive plantations here, and I can pay you on the spot for your losses, caused by my ignorance of Florida forests, and I assure you that such a thing will not happen again.' With that I whipped out my check-book, took up a pencil and prepared to write with as much show of confidence as I could muster under the circumstances.

"I had been pretty free with the five or six hundred dollars I had brought down with me, and so the story of the Northern syndicate seemed to them to be likely enough. The word syndicate, any way, seems to have an awe-inspiring power down there. The idea that a syndicate might be penniless seems preposterous. But it was the bank checks that overwhelmed them; checks on a real National bank were something they had heard of, but never handled before.

"You may be sure they swindled me awfully in making up the estimates of their losses, but I was not disposed to be penurious, merely making enough objections to allay possible suspicion. So I drew a check for each man, big enough to buy his whole farm five times over, and they went away laughing to themselves at my gullibility.

"As soon as they were out of sight, I packed into my boat all my outfit, set every stitch of sail and reached the nearest town by the next night, sold my outfit for enough to buy a ticket North and did not breathe freely till I felt myself well beyond the reach of these simple 'crackers,' whose groves I had ignorantly ruined, and in whose hands I knew my life would not be worth an hour's purchase when they discovered how I had escaped their just indignation."—N. Y. Tribune.

STRICT SOBRIETY.

How Colonel Blowers Failed to Carry Out His Pledge.

COL. HARVEY BLOWERS promised his wife that he would never again drink a drop of intoxicating liquor. "Molly," said he, "from this time forward number me among your soberest acquaintances."

"Harvey, you have made me so many promises."

"Yes, dear, I know that."

"And each time you have broken them."

"That's very true, precious, but I will never do so again."

"How many times have you made such a promise?"

"Oh! never mind that. I have come to the conclusion that unless a man reforms he is gone."

"Well, Colonel, I will give you one more trial."

"Now you are talking. One more trial is all I want."

The next day, after the above-narrated conversation, the Colonel accidentally met an old friend. Had not the meeting been accidental it would not have occurred. The Colonel owed his friend. After a few moments of pleasant conversation the two men went into a saloon. The Colonel said that he would take seltzer. His friend looked at him in astonishment.

"OH! I'M WITH YOU."

"I've stopped drinking," said the Colonel.

"The deuce you have!"

"Yes."

"Since when?"

"Well, I haven't taken a drink for several days."

"What's the matter?"

"Nothing, only I promised my wife that I would not drink again."

"That's all right, of course, but you are not that foolish, I hope."

"It is not foolishness, old boy. I must stop."

"When, just as you meet me? Take a little something."

"I don't want seltzer, that's a fact. Give me a little ginger ale."

"Oh, now here, Colonel, don't whip the old man around the stump."

"Well, confound it, give me a little whisky," said the Colonel.

A few moments later the friend said: "Won't you have something else, Colonel?"

"Nothing else, thank you."

"You can stand another whisky."

"Of course, I can stand another, but I don't want one."

"Well, hang it, let's take one anyway."

"All right, blamed if I care."

They drank. After about ten minutes had elapsed, the Colonel said:

"Suppose we try another one?"

"Can we stand it?"

"Stand it!" The Colonel laughed.

They took another one and seemed to stand it.

"Well, sir," said the Colonel, "do you know that a few drinks of whisky make a man of me? It's a fact. My memory is better, my mind becomes more acute. After I take a few drinks I can recall odd little scraps of poetry and little grabs of sentiment which had long been forgotten. Here, fill 'em up again."

They drank.

"I promised my wife that I would not drink again," said the Colonel.

"Well, you haven't drunk again," replied the friend. "You've drunk whisky."

"By George, that's a good joke," exclaimed the Colonel. "Haven't drunk again. Haw! haw! haw! Old fellow, you ought to start a humorous paper."

"I could run her and don't you forget it."

"Well, I should say so. Say, when I go home my wife will not know that I have taken a drop."

"Of course she won't. Suppose we try it again."

"Oh, I'm with you."

They drank.

"I don't see how these fellows around town can stand it to drink so much," said the Colonel. "I couldn't, I am sure. In fact I don't see why any man desires to throw himself away. Let's see, what remark was it that the Governor of North Carolina made to the—"

"Haw! haw! haw!" laughed the friend. "That's a good one. A little more of the same, please. Well," he continued when the drinks had been brought, "here's a rum go, as the Englishman says."

"A bloody rum go," added the Colonel. Then they leaned on the bar and laughed.

As the Colonel was going to dinner, he mused:

"I was never soberer in my life. Blamed if I don't believe that I am soberer than I was before I took a drink."

Dinner was not quite ready. The Colonel's wife was tacking down a carpet. The Colonel said that he would help her. She looked at him suspiciously. It hurt his feelings. He got down on his knees and went to work. His words were the worst of soothing syrup. Pretty soon his wife, in attempting to arise, uttered a shriek. He had tacked her skirts to the floor. Then he began to blubber. It was no use, he said, for a man to try to be anybody. Everybody was working against him. He would go away and never come back again. His wife kissed him and he blubbered afresh. The Colonel, like many another man, is a brute.—Opie Read, in Arkansaw Traveler.

WANTED THE TOWN.

The Only Man on Record Who Ever Frightened a Western Real Estate Shark.

Let an Eastern man register at a hotel in any of the far Western towns and he is sure of a caller within an hour. The caller will turn out to be a real estate agent, and he will be followed by No. 2, No. 3, No. 4, and so on until the list is exhausted. A Detroiter who recently made a trip to Washington Territory had no sooner registered at the hotel in a certain town than he was asked for a brief interview, and the interviewer began:

"You are probably seeking a real-estate investment?"

"Yes."

"You want an investment that will double in one year's time."

"I do."

"I have it."

"How much capital will be required?"

"Ten thousand."

"I wouldn't fool away time with it."

"Do you wish to go $50,000?"

"That would be no object, sir. What can this whole town be bought for?"

"You don't—don't mean—"

"But I do. Go out and get me a ten days' option on the whole town, every thing included, and, if not too high, I'll close the deal and pay the cash inside of a week."

The agent walked softly out, his eyes as big as onions and his hair on end, and the Detroiter was not bothered by any others. They hadn't any thing rich enough for a man who could buy the whole earth.—Detroit Free Press.

MADAM WAS PLEASED.

But Unfortunately She Expressed Her Delight Too Soon.

Housekeeper (to pleasant-faced girl at employment agency)—Have you any objections to the country?

Girl (politely)—None at all, madam.

Housekeeper—I have quite a large family.

Girl—The more, the merrier.

Housekeeper—Seven children, two of them quite young.

Girl—I love little children.

Housekeeper—It will be necessary for you to bake bread, wash and get the meals. I attend to the pastry and chamber work myself.

Girl—I will also make the pastry and do the rest if you will allow me.

Housekeeper—I can not give you more than three afternoons off.

Girl—Two will be sufficient, perhaps more than I will want, as my plan is to give strict attention to my household duties and thus get the work done up promptly every day, so as to have plenty of opportunities to rest between times.

Housekeeper—I am delighted—

Stranger (suddenly entering)—Sorry to interrupt you, madam, but you are conversing with one of my patients who has just escaped from the Hopelessly Incurable Lunatic Asylum. — N. Y. Weekly.

His Preference.

"Would you rather spend the afternoon at the base-ball grounds or here at the tennis club?" she inquired, fishing for a compliment.

"Here, by all means," he replied. "There isn't a single bar-room handy to the base-ball grounds."—Munsey's Weekly.

Caught.

"Why, child, what are you doing?" asked a mother trout as her youngest was being drawn rapidly out of the water.

"Just foraging on my own hook," replied the little trout, and it was landed. —Judge.

It Made a Slight Difference.

Jones—I am opposed to working on Sunday. It's wicked.

Tough Citizen—Well, that's not the way you used to talk.

Jones—I know it; but I'm working for the Government now.—Texas Siftings

A PLAIN ADVANTAGE.

Real Estate Agent—This is a good lot, my friend.

Friend—But it stands right-up-and-down the side of the hill.

R. E. Agent—Yes; but look at the drainage!—Puck.

DECEITFUL APPEARANCES.

Uncle Hiram—Who you get to patch your clothes, young man?

Summer Boarder (disgusted)—Those aren't patches. They're checks.—Munsey's Weekly.

HEDGED IN BY RULES.

Some of the Tribulations of Sleeping-Car Porters.

Queer Mandates and Regulations Issued by the Pullman and Wagner Companies—Questions Asked of Men Seeking Employment.

The life of a porter on a sleeping-car is usually pictured as one full of trials and tribulations, and his work as lacking sufficient remuneration. All this is in a great measure true.

"Most men who enter into the duties of a 'car-service man,' as the porters are called, recognize that they are working for a vast corporation, and there must exist a strict system of discipline. It has been said that among the orders issued to the porters are those to wear clean, white linen, "stand-up" collars and bright and clean uniforms. They are furthermore forbidden to speak to the lady passengers, unless first spoken to In other words, as one of them put it: "We are expected to dress like dudes, but not to act like them."

A Chicago News reporter spent some time the other day talking to a few Pullman and Wagner porters. The men were not at all disposed to enumerate their little grievances. A railroad official remarked that it was because they did not have confidence in the interrogator's identity. "They may think you are a special agent," he said. "Yes, we find lots of things that we are ordered to do unnecessary and not very pleasant," said one porter on a vestibuled St. Paul train, "but it would not do for me to complain. The officials would find me out and tell me if I did not like the work to get out and make room for a willing man."

Superintendent Lincoln, of the operating department of the Wagner Sleeping-Car Company, was interviewed. He showed the reporter the printed instructions issued to porters and conductors. They are almost identical, section after section, with those of the Pullman company "A porter or conductor travels a rough road to secure his position," said Mr Lincoln. "The number and nature of the questions asked the applicant very often startle the man. He must be able to read and write, to state his antecedents, education, physical condition, names, addresses and businesses of each of his employers within five years at least, stating his position with each employer, and when and why he left the employ of each man. The applicant is also asked: 'Are you willing to go wherever sent?' 'Are you in debt?' 'Do you use intoxicating liquors?' 'Do you ever play games of chance for money or gamble in any way?' These are sample questions. A porter, when he is accepted, is told his duties and supplied with badges, buttons and white jackets. The uniforms, summer and winter weights, he must purchase. The porter is not asked to wear a white vest. That is a portion of the conductor's summer uniform. The vest in cold weather is covered up by the coat, which is buttoned clear to the top. A white standing-collar and flat scarf are demanded of the porters for the sake of having uniformity and preventing gaudy or 'sporty' neckwear. The shoes or boots must be kept polished, and our company prohibits the use of slippers at any time while on duty. The Pullman company allows its porters to wear slippers, after all passengers have retired, or when lying at a waiting point. The summer or light-weight uniforms are worn from June 1 until October 1. Porters are requested to remove their caps when making up or putting away berths or attending to other similar duties. They are provided with white duck jackets by the company to be worn over the uniform while doing this work only, and the porters must see that they secure enough to have a clean one for each night. At no time while on duty is a porter allowed to play cards or gamble. This seems like a startling array of rules, but if the men are willing to do the work they are employed to perform they can not consistently complain."

"Have you any system of rewarding old and efficient men?"

"Yes; they get the best 'runs,' like those to New York on the limited. We have porters who commenced working for us fifteen years ago. They like the work, and, as I said, they get the preference of the best runs. These porters earn much more than the conductors."

There is one thing which very often disgusts a Pullman porter. His berth is supposed to be that in the smoking-room, but should the smoking-room be "sold," he must take "upper 1." If that also is occupied, the porter must either remain awake or crawl up on the roof and sleep. Between the hours of ten p. m. and three a. m. the porter is monarch of the car. He can lie with one eye open and watch any number of passengers enter the car at a main station, but, though they call loudly for their berths, he never moves. It is his sleeping time, and the conductor must then make up berths.

Villages Built in Trees.

People who live in trees or employ them as places of refuge are apt to be particularly miserable specimens of the human family, for their choice of a home invariably implies that they are not strong enough to meet their enemies on the level. The tree village recently discovered by Sir William MacGregor in New Guinea is the most remarkable that has been reported in a long while. Some ways inland he found a wretched, half-starved remnant of the Veiburi tribe. In one of their settlements all the villagers live in a single enormous tree, on whose wide-spreading branches four houses, with two stories each, had been constructed. Wide platforms are built in front of the houses on which are piles of stones, kept to hurl at intrusive persons. This wretched people are in process of extermination by a powerful and warlike neighbor. The most numerous tree villages that have been found are along the Dua branch of the Mangala river, north of the Congo. The explorer who discovered them last year says the natives are the poorest and most wretched people he has seen in Africa.

FAIL FOR A MILLION

A Crash that Startled Wall Street.

SAWYER, WALLACE & CO. ASSIGN

An Agent's Unwise Ventures and Losses in Foreign Options the Cause.

Over $1,000,000 Lost in a Pork Deal—Trading for European Speculators Without a Margin—Agents of the Firm in Every Part of the World—Over Thirty Seven Years in Business.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Samuel A. Sawyer, David L. Wallace and Thomas Miller, constituting the firm of Sawyer, Wallace & Co., cotton, coffee and provision commission merchants, of No. 18 Broadway, have assigned for the benefit of creditors to Marshall Ayres, without preferences.

The assignment was a surprise on all the exchanges and on Wall street. The cause is the losses the firm have sustained in their foreign option business.

The failure will undoubtedly reach into the millions, though at present it is impossible to make any approximate. Houses on Wall street say the cause of the failure was the result of the efforts made by the firm to squelch competition in their commission business, by doing their commission business with European speculators without a margin, and at a small commission. In the pork deal last January the firm is said to have sustained losses of $1,000,000 on this account. The claims for these losses against European speculators are among the nominal assets. It is estimated that the sum total of nominal assets will reach $1,750,000, among which are included the $1,000,000 lost in the pork deal.

Besides the New York and London offices, the firm had a branch in Louisville, where their tobacco warehouse is the largest in the country.

In addition to branch offices, Sawyer, Wallace & Co. had no less than 180 agents in every part of the world.

In Berlin alone the firm had five agents. The firm in 1889 shipped three-quarters of the total amount of wheat sent from this country to Germany.

They were the largest shippers and handlers of tobacco in the world.

The first whispers that there was anything wrong in the firm's affairs was caused by the cable announcement that a Berlin agent of Sawyer, Wallace & Co. had committed suicide by shooting himself.

The agent was Theodore Itzig, who had represented the firm in Berlin for six years.

Itzig began a wild speculation in lard and it went against him. When his funds had been swallowed up in margins Itzig shot himself.

It is feared that the suspension may involve some of the smaller traders on the Produce Exchange, and developments will be watched with intense interest.

THE KENNEDY SPEECH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The success which has attended the debut of John L. Sullivan as an actor has incited a number of the lesser lights of the prize ring to discard the fistic arena and adopt the boards as a means of livelihood.

The Kilrain-Ashton combination will shortly blossom out with the assistance of several other pugilists and wrestlers, in a specially written comedy farce, entitled, "Jack's Little Game." It is confidently expected by members of the company, who haven't the slightest idea what the play will be like, that they will coin money next season.

Charles E. Davies, better known as the Parson, not to be outdone, has perfected arrangements with Jim Corbett and Peter Jackson, whereby they will be the stars in a piece now being written by an eminent playwright of Chicago, which will be called "The Bunch of Fives." ### GEN. NOYES DROPS DEAD.

Ohio's Ex-Governor Expires on the Sidewalk in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 5.—Judge Edward F. Noyes, of the Superior Court, dropped dead shortly after 11 o'clock on North Court street, near the large entrance to the jail yard.

He had just left the court house, having heard an injunction case. Coming down from the bench the judge entered into conversation with several friends, and just as he reached the gateway he staggered and fell, striking his head against the stonewall. A gentleman who was walking behind him at the time ran to his assistance, but after a few short gasps the General expired.

[Edward Follensbee Noyes was born in Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 3, 1832. He served five years in a printing office, graduated at Dartmouth in 1857, and at the Cincinnati Law School in 1858. In July, 1861, he was commissioned Major of the Thirty-ninth Ohio Volunteers. He was in many of the great battles of the war, lost a leg at Raff Mills, and was made Brigadier General in 1865. In that year he was elected City Solicitor of Cincinnati, and two years later Judge of the Probate Court. He was chosen Governor of Ohio in 1871, and in 1877 was appointed as United States Minister to France. He was a member of the celebrated Commission to determine the Hayes contest. March, 1880, he was elected Judge of the Superior Court, which office he held up to the time of his death.]

ENFORCING A NEW LAW.

The First Arrest Made for Answering a Green Goods Circular.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Postoffice Department has received information of the first arrest under the act of March 3, 1889, which makes it unlawful to answer a green goods circular.

J. S. Nicholson, wrote from Matthewson, Md., under date of October 25, to Adam Conkling, Hoboken, N. J., in answer to a typewritten circular. Conkling's mail was stopped and Nicholson's letter was found containing $10 for which he was to receive $300 worth of green goods.

The arrest was made day before yesterday at Lewiston, Md., and Nicholson was given a hearing to-day before Commissioner Rogers of Baltimore and held under $1,500 bonds to await the action of the grand jury, in default of which he went to jail.

Postoffice Inspectors Jacobs and Stoutenburg arrested Nicholson at Lewiston, Md., and he admitted mailing the letters which was written by his sister at his dictation.

Snyder had left his train and was going to his hotel. When he reached a dark place he was set upon by a number of men and beaten on the head with clubs. His skull is smashed in two places and he is otherwise badly bruised about the head and body. He lies in an unconscious condition at the City Hospital.

Mr. Bynum handled the barley question, in which Oswego is so deeply interested, with telling effect, Republicans joining with Democrats in the applause.

TRADE WITH CANADA

The Dominion's Attorney-General Visits Washington.

RECIPROCITY ALL THE TALK.

Leading Statesmen of Both Parties Said to Favor the Scheme.

An Exciting Debate in the Liverpool Congress—A Murderer Bites His Executioner—Thirty Persons Drowned at Prague—A Monument to Cardinal Newman—Another Exciting Ocean Race.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5.—Attorney General Longley, who has just returned to Canada from Washington, is delighted with the result of his mission. Regarding the question of unrestricted trade relations between the United States and Canada he says that while in Washington he spent some days in promoting a feeling of reciprocity between Canada and the United States, and that never before was the feeling in the United States, as manifested by the people's representatives at Washington, been so favorable to reciprocity with Canada as at present.

Mr. Blaine's recent letters and speeches in favor of reciprocity with the South American republics have set the people and their representatives thinking, and the conclusion reached is that if reciprocity between the United States and the countries south of it would be beneficial to both parties, reciprocity with Canada would be of still greater advantage both to Canada and the United States.

He says that while in Washington he met many of the leading men in both the political parties and almost without exception found them favorable to the scheme of reciprocity. He had a lengthy interview with Senator Sherman, who was so impressed with the result of the interview that he gave notice of an amendment to the McKinley Tariff bill, looking towards complete reciprocity between Canada and the United States. Mr. Longley is of the opinion that it will pass both houses.

THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

Stormy Debate in the Liverpool Trades Union Congress.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 5.—The Trades Unions Congress adopted by a vote of 21 to 178 a resolution that the eight-hour day should be made compulsory by Parliament, and rejected an amendment that the matter of shorter hours should be left to voluntary arrangements between such unions as desire the change and their employers. Numerous speeches were made during the debate. John Burns held that the eight-hour day could be obtained only through Parlimentary action. Where the concession had been gained by strades here and there the capitalists had eventually succeeded in driving the men back to 12 hours. The ground thus lost could be recovered only by a general strike, unless the desired legislation could be had.

A Monument to Cardinal Newman.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A movement has been started for the erection by national subscription of a monument to the late Cardinal Newman. The Duke of Norfolk is chairman of the committee in charge of the matter. Westminster Abbey is favored as the site of the memorial, but Birmingham and Dublin are also discussed in this connection, both of these places having been the scene of important events in Newman's life.

Another Exciting Ocean Race.

A Big Coke Strike Threatened.

There are no indications of a speedy settlement, and a convention of cokers and miners of the entire region has been called for next Tuesday. At this convention it is likely that a general strike will be declared until the difficulties of the Standard works are settled. The strike will affect 9 000 men.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

A Jealous Philadelphian Shoots His Wife and Then Himself.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5.—The Hotel Minnequa on Pacific avenue was the scene of a very sensational double shooting affair at 1:30 a. m., which rivals the Eva Hamilton tragedy in interest. Joseph F. Young, of No. 1826 North Twenty-sixth street, Philadelphia, who is employed by the Hale & Kilburn Manufacturing Co., in that city, shot and fatally wounded his wife and then put a bullet in his own head, but only slightly wounded himself.

He was arrested and brought to the police station by Chief Eldridge, who happened to be there at the time, and who knocked up his hand when he attempted to kill himself.

It is alleged that one W. Ogden, of Morton, Delaware Co., Pennsylvania, was a lover of the woman, and her husband hearing of it, came down here to investigate.

Young was interviewed as to the cause of the shooting. Rumors circulated in the neighborhood of his home as to the relations of his wife, who was here in Atlantic City, and William Ogden, "were sufficient," said he, "to start me to Atlantic City. I boarded a train and on my way down I made up my mind what to do."

Then came the tale of the visit to the Minnequa House in search of his wife.

"I went to the house and found both my wife and Ogden out. This looked to me very strange. Then I waited, and the return of the woman made me wilder than before and I used the revolver."

Mrs. Young is a pretty blonde, 23 years of age. She was modest in manner, and the guests at the hotel said she appeared to them the last person who would figure in such an affair. When she went out with young Ogden nothing was thought of it, as it was understood to be with her mother's knowledge, and it was generally supposed Ogden was an intimate friend of the family.

Ogden has kept shady to-day, but the point of seclusion was discovered; he declined to make any statement about the affair.

Mrs. Young's condition is still critical.

Mr. Hatton Out of Danger.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Hon. Frank Hatton, ex-Postmaster-General and editor of the Washington Post, who has been dangerously ill for some time, is improving radidly. His condition is much less serious than it was last week, and his physician believes that he is out of danger.

BY THE WAY.

—The Crescent Avenue church choir will meet for rehearsal again, to-morrow evening.

—George Huff of Dunellen, was unfortunate enough to lose a valuable horse, Saturday.

—In Monday's ball games, Billy Lee had 13 chances, accepted them all and never made an error.

—Thos. Mair, of Mountain avenue, North Plainfield, has been nominated by the Somerset County Prohibitionists for Assemblyman.

—A dog belonging to Elston Lowrie of Dunellen, bit Isaac Hillyer as he was walking by the house. Suit for damages is about being entered.

—A horse owned by John Morton ran away on Liberty street, yesterday, and threw his driver out of the wagon. No serious injury is reported.

—The new stage route between Plainfield, Dunellen and New Market is a great convenience to the residents. Mr. Swartz, the owner, is punctual as to time.

—Charles H. Hand and wife have transferred to William C. Smith, of North Plainfield, lot on Southwest side of Mc Dowell street, 150x8 feet, for a consideration of $80.

—Crescent-Westfield base ball game at Westfield, next Wednesday, September 10. Grand stand reserved seats, 50 cts., can be had by mail of Frank T. Lent, Westfield.

—To-morrow's game of the Crescents against the Trentons will probably be a close one. The Trentons defeated the Crescents on June 28, by a score of 7 to 6 in ten innings.

—At the store of Joseph M. Harper, No. 75 Park avenue, near Fourth street, can be found a full assortment of school supplies and school books, of the best qualities and at lowest prices.

—THE PRESS has spoken before of caterer Stephenson of North avenue. He has the taste and facilities to serve anything in the way of a wedding breakfast, reception dinner, or high tea.

—Marsh & Ayers have purchased of Peter V. Weaver, his entire stock, business and good will, and will be glad to receive orders from any of his old customers for anything in the way of house painting or decorating.

—The Reform Club at its regular meeting last evening received and accepted an invitation from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to attend their anniversary exercises in the Congregational church, Monday evening, Sept. 8.

—They can raise peanuts, at least, in the Plainfield bureau of religious statistics of the U. S. census, opposite the station. Vines that grew from some peanuts casually planted in a box of earth in the office, were pulled up yesterday and young peanuts found clinging to the roots.

—A horse owned by Finton Hibbitts ran away on West Second street last evening, covering the ground from Elmwood place to Plainfield avenue in race-track time. It was stopped by colliding with one of the delivery wagons of the United Tea and Coffee Growers Association. A pair of splintered shafts and a lump on the head of a boy who was thrown out of one of the wagons, constituted the damage.

—It was an off-day for the Crescents when the Trentons beat them before by one run in ten innings. The home team made seven errors, but they won't do it again. At the end of the ninth inning the score was 4 to 4. The Trentons went to the bat in the tenth and made three runs on two single base hits, a double and a triple. The Crescents made only two runs in their last inning. To-morrow they don't expect they will have to play out their last inning.

—Plainfielders on a North River ferry-boat, a few days ago, witnessed an interesting phenomenon in a fall of rain. In Jersey City the rain had fallen in torrents for an hour, yet over New York the sky was cloudless. As the ferry boat lay at her pier the pouring rain thundered on the upper deck. A couple of hundred feet from shore the river was calm, and no drop broke the stillness of the water. The boat started, and as it gained headway and shot forward, the noise overhead suddenly ceased. The sun was streaming radiantly down, while just over the stern of the boat the air was thick and the heavens sent down their floods. In New York the streets were dry and dusty.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mayor Male arrived home this morning.

Miss Harriett T. Putnam, of Peace street, is visiting in Philadelphia.

Miss Etta Krymer, of East Fifth street, is visiting friends in Hunterdon county.

Charles Apgar's new home in Dunellen is nearly completed and ready for occupancy.

W. L. Gavett has just purchased a handsome, new home on Sandford avenue, for $5,500.

Master Rob Carpenter has returned from a weeks visit to Ocean Grove, to his home in Dunellen.

F. E. Knight, of Boston, has leased George Thatcher's house for two years, and will take possession in a few days.

Mrs. Coombs, and daughter, of Brooklyn, have rented a home on Bay street, through Mulford's real estate agency.

E. C. Mulford of North avenue, has rented Mrs. Crane's house on East Fifth street, to Mr. Wilder, of the New York law firm of Wilder & Lynch.

The Rev. Mr. Stinson of Dunellen, has returned from his vacation, and will soon move into the new parsonage, which is one of the handsomest houses in the town.

On the first page of this issue is told the story of a million-dollar failure. The firm is one which Robert S. Miller of this city has been connected with for a great many years.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis of the Seventh Day Baptist church, being still in the West, his pulpit will be occupied to-morrow morning by the Rev. Dr. Ketcham, of the First Presbyterian church.

A party of young ladies from Plainfield visited New Brunswick on their bicycles yesterday afternoon, and were entertained at the home of the Misses Cheeseman, Bayard street.

Ernest Lambert of the New York Tribune staff, has come to Plainfield to live and taken up his residence on Bay street where E. C. Mulford has leased him one of the pretty new houses just completed.

During the stay at the Marion House, Lake George, of the families of J. W. Murray, E. N. Erickson, O. T. Waring, and others, the little chapel near by, one Sunday morning, looked inside like a Plainfield church interior.

Wm. J. Debele, of the Borough, and one of the faithful employes at the Reynolds pharmacy, with Mrs. Debele, left town Wednesday for a week's visit with Mr. Debele's sister, Mrs. Swope, 919 North Third street, Philadelphia.

Leo Daft paid a flying visit to Plainfield today. He left his family all well at his Summer cottage on Lake George, and came to New York for the purpose of laying in a new stock of various kinds of ammunition before going further up into the wilderness after deer.

The recovery of Miss Lilly M. Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Taylor of Somerset street, from a persistent siege of illness, is considered almost miraculous. Twice she was given up by her family to die, but her physician, Dr. Berg, has been so untiring in his exertions to save her life that now she is rapidly convalescing.

The speaker in Reform Hall next Sunday evening will be Samuel A. Haines of Netherwood, a platform orator of established repute. Mr. Haines has just returned from a business trip to England and Europe. While in London, on his way homeward, he addressed by invitation, a large assemblage within Metropolitan Hall on the question of temperance. His return to Plainfield deserves to be greeted by a throng of hearers.

The Best Service in the Country, It Will Be.

Close upon the heels of THE PRESS' expression of the community's desire for an electric fire alarm service, the Council have made a contract for one. The people are thus much to be congratulated, not only upon securing the convenience and protection of such service, but because the service contracted for will equal any in the United States. The Council are satisfied of such fact for they have awarded the contract to the company represented by Charles Wann; and to that gentleman's standing in this city as an upright, conscientious man, was due as much as anything else the awarding of the contract.

The committee in asking for a bid from the Gamewell company, said they wanted only the very best apparatus they made. Consequently, not a city or town in the country has a fire alarm telegraph system that will not be equalled by Plainfield's. That is all very creditable to the committee, but besides that, after securing the very bottom price, they induced the company to add two more tappers and another signal box.

They Seldom Need to Play the Ninth.

Of the 25 games the Crescents have played this season, 21 have been won by them without finishing their ninth inning. Of the other 4, one was lost by one run in ten innings, and one was lost by one run in twelve innings.

Hoopskirts Again

May come into style, but it is hoped not. The transformation which will bring back that style of crinolines ought to be indefinitely postponed. Transformations in the health of thousands of women throughout the country have taken place during the past few years. Pale, haggard and dispirited, they have become bright-eyed and healthy. The secret? Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which cures all those ailments peculiar to women.

Still Lying About Plainfield.

Within ten days no less than six barns in Plainfield have been set on fire by incendiaries and burned, the aggregate loss being several thousand dollars. Soon after midnight yesterday morning some unknown person set fire to the barn of H. Hoffman on West Front street, and in half an hour the building was in ashes. The flames communicated with the paint works of Ferdinand O. Smith, and they were also burned. Hoffman's loss is $2,500; no insurance. Smith's loss is $3,000; insured for one-half of that amount.—N. Y. World.

Of all the lies the World has published concerning Plainfield in a year past those contained in the above are the biggest, boldest and most damaging. There has not been even one barn set on fire in this city in ten months, let alone ten days. Hoffman's barn caught fire from Smith's paint shop adjoining, and Hoffman himself only claims a loss of $250.

The fire was not of incendiary origin, either; and the only other barn burned in Plainfield in months, was one that accidentally caught fire from the lighting of some matches by boys near a gasolene barrel. There should be some way found to put a stop to the World's misrepresentations which are so continued and vicious as to appear intentional.

The Champions of Connecticut to Meet the Champions of New Jersey.

The Norwich ball team that defeated the Crescents two weeks ago by a score of 7 to 0, have agreed to play a return game in this city on Thursday the 18th inst. On Monday the Norwichs by beating both the Mystics and the Hartfords, won the State championship of Connecticut.

The coming game therefore, will be to decide the Inter-State Championship of New Jersey and Connecticut. It was only after much solicitation and at much expense, that the Crescent team's managers could induce the Norwichs to come to Plainfield. The Norwichs are now in receipt of invitations from all over the country, offering big money to get a game with them. As they defeated the Crescents once, they think they can do so again.

The match will undoubtedly attract a large attendance from all over the State. In spite of the expense of getting the team here, there will probably be no increase in the price of admission.

Doctors to Have a Bath and Banquet.

The semi-annual meeting of the New Jersey State Homœpathic Medical Society will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, September 9 and 10, in the parlors of the Hotel Windsor, Ocean end of Illinois avenue, Atlantic City, N. J. The programme which has been prepared promises a grand time. The meeting will be called to order on Tuesday morning, at 11:30 by President Long, and while a great portion of the time will be devoted to scientific work, the social features will not be neglected, a number of physicians having accepted the invitation extended to their wives in a former notice of the meeting to be present.

The programme includes a bath in the ocean Wednesday morning, for which the Secretary will be pleased to furnish tickets with his compliments. A feature of the meeting will be a banquet, which will be tendered the Society and visiting friends on Tuesday evening, by Doctors Youngman, Crosby, Fleming and Baily of Atlantic City. Train will leave Elizabeth at 6:57 A. M.

A Superstitious Servant Sees Things.

An airily-clad woman went dashing down the stairs, through the front doorway, and out into the street, at the home of a well-known citizen last evening, screaming and shrieking in genuine feminine style, and passers-by scented a sensation. The woman had just been secured, as a servant, from an "intelligence" office in the metropolis, and after displaying a great deal of ignorance of household ways during the day, had gone to her room to sleep. When partially disrobed she imagined that the apartment was filled with ghosts, bogies and goblins, and sought out of doors relief from their presence. The head of the family relaxed from his customary dignity and carried the struggling form back into the house, where he informed her that he could not retain in his employ servants that scandalized the neighborhood. She returned to New York today.

Tribulations of a Merry-Go-Round.

The proprietors of an itinerant merry-go-round pitched their tents on a vacant lot near one of the public schools yesterday morning, but were speedily routed by a citizen who said that his daughter was ill and must not be disturbed by unnecessary and noisy amusement-mechanisms. Seeking to establish themselves in other places they were continually moved on, and finally the disheartened "showmen" appealed to the authorities, and were given permission to encroach on the landscape beauties of the City Park.

No sooner had they taken possession of the place, however, than other irate citizens appeared and drove them away. Yesterday afternoon they were still wandering about, seeking a resting place.

All the Schools Honored Now.

The Carpenters and Joiners Union of this city have purchased a handsome flag which they propose to present to the Bryant school as soon as the Board of Education shall meet and accept it.

Awful.

On Thursday Friday and Saturday we will put on sale ten cases of ladies' and misses oxford ties at 50 cents that have sold for $1.00 and $1.50 all Summer. Also a broken lot of ladies' and gentlemen's shoes some as low as 75 cents a pair. Come early and get your pick for they are all to be closed out in three days. Rogers Bros., 12 West Front street.

Then We'd be Satisfied.

Supt. Wm. Peddle came to Plainfield on the "Star," yesterday afternoon, and inspected the painting of the park railings and the station exterior. He seemed entirely satisfied with the appearance of the handsomest station on the road.

Now if he will only order the interior of the station painted, and move the freight house, the Plainfield people will be perfectly satisfied.

NOTES ON THE NOBILITY.

EX-QUEEN ISABELLA of Spain has gone to Schlangenbad to take the waters which many women think preserves youth and beauty.

ON the occasion of her marriage with the son of King John of Abyssinia, the daughter of the King of Shoa wore the historical crown of the Queen of Sheba, which has been treasured by the Ethiopian Kings for twenty-five centuries.

THE Duchess de la Rochefoucauld-Bisaccia, who is described as one of the last of the grandes dames of France, is a woman of forty-six years, who has fine auburn hair, clear cut features, and a fund of animal spirits. She has five children.

EX-QUEEN NATALIE seems likely to disappear from public mention. She is said to have lost her ambition, her beauty and her high spirit, and is credited with an intention to devote her fortune to the establishment of a nunnery in Russia, of which she will be abbess.

THE Duchess of Connaught pleased the ladies of Japan by the admiration which she expressed of their dress, and she went so far as to purchase a "kimono," an "obi tabi," and all the other items of a Japanese lady's attire in Kioto. The Emperor of Japan conferred on the Duke the Grand Star of the Chrysanthemum and on the Duchess the Grand Star of the Crown.

THE Nizem of Hyderabad recently bought in Madras a magnificent diamond for 165,000 rupees, which is known as the Gordon Orr diamond. The stone weighed before cutting 67¼ carats and after cutting 24¾ carats. It is described as being the best, purest and most brilliant stone known to connoisseurs, and will be worn by his Highness in his puggaree or crown.

THE Czar of Russia is especially fond of his Finnish possessions, because only in Finland does he feel himself safe from assassination. At present, accompanied by the Czarina and their children, he is making his annual picnic cruise among the Finnish Islands. Sometimes the royal party lands for five o'clock tea, when the Emperor gathers sticks for the fire and the Empress boils the kettle. They travel and live like any plain bourgeois couple, the Czar in tweeds, in which he looks enormous, and the handsome Czarina in the simplest of yachting costumes.

THE Princess of Wales is responsible for the right and left positions in the saddle now obligatory to every equestrienne. Owing to a chronic lameness in her right limb she is forced to use a left-side saddle. To make the fact less conspicuous the Princesses have been trained to ride in both right and left saddle seats. A few horsewomen in New York while abroad caught the idea last summer and have since introduced the fashion of two saddles. There is in consequence great rejoicing among the saddlers and riding teachers.

Maine's Anvil Wizard.

At Norristown, Me., W. B. Logan, a horse-shoer, made nine miniature horse-shoes from a silver ten-cent piece. Each shoe has the number of holes usually drilled in horse-shoes of the ordinary size, but strange to say, the smallest needle is too large to be used as nails for these little wonders. Logan has made affiadvit that each and every one of the miniature shoes were made with the same hammer and punch used in making the largest sized real horse-shoes.—St. Louis Republic.

A Bad Quotation.

"I do love you, Mabel! You know it is in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.'"

"So I thought. No, sir; no lightly spring turns for me! I want the honest affection that shows itself in the autumn when the theaters and balls commence. Good-bye, Mr. Brown."—Harper's Bazar.

"It goes right to the spot," said an old gentleman, who found great benefit in Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He was right. Derangements of the stomach, liver, and kidneys are more speedily remedied by this medicine than by any other. It reaches the trouble directly.

Sick Headache

IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

Strong Evidence Against Sawtelle.

DOVER, N. H., Sept. 4.—The new evidence before the grand jury in the Sawtelle murder hearing is said to have made a stronger case than it was at first supposed would be the result. It is understood that two indictments have been found—one for willful, premeditated murder and another as accessory before the act. The grand jury will report this afternoon. A special jury of sixty will be empanelled by the sheriff.

Knights Templar Visit the Catskills.

RONDOUT, N. Y., Sept. 5.—About 250 Knights Templar of Boston accompanied by ladies arrived here en route to the Hotel Kaaterskill, in Catskill, where the party will spend four days. They style themselves California Pilgrims, and this is their seventh annual reunion. The party includes a number of leading citizens of Boston.

A Day Set for McGonigal's Trial.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The trial of Dr. McGonigal, charged with causing the death of Annie Goodwin, has been set down peremptorily for trial on September 18 by Judge Fitzgerald in General Sessions. It was decided to try Gus Harrison, the girl's lover, separately.

Vacation Spray.

The following by Thos. A. Gere, an old Scotch Plains resident and good friend of a host of Plainfielders, we clip from the Tribune:

I gave a mariner reinas four,
Three times he tapped my flask,
And then I thought the time is ripe
When questions I may ask.
Said I: "Old salt, old sea-dog friend,
When thou didst roam the main,
Some thrilling times thou must have seen
Which if recalled again
Would make an interesting tale"—
I here got out my pad—
"Spin the a yarn of some—or one.
To print it I'll be glad;
Tell me," said I, to draw him out:
"Amidst old ocean's strife,
Wast ever placed in such a way
Thou hadst to swim for life?"
He took another thirsty pull,
That made my flask look weak;
He lighted up a fresh cigar,
And then began to speak;
"Aye, aye, my lad; indeed I was;
I cannot call to mind
The scores of times I've undergone
Some danger of that kind."
Now, rose up scenes of battered boats
Shattered by writhing whales;
Of decks washed bare at dead of night
In far off Indian gales.
Of foot-rope missed from lofty yard,
The sudden jibing boom;
A hopeless slip from ice-clad shroud,
So oft the sailor's doom!
I bent to catch his slightest word—
Here's all he thickly said:
"I allers had to swim fur life
If the water was over my head."

A Warning to Look Out For Mr. McClure.

MEGANTIC CLUB,
SPIDER LAKE,
PROVINCE OF QUEBEC.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I thought it best to send you a warning against one W. K. McClure, a resident of Plainfield, and member of the Megantic Club. He has been here and caught the largest black bass ever taken by a member since the club has been organized. The bass was of the small mouth variety; no other in this lake. It weighed six pound full; twenty-two inches long; girth measurement, 15 inches. On the same day he caught two weighing 4½ pounds and one that weighed 3½—total weight, four fish, 18½ pounds.

I did not see Mr. McClure as he had left when I arrived at the club, but have the assurance of a number of members, also ladies visiting the club, that the above figures are correct. I am also informed by the same authority that in their opinion said McClure was much excited, with a tendency—as the doctors would say—of mild insanity. If you should discover anything strange in his behavior, you will know the cause. I send you this information that you may act and govern yourself according.

Fun and Pretty Women Coming.

The three Levey sisters, who have created such a furore in London and who only arrived in this country last week, will make their first appearance in America on Monday evening, with Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match" company.

Those enterprising gentlemen have added many new and good things to their amusing farce comedy. The whole company is in particularly good form. Mr. Hoey has added a topical song to his part of the doings of the clever party. He is a whole team with a brace of full-blooded dogs under the wagon. He is naturally funny, and every gesture and word is laughable. Mr. Evans is also in his best vein, and fully shares the honors with his partner. Miss Minnie French as the Innocent Kidd is very cute and attractive, and the large company show careful selection and great comedy ability. The ladies, seven in number, are all young and pretty, good singers and dancers. The costumes are changed often and are very pretty. In the last act they are rich and costly.

Questioning the Commissioners' Authority.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Commissioners of the Borough have given notice to the owners of property on the road leading to New Market, to set their fences back 2½ feet and to put down flagging, asphalt, or broken stone, to the depth of four inches. It is not claimed that the existing fences are upon the line of the roadway, and I beg THE PRESS to give information as to the source of authority assumed by the Commissioners in assuming to take private property for public purposes.

If any such authority exists, the law would provide a way to recompense the owner for his damage, and the Commissioners would or should be required to remove and re-set these fences at the expense of the Borough after a settlement had been made for the land that they now propose to appropriate without consent and to which they have no more right or title to than

AN ENQUIRER.

His Honest Comrades Condemn Him Too.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I have read what you published concerning the delay and subsequent granting of Jacob Seader's pension, and although a Republican I heartily agree with your condemnation of the G. A. R.; member who told him he could not get a pension unless he joined the G. A. R., and voted the Republican ticket.

But the G. A. R., as a whole shculd not be blamed for the action of one man alone, and he one who only served a few weeks at the front.

WHEN TO HUNT AND FISH.

A Game-Law Guide for Those Who Use the Rod and Gun.

The legal shooting season begins at about the time when the law says that game fish must not be angled for, and just now a few points on the game laws of New Jersey will be interesting, as a means of warning those who might wish to continue to fish, as well as instructing those who may desire to shoot.

The laws of New Jersey say that deer may be killed between the last day of October and December 1. Two years ago a law was passed prohibiting deer shooting for two years. The season will open again in October. Quail, ruffed grouse and rabbits may be shot between October 31 and December 16. Woodcock may be shot between September 30 and December 16, but not during August and September. Upland or grass plover may be shot between July 31 and Dec. 16. Wilson snipe, known as the English or gray snipe, can be shot during March and April and between September 30 and December 16. Reedbirds, railbirds and marsh hens can be shot between August 31 and December 16. It will be unlawful to shoot or capture European partridges, grouse or hen pheasants within three years from May 6, 1889. Gray squirrels must not be killed in Bergen, Essex, Hudson, Hunterdon, Middlesex, Morris, Passaic, Somerset, Sussex, Union and Warren counties, excepting between November 1 and December 15. In the other counties of the State the legal season for killing gray squirrels is between November 15 and December 25. Fox or black squirrels may be shot between September 1 and January 1. Wild ducks, brant or geese must not be killed in New Jersey with anything but the ordinary shotgun. Pinnated grouse may be shot between November 1 and January 1. Wild pigeons must not be disturbed when nesting, and the law says that a gun must not be discharged within a quarter of a mile of their nesting-ground. English hares must not be shot or hunted with dogs before March 23, 1891. Wood or Summer ducks may be killed between September 1 and January 1. Fines of from $5 to $50 are provided for violations of the law. Non-residents are not permitted to shoot or fish in New Jersey without complying with the by-laws of some one of the several game-protective societies of the State.

The brook-trout season in New Jersey closed July 15, and that for lake trout and bass ends on Sept. 30. Only a hook and line may be used in angling for striped bass or yellow perch in the Hackensack River and its tributaries.

Whispers from Washingtonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Upton and Miss Hattie Upton, of Brooklyn, are visiting the Winans.

George Longstreet, of Brooklyn, is visiting his brother-in-law, E. W. Milligan, at Maplewood cottage.

That gifted young minister, Milton Craft, is expected to address the meeting in Memorial Chapel, Sunday evening.

A. C. LaBoyteaux, of North Plainfield, addressed the school last Sunday, and was complimented for his clear exposition of the principles of the lesson of the day.

Erastus Allen of Newark, brother of Gideon Allen of North Plainfield, has been visiting the home of his boyhood, as the guest of his nephew, Philip Acker.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Nolan and family, now of Yonkers, but formerly of Washingtonville, have been visiting their friends in this vicinity, and his parents in North Plainfield.

E. W. Milligan and Peter Usterman spent Saturday fishing in the waters near Communipaw. By fishing all day and getting the skin burned off the back of their necks, they were rewarded with a string of genuine beauties, but some epicure stole them out of the basket before the fishermen arrived home.

Cards are out for the approaching nuptials of Miss Fannie Breakey and George W. Winans. The wedding will take place Tuesday evening, September 9, at the home of the bride's parents, 1544 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn. The happy couple will occupy the new home which the groom has just completed on Somerset street, in the Borough.

George Mobus has been having an unpleasant experience with his mustang. He was driving it to a sulky when it became frightened and began backing, plunging sulky and rider into the millrace. Mobus came forth spluttering, but after hanging over the clothesline half a day to dry he found himself none the worse for the sudden bath.

Augustus Brandis, of Newark, is visiting the Spencers.

Sheriff Glasby's Last Jury.

Sheriff Glasby, of Union county, will draw his last jury next Tuesday. A special session of the Union county Court of Common Pleas will be held to select the panel for the October term. Sheriff Glasby is a Republican. His successor will probaly be a Democrat. Sheriff Glasby's term expires on election day. The Fall term of the Union county Court of Special Sessions begins on next Wednesday.

The gormandizer likes it because it is fine. The workman likes it because it quenches his thirst, enriches his blood, and strengthens his muscle. It is cheap. The mother likes it. ## UNINVITED VISITORS.

It Is to Be Hoped That All of Them Will Read This Article.

It seems as if measures ought to be taken to put an end to promiscuous visiting; in regard to which there is evidently no difference of opinion, writes a correspondent of the Country Gentleman. In these days of incompetent servants and anxious housekeepers, even the dearest friends can not feel quite sure of a cordial welcome. But when a horde of uninvited guests precipitate themselves with colossal effrontery upon a quiet, and perhaps frugal family, it becomes a most exasperating and intolerable nuisance. It is worse, if possible, than taking boarders, because visitors expect to be entertained—and liberally entertained—in many cases.

One of the most hospitable of hospitable Westerners said that he gave up his home and endured a boarding-house, because he was "tired of keeping a hotel." Another gentleman declared that he would put a small-pox notice on his house if it would keep away undesired visitors. And one lady wrote to some friends urging them pathetically to visit her, because now she would like to have some one in her house "whose society she could enjoy." A Western man, traveling with his wife and niece, thought it would be very fine to visit the Governor of a certain Eastern State. He never had seen any member of the family, but a niece of his had married one of his sons. He drove up to the house, and had his trunks deposited before the door. The Governor's wife, however, was a woman of dignity and determination, and the Western travelers did not see the inside of that stately mansion. They departed with trunks unpacked, and also with a good deal of wondering astonishment.

Of course, this cruelly destroys the beautiful halo surrounding the hospitable home with open doors ever ready for the entrance of "angels unawares." But when good Robert Collyer naively declares that he does not wish to "monopolize those angels," sinners surely may be pardoned if they, too, rebel.

Supposing each person should put this notice on his house—"No uninvited visitors received"—would even that be effectual?

THE TWO YOUNGSTERS.

A Tale Illustrating the Value of Truthfulness in the Long Run.

James and John were playmates and each twelve years old, says the Detroit Free Press. Their parents dwelt side by side, and so the two boys were much together. They "played horse" with the same hoe-handle, liked the same brand of pumpkin pie, and were pretty nearly one in all things. The one great exception was the fact that James would lie like a candidate for alderman, while John would tell the truth if it barked his shins. James often guyed him for this foolishness, but to no effect. He kept right on telling the truth and getting three lickings to any other boy's one.

One day when these two boys were going over to Mrs. Scott's to borrow her quilting frames and a drawing of tea they met a stranger, who looked at them intently, and finally asked:

"Boys, did you find a purse of gold on the road?"

"No, thir," promptly replied James the liar.

"Yith, thir," as promptly replied John the truthful, at the same time handing it out.

They had found such a purse, but, being a little absent-minded, I had forgotten to mention the fact.

"Ah, ha!" cried the stranger, "but I dropped it to test you! The proof is clear! Presto!—fizzledum!—change!"

And a great black cat leaped out of a thicket and bore the liar away for cat meat, while the stranger took from his pocket a golden rule and handed it to John with the remark:

"Now run along, sonny, and every thing you touch shall turn to gold. Remember that, while the liar may prosper and grow fat for a time, the truthful hyena will come out on top in the long run."

While this is also a true story, I have concealed the true names of the principal characters in it, but they can be had by sending your address with a stamp to pay return postage.

The Lobster's Queer Coat.

The shell of the crab and lobster owes its bluish-gray color to the superposition of two pigments or coloring matters, which have been isolated—a red pigment and a blue one. As long as these two pigments exist simultaneously the crustaceans remain gray. But the blue pigment is fugitive, and sometimes, under the influences of a disease, it is destroyed, and crabs are found with portions of their shell more or less reddish. When the crustaceans are immersed in boiling water the blue pigment is entirely destroyed, and the red pigment, which is very stable, appears alone in all its brilliancy.

A Monster Rose Bush.

The trunk of a rose bush which is now in full bloom in Ventura, Cal., is 3 feet in circumference at the ground; the first branch, which is thrown out at a height of about four feet from the ground, is 21 inches in circumference. Wagon-loads of vines (it is of the climbing variety) are clipped from it annually, yet it covers an area of 1,200 square feet. It was planted in 1876. Within another fourteen years, if nothing happens to it, it will have outstripped the gigantic rose tree at Cologne, which has had over three hundred years to grow in.

He Got Things Mixed Up.

A theological student, who was accompanied by his professor to a country-place where the former was to preach, prevailed upon the professor to make the opening prayer. Arising to make the announcement, he amazed the congregation by saying: "Professor Smith will now lead us in a petition of the faculty of the H—— Seminary to the throne of grace of which I have the honor to be a student. After accompanying him, your humble servant will attempt to preach the Word whose shoes he is not worthy to unloose."

A PUEBLO CHURCH.

The Acomas and How They Worship the God of the Christians.

Like the people of all the other New Mexican Pueblo tribes, the Acomas have their annual festivals, the origin of which is lost in the mystery of the prehistoric ages. The Catholic priests, writes Clarence Pullen in Harper's Weekly, put all the Christian veneering possible over the essential heathenism of the ceremonials, and under their influence these celebrations occur usually on or near some saint's day. Conspicuous among these jubilations is the harvest festival, when, with games and dances, the people rejoice over the ripening of the fruits of the earth. After the performance of secret rites within the estufas, to which ceremonies no one not a member of the tribe is admitted, the maskers, musicians and others, all decorated in paint, ribbons and brass ornaments, stream forth into the open space before the village, where, with the peculiar stamping step attending all Indian performances of the kind, are continued the processions and dances, to the music of rude fifes, drums and gong-beating. In some of their dances the performers are attired in complete suits of buckskin, adorned with fringes, buttons, beads, feathers and ribbons, completely covering the face and head, surmounted with horns, and having only small slits for sight and breathing.

The Pueblos, a provident folk who believe in intrenching themselves with all the supernatural powers, do not neglect on these occasions to visit the church to pay due obeisance to the Christian God and lesser divinities. The church, a fine old structure of adobe, was rebuilt in 1702, after it had been dismantled in the Indian revolt of 1680. It is a massive edifice one hundred and fifty feet long, forty feet wide and forty feet high, with walls seven feet thick, standing, fronted by an extensive and ancient burial ground, on the southern brink of the mesa. The sand for this cemetery was brought up from the foot of the bluff and placed in a depression at this point—an operation which, according to priestly tradition, occupied forty years. The huge buttresses, one at each front corner of the church, are capped above the roof by rude belfries in which swing two bells, which Indian tradition asserts to be the gift of the Queen of Spain at some period in the eighteenth century. One of these bells bears the inscription: "San Pedro, A. D. 1710." It is a wonder how these heavy bells and the great pine beams, forty feet long and of proportionate thickness, that cross the body of the church, were ever brought to the top of the mesa.

Adjoining the church are the ruins of the old Franciscan mission of San Estevan de Acoma, established, says the eminent archæologist and historian Prof. Ad. H. Baudelier, by Fray Juan Ramirez not long after the year 1628, he naming the place after St. Sebastian on account of its rocky sides and the large number of pebbles accumulated on and about it. Fray Ramirez returned to Mexico, and died there in 1664. His successor was Fray Lucas Maldonado, from Tribujona, Mexico, also a Franciscan. In fact, up to the uprising of the Indians of New Mexico under Pope and Catite in 1680, the Franciscan order controlled all the missions among the Pueblos. On August 10, 1680, twenty-one Franciscan friars were murdered in various parts of New Mexico, and among them Fray Maldonado, of Acoma. After the reconquest of the province, twelve years later, by the Spaniards under Diego de Vargas, there were for several years occasional disturbances and bloodshed. But by the beginning of the eighteenth century the province had become tranquillized, and the Pueblo Indians and the Spaniards had adjusted their requirements so as to get along together without a great amount of friction.

It is a strange and picturesque sight when within the thick walls of the old church, dimly lighted by deep windows like port-holes, in which sheets of mica, or yeso (transparent gypsum) serve for glass, the Indians, in the same fashion of dress which their ancestors wore when they built fires to the sun in ancient days—some wrapped in Navajo blankets, with broad black and white stripes, and red diamond figures in the center—pass to and from the altar, with its bright but impressive decorations. The church interior is decorated with two valuable pictures, the "Virgin and Child," and the "St. Joseph," which were brought from Spain more than two hundred years ago. The ceiling is rudely frescoed in representation of the sun, moon and stars, the work, in the beginning of the present century, of an artist priest, whose name is somewhere inscribed beneath the dust that for generations has been settling upon this labor of love and devotion.

Origin of Bird Song.

The origin of bird song is described by an English writer as follows: "Bird song originated in a cry produced by bodily contortion. This cry was developed by use in times of danger. It then became a warning-note that was elaborated into a call-note. This note was repeated by males in varied tone and pitch, and several influences tended to make it a reproduction of surrounding persistent sounds. The call-notes were repeated by the males to the females, and in this manner arbitrary phrases were constructed. Further efforts on the part of the males induced greater variety, which took the form of imitation of other sounds."

An Obliging People.

The Heligolanders accommodate themselves to circumstances with wonderful ease. All told they number two thousand, which would give about five hundred grown-up males. During the Franco-German war they issued a manifesto declaring that they were Germans and that they wished to throw in their lot with their German fellow-countrymen. At present they tell Englishmen who visit them that their affection for England is phenomenal, and when Germans visit them they make the same declaration in regard to the fatherland. Probably they are fond of their island and all other patriotism is a question of bread and cheese.

THE UNCANOONUC MOUNTAINS.

They stood there in the distance, mysterious and lone,
Each with a hazy vapor above its towering dome;
They stood like barriers between the unknown and the known,
The Uncanoonuc mountains which I used to see from home.

And far beyond the mountains I was told the world was wide,
And in fancy on the thither side it was my wont to roam;
I saw the glories of the world upon the other side
Of the Uncanoonuc mountains which I used to see from home.

On this side the Uncanoonucs was an old familiar scene;
But they were burnished pillars on which rainbows used to rest;
On this side the Uncanoonucs all was commonplace and mean;
They were red with sunset splendor at the threshold of the West.

They were Mountains of Enchantment that stood guard at the frontier
Of the Borderland of Mystery, where the twilight shadows gloam,
And I longed to reach their summits, and pass on without a fear,
Through the Uncanoonuc mountains which I used to see from home.

I have passed the Uncanoonucs, and have traveled far away,
Through the Borderland of Mystery upon an endless quest;
But other Uncanoonucs, gleaming in the twilight gray,
Still lift their hazy summits at the threshold of the West.

One misty mountain overpassed upon the march of time,
Another summit breaks in view and onward still I roam—
Another mountain in the mist which beckons me to climb,
Like the Uncanoonuc mountains which I used to see from home.

Though beyond the Uncanoonucs all the glories that I seek Fail to fashion to realities before my wistful eyes,
I still will chase the Vision—see her standing on the peak
Of that other Uncanoonuc towering in the western skies.

I grasp my mountain-climbing staff—there yet is ample time—
Then, if other Uncanoonucs in the shimmering distance gloam,
With my boyhood faith I'll climb them, as I used to long to climb
The Uncanoonuc mountains which I used to see from home.

CHINESE CUSTOMS.

Queer Beliefs Among the People of the Celestial Empire.

There is no more interesting country in the world than China with its 400,000,000 people and its 300,000 square miles—larger than the United States, including Alaska. The Chinese call their land the Celestial Empire, believing it to be the center of the world and the especial favorite of Heaven. The earth is represented as resting on a buffalo, and earthquakes are said to be caused by his motions when he shifts his burden.

The curious customs of the Chinese begin at the beginning of life. The first ceremony is to keep the baby from being frightened by any thing. A few words are written on a piece of paper containing "two of the fruits used for soap, to ensure that baby shall be a neat and tidy person; some pith of a rush used in writing, to make him fortunate in life; one or two onions to make him intelligent; two pieces of charcoal that he may be strong; a lock of hair from a cat and another from a dog, to prevent him from being frightened by the noises of these animals." These are all wrapped in a red paper, tied with a red string and hung outside the nursery door as a charm. Upon a pair of his father's trousers hung upside down over his sleeping-place, a paper is put, on which is written a request that all evil spirits will go into the garment instead of bothering the baby.

A greater evil that threatens him is the danger of his being a thief, a meddler, or disobedient, which is worst of all. A bit of red cord with perhaps a few cash (round copper coins with a square hole) strung on it, is tied around his wrists, either separately, or connecting the two. After he is one or two weeks old these guards are taken away.

When the baby is a month old, the barber begins to shave his head. He does the same with a girl baby, though she dispenses with such service before long. On the great occasion of the first shave friends are invited, a feast is given, and the boy's first name, owned till he goes to school, is given. This is a fanciful name,—Patience, Number One, Number Two, etc. "Uncle Fish" was the childish name of one of the great men of China. After this, to begin a cue, a little fringe is allowed to form, which, as soon as possible, is gummed up, and tied into a pigtail an inch long, which sticks out most drolly.

When the baby is four months old comes the feast accompanying the ceremony of his being taught to sit in a chair. His grandmother must get the chair, a curious-looking one, painted red. Sometimes the chair is gilded, and playthings are hung up for his amusement; and he is now expected to content himself with sitting in the chair.

When he is one year old comes the next great day for him and a feast for the friends on the occasion of his unconscious decision of his occupation for his whole life. On a table is placed a large bamboo sieve, in which he is seated in perfectly new garments, his clothes always being patterned after his father's. Around him are many curious objects—"A set of money-scales, a pair of shears, a foot-measure, a brass mirror, a pencil, ink, paper, a book or two, the abacus (or counting machine, consisting of balls strung on wires in a frame), some silver or gold ornaments, fruits and other things." Whatever object he now takes up decides his fate, since it is supposed to show his natural tastes. Touching a book or a pen proves that he will be a scholar, and he is educated for that; either money-scales, silver or gold show that he is to make money; he will be greedy if he takes the fruit, vain, if the mirror.

A Chinese has a new name on every important occasion; and if he gets a public office, he takes an official name. We should say that he wrote his name backwards—Smith John. When a Chinese girl marries, she drops her own name, but keeps her family one.

All through life evil spirits are ever warded off. Fire-crackers are an especial charm, and are used to frighten off evil on every occasion. The Chinese classics are a charm when placed under the pillow, or in it; for it is a block of wood curved to fit the neck, and sometimes has a drawer. A mirror hung on the house reflects back the evil. Coins are placed under the door-sill; a porcelain cat sits on the roof; out of the window a basket is hung to catch the evil influence. Everywhere printed prayers are pasted—in the house, on farming tools, all over the boat-houses; and the people can easily buy these prayers from the priests kept busy making them. On the junks great eyes are painted to scare the ocean monsters. One house must never be set square with another, and a post must be placed opposite an alley in order to break the force of evil. It is very unlucky for a house to be surrounded by higher buildings.

While a new house is building, lanterns are hung on the frame, night after night, while gongs are beaten to attract the luck. This injures the neighbors, so they feel obliged to try and keep their luck by lifting their lanterns higher and beating louder on their gongs. One of the complaints against the English missionaries at Foochow some years ago was that they destroyed the luck of the city by building their houses with high-pitched roofs. This was said to cause the floods that had come upon the city. As fung-swei, the pervading breath of nature, as they call it, is affected by every thing, if a place has good luck, they fear to alter the buildings. Their many canals are crossed by many bridges, all built alike, except in size and height; for those who live near them sometimes demand that these bridges be built very low, lest luck should change because of a marked change in the country.

There are professors of fung-swei who are supposed to know all about this breath, and who are consulted all through life, and most especially at death. When a man is supposed to be dying he is taken into the hall of his house, washed and dressed in his best clothes. This often hastens death. When he is really dead a priest is summoned, who exhorts the spirit to leave the body. Gold or silver coins are put in the man's mouth that he may pay his way in the other world. The coffin has long been ready, as most Chinese buy them for themselves long before they die, or are presented with them by their dutiful children, children being nowhere more dutiful than in China. After the body is closely sealed in the coffin there are fifty days of mourning. On each of these days the family go into the street and wail bitterly, kneeling in front of the house. As in Corea, white is the mourning color. And mourning must be put on that the spirit, when it visits the earth, may not recognize its former friends and torment them. This is the real origin of all mourning dress. All the relatives send offerings of food and money, to be placed before the coffin, for the use of the spirit, which remains in the body. Each person is thought to have three souls, and on the twenty-first day huge paper birds are raised on long poles to carry the second of these souls to Heaven; while the third will inhabit the tablet raised to it. One of the curious features at a funeral is that the portrait of the deceased is carried in a sedan-chair.

The professor of fung-swei must be consulted as to the time and place of burial, and there is often a delay of many months before the body is committed to its last resting-place—which, however, may not be the last, if the professor thinks it has brought bad luck. Wherever the professor says a body must be buried, there it must go. All China is a vast burying-ground; and since disturbing a grave would bring back the spirit to trouble every one, the real reason no railroads have been allowed in China is this superstition. The burning of the Temple of Heaven at Pekin, by lightning (or by thunder as the Chinese think), was considered a most signal token, given by the gods, of their displeasure at the contemplated changes; and therefore railroads are still an impossibility.—Golden Rule.

CHARMING MARY TURNER.

Five Young Ministers Each Sure That God Willed He Should Marry Her.

In the early days of Maine Methodism it was the custom of young ministers to consult their presiding elders before taking a wife. Once, during a camp-meeting in Eastern Maine, a young minister approached the presiding elder and said he wished to be married.

"Whom do you propose to marry?" asked the elder.

"Well," said the young man, "the Lord has made known to me very clearly that I should marry Sister Mary Turner."

"I know her well," said the elder; "she is a fine girl. I will see you again before the meeting closes."

During the week four other young ministers consulted the presiding elder on the subject of marriage. Each of them gave the name of the young woman to whom he proposed to offer himself. They had all prayed over the matter a great deal, and each was certain that it was the Lord's desire that he should marry the person named.

Neither of the five young men knew that any one else had consulted the elder on that subject. On the last day of the camp-meeting, at noon, the elder called the five young ministers to his tent to receive his opinion. He said:

"Now, brethren, it may be the will of God for you to marry, but it is not His will that five Methodist ministers should marry little Mary Turner."

The Esquimau Belle.

The Esquimau belle has as indolent a time of it as any of your fashionable young ladies. There are no household utensils of any kind; no brooms with which to sweep; even no water for washing. The blubber of the whale, the flesh of the polar bear and fish—their only articles of food—are eaten frozen and raw. Only the very sick, or old, or infants, ever taste heated meat. As for washing, an Esquimau does not understand the [illegible]

A BLACK SHEEP.

How Torn Shoes and Dress Helped Bertha Lampson.

AUNT ANN stood in the doorway looking at me doubtfully. "I don't know about letting her take it, Moses," she said. "It seems as if a girl of thirteen ought to be old enough, and if it was Milly I shouldn't think of worrying. But I never saw Bertha's beat for carelessness. As Mis' Stevens said yesterday, she's the black sheep of the family, and always will be."

I had heard this last remark often enough to grow hardened to it, and never dreamed of taking offense. But Uncle Moses, who had prophesied, years before, that I'd "make somethin' some time," and still held to that opinion, put down the dipper to say, with more than ordinary emphasis: "You let her take it, Ann. 'Tain't more'n a mile cross-lots, and the money'll get there jest as safe as if I stopped in the middle of hayin' to go."

"It's better to leave the haying over a day than to lose thirty dollars," sighed Aunt Ann, sepulchrally. "But you'll have your own way about it, whatever I do or say. Only I want you to remember if any thing happens, Moses, who it was that sent her."

"Wa-al," hastily assented Uncle Moses, as he started for the hay-field.

Aunt Ann, deprived of one listener, turned to me. "I don't know but what it is just as well for you to go," she admitted. "We promised to pay for the cow the fifteenth, and she's particular to the hour. But I wish it was Milly visiting here instead of you. Aunt Augusta is the same relation to your family as she is to me, and it wouldn't surprise me any if she should take it into her head to do something for some of you children. I do hope, Bertha, if she inquires who you are, you'll try and act so as not to spoil the chances of the rest of the family."

"Perhaps," I hazarded, as I donned my best gloves, "she'll take a fancy to me and give me a musical education."

"She won't," declared Aunt Ann, with a decision that left no room for hope. "She's one of the most particular women I ever saw, and any one she takes a fancy to would have to look as if they'd just come out of a bandbox. You could fix up all you was a-mind to, you wouldn't have the style to please her. It isn't in you. Milly, now, would be a girl after her own heart. I was thinking the other day I believed I'd try to get her acquainted with Milly."

I gave a disgusted look at the reflection of my thin, brown face and lank body in the glass, and mournfully decided Aunt Ann was right. Oh, dear, dear! why was not I Milly? Or, if I must be myself, why couldn't I have been born with a taste for sewing and "fixing-up," instead of for climbing trees, and racing the old horse round the lots bareback. I puzzled over this conundrum till I was well on my way only to give it up as unanswerable. "But at any rate," I decided, philosophically, as I pulled my big shade hat farther over my eyes, "I can show her I know how to act, if I don't look as if I'd come out of a bandbox." I had always been sure I could talk better than Millicent, and over this reflection I became quite myself again, and went on picking my way through the pasture, whistling "Yankee Doodle." What if I was a black sheep? If my dresses chose to tear, and my shoes to wear out, sooner than other people's, I was sure it wasn't any fault of mine. And there couldn't be any thing wrong in climbing trees, or riding the old horse bareback. Of course I shouldn't do it when I was grown up, and a great piano player, but—

I WAITED A MOMENT AND THEN SHOUTED IN RETURN.

"Hulloa!"

The voice seemed to come from somewhere underground. I stopped and looked around. The only living creature in sight was a brindle cow, which stood on the edge of a bank, pensively looking over. I waited a moment and then shouted in return: "Hulloa! Where are you? What do you want?"

"Down the bank. Come over here," was the answer.

My first glance down the steep ledge explained the cow's interest in the situation. There, at the bottom of the ravine in an uncomfortably cramped position, lay the smallest specimen of a brindled, bossy calf I ever saw. By the side of the calf stood a boy—very freckled, very ragged, and some two years younger than myself—staring at me with a wonderfully disgusted expression.

"Was that you a-whistlin'?"

"Yes. What do you want?"

"Don't want nothin' 'o you," he explained, in a deeply injured tone. "I thought you was a boy, an' I was goin' to have yer help git this calf out. I can't climb up with him alone; I've b'en tryin' half an hour."

"Why don't you go home and get somebody?" I demanded, approaching perilously near the edge in my eagerness to take in the situation.

"Well, that's what I've got to do; an' I don't s'pose he'll live 'til I get back.

I hesitated. Old Brindle seemed to divine the situation, and looked at me with pleading eyes. But I should be sure to get my clothes torn someway, and then Aunt Ann would talk about black sheep. "I'd help you myself, if it wasn't for my dress," I said regretfully, with a glance at the ruffles and frills.

But the red-haired boy did not seem to be impressed by my kind intentions. He looked at me and grinned. "You help," he ejaculated. "Huh! You couldn't climb down here, to say nothin' of gittin' back?"

Dress, gloves, ribbons, were of no account after that! The next moment I was scrambling down the almost perpendicular path.

I think we were an hour getting that calf up the bank; but it certainly was not my fault. I tore so many little three-cornered holes in my dress that I gave up trying to count them; clambered up the steepest places on my hands and knees, and was not a bit discouraged when, like the frog in the well, we climbed up one step and slipped back two. I broke my parasol, jammed a sliver in my finger, and lost my hair ribbon, but the calf was placed on solid ground at last.

SHE LOOKED AT ME SURPRISED.

Five minutes later a servant had ushered me in to wait "til the missus came." "Some one to see Miss White on important business," I heard her explaining outside. "A beggar-girl, I guess."

"Beggar girl," indeed! But just then I happened to glance in the large mirror opposite, and sank back in the chair, for once actually frightened. I had known that my dress was torn, my hair frowsy and my gloves stained; but the knowledge had not troubled me much. I was not Milly, and dress wouldn't make much difference with a black sheep. What I had not known was that a smear of mud reached from my nose crossways to my ear; and, worse yet, the rent in my shoe had extended to my stocking, leaving exposed a considerable part of a very muddy foot. "What," I thought, springing to my feet—"what if I should spoil the chances of the rest of the family!" Before I could decide whether it was best to run or stay and brave it out, the door opened and Aunt Augusta came in; and then my last faint hope died away. She was so tall, so dignified, and—so neat. "Oh, Milly, Milly!" I balanced myself on one foot in a desperate endeavor to conceal the ragged shoe, and told my errand with a courage born of despair. "I have brought you the money for a cow—thirty dollars—from Mr. Moses Smith."

She looked at me, surprised. "Yes, thank you. I will give you a receipt. But, pardon me, I do not seem to recognize you. You are—"

"I am Mrs. Smith's niece," I stammered.

"What? Not one of George Lampson's children?" There was certainly a good deal of surprise in her voice; and I felt that now, for the credit of the family, an explanation must be given. But she should never know—

"I should not have come looking this way," I began, in my most dignified manner, winking hard to keep back the tears. "But I stopped to help a little boy get a calf up a ravine, and—" My long balance on one foot gave way. I staggered, made a wild plunge, and recovered myself only by describing a sort of half-circle with the other foot, now almost bare. That, and the tremulous smile on Aunt Augusta's lips, was too much. The next minute I was crying as if my heart would break.

"It—it isn't that I care about myself," I gasped, between my sobs. "Only you—musn't laugh—or—think any less of Sue—or—or Milly. It was my own fault, every bit of it. I looked all right when I started, and—and then I stopped to help a little boy with a calf, be—because he said I couldn't, and tore my dress and my shoe, and I know Aunt Ann will be so mad, and—oh, dear! I'm the black sheep of the family, and always will be! and I don't see how I can help it."

"Do you mean to tell me," exclaimed Aunt Ann that evening, when she heard the whole story, "that she actually wanted you to stay to dinner; and had you sit down with her, looking the way you did?"

"Yes, ma'am," I answered, meekly. "I washed my face, and her maid combed my hair; but that was all."

"Well, I can't understand it. If she takes a fancy to any one, she takes it for certain. You'll get your musical education, I guess, if you want it; and I only hope it will do you some good. But I can't see into it. You—and after you'd helped that little Irish boy with the calf and got to looking the way you do now. If you had got what you deserved, miss, it would be a good scolding."

"There, there, Ann, what's the use of going on so?" expostulated Uncle Moses. "She's done all right about the calf. I always said Bertha would make a smart girl."

"Smart! I never said but what she would!" exclaimed Aunt Ann. "But you know yourself, Moses Smith (this in great disgust), she's the black sheep of the family, and always will be."—Pauline Phelps, in N. Y. Independent.

NOTHING SMALL ABOUT THESE.

GEORGIA beats the world in babies. The wife of Will Lennon, a painter in Macon, has given birth to a child weighing forty pounds.

THE Pacific coast has not a monopoly on big trees. There is a cypress tree at Enterprise, Fla., that is 10½ feet in diameter and has a trunk forty feet in length to the first limb.

PERHAPS the most wonderful currant bush ever seen is owned by R. Lonnen, of Mayville, N. J. He found the bush growing wild in the woods, brought it home and planted it by the side of the house. The bush has grown up the side of the building to a height of about twenty feet and is about seven feet wide, bearing currants as large as an ordinary cherry.

MOSES TURK, of Gainesville, Ga., cut a poplar tree that measured 4½ feet in diameter at the stump and 3 feet in diameter 60 feet from the butt. It made six stocks 15 feet long, clear of knots and windshakes. Every cut had to be split before it could be hauled except the lap cut. It made 3,670 feet of square timber, for which a firm paid $1 per 100. Counting two years for every circle in the stump the tree was 864 years old. It took two yoke of oxen to turn over one-half of the butt cut, and three yoke to pull one-third of it out.

THE boss snake of the season was a monster rattler on exhibition at J. F. Bolton's store, in Americus, Ga. His snakeship was more than 6 feet in length, and measured 20 inches in circumference in the middle, while his caudal appendage was ornamented with 14 rattles and a button. The hideous object was killed in a sedge field on the Huguenin plantation by Alfred Fields, a colored laborer, who, after a lively fight of several minutes, knocked him on the head with a fence rail. Mr. Bolton had the snake's hide stuffed and hung up in front of his store.

A WESTERN paper gives the measurements of three apple trees. One, which stands in Fairfield County, O., and bears a fruit closely resembling Maiden's Blush, is 9 feet 5 inches in circumference at three feet above the ground, with a spread of 70 feet in diameter. Another in Wayne County, O., is 10 feet 4 inches in circumference at one foot above the ground, and is known to be seventy-six years old. The third and largest is in the same State, in Washington County, and was planted in 1791 or 1792. The trunk, where it is smallest, girths 12 feet 2 inches, and the largest branch girths 7 feet. It is a seedling, which bears a large yellow apple of excellent quality for cooking.

A STROLL IN THE ORCHARD.

REMOVE the suckers from all trees, as they rob the trees of nourishment.

IF water stands around your fruit-trees contrive some way to drain it off, if you do not wish to lose both fruit and trees.

WHEN growing fruit for market select that which sells the best, but for home use the farmer should endeavor to grow the kinds preferred by himself without regard to size or attractiveness.

WE sometimes neglect the easiest and surest methods of exterminating our insect pests. For the plum curculio the cheapest and easiest method is to jar the trees early each morning, catching the insects upon a cloth underneath. This, if begun as soon as the plum sets, and followed up as long as they are caught, will insure a good crop of plums.

THE presence of the peach-borer may be known by the appearance of gum, which should be scraped away. Clean the tree by sponging with water, first removing the dirt from around the trunk a little. The next day the work of the borer may be seen by the appearance of what seems like fine sawdust. Now run a knife-blade in after him, or a piece of sharp wire. If the borer is not watched it will soon destroy the tree.

A VERMONT correspondent writes to the Country Gentleman of an effectual method of destroying caterpillars' nests: "Take a suitable pole, say ten feet long, and attach to the end a coarse woolen cloth by winding it with a strong twine, so that will not slip either way. Take from one to three quarts of wood ashes, pour on hot water, and thus get a strong lye. Take an old pail, turn in the lye, adding one pint or more of soft soap, and stir well. It is then ready for use, and I will warrant this lye and soap to deal the death blow instantly to all caterpillars by thrusting the saturated swab straight into the nests."

ODDITIES IN GOLD AND SILVER.

IT requires 1,400 sheafs of gold leaf to equal in thickness a sheet of writing paper and takes 280,000 of them, pile one upon the other, to equal an inch in thickness.

A WATCHMAKER in Newcastle, Eng., recently completed a set of three gold shirt studs, in one of which is a watch that keeps excellent time, the dial being only three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter. The three studs are connected by a strip of silver inside the shirt bosom, and the watch contained in the middle one is wound up by turning the stud above. The hands are set by turning the one below.

AT Norristown, Me., a horseshoer made nine miniature horseshoes from a silver ten-cent piece. Each shoe has the number of holes usually drilled in horseshoes of the ordinary size, but, strange to say, the smallest needle is too large to be used as nails for these little wonders. He has made affidavit that each and every one of the miniature shoes were made with the same hammer and punch used in making the largest-sized real horseshoes.

DARIUS L. GOFF, of Pawtucket, R. I., who has a fancy for mechanical curiosities, possesses a clock that never runs down. Through an ingenious contrivance it is kept wound by the simple opening and closing of the front door of the house. Electrical appliances, operated by the running of the clock, raise the gas jet in the hall at dusk, and lower it at bedtime; ring an early-rising bell for the servants, a later one for the family, and, an hour later, the breakfast-bell; and when the hour is struck, musical cathedral chimes respond in the chambers of the house.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Disaster on the Central Road Near Castleton.

WRECKERS' TERRIBLE WORK.

Many Passengers Injured, but None Fatally.

A Rail Placed Across Both the Up and Down Tracks—The Entire Train Was Badly Demolished—The Passengers Dragged Through the Car Windows—The Fiends as Yet Unknown.

CASTLETON, N. Y., Sept. 6.—"An outrage for which the perpetrators ought to be hanged!"

This was Superintendent Bissell's comment on the overturning of Section 2 of the Montreal express on the New York Central near this place.

Six sleepers were wrecked, but, miraculous as it may seem, no one was killed.

The injured list will foot up about seven, the most seriously injured being Mrs. Atkinson of Trenton, N. J., who was badly hurt about the back. Miss Garakan of Brooklyn, head badly cut, and Trainman Saulspaugh, back wrenched.

The others have backs and limbs wrenched but none of the cases are fatal.

A single rail placed crosswise in front of the train resulted in the disaster.

Six coaches were turned bottom-side up on the bottom of a fifteen-foot embankment and three were twisted and wrenched beyond repair. The engine remained on the track.

The officers of the road, physicians and several reporters left on a special train at 2.30 for the scene of the wreck.

Of the eight sleepers composing the train but two were left on the track. The others were either on the embankment or lying across the rails. Traffic was at a standstill for twelve hours.

The train was in charge of Conductor Hudson who was in the first sleeper when the crash came. He felt himself hurled through the air.

The car turned a complete somersault and settled in the bottom of the ditch bottom up. He and Trainman Saulspaugh crawled out the window and, after procuring a light, released Mrs. Atkinson, who was the only passenger in the car. The woman was borne to the rear and placed in a sleeping compartment in one of the end cars. All the other passengers were taken out through the windows of the partly wrecked cars and assisted to the rear where they were made comfortable.

Among the sixty passengers were a number of New Yorkers and nearly half of the total were women. Nearly all were asleep in their berths and knew nothing until they felt themselves dashed from their bunks and opened their eyes to find themselves lying across other passengers and all confusion.

Fortunately none of the cars took fire or the loss of life would have been great. Most of the passengers got off at Albany, and remained at the hotels for a while to collect their scattered senses. All were able to proceed on their journey except Mrs. Atkinson, who was taken to the City Hospital on a stretcher.

Superintendent Bissell has begun a rigorous investigation to ascertain, if possible, who are the fiends who placed the obstruction on the track.

The destruction of the train must have been decided upon in a hurry, for the wrecked train was but twenty-five minutes behind the first section and that came through all right. The loss in money to the company will foot up into the thousands.

The statement of the engineer is to the effect that he was running at high speed as he was late. The first indication he had of an obstruction on the track was the complete turning over of his engine with a terrific crash. For a while he was stunned, but he soon recovered and he and the fireman started back to warn the express, due in twelve minutes. They succeeded in signaling it and then returned to their own train.

The front of the engine and the small trucks were badly smashed.

Examination shows that not only was the obstruction placed on the up-track but the down-track was also blockaded.

Superintendent Bissell said this morning: "It is the greatest miracle of the age that everybody on the train was not killed. The work of fixing the obstructions must have been done quickly and systematically, as just twenty minutes previous the first section had gone up all right."

Another attempt was made to wreck a passenger train a few hours later. The train from the West due here at 5.10 came slowly creeping down through the gap west of West Albany when the engineer saw an obstruction on the tracks. The train was stopped, and it was found that ties had been placed on the tracks by some miscreant. They were removed and the train proceeded to this city.

Looking Up a New Gun Metal.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 6.—Herr Krupp, son of the German gun manufacturer, is here testing the quality and quantity of the ore produced by the Sudbury nickel and copper mines west of this city. He is in search of nickel to be used in the manufacture of a new gun metal, which is expected to so far surpass in strength and durability of the metal now used as steel surpasses pig iron.

Don't Favor the Eight-Hour Day.

BILBAS, Sept. 6.—The Socialist Congress has ended with little result. The eight-hour scheme is looked upon with small favor by Spanish workmen.

AT CRESSON.

No Demonstration, but a Hearty Welcome Greets the President.

CRESSON SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 6.—President Harrison, accompanied by Mrs. Harrison and maid and Secretary Halford, arrived here last night. The party traveled as regular passengers on the famous Chicago limited express over the Pennsylvania road.

The trip was without incident until Altoona was reached, where the distinguished travelers were met by Mrs. McKee, the President's daughter; his grandchild, Benjamin Harrison McKee; Mrs. Dimick and Miss Jeannette Halford. The addition to the Presidential party filled the drawingroom they had occupied from Harrisburg. During the wait at Harrisburg, where a change of cars was necessary, the President stood on the platform with his hat in hand.

The oppressive heat of the day caused him great fatigue. The President is not feeling in the best of health, but he believes that a few hours in the invigorating air of the mountains will tone up his system to its normal condition.

The party was heartily welcomed by the guests of the Mountain House, but beyond a dignified recognition by the President and a few handshakes there was no demonstration. Immediately upon leaving the train the Presidential party, under the escort of Superintendent Dunham, was driven to the Parke cottage, where the family has been located.

DUELS EXPECTED.

A Noisy Boulangist Meeting Protests Against Recent Revelations.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—A noisy Boulangist meeting was held here last night, at which resolutions were adopted protesting against the revelations concerning General Boulanger and offering their adherence to the programme of the party for the revision of the constitution. M. Caselin, one of the speakers, made a violent attack upon M. Mermeix, editor of the "Cocarde," the Boulangist organ, and the author of the revelations. The latter, upon rising to reply, was greeted with hisses and groans and was compelled to abandon the attempt. He thereupon left the meeting.

M. Soudey, an Anarchist, who was waiting in a neighboring boulevard, followed M. Mermeix, heaping abuse upon and ending his tirade by spitting in M. Mermeix's face. Several duels are expected to occur as the result of the meeting.

THE PRESIDENT'S REGIMENT.

He Sends a Letter Expressing Regret at His Inability to Be With Them.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 6.—President Harrison's regiment the Seventieth Indiana Volunteers, held its annual reunion ten miles south of the city yesterday. The following letter from the President was read:

"CAPE MAY POINT, August 26.

MY DEAR COMRADES:—That I cannot attend the reunion of the survivors of the old regiment is a source of very great regret to me and I venture to hope that the dear old friends whose happier lot it is to be present, will also feel some little disappointment. I am debtor to them for the brave and patient service they gave to our country under my command, and for a most loyal and affectionate comradeship since the fighting days were over. God bless them, every one. Most sincerely yours, BENJAMIN HARRISON.

Mr. Harrison was re-elected President of the Regimental Association and by a unanimous vote loving greetings were sent him.

$5,000 REWARD.

Offered By the Central Road for the Capture of the Train Wreckers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Third Vice-President Webb, after a consultation with the officers in the Grand Central depot, regarding the wreck of the Montreal Express near Greenbush, telegraphed Superintendent Bissell offering a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who placed the obstructions on the track, causing the wreck.

HUNTING A MURDERER.

Two Negroes Fight Over a Woman and One Is Mortally Wounded.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 6.—Chas. Anderson shot and mortally wounded John Royster at Kingston, just over the Middlesex County border, at a late hour last night.

The men, who are colored, were in the midst of a drunken orgie at the house of a negress, when Anderson became jealous of Royster. A quarrel ensued in which razors gleamed and furniture was smashed. The men rushed, fighting, to the street, where Royster fell and Anderson shot him in the side. Royster was picked up unconscious and Anderson fled.

The tragedy was enacted on the outskirts of Mercer County, and before the authorities could be notified the murderer sought the woods. A large body of farmers and their hired men started out in pursuit and kept it up all of today, but without running Anderson down. Royster is still alive, but there is little hope of his recovery.

SHOT HIS RIVAL.

Two Colored Porters in Love With a White Girl.

READING, Pa., Sept. 6.—For some time past Katie Runkle, a young white girl employed as a waitress in the Central House, here, has received the attentions of John W. Brown and John Arbogast, colored, employed as porters in the same hotel.

Bad feeling has existed between the dusky rivals for several weeks and a few days ago they came to blows.

Last night Arbogast was walking with the girl when Brown came toward them. Each drew a revolver and several shots were exchanged. Brown fell with a fatal wound in the head. Arbogast and the girl were arrested. There were many people on the street and the shooting created great excitement.

COLLISION ON THE D. & H.

The Engineer and Firemen and a Passenger Killed.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Passenger train No. 25 on the Delaware & Hudson railroad, due here at 7:05, was run into by a freight train at Howard's, between Port Henry and Westport, at 6:30 o'clock.

Both engines were badly damaged, and Engineer Murray and Fireman Starr, of the passenger train, and one passenger, Mr. G. Kniffin, were killed.

The Adirondack special was thirty minutes late and the extra freight was sent out on the passenger trains time. It is very probable that the passenger train made up some of the lost time and did not give the extra freight time to reach Howard's siding.

The Cal Wood Murder Trial.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 6.—After three days of tedious work a jury was obtained in the Cal Wood murder trial. Four witnesses were examined to-day and the story of the crime repeated. The wife of the murderer will go upon the stand and swear that her father, Leander Pasco, the murdered man, had on many occasions forcibly held incestuous relations with her. A strong attempt will be made to prove that the prisoner is insane.

The Strike Resolves Into Politics.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—It now appears to be settled that the New York Central strikers are to enter politics this fall. In accordance with resolutions adopted at the Union Square mass meeting of August 26, a committee of twenty-five has been appointed to take initiatory steps in the movement, and will issue an address next Tuesday. Among the members of the committee are Dr. McGlynn and James Redpath.

Arrested for Conspiracy.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 6.—C. Von Gruttke and wife, owners of the shop where fire originated, were arrested on a charge of conspiracy. It is alleged that they arranged a scheme with Mulich to burn their shop. It is known that Von Gruttke recently tried to sell his place and that it was insured for a larger amount than the price asked.

COMBINE OF BOSSES

Manufacturers Organize to Fight Labor Unions.

IT IS A POWERFUL ALLIANCE.

The Corporations Interested Employ Over Fifty Thousand Men.

A Strike in One Place Will Close All the Factories—The Westinghouse System and the Pullman Interests in the Organization—Labor Organizations to be Fought to a Standstill.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 6.—Manufacturers have formed a combination against strikes. A powerful alliance now exists among some of the richest corporations in the country. These institutions employ a total of 50,000 or 60,000 workers. It is claimed by these manufacturers that the action of their workers has forced the alliance. Among the corporations which are members of the alliance are the Westinghouse system, both in this city and elsewhere; the Yale Lock Company, Colt Arms Company and four or five other big factories in Connecticut, and it is said the Pullman interests.

The compact agreed to is that in case a strike occurs to enforce unreasonable demands, whether the strike be against one or all of the associated factories, all work is to cease. The strikers are to be allowed to remain idle until they see fit to return to work, and no factory is to employ any worker who may have left another factory on a strike. Neither is any associated factory to seek workers during a strike from any of the federated works.

"We are compelled to take some steps to protect ourselves against unreasonable demands and strikes," said a manufacturer interested in the compact. "We are now made so frequently as to lessen the investment of large sums in manufacturing enterprises hazardous."

RIOTS IN IRELAND.

One Man Severely Injured and a Young Woman Fatally Burned With Vitrol.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Despatches from Ireland state that there has been considerable rioting at Stewardstown, in the County of Tyrone, caused chiefly by religious differences. David Fitzgerald, a caretaker on evicted property, was attacked at night while on his way home with his wife from Newmarket Fair, Cork. He lies in an unconscious condition from a blow in the temple with a stone.

At Macroon, Cork, some young men threw vitrol in the face of a young woman named Tullman. Her nose and cheeks are eaten off, and she will die. The doctor who attended her came near dying from blood poisoning.

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA.

After Several Months the Bite of a Dog Proves Fatal.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 6.—John St. Pierre, a Central Falls boy, died last night of hydrophobia. The lad was bitten last April by a stray cur, not supposed at the time to be rabid.

The wound was cauterized, but recently symptoms of hydrophobia developed and death afforded relief from terrible agony. Several other children were bitten by the same animal, and great alarm exists.

A Fast Mail Train in a Wreck.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 6.—A telegram from Ogden, Utah, says: "The fast mail train on the Union Pacific, which left Ogden at 9:55 in the morning, is reported to be a complete wreck at a point forty miles east of here. A wrecking train with three doctors and an unusual number of stretchers has just left the Union Depot for the scene of the wreck. It is thought to be a very serious affair, but the railroad officials will say nothing."

The Last Day of the Elmira Races.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The last day of the New York State Breeders' Association races showed a heavy track. Burrwind won the race for mares and colts that had never beaten 2:40. Consolation distanced the field in the race for foals of 1888 and got the race in 2:52. Pansy won the race for three-year-olds in 3:02. The special race was won by Sunset Patchen in 2:36¼.

Gendarmes Interfered.

GHENT, Sept. 6.—M. Henri Rochetort and M. Thiebaud met near Salsate, in the morning, for the purpose of fighting a duel, but gendarmes interfered and threatened to arrest them if hostilities occurred. The principals and seconds therefore returned to the city, but it is said that another meeting will be arranged.

Burned One-Quarter of the City.

SALONICA, Sept. 6.—The fires which raged yesterday and last night destroyed one-quarter of the city. Among the structures consumed were the British and Greek consulates, the Greek hospital and schools and the Turkish mosque. Twenty thousand persons are made homeless.

Twelve Thousand Houses Burned.

SALMICA, Sept. 6.—The fires which broke out almost simultaneously in four different parts of the town yesterday, and which destroyed 12,000 houses and most of the public buildings, have been extinguished.

Struck by a Train and Killed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—George Morey, a farmer of Milbrook, while walking on the Newburg, Duchess and Columbia Railroad tracks, was struck by a train and instantly killed.

A MISMANAGED ROAD.

Illinois Central Stockholders Up in Arms Over Their Losses.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—An evening paper prints a petition which it says is being circulated among the stockholders of the Illinois Central railroad urging them to rise in rebellion against the present management of the company. The petition gives figures from the annual report of the company, and says:

"It is believed that since the report of 1888 was published the debt of the company has been increased by several millions of dolars, and that the debt and stock are approximately $38,000,000 in excess of 1888. And there are strong reasons for believing that at this time the company has a floating debt of from one to three millions of dollars.

"It must be apparent that after paying the fannual interest charges the margin for six per cent. dividends is now very narrow and that a further issue of $5,000,000 of stock, as proposed by the present management, or any considerable increase in the debt and interest account, will force a reduction of dividends and a serious decline in the market value of the shares.

"It is clear that a crisis in the affairs of the company is rapidly approaching, and that, if not promptly met, heavy losses will ensue.

"With the facts before us we must insist that the present management is not a success and that the owners should demand a change. The best interests of the stock holders, in our opinion, require that its president and vice-president should be practical railroad men who have demonstrated their ability to manage a great railroad like ours."

Train Wreckers at Work in Mississippi.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Sept. 6.—The Louisville, New Orleans & Texas railroad passenger train No. 2, due here at midnight, but two hours late, was derailed on an embankment five miles north of here and badly wrecked. Every car left the track but the sleepers were not overturned. All the others rolled down the embankment and the engine, tender and baggage cars were wheels upward. No loss of life occurred, though Conductor Gurley, Engineer Cook and two or three passengers are confined to their beds owing to severe bruises. The wreck was the result of deliberate malice, a rail having been loosened.

Stoned by a Mob.

MADRID, Sept. 6.—As the train conveying Prime Minister Canovas del Castillo from Bilbao to Madrid was leaving the station at Vitoria, the carriage containing Canovas and his wife was stoned by a mob. The windows were broken, but the occupants escaped injury. The crowd had previously hooted at the Premier and indulged in insulting remarks.

Steamers in Collision.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The steamers C. H. Northam and Continental of the New Haven line came into collision in the East River. Four persons on the latter were injured. The Northam went on her way, but the captain had to beach her after passing Hell Gate, and her 300 passengers were transferred to the Mohawk and sent on by train.

Whiskey and Water Get Us in Trouble.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

Between whiskey and water the city of Plainfield seems fated to be constantly in trouble. For the past ten or twelve years it has been in constant trouble over the whiskey and license questions, and it showed so much earnestness and determination to suppress all taverns and saloons that one would have supposed it wanted water at any price. But now its members of council, its newspapers, its public men, and its private citizens are by the ears on the subject of city water. Just when Plainfield will get out of trouble over these two antagonistic matters it would be difficult successfully to predict.

Here's Good Advice For Plainfield Too.

(From the Somerset Gazette.)

A week from to-morrow the West Ends will play the Crescents of Plainfield at Somerville. The following Saturday the clubs will play at Plainfield, and there will be a toss up as to where the third game will be played. We hope there will be no bad words or feelings over the games. Let the Somerville people use the Plainfielders like gentlemen. Let it make no difference what the Plainfielders may say or do, show them that we are gentlemen. Let them have their say. It will not hurt us. The game will undoubtedly draw a large crowd.

F. H. Martin and family, who have been spending the Summer at their Asbury Park cottage, return today to their home on East Fifth street.

The Rev. A. H. Tuttle, formerly pastor of the M. E. church of this city, will preach from the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church, to-morrow morning and evening.

Caroline Delamater, widow of the late Chas. L. Delamater, and sister-in-law of Chas. P. Hazen of Broadway, died this morning. Funeral services will be held Monday.

David S. Dunavan, of West Second street, who has been confined to his home for several days with a complication of diseases, leaves for Bridgeton today for a week, to seek health and strength.

J. H. Manning, General Secretary of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association, made an interesting address before a large audience at the meeting of the Young People's League of the First Baptist church, last evening.

Joseph Eder, wife and family have returned home to New York after a week's visit at the Park Hotel, Dunellen. The Misses Annie and Lena Maier accompanied them back to the city for a few days' recreation in the great metropolis.

At the annual meeting of the Union County Democratic Executive Committee, held in Elizabeth, Thursday, R. M. Stover and V. L. Frazee of this city were appointed members of the finance committee, and E. P. Thorn and August Saltzman of the printing committee.

Judge Ulrich, Able and Popular.

A Union county correspondent of a New York paper, says there is nothing definite yet about the Senatorial nominations in Union. It is a rare and peculiar fact that there should be so little of a struggle on either side for the nomination. There is plenty of material available on the Republican side. The men most spoken of are Mayor Rankin, Assemblyman Voorhees and Judge Ulrich. Mr. Rankin has only one element of weakness, and that is due to his vigorous enforcement of the Sunday laws.

There may be a division of sentiment as to the justice of condemning a man simply because he earnestly and manfully tries to do his duty as he sees it, but it were foolish to shut one's eyes to the fact that there is considerable feeling in Elizabeth against Mayor Rankin on that account. He has aroused the implacable hostility of those who hold loose and "liberal" views regarding what should be done on Sundays, irrespective of the laws, and there is no doubt that this class is strong enough to beat him. Assemblyman Voorhees is one of the most popular men in the county. The railroad corporations alone look on him with unfriendly eyes, and that is rather calculated to help him with the citizens of Union county. Judge Ulrich is also able and popular. With either of these men at the head of the ticket there should not be much doubt about the result.

A Test at Last.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders has refused to pay the Somerville newspapers the legal rates for publishing official reports. The papers decline to take less than the amount they claim the law allows for the advertising, and have carried the case to the courts. The situation is the same in many other New Jersey counties, and the newspapers of the State await with much interest the result of the test case. The papers have long been complaining that for publishing municipal and county reports they get far less than their space is worth, but this is the first legal test.

Another Hack at the Lee Estate.

The Frazee Lee contested will case was recalled again at Elizabeth yesterday by a suit which was begun against John H. Jackson and Monroe B. Long, the executors. The suit is brought to recover $2,100, which Charles E. Abbott & Son, of Rahway, claim Frazee Lee owed them for services performed for him. They allege in their complaint that the old hermit, on April 2, 1888, at Rahway and Elizabeth, did confess the indebtedness and promised them that their services should be paid in full. He died not long afterwards and his executors ignored the claim. City Attorney Garret Berry, of Rahway, is counsel for the plaintiffs. The case will be tried at the January term of the Union County Court.

North Plainfield Assessments.

The Somerset County Board of Assessors has prepared a table of ratables in which North Plainfield Township appears as follows: Acres, 7,347; real estate, $1,640,700; personal estate, $261,550; debt, $85,250; valuation taxable, $1,817,000; polls, $955; school tax, $5,733.72; county tax, $8,721.60.

—No evening service at Trinity Reformed church to-morrow evening.

COUNCILMEN SAY SHARP THINGS.

A Wordy War at the Borough Meeting Over the Macadamization of Craig Place.

The September meeting of the North Plainfield Borough Council, which was held last evening, was enlivened by warm personal discussion. Every time a resolution to macadamize a street is introduced those who have been fighting unsuccessfully for the benefit of other thoroughfares get angry and say sharp things, and last night was no exception. The difficulty arose over the resolution of Councilman Smalley to macadamize Craig place. Councilman Buckle promptly accused Mr. Smalley of personal motives, intimating that he was seeking only to benefit the property of Craig place relatives, and adding that Mr. Smalley had already shown too much family favoritism to the detriment of others. Councilman Smalley said he was seeking nothing but the public good.

Councilmen Emmons and Hegeman also had a wordy set-to. Mr. Hegeman made remarks which were taken as a sneer on the intelligence of Mr. Emmons, and Mr. Emmons retorted by questioning the depth of Mr. Hegeman's commonsense.

When the war of words was over, the resolution to macadamize Craig place was adopted, and Greenbrook road was also ordered macadamized.

S. B. Wheeler and Samuel Whiteley were appointed special marshals.

The Fire Committee was instructed to procure bids and specifications for the construction of an extension to the lockup in the rear of the engine-house.

The Street Committee were authorized to borrow $900 for use on the roadways.

An attempt was made to transfer from the borough fund to the street fund the $550 received this year for liquor licenses, but the effort failed.

Plainfield's Train Service the Quickest and Finest in the World.

The Royal Blue Line, composed of the Blue Imperial trains which were first described in THE PRESS, and concerning which the New York papers have since had so much of praise to say, is now in full operation on the Jersey Central, Reading, and Baltimore and Ohio tracks by way of Philadelphia and Baltimore. The Blue Imperials are the fastest trains in the world, and the Royal Blue Line is the only line running trains from New York to Washington in five hours. An idea of the swiftness of the trains may be had on learning the fact that the Blue Imperial which stops at Plainfield at 12:55, noon, makes the run to New York in but a trifle over half an hour.

The entire equipment of the line is brand-new, and consists of the finest baggage cars, coaches, parlor and sleeping cars ever built by the Pullman Company. The exterior of royal blue and silver is more than handsome, and the interior has the most superb appointments ever seen on any railroad. The trains are vestibuled from end to end, and are protected throughout by the Pullman improved anti-telescoping device. They glide over the rails at the speed of the wind without a jar or a disagreeable rumble, and afford solid comfort as well as unexpected luxury to the traveler. All the cars in all the trains are heated by steam and lighted by Pintsch gas, under devices controlled by the Safety Car Heating and Lighting Company of New York. No extra fare is charged, and passengers occupying parlor car seats or sleeping car berths have to pay only the ordinary charges.

Short-Hand at the Y. M. C. A.

Among the many advantages which the Young Men's Christian Association hope to offer to the young men of Plainfield in its Educational Department, and to which it would call particular attention, is the short-hand class. This was so successful last season, and so many young men took advantage of it, that the Association takes pleasure in organizing it again. It will open some time between the first and middle of October, and will be taught by J. A. Robinson. Any young men wishing to join should communicate with the General Secretary at the rooms.

Stepping Stones for the Public Library.

The Ironolithic Stone Paving Company, on Wednesday evening last by communication to the Common Council, presented to the city two Ironolithic stepping stones for the Public Library. The one for the front of the building is four feet long, two feet wide and nine inches high, with letters cut in the top and inlaid with black—"Job Male Art Gallery." The one for the Eighth street entrance is three feet long, one foot, three wide and nine inches high. These two gifts were received with the thanks of the Council.

Money Missing and Man Gone.

Levi Darby, who lives near Dog Tavern on the road to Rahway, reported to Justice Nash this morning that the entire savings of his "chore-boy" had been stolen from the lad's room, and that a "hired man" was missing. He therefore wanted a warrant issued for the "hired man," but the Justice told him that mere absence from a place where money was simultaneously missing was no proof of guilt, and refused to issue a warrant.

Hoopskirts Again.

May come into style, but it is hoped not. The transformation which will bring back that style of crinolines ought to be indefinitely postponed. Transformations in the health of thousands of women throughout the country have taken place during the past few years. Pale, haggard and dispirited, they have become bright-eyed and healthy. The secret? Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which cures all those ailments peculiar to women.

Plainfield Lady Riders Astonish the Country Folks.

(From the New Brunswick News.)

Quite a sensation was created on our streets by the appearance of a party of lady bicycle riders from Plainfield. The ladies were Mrs. Green and daughter, Miss Maltby and Miss Fritts, daughter of Dr. Fritts, of that place. The ladies rode over by way of Metuchen in two hours, making some short stops, and returned home by way of Bound Brook. They were entertained during their stay in this city by the Misses Cheeseman, of Bayard street. They all rode what is known as the Safety bicycle.

Awful.

On Thursday Friday and Saturday we will put on sale ten cases of ladies' and misses oxford ties at 50 cents that have sold for $1.00 and $1.50 all Summer. Also a broken lot of ladies' and gentlemen's shoes some as low as 75 cents a pair. Come early and get your pick for they are all to be closed out in three days. Rogers Bros., 12 West Front street.

Floods in South Germany.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—The floods in South Germany have ruined the crops in the affected district. Lake Constance is at the highest level known for a century. Navigation has been suspended. A landslide has blocked the Tamina defile and stopped the Nagatz Springs railway. The Oriental express train is blocked.

WORK ON THE NEW HIGHWAYS.

Mr. Dunham Reports the Progress on County Roads.

The Board of Chosen Freeholders met Wednesday afternoon. All the members except Mr. Briant, of Summit, were present. The opening session was brief, and routine business transacted.

The session opened with the report of Engineer F. A. Dunham, of this city, showing in detail the progress made in the work on the county roads. On Morris avenue, in Union township, the macadamizing is nearly done, and from Springfield to the Easterly end of the Hammock, the roadway is in good condition, needing only a little watering and rolling. From that point to Elizabeth, and especially in the vicinity of the Lehigh Valley crossing, he stated, he shall require much work to be done before accepting the road. At many places an additional layer of small stone will be necessary, and much watering and rolling. He again called attention to the need for the protection of the embankment at the Hammock, as the road is being undermined.

On Morris and Springfield avenues, in Springfield township, since his last report the remainder of the telford foundation and the first course of macadam has been delayed. The road was unnecessarily delayed and he has notified the contractor to complete it at once. The road in Summit township has but just fairly been begun, and the outlook is favorable. A like situation was reported in reference to Springfield avenue in New Providence; the work is not being pushed as rapidly as it should be, but the pavement is being well laid.

North avenue, in Cranford township, from the Westfield line to Miller street has suffered from delay, and at the other end, 1,000 feet of the telford has been laid. The contractor has had difficulty in getting stone, and was also delayed by some labor trouble. The avenue in Union township is well under way, and fair though not rapid progress is being made. The Westfield avenue improvement in Elizabeth has not been started. The stone is not on the ground and the engineer recommended that some steps be taken at once to ensure the immediate commencement of the work.

On West Jersey street, in Elizabeth, the stone for the foundation was reported on the line of the street, and the contractor expected to begin yesterday.

Central avenue, in Westfield township, was reported to be in progress to the satisfaction of the engineer. Owing to a delay in getting material on the ground, Westfield road and Brandt's lane, in Clark township, have practically just started, but are now going on satisfactorily.

On Westfield avenue, in Rahway, the macadam has been spread the entire length, and there is no reason why the road should not be completed this month.

Mountain avenue, in Fanwood township, has been delayed by want of material, but is arranged for and will be finished in a satisfactory manner.

The work on the Springfield road, in Westfield township, will be begun at once, according to the agreement of the contractor.

The same road in Springfield township, the engineer stated, is being both well done and rapidly prosecuted.

Third Anniversary.

The third anniversary of Franklin Council, 41, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, will occur on October 6, at which time a musical and literary entertainment and a lunch box sociable will be held in honor of the event at Central Hall, corner of Park and North avenues, to which all the friends of Franklin Council will be invited.

The entertainment will be in charge of the Good and Welfare Committee, which consits of the following members: J. V. Beekman, C. S. Greer, C. F. Stephens, E. R. Pope, Jr., and G. S. Martin.

It's a Brave Lawyer Who Fights a Railroad.

Charles A. Reed is busily engaged looking up evidence in the case of Miss Van Doren against the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company as first told of exclusively in THE PRESS, and which will probably be tried this month before the U. S. Circuit Court at Trenton. About a year ago Miss VanDoren was injured by a runaway horse which was frightened by a locomotive standing near the Middlebrook crossing.

Property Still Moving.

The following were among the transfers of real estate recorded in the County Clerk's office, yesterday:

Randolph M. Stelle to Henry B. Newhall, both of this city, lot on Stelle avenue, South side, this city, 97½x200..... $1

Central New Jersey Land Improvement Co., to William J. Pearson and Henry E. Gale of North Plainfield, lot on Northwest side of Third street, this city, 60 feet Northeast from Prescott place, 45x120..... $360

It's So.

"I'm all broke up," said Openface in accent quite despairing,
"To Collier's go," said Hunting Case,
"He does the best repairing."

To Make New Blood for Old People.

Old and infirm persons need some mild tonic or gentle stimulant, especially in warm weather. The wine made in New Jersey by Mr. Speer, called Speer's Port Wine, makes new healthy blood by reason of the iron in the soil. It is used by the most eminent physicians and in hospitals as the best tonic wine known. Speer's Claret is also regarded as the purest.

The Crescents Have Not An Earthly Show.

(From the Westfield Standard.)

By the way—this coming Crescent-Westfield game is creating an immense amount of talk and interest in all the towns along the road. Somerville will have a strong representation here to yell for Westfield; the Alert crowd will be up strong from Elizabeth; Plainfield promises to be represented by a holiday crowd, which ought to be offset by Roselle, Cranford and Fanwood. Let us compare the men in their positions in the two teams, —McManus is as good a catcher, base-runner and hitter as Jones. O'Neill is as good a pitcher as Gregg and a much harder hitter. Partridge is as good as Wiegand at first and a harder hitter. We would not think of swapping DeWitt at second for Lufberry in either department. Mullen, at third, will hold his own with Lee. McLaughlin is as good as McIndoe; Johnson will do as well as Gillis' in-fielding and is a shade harder hitter; and Warner is the equal of Hatfield, either as fielder, hitter or catcher. Now, there you are, gentlemen; the Crescents may shade us a trifle in fielding-team-work, but we can out-bat them.

As there has been so much trouble and talk about unfair umpiring all around, the directors have decided to get John Kelly, brother of the famous catcher—Mike Kelly, to umpire the game. This will do away with any unfair and partial umpiring. John Kelley has been a League umpire for years, and his decisions will be beyond dispute. If we can win fairly from Plainfield, all right; otherwise we don't want the game.

The gormandizer likes it because it is fine. The workman likes it because it quenches his thirst, enriches his blood, and strengthens his muscle. It is cheap. The mother likes it. It keeps her boys at home. The women of America like it, because it takes the place of intoxicants. This Hires' Root Beer.

A DOMESTIC DISTILLATION.

TO KILL blue grass growing between bricks around the lawn, wash the bricks with salt water or strong solution of soda.

A GLUE for attaching leather to iron may be made by adding about five per cent. of glycerine to good glue, and just before using add five per cent. extract of oak bark or tannic acid. Use thick and hot.

ALL preparations for waxing floors are heated by setting the kettle containing the mixture into another containing boiling water. By this means the beeswax becomes incorporated with the turpentine and other ingredients. No floor will be "sticky" if the wax is properly rubbed in. The best article for rubbing in oil or wax is a parquet brush, such as are sold by manufacturers of parquet floors, and at large house-furnishing stores.

IN an intelligent treatment of different fabrics a large part of the art of washing consists. Fine laces, for example, must be treated by themselves. Very fine lace may be cleansed and whitened by folding it smoothly, and sewing it into a clean linen bag. It is then immersed for twelve hours in pure olive oil. A little fine soap is shaven into water, and the lace put into this and boiled for fifteen minutes. It must be well rinsed, dipped into starch water, and then taken from the bag and stretched and pinned to dry.

A GREAT many women are annoyed by the rapidity with which braid wears off their dress skirts. The best qualities of skirt braid are finer, and often do not wear as long as the cheaper, coarse ones. The very best material for binding a dress skirt is a bias band of good velvet put on as a roll. It will outlast three pieces of worsted braid, and, moreover, will save more than its cost in saving fine walking shoes from the wear on the instep caused by the friction of braid. This often causes the shoe to be shabby here before any other part of it is perceptibly worn.

WAX disappears if, after saturating with benzine or turpentine, it is covered with folded blotting paper, and a hot flat-iron put upon it. Paraffine is removed by boiling water or hot spirits. Ink spot or rust yields to oxalic acid, in combination with hot water; chloride of gold or silver spots to a weak solution of corrosive sublimate or cyanide of potassium, but all of these agents are deadly poisons. Sealing wax is dissolved by hot spirits and then rubbed off with ossia sepia; india ink is slightly brushed over with oil, and, after twelve hours, with saponified salmiac; any particles of color still remaining must be removed with rubber.

DROPS OF WISDOM.

BECAUSE a friend is polite, do not think his time is valueless.

THERE is one thing that money can not do—it can not impart to its possessor that real refinement which marks the true lady or gentleman.

THE golden moments in the stream of life rush past us, and we see nothing but sand; the angels come to visit us, and we only know them when they are gone. —George Eliot.

HE is the true hero and she is the true woman with whom the impulses of kindness are most powerful and by whom the call for help is not unheeded; and they are best fitted for usefulness who do not waste their sympathy in the fruitless pursuit of useless excitement.—N. Y. Ledger.

DO GOOD to all men as you have the opportunity. Deal out kindness and favors with an unsparing hand. The cause you understand not search out. If you can not find happiness by direct search try another plan. Make others happy and see if that does not make you truly blessed.

THE man who can learn, reason and execute with equal facility possesses the elements of success, even though his qualities be of but an inferior order; while one who has any of these faculties abnormally developed at the expense of the other, will always be crippled by the absence of the essential features of a successful life.

THE impediment is in thyself; thy condition is the stuff thou art to shape that same ideal out of; what matters whether such stuff be of this sort or that, so the form thou give it be heroic, be poetic? O, thou that pinest in the imprisonment of the actual, and criest bitterly to the gods for a kingdom wherein to rule and create, know this of a truth: the thing thou seekest is already with thee, here or nowhere, couldst thou only see. —Carlyle.

PAINTERS AND PAINTINGS.

THE Queen has invited Herr Swoboda, the Austrian artist, and his sister, who is also an artist, to visit Windsor Castle for the purpose of painting portraits for the members of the royal family.

JOHN SARGENT, the American portrait painter, who lives most of the time in London, has picked up as high as $80,000 in four months at his profession. He is the only American artist who can command $5,000 for a portrait.

THE principal picture galleries of Europe are ranked according to the number of pictures they contain: 1, Versailles; 2, Dresden; 3, Madrid; 4, Louvre; 5, London; 6, St. Petersburg; 7, Berlin; 8, Vienna; 9, Munich; 10, Florence; 11, Naples; 12, Venice; 13, Antwerp; 14, Turin.

BY way of London we learn that a society of American picture collectors has been formed with a view to holding loan exhibitions at stated intervals, and also to found an art library. The organization is modelled on the Burlington Fine Arts Club, of London.

AT Pompeii some mural paintings of more than ordinary interest have recently been disclosed, and the remarkable discovery has been made of a house five stories high. The upper floor is profusely decorated, and the principal hall displays on one wall the myth of Bellerophon, a nude figure, who, holding with one hand the bridle of his horse, is in the act of receiving the letter and orders of King Proetus, who is seated on a throne before him. The lower part of the house was used as a bathing establishment.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

One of the Most Efficient Aids to Beauty and Grace.

England undoubtedly pays more attention to physical culture than any other civilized country. English ladies in all ranks think nothing of a walk of ten miles, and besides they ride on horseback and use safety bicycles a great deal. But American women have an idea that it is positively dangerous for them to walk after they are twenty five or thirty years old, and they walk very little before that period. They may walk about the house and sometimes venture to push a carpet sweeper, but to walk for pleasure or exercise is something they rarely think of doing.

One reason women walk so little is because they do not know how to walk. Some authority says that not one woman in a hundred knows how to walk gracefully. Certainly there can rarely be found one willing, if necessity required, to walk the length of a drawing room alone, knowing that she was the center of all eyes. Ungracefulness is due to lack of symmetrical development. A savage is graceful, and little boys and girls are nearly always graceful, unless their inheritance is very bad and the examples they see are worse. Nature is always graceful. The lines and curves of flowers and trees are those of beauty, while the movements of bees and birds and animated nature generally are lines of grace and symmetry. The laws which govern these lines and curves apply to human beings; men and women, highest in the scale of life, ought to be the most graceful of all, but as a matter of fact it is not so. By the time they are twenty-five or thirty years old their natural grace has fallen into decay from neglect of physical culture, and they are awkward and ungainly. A well-cared for and not over-worked horse is as graceful as a colt, but human beings who are graceful at maturity are very scarce. The most of them are more like old stage horses in which some muscles are over-developed while others are wasted away. Their vocations lead them to strengthen some muscles abnormally while others are almost entirely disused. This one-sided development is often so marked that an observant person can tell a man's business by the way he carries himself. There are very few people who do not have slightly curved spines from neglect of the exercise necessary to keep the body evenly developed. To this uneven development is chargeable the want of grace so much to be deplored.

It is certainly a cause of much rejoicing that women are awakening to their needs of symmetrical development, and that out-of-door sports and exercises are getting to be fashionable. England is sweeping us still further into the background by an increase of physical culture societies all over the country. At one gymnasium I visited in Birmingham more than three thousand children are taken in every week for exercise. The girls are put through the same drill as the boys. The entire body is developed and grace of movement comes as a natural consequence.

In this country the Delsarte system of esthetic gymnastics is becoming quite fashionable. It differs somewhat from ordinary gymnastics in that its movements are graceful and beautiful as well as healthful. By persistent practice on the part of its students, most of the effects of early neglect can be done away with. The first thing it undertakes to do is to break up the frigidity and stiffness which is characteristic of the average American woman after the age of youth is passed, if not before. She is muscle-bound; some muscles are too long and some are too short, while others are small and relaxed or else over-grown and stiffened. The "setting-up drill" to which the young recruit is subjected answers the same purpose as the Delsarte system, only it is not so graceful nor so thorough.

That exercise may be beneficial and that graceful movements may be possible, the dress must be light and loose, the shoes with broad soles and low heels. A famous actress is reported as saying that she has not worn a corset for many years and that she found as soon as she took off the fetters she was able to appear to better advantage every way. Ladies are rightly interested in being beautiful, but they should know that grace, beauty and health always go together and that nature has thus allied them. They can not be beautiful without being healthy, and they cannot be graceful without physical development and freedom of motion and plenty of room to breathe. So, then, to neglect physical culture is to neglect one of the most efficient aids to beauty and grace.—From a Lecture by J. H. Kellogg, M. D., Battle Creek Sanitarium.

A Spanish Submarine Boat.

Spain would appear to treat her inventors better than most nations. A naval Lieutenant, Isaac Peral, has constructed a submarine boat moved by electricity, which, according to the Spanish press, is the greatest invention of the age, an opinion apparently shared by the Government, as Monday night's council, on the proposal of the minister of marine, conferred a title of nobility upon Lieutenant Peral and presented him with $100,000 (£20,000) for services to his country and as a testimony of his countrymen's gratitude. It is not stated whether this sum represents the monetary value of the patent. But without wishing for a moment to detract from the merit of Lieutenant Peral, whose boat may be the most perfect of its kind, it may be pointed out that similar vessels have existed for many years past in other countries, a fact which the Spanish newspapers seem to forget; or at least to ignore, while heaping almost fulsome eulogy on Lieutenant Peral as the inventor of inventors.—London Times.

—A New Auburn (Me.) man took a novel way of advertising the other day. He managed to catch a large snipe, and placed him in his store window among a lot of gaudy-looking fire-works, with a placard about his neck bearing the following inscription: "A genuine Australian duck."

AFTER MANY DAYS.

Cast thy bread upon the waters!
Hungering heart, in prayer and praise—
Cloud with silvery light behind it!
Thus thy yearning soul shall find it
After many days!

Satisfied through hours of longing,
Struggling past the waves of sin—
Grasp the sheaf of wheat and bind it
That the triumph you may win
After many days!

Sow it! reap it! mold, but taste not;
Cast it as thy loving gift
O'er life's waves! Repinings waste not—
It will come back through the rift—
After many days!

Though life's wave in wild commotion
Toss thy venture near the main,
Onward press in calm devotion,
It will float to thee again!
After many days!

Give not sighs in place of laughter—
Yield not once to dark regret!
Thy reward is coming after
All these doubtings bravely met.
After many days!

Close to shore, and standing near thee,
Lo! a smiling angel band!
Sent from Heaven to bless and cheer thee
Watch thy burden safely land
After many days!

Praying, watching, waiting, yearning,
All thy soul with joy uplift!
To thy feet the waves returning
Bring the Heavenly manna-drift!
After many days!

MISGUIDED GIANTS.

Who Do the Real Damage to the Cause of Religious Truth.

It is not the small, weak men of the day who do the damage. These small men who go swearing and loafing about your stores and shops and banking-houses, assailing Christ and the Bible and the Church—they do not do the damage. They have no influence. They are vermin that you crush with your foot. But it is the giants of the day; the misguided giants, giants in physical power, or giants in mental acumen, or giants in social position, or giants in wealth, who do the damage. The men with sharp pens that stab religion and throw their poison all through our literature; the men who use the power of wealth to sanction iniquity, and bribe justice, and make truth and honor bow to their golden scepter. Misguided giants, look out for them. In the middle and the latter part of the last century no doubt there were thousands of men in Paris and Edinburgh and London who hated God and blasphemed the name of the Almighty; but they did but little mischief, they were small men, insignificant men. Yet there were giants in those days. Who can calculate the soul-havoc of a Rousseau, going on with a very enthusiasm of iniquity, with fiery imagination seizing upon the impulsive natures of his day? or David Hume, who employed his life as a spider employs its summer, in spinning out silken webs to trap the unwary? or Gibbon, who showed an uncontrolable grudge against religion in his history of one of the most fascinating periods of the world's existence, the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, a book in which, with all the splendors of his genius, he magnified the errors of Christian disciples, while, with a sparseness of notice that never can be forgiven, he treated of the Christian heroes of whom the world was not worthy? Oh, men of stout physical health, men of great mental statue, men of high social position, men of great power of any sort, understand your power, and know that that power devoted to God will be a crown on earth to you typical of a crown in Heaven; but misguided, bedraggled in sin, administrative of evil, God will thunder against you with His condemnation in the day when wealth and poverty, master and slave, King and subject, shall stand side by side in the judgment, and money-bags, and judicial ermine, and royal robe shall be riven with the lightnings.—Talmage, in N. Y. Observer.

THE USEFUL AND THE USELESS.

Read and Study the Bible in Preference to the Newspaper and Novel.

The attention of most men are directed to the process of accumulation. Few give sufficient attention to the art of dispossession. To know what to discard is quite as important as to know what to keep. Beside the railroad track one frequently sees piles of worn-out sleepers burning. After awhile it gets to be quite as important a matter to get rid of old sleepers as to hew out new ones. Many a man's mind is like a garret, packed and littered with rubbish which he has not been wise enough to throw away. Few, like Macaulay, have room both for rubbish and for good furnishing as well; the rubbish will usually crowd out the valuable articles. He who knows what to forget is a wise man.

There are some things that it is a positive duty to rid the mind of, if possible. Of this class is all that verges on profanity, irreverence and vulgarity—every story involving a double entente, and every bit of scandal and slander against one's neighbor. These things not only litter up the mind with worse than useless rubbish, but, like some foul and decomposing carcass, they poison the mind and render it positively noxious to others. But there is another class of mental furnishing that is simply lumber, neither bad nor good in itself, but simply evil because it takes the place of that which is good. Of this character is much of the so-called news of the day. If we must read it, let us forget it as soon as possible. Of this class are ninety-nine out of every one hundred novels published. If they serve a purpose in relieving mental tension and resting an overworked mind, their mission is not a lasting one, and he who is foolish enough to read should at least be wise enough to forget them. Of this same kind of mental lumber is much school-book literature. It serves its purpose, but, as the cradle is useless and is relegated to the attic when the babies grow up, so the school-book has its place, but not a permanent place, among the mind's furniture. There is one Book that we can commit to heart without fear of littering the mind with rubbish. No one ever knew too much of the Bible; no one ever had it too readily at command. To replace his mental lumber with the pearls and gems of God's Word may well be the worthy ambition of every young person.—Golden Rule.

HAVING FUN.

Fallacy of the Idea That There is No Pleasure Outside of Sin.

Some one said to me: "Would you shut us young folks out from all fun?" Oh, no. I like fun. I believe in fun. I have had lots of it in my time. But I have not had to go into paths of sin to find it. No credit to me, but because of an extraordinary parental example and influence I was kept from outward transgressions, though my heart was bad enough, and desperately wicked. I have had fun illimitable, though I never swore one oath, and never gambled for so much as the value of a pin, and never saw the inside of a haunt of sin save, as when ten years ago, with commissioner of police and a detective and two elders of my church, I explored these cities by midnight, not out of curiosity, but that I might, in pulpit discourse, set before the people the poverty and the horrors of underground city life. Yet I have had so much fun that I do not believe there is a man on the planet in the present time who has had more fun, and on the side of right. Sin may seem attractive, but it is deathful and like the manchineel, a tree whose dews are poisonous. The only genuine happiness is in an honest Christian life. There is no fun in shipwrecking your character; no fun in disgracing your father's name. There is no fun in breaking your mother's heart. There is no fun in the physical pangs of the dissolute. There is no fun in the profligate's death-bed. There is no fun in an undone eternity. Paracelsus, out of the ashes of a burnt rose, said he could recreate the rose, but he failed in the alchemic undertaking, and roseate life once burned down in sin can never again be made to blossom.—Talmage, in N. Y. Observer.

SOMETHING WRONG.

A Few Indications of Positive or Negative Faults.

There is something wrong if the members of your family have to hear you talk in class meeting to find out that you are a Christian.

There is something wrong if the people in your employ speak of you as an old skinflint.

There is something wrong if you never go to church except when you feel like it.

There is something wrong if you don't know to-day whether you would go to Heaven or not in case of death.

There is something wrong if you don't pay your debts, if you are able to.

There is something wrong if you are always splitting hairs with the Lord in money matters.

There is something wrong if you never mention the name of Jesus outside of prayer-meeting.

There is something wrong if you never pray except when you have to.

There is something wrong if you never go to church in bad weather.

There is something wrong if you haven't got any more religion to-day than you had ten years ago.

There is something wrong if you feel spiteful whenever you see another woman wearing a better hat than you do.

There is something wrong if you never tell your husband you are sorry you blowed him up for coming into the house with muddy boots on.

There is something wrong if you are not a good deal more anxious about getting other people to Heaven than you are to get there yourself.—Ram's Horn.

How to Succeed.

A good way to be happy is to try to be useful and helpful.

A good way to succeed is to be always trying to do your very best.

A good way to please God is to try to do the things you know Christ would do.

A good way to come out all right is to be sure to start right.

A good way to accomplish great things is never to slight little ones.

A good way to make sure of Heaven is to determine at once to go there.

A good way to get more talents is to use those you already possess.

A good way to resist temptation is to be always guarding against it.

A good way to be a growing Christian is to be a working one.

A good way to become a soul winner is to become a sin hater.—Ram's Horn.

A SUPERIOR MIND.

Mrs. Simpson Used Hers to Rule Her Husband.

LITTLE old man, with a kindly face and faded, watery blue eyes, and thin sandy hair, pasted down in front of either ear, sat on the top row of seats at the circus. He had on a pair of newly-ironed plaid gingham "pants" of the "barn-door" cut, so long obsolete in fashionable circles. He wore, also, an old blue coat, with brass buttons, a "flowered" black satin vest, and a revolutionary stick, while he held between his shaky knees the stove-pipe hat that had added to the dignity of his appearance on his wedding day, forty years ago.

By his side sat the woman who had promised to love, honor and obey him on that memorable day. She didn't look as though she had grown very weary in the obeying business. She was a commanding looking female, grim of visage, huge in form, and had a nose and an eye suggestive of pleasing firmness of character, which was further indicated by the way in which she waved the turkey-tail fan held in her ungloved hand. A vaunting red feather, waving over the top of her blue and green and yellow bonnet, gave her a military appearance, and she seemed as one born to command.

"Hit's a right good show, hain't it, Tildy?" said the little old man, as Mary Jane Jones, alias Mamselle Mariana M. de Monteville, vaulted arily through three paper hoops, turned a double somersault, and landed gracefully on all fours on the back of her "fiery, untamed Arabian steed," bought at an auction sale out in Kansas.

"She done that purty slick, didn't she, mother?" said the little old man.

"Slick enough," was the grim and dispiriting reply; "but I should think she'd be 'shamed of herself, to come out in sich duds as them."

"I think she looks real purty."

"Ye do, hey? How'd ye like to see me dressed so?"

"You? Good land, mother; you'd never—"

"Money couldn't hire me to—not even if I wasn't a Cumberland Presbyterian."

"Of co'se not, Tildy. It wouldn't be becomin' to you, for you weigh two hundred and forty, you know, and—"

"Shet up, Sile Simpson," she said, icily. "I don't weigh but two hundred and thirty-nine, and you needn't tell the whole circus that I weigh even that. There's a woman bein' histed up into that trapeze. That's another thing all the gold and diamonds on earth couldn't hire me to do."

"I NEVER SEE YOUR BEAT, SILE SIMPSON."

Then the little old man put a red cotton handkerchief up to his face and giggled until Tildy said, acridly:

"If ye don't shet up it'll be the last circus I'll ever fetch ye too."

That sobered him; and when the lemonade man came around he said, gently:

"That lem'nade looks mighty good, Tildy."

"Plain water's good enough for me."

"Ye can't git no water in here."

"Well, I guess you won't quite warp if you wait until we git outside."

"Hit's only five cents a glass, he says."

"Yes, an' twenty five centses make a dollar."

"There's two slices of lemon in each glass, and they'd be good dried and put in dried-apple sass."

"A sprinklin' of cinnamon is jist as good."

"I'm turrible hot and dry, and he says it's ice cold."

"Yes; and I read of a man that died after drinkin' ice water when he was hot."

"I'd risk dyin'."

"Ye allus wuz fool-hardy."

"Well, what do ye say to gittin' a bag o' peanuts, then?"

"I ain't goin' to, that's all."

"Why, Tildy?"

"Peanuts ain't fit to put into nobody's stummick."

"I've read they're healthy."

"Healthy? Nasty little hard lumps, like peanuts, healthy?"

"I et some, eight or nine years ago, and I'm here yit."

"Your stummick was stronger then, nor what it is now."

"Shucks! I could eat a quart of 'em."

"Well, you ain't going too. The money is tied up in a corner o' my hank'cher, an' it's goin' to stay there."

"What do you say to a couple o' bananers? He's sellin' 'em two fur a nickel."

"They're rank pizen in some stummicks."

"I'd risk 'em in our'n."

"I never see your beat, Sile Simpson. Ev'ry time we come to town, you think you've got to go and gawm down a lot o' stuff that costs money. It hain't been six months sence you spent five cents for a lot o' prunes, an' et 'em all down in one day."

"I b'leeve in enjiying' life a little."

"Yes; an' in the most expensive way. It ain't been three months sence you squandered five cents fer cheese an' sweet crackers, an' I ketched you gawming 'em down out in the barn; and now ye wanter spend more money fer sech stuff. Ye shan't do it!"

"Ev'rybody buys a little something at a circus."

"Ev'rybody don't. I don't."

"I've knowed some folks to buy a whole cokernut when they come to a circus; and Hi Jinkins allus gits himself a seegar."

"Ye might jist as well shet right up first as last, Sile," she said, with tightly compressed lips and an unrelenting look in her cold gray eyes. "I carry the money, and there ain't going to be none of it wasted; and that I let ye know once fer all."

And then, the circus being over, they climbed down from their lofty perch and she led the way out, with Sile walking meekly behind, a dejected and disappointed, but submissive victim to a superior mind.—Light.

"I hear you have said that I was sent to the penitentiary for forgery. Now I want you to correct that."

"Yes; I said it. And I'll make a correction when you prove I was wrong."

"Then I shall be happy to remedy the error and apologize as well. Bring forward your proof."

THE BRISK FAMILY.

How Mr. Brisk Took Advantage of the Railroad War.

The Bobbletown train had reached St. Louis. Passengers were looking expectant and gathering up their valuables ready for the coming exodus. The door of the car was flung open, a wild-eyed man shouted something in Volapuk, and the crowd of travelers climbed over itself and tumbled into the Union depot. Mr. Brisk was in his element. He was always happiest in a crowd, and the clang and clamor of metropolitan life were music in his ears. He walked along with head erect, stepped on a baby or two, and a small dog, that mothers or nurses had dropped unnoticed in the excitement of traveling. He only came back to a realization of material things when his mother-in-law grabbed him by the ear and remarked, with a yell that would have frightened a street-car horse into a trot: "Jared, Jared! Martha's lost her new umb'rill!"

"Just like a woman," growled he, turning to his wife. "Where did you lose it?"

"Well, now, Jared, it's likely if I knew just where I lost it that I'd go right straight and get it. I suppose it's under the car seat, for I dropped my gum and tried to poke it out with the umbrella handle, and I remember perfectly well getting the gum, but I don't recollect picking up the umbrella."

"That's just the way," retorted he, "that half the money I earn is thrown away, literally thrown away. It will be a long time before I buy another umbrella, and if you don't stop that detestable practice of chewing gum, I shall have to give up my tobacco, and you know, Mrs. Brisk, that would practically end my life."

"Only five minutes till our train goes to Kansas City," said he, hurriedly, "and I wouldn't miss it for a thousand dollars. You see," added he, in a moralizing way, "we didn't need to take this trip; we didn't want to go; we didn't have time to go; but look at the cheapness of it! Only one dollar! Jemima! Any man is a fool who wouldn't take advantage of the cut rates of this railroad war, and if his family were unwilling to go, force them to see what cheap traveling means."

"Yo' can't get in dis cah, sah," said the porter, who had just locked the door of the reclining chair car. "Ebery seat is full, and we cain't go contrary to de rules, sah."

"JARED, FOR PITY'S SAKE, GIVE MOTHER A BOOST."

"Confound the rules!" panted Mr. Brisk, breathless from the task of getting the old lady thus far; "my wife is in that car, and I'll go in, or bust," and he made frantic but vain dives at the door.

"'Scuse me, sah, but I'se feared de gemman'll hab to bust; dat door cain't come open."

"You black, low-down, ornery nigger!"—but the porter had dodged just in time to let Mr. Brisk's fist come in contact with the corner of the car.

"My colored friend and brother, please open the door; I'll give you a dime, a quarter, a dollar!"

"Gemman'll be obleeged to wait for anudder car," blandly persisted the porter.

Just then Mrs. Brisk raised a window, sobbing: "Oh, Jared! oh, mother! come here, quick."

When they reached the window, she screamed: "Jared, for pity's sake, give mother a boost, and get her in this window!"

She reached down and Mr. Brisk reached up. For an instant the two hundred pounds of mother-in-law were suspended between heaven and earth; another instant, she was wedged in the window and couldn't move either way; then there was a shriek, a sudden flop, a number ten shoe fell at Mr. Brisk's feet and the old lady fell inside the window. He threw the shoe after her "for good luck," but it proved the reverse, as it hit the cheek of a drummer and was mashed into pulp. The by-standers, with a loud cheer, lifted Mr. Brisk to the car window. He was for the moment speechless, but waved his hand majestically, with the air of one who has surmounted obstacles and come out victorious.

The colored porter, who had fainted when the old lady lost her shoe, regained consciousness as the engine puffed and snorted. Mrs. Brisk held her husband's hand tightly in her own, and was still sobbing over her narrow escape, while her mother was shaking herself together, trying to find out which part of her crushed bonnet was the outside, and wondering if she would have to go back to Bobbletown to get a shoe small enough to fit her. The bell rang, the whistle sounded, the train moved and Mr. Brisk hugged himself with satisfaction that his dear family were once more together, en route for Kansas City, and it was only to cost them one dollar apiece. Oh! the cheapness of it! —Mary A. Benson, in Texas Siftings.

TWO MEN ARRESTED

Alleged Wreckers Caught by Central Detectives.

BOTH SAID TO BE STRIKERS.

Great Excitement at Albany Over a Rumored Confession.

The Railroad Officials Refuse to Give Any Facts—Captain Pinkerton Says He is in the Dark—Master Workman Lee Denies That One of the Men is a Striker.

ALBANY, Sept. 8.—John J. Reed, a brakeman residing at East Albany, was arrested at Hudson charged with wrecking the train near Castleton, Thursday night. It is said that he has confessed his crime and has given the names of four companions, all of whom, it is said, are strikers.

The greatest excitement prevails here and the strikers themselves make threats against Reed. He was brought to this city very quietly.

How the Arrest Was Made.

The facts are difficult to obtain, but it seems as soon as the detectives went to work they found traces of Reed, who is a well-known railroad man, his whole family being in the business. He was tracked to Schodiack and then to Hudson and during the night one of the detectives found him at a house of prostitution. The chief detective clapped him on the back and said: "Reed we want you at Albany." The man turned pale and said, "What for, that job at Castleton. Who squealed?"

Another Arrest.

Information obtained later is to the effect that Reed was arrested by Detective Bryant and a patrolman of the Hudson force in the room of a girl he habitually visited at Hudson. He was brought to this city and has been kept concealed for the purpose of securing a confession from him. The officers seem to have been successful in this, for "Lon" Miller, who lives on the New Road, East Greenbush, a short distance from the scene of the wreck, was arrested. Reed is commonly called "York" Reed. He is 33 years old and boarded at Thomas Dumas's on Broadway, Greenbush, up to the day of the wreck, since which time he has not been seen about the village. He is, notwithstanding the assertions of the K. of L. leaders to the contrary, a Knight of Labor, and was one who went out on the strike.

What Officials and Knights Say.

District Master Workman Lee declared that if Reed was a K. of L. he was not a striker, and his absence from work was probably due to his taking a few days' vacation.

Superintendent Bissell when asked if he could give some facts concerning the arrest, replied that while he knew of it he would refuse positively to say anything about it.

Captain Bob Pinkerton smiled when he was interrogated, and plaintively remarked, "I did not arrest him." Then he continued: "He was not arrested by my men, and if I know all about it I cannot say a word concerning it."

It is understood that the reticence of the railroad officials is due to the fact that several men here and in East Albany are being shadowed, and it is not deemed best to alarm them.

The Central Strike Investigation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—It is believed in organized labor circles that nothing can be done about the Central strike investigation until the next meeting of the Legislature in January. If the State Board of Arbitration, after a thorough investigation, concludes that there is sufficient ground for a report by them, they will formally present the evidence along with their deductions to the Legislature for action.

SULLIVAN'S FATHER DEAD.

The Pugilist-Actor Reaches the Bedside Too Late.

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—Michael Sullivan, father of John L. Sullivan, the pugilist, died here early in the morning of typhoid pneumonia. He was born in Ireland 65 years ago and came to Boston 40 years ago.

His wife died a year ago. He leaves two sons and one daughter. The funeral will be on Wednesday, from the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

John L. Sullivan was telegraphed for to New York, but did not reach this city until 7 a. m.

During the old gentleman's sickness he repeatedly asked for John, and when he was informed that he must soon die he asked that John be summoned that he might see him and grasp his big muscular hand once more. It was a sad greeting that the champion got at the little home of his father on his arrival there. He had hoped to see his poor old father before death overtook him. A tear trickled down his cheek as he bent over the body of his parent and imprinted a fervent kiss on his cold cheek. "My God!" said he. "'Tis too bad! And only one year ago to-day poor mother died."

It was at first thought that John's visit to Boston would necessitate the temporary suspension of "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands," in which he is playing, but he will be off the stage only one night as matters are now arranged, and that will be Wednesday, the day of the funeral.

College Chapel Dedication.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 8.—Rev. Dr. Hay, of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, and Rev. Dr. Butler, of Washington, officiated at the dedication of the Pennsylvania College Chapel, erected by the late Col. V. P. Bruce, of Philadelphia.

FIRED BY A CIGARETTE.

A Young Woman Falls Asleep While Smoking and is Horribly Burned.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Early last evening a young woman who is known at her boarding house, 54 Lexington avenue, as Ethel Curtis, was reclining on a sofa in her room reading a novel and smoking a cigarette.

She fell asleep, and the cigarette, falling from her fingers, set her clothing on fire. She awoke and rushed to the window, where she was seen by two young men across the street, who ran to her rescue. When they reached the room the girl's clothing was burned from her body and her flesh almost roasted. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where her injuries were pronounced fatal. She died two hours after the doctors' examination.

Though she was known as Ethel Curtis, her real name is Lizzie Brown, of Providence, R. I., where her stepfather, John Wilson, resides at 146 Deane street. She has been employed as a typewriter and stenographer.

SIXTEEN KILLED.

Additional Names of the Victims of the Spokane Falls Explosion.

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., Sept. 8.—It is now certain that sixteen men were killed and seven severely injured by the premature explosion of dynamite while blasting rock in the Northern Pacific freight yards here.

The dead are: Joseph McPherson, foreman; B. Viltzr, James Talbo, powdermen; A. Puelonelis, J. A. Holm, Joseph Ray, John Cartlino, rockmen; Henry Jacobini, Henry Apted, Ray Pinkney, drillers; six drillers, names not known.

The injured are: John Rhine, head badly cut; John Reeth, shoulder blade and arms dislocated and arm broken; Mat Eulolo, compound fracture of both bones of the right leg and severe scalp wounds; Jacob Mackie, injured internally; H. U. Hayes, whole upper jaw blown away, nose and right ear gone and both legs broken; John O. Blaine, injured internally; Joseph Bannie, injured internally.

HORRIBLE SUICIDE.

A Farmer Pulls Out His Bowels and Afterwards Cut His Throat.

HONEOYE FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Artemia Bennett, a farmer, living eight miles south of this village, committed suicide in a horrible manner.

Bennett cut his bowels open and stamped them on the ground and afterwards cut his throat.

Being in the best of financial circumstances and having happy relations with his family, his act is thought to have been the result of temporary insanity.

Two Legs and an Arm Amputated.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Three weeks ago James Walsh, while intoxicated, was run over by a train on the New York Central. The great quantity of liquor he had consumed previously served as a stimulant for the amputation of both legs and his entire left arm. His collar bone was also badly fractured. He is rapidly recovering, and will be sent to his home in Marquette, Mich., in a few days. The doctors regard the operation as a triumph of surgery, and say the whisky probably saved his life.

Independent Order of Conductors.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 8.—A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Independent Order of Railway Conductors was held here yesterday. The resignation of president Calvin S. Wheatson was accepted and E. D. Nash, of St. Albans, Vt., was elected to fill the vacancy. W. W. Pardee, conductor on the New York & New Haven road, was elected a vice-president. A committee of five was appointed to prepare and issue a circular setting forth the principles and aims of the order.

What Vessel is This?

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 8.—The steamer Rialto, Captain Akester, arrived in this port to-day from Antwerp, and reports that on August 46, in latitude 49.42 degrees north, longitude 17.40 degrees west, she passed an abandoned and waterlogged vessel, apparently an American of about one thousand tons burden. Her decks were swept and masts gone by the board. She had a white painted figurehead.

Says Her Husband Is Cruel.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 8.—Mrs. Ella Kipp of Point Pleasant has instituted suit against her husband, Charles E. Kipp, for absolute divorce, on the ground of desertion and cruelty. The husband is connected with the Asbury Park police force, and was recently appointed a special constable for the Law and Order League.

A Society Surprise.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 8.—William O'Sullivan Dempfelt, the former husband of Minnie mills, the society actress, has married Mrs. Marie P. Hollyday, a dashing widow of Hartford County. Mr. and Mrs. Dempfelt had been separated for some time, but until the publication of the marriage notice the divorce had been a secret.

Took the Dare.

NEW YORK, Sept 8.—Lillie Young, a chorus girl, while returning from Coney Island on a steamer, was challenged by her escort to leap into the bay. She sprang from the rail in an instant into the water and might have been drowned had not a tug rescued her in the nick of time.

Died Suddenly of Apoplexy.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 8.—Hon. Henry H. Huse, State Insurance Commissioner, died suddenly last night of apoplexy. He was 51 years of age and has held several important positions.

ALL EYES ON MAINE

Great Interest Taken in To-Day's Election.

MUCH APPARENT INDIFFERENCE

It is Thought the Vote Will be Lighter Than Usual in Off Years.

Gov. Burleigh Satisfied With the Management of the Campaign—Speculating on the Result in Speaker Reed's District—Chairman Manley Gives His Views on the Result of To-Day's Ballot.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 8.—Interest in the State election in progress to-day centers in the First Congressional District, where Speaker Reed is a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Reed's friends say they will be satisfied with 1,500 plurality, but some of the more sanguine really expect considerably more. There is much apparent indifference, and it is thought the vote will be lighter than usual even in off years. This situation is an anomaly in this State, as the fever of politics usually runs high here.

Gov. Burleigh Satisfied.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 8.—Gov. Burleigh is entirely satisfied with the general management of the campaign, and is in excellent spirits. He has received stacks of encouraging letters from representative men of his party in all parts of the State. Chairman Manley has gone over the final canvas, and while he admits that there will be a heavy falling off of the total vote in the State, he is very confident that the Republicans will poll more than their usual off-year majority. He feels assured that the Republicans will carry every county save Lincoln, Knox and Waldo, and he believes that in those three counties the chances are in favor of the Republicans. Mr. Manley says:

"The plurality in off years since 1866 has never exceeded 11,000, save in 1869, when it was 12,281; in 1873, when it was 12,320, and in 1886, when it was 13,500. But Governor Burleigh's plurality will be fully 13,000, and Congressman Reed will be returned by the largest plurality he has received save in 1888."

Mr. Manley realizes that the fight has been in the First District, and that the Republicans throughout the State are as anxious for Speaker Reed's election as though they were his immediate constituents. He places Reed's plurality at 2,000.

In the Second District Congressman Dingley will be re-elected as usual, and Milliken in the Third and Boutelle in the Fourth are pretty sure of another term.

TOOK HIS SCALP.

Two Drunken Indians Attack a Railroad Section Foreman.

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., Sept. 8.—While John Wolverline, a section foreman on the Northern Pacific Railroad, was walking on the track near Hope Station last evening he met two Indians who appeared to be intoxicated and turned aside to allow them to pass.

The Indians stopped him and demanded liquor. Wolverline said he had none and was about to proceed, when one of the Indians named John Deere struck him on the head with a club, knocking him senseless.

Some time later Wolverline recovered consciousness to find that he had been scalped. He crawled to a saloon some distance away, where he was cared for. The Indians escaped.

Killed at the Same Place.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 8.—A man named Cox was found dying in the street about two weeks ago. His skull was fractured and he soon expired. A stevedore named Charles Kelly told the police that he saw one Robert Geary strike the blow which killed Cox. Geary proved an alibi and was released. Kelly was found with his skull crushed early in the morning near the same spot where Cox was killed. He died in a few hours. Six men who slept in the room with Kelly Saturday night are under arrest.

The Dog Was Mad.

LOWELL, Sept. 8.—A report has been published that the physicians of the Pasteur Institute in New York have determined that a dog which bit several persons here about two months ago was suffering from rabies. The head of the dog was sent to the institute for experiment. Among those bitten was Mrs. Arthur Whitney, wife of the well-known ball player. She and another person who was bitten by the dog have for some time been under treatment at the institute.

An Ill-Fated Train.

NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 8.—It appears that the railroad accident at South Norwalk Saturday night was the third that occurred to the express on the same run. It was an hour late at South Norwalk because of two accidents. Just below Hartford a woman who was crossing the track was struck and killed, and just below Meriden two men who were walking on the track were struck and both fatally injured. All three accidents occurred when the trains were running at a reduced rate of speed.

Paris Green to End His Spree.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 8.—John Bogart, 60 years old, a gunmaker employed at the Winchester Armory, went on a spree on Saturday night, and ended it and his life yesterday morning by taking a dose of Paris green.

Flood Damages.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—It is estimated that the damage done by the floods in Central Europe amounts to $20,000,000.

WON THE $1,000 PRIZE.

Over 3,000 Competitors for the Novel Offer Made by Harvard College.

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—Some three years ago Dr. D. A. Sargent, director of the Hemennay Gymnasium at Harvard College, offered $1,000 in two prizes to persons, male and female, whose physical proportions should most nearly approach perfect symmetry as indicated by his anthropometric chart.

The object of both chart and prizes is to stimulate the youth of both sexes with a laudable incentive to systematic and judicious physical training with a view of reaching as nearly as possible the normal standard. The time allowed for the competition was three years, and there have been about 3,000 competitors.

The prizes have been awarded as follows: Prize for the most perfect male development, Henry Chaster Jackson, Wiscasset, Maine, senior in Bowdoin College and prominent as an oarsman since entering college. Prize for most perfect female development, Margaret Blanche Best, Meadville, Pa., member of the summer school of physical training at Hemennay Gymnasium and instructor of physical training at Allegheny College.

Mr. Jackson's nearest competitor was William Fay Garcelon, graduate of Bates College and director of the Forsyth School Gymnasium, Philadelphia. Miss Best's closest rivals were two members of the Hemennay Summer School, a saleswoman in a Boston store, a teacher at Wellesley Highlands, a pupil of Lasell Seminary, Auburndale, and two members of the Berkeley Ladies' Athletic Club of New York, both daughters of prominent lawyers in that city. It is understood that similar prizes are to be offered the coming year.

SWEPT BY A CYCLONE.

Several People Injured and Cattle Crushed to Death.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 8.—A report of a terrible cyclone reached here last night from Roan and Jackson Counties.

The storm passed near Le Roy and Meadowville, in Jackson County, going in a northeasterly direction. It struck the earth near the farm of W. H. Davis, near Le Roy, and swept away everything in its path. Hay stacks, fences, crops and timber were flattened out or destroyed. A number of cattle were picked up and carried several hundred yards and or ushed to death.

On the Adams place barns, cattle, hay and out-buildings were crushed and carried away. At George Boggs' farm sheep barns, with a large flock of sheep and his granaries, were carried away. Not a living thing was left in the path of the storm. From the Boggs place the cyclone dropped again and carried away the dwelling of Farmer Kebauch, leaving not a stick of timber. There were nine people in the house: Kebauch, his wife, two children and five others, all of whom were terribly injured, four reported fatally. The cyclone and cloud burst was the most destructive and fatal that has struck this section for many years.

DE LEUVILLE'S LATEST.

The Marquis's Explanation as to the Delayed Duel.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Marquis de Leuville has not as yet made much capital by his latest advertising scheme of the duel.

At present he is carrying on a lively bombardment of the newspapers and his friends, taking Boulogne as his base of operations, and firing from that city a hail of paper pellets by telegraph, purporting to give the reasons for the delay in the deadly combat. The latest excuse is that the doughty Marquis's adversary is so disabled by the blow dealt him by De Leuville in their London quarrel, that he has begged for a truce in order to repair damages and get into fighting trim.

Found a Bag of Bones.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Three boys were amusing themselves in front of 1,347 Broadway at 10 o'clock in the morning by kicking about the street a potato sack which had something in that rattled. They saw Policeman Herrlich coming and ran away, leaving the bag. When the policeman got to the bag he opened it, and found all the bones of a woman's skeleton in it. Each bone had a little hole in it, showing that the skeleton had either been mounted or had been prepared for mounting.

His First Man.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—M. Mermeix, who was recently assaulted by friends of General Boulanger because he published alleged revelations concerning the General, has fought one of the seven duels which he has on his hands. The meeting took place yesterday. M. Labruyere, who was M. Mermeix's adversary, was slightly wounded.

Two Arrests for an Old Murder.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 8.—On June 23, 1887, John Walker, a canal boat captain, was robbed and murdered near Waterford. James Miller, long suspected of the deed, was arrested at Whitehall yesterday. He said he saw John Connors commit the murder, and the latter has just been captured.

Col. Stone Defeats George Shiras.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 8.—At the primaries in the Twenty-third Congressional district, Col. Stone defeated George Shiras by a popular vote of about 5,000. Stone ran in Congressman Bayne's district and will be his successor.

Arrested for Grand Larceny.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Adolph Plas a, a salesman, was arrested last night on a telegram from the chief of police of St. Louis and held on a charge of grand larceny to await requisition papers.

IN CONGRESS TO-DAY

Senators Continue the Debate on the Sugar Schedule.

A DECIDING VOTE TO-MORROW.

The Division on the Final Ballot Will be on Strict Party Lines.

A New Order of Business to be Arranged Before the End of the Week The Virginia Contested Election Case to be Called Up for Action in the House To-morrow.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The Senate will dispose of the Tariff bill this week. To-day was devoted to debate on the sugar schedule and the reciprocity proposition under the 30 minute rule, the agreement being that a final vote of the bill be taken to-morrow. The chances are that a vote will not be had before Wednesday or Thursday, and it may be that some further time will be allowed for general debate.

There is no doubt that the bill will pass, the expectation being that the division on the final vote will be on strict party lines.

Mr. Frye will probably ask the Senate to agree to the conference report on the River and Harbor bill to-morrow morning. If there is any disposition to debate the report, it will go over until the Tariff bill has been disposed of.

Mr. Plumb has given notice that he will call up the conference report on the Land Grant Forfeiture bill when the Tariff bill is out of the way, and Mr. Sawyer has announced his intention to ask immediate consideration for the anti-Lottery bill. It is probable that before the end of the week the "Steering Committee" will arrange a new order of business.

To-morrow the contested election case of Langston against Venable, from the Fourth District of Virginia, will be called up in the House, and it will be immediately followed by the case of Miller against Elliott, from the Seventh District of South Carolina. The Republican members of the Committee on Elections have declared in favor of Messrs. Langston and Miller, both negroes, and it is safe to say that they will be seated, although General Mahone, it is understood, is opposed to the seating of Langston, and some breaks among the Republicans may occur in the vote on this case. In every contested election case that has been before the House this session the House has sustained the majority of the Elections Committee.

The conference report on the General Deficiency bill is expected before the end of the week, and it is possible that the Tariff bill will come from the Senate. There is but little disposition on the part of the Democrats to delay the bill, and it will probably be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means under the rules, reported back with a general disagreement, debated briefly and sent to conference.

NEWS FROM THE PRESIDENT.

He Strolls Through the Woods and Receives a Call from Mr. Pullman.

CRESSON SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 8.—The storm which begun on Saturday gave way to bright sunshine in the morning, and it has been an ideal summer day. Mr. Russell Harrison spent Sunday with his family and went East last night. Mrs. Russell Harrison is contemplating going West to-morrow.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Dimmick, and Secretary Halford, attended divine worship in the large parlor of the Mountain House at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The services were conducted by Rev. George Rodgers, an Episcopal clergyman from Verona, Pa. Miss Jeannette Halford assisted in leading the singing. The young lady also sang with good effect a solo entitled "Angel of Charities."

In the afternoon the President and Mrs. Dimmick indulged in another stroll through the woods. Last night Mr. George M. Pullman, of Parlor Car fame, arrived on the Chicago Limited express, stopping off here to pay his respects to the President.

A Pugilistic Mayor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Mayor Gleason of Long Island City committed an unprovoked and brutal assault upon Geo. A. Crowley, the Long Island representative of the Associated Press, last night. Mr. Crowley stood talking with a number of prominent gentlemen in Miller's Long Island City Hotel when the Mayor entered, and seeing Crowley, exclaimed: "You are a loafer and a thief!" Mr. Crowley resented the accusation, whereupon Gleason knocked him down. The Mayor was finally induced to desist, and Mr. Crowley went out in search of a warrant for Gleason's arrest, but could find no magistrate at home. The Grand Jury will convene to-morrow, and Mr. Crowley intends to take steps to have the Mayor indicted for assault.

Rhodes Acquitted of Murder.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Sept. 8.—John Rhodes was acquitted of the murder of his nephew, William Rhodes, by shooting him on April 19 last. The men had been visiting Hagerstown, Md., during the day, and while there had quarreled. On their return to their home in this county the quarrel was resumed, when William drawing a revolver, was killed by John. The jury based its verdict on the theory of self-defense.

A Fight in Armenia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 8.—News has been received of a fight between Armenians and gendarmes at Baghtchedik, near Ismid. Five gendarmes were killed. Troops have been sent to assist the gendarmes.

THE BASEBALL STRUGGLE.

Both Leagues Now Making a Hard Fight for the Finish.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—In the National League race for the baseball pennant Brooklyn has a commanding lead over the Bostons, their leading competitors, but as the Grooms are now on a more even footing with the Bostons this advantage will be reduced. The Brooklyns have no more games to play at home, while the Bostons have at least six. This is favorable to the last named club. Unless Byrnes' men can continue to hold their present lead while in the East their chances of becoming champions are not over bright. In the West the Bostons have had the best record all around. They have won more games and have not had a single one transferred, as was the case with the Brooklyns and the Philadelphias in the Pittsburg series. If the Bostons succeed in holding their present standing and play as well in the West as on former trips there is reason for the Grooms to feel uneasy.

The general standing of the Players' teams in the championship race is exactly the same as in the League. If anything the closeness of the five leaders to each other has added more interest to the battle of the Players than their rivals. Boston has a lead of only a few games over the New Yorks and Brooklyns and both of these teams are nip and tuck for second place, with the chances at present in favor of the Giants, who won Saturday's game. Captain Kelly's men stand a good chance of carrying off the championship, but it is not yet an assured fact. Their record in the West and before their start may alter their standing enough to give the Giants or Brooklyns a possible lead by October 4. It is not likely that either of the teams mentioned will push Boston hard enough to make them exert themselves. The players are all in good fix with the exception of Pitcher Kilroy. Radbourne never did better work, and can be depended on this year to take the boys down the homestretch with flying colors, and the other pitchers will help him along. It will pay the Boston boys to keep a sharp lookout for Ewing's crowd, who have figured right along on a Garrison finish. The Chicago and Philadelphia clubs are not out of the race. To win the flag, however, with only four more weeks, would indeed be phenomenal playing.

Boys' Camp have met him frequently and are pleased to count him among their friends. Members of the society are urged to attend.

—The recent shooting accident at Fanwood, which resulted in the death of little Freddie Kissam at the hands of his fourteen-year-old brother, prompts the editor of The Somerset Democrat to moralize concerning the careless use of firearms. "There ought," he says, "to be other amusements found for small boys than carrying a gun, with which occasionally they may kill a robin, or other tame bird, but which are a constant terror to every other child or grown person in the neighborhood. The muzzle of a gun pointed straight at the body of a person walking along the highway may have no really dangerous quality, but it certainly inspires reasonable fear, especially when in the hands of small boys."

The anniversary of the dedication of St. Mary's church, of this city, was held yesterday. The Rev. Father Quill, Professor in St. Peter's College, Jersey City, preached the sermon. The musical portion of the services was rendered by the regular choir of the church in an acceptable manner.

Score: Love—15.

He raised his tennis racket,
Brought it forward with a sweep;
And then he "cut" the ball, he said,—
He must have cut it deep.
Away it soared—a master serve,
According to his story;
But it busted forty panes of glass
In my conservatory.

THE TRENTONS DIDN'T COME.

They Said the Weather Was Bad, But Others Said 'Twasn't.

The game of base-ball scheduled for Saturday between the Trentons and the Crescent League didn't occur. The Trentons staid away from Plainfield, evidently afraid to come. They had defeated the Crescents, earlier in the season, in a game the Crescents ought to have won, and were well aware that they had no chance of winning the second game.

The weather in Plainfield Saturday morning was inclined to be showery, but the weather-wise base-ball management had sufficient gift of prophecy to know that there wasn't going to be rain enough to affect having a game, so they wired to the Trentons to come rain or shine. The Trentons twice sent word that they would surely be on hand for a game, and at about noon the Crescents received a message that the Trentons would reach here on the 3:12 train.

The train came, but the Trentons didn't, and in the evening they telegraphed that the rain had poured such torrents in Trenton that they couldn't get away. The manager of the Crescents promptly telephoned to other Trenton parties, and received the information that no rain whatever had fallen in Trenton during the day.

As soon as it was evident that the Trentons had failed to keep their promise the Crescent management announced the fact to the expectant spectators, and stated that although a "scrub" game would be given all who desired could get their admission fee returned by applying at the box office. Owing to the fact that the cashier had but a limited supply of small change, and as few could change his bills, a number had to be given tickets instead of money. These tickets for this one game may be redeemed for cash at Laing's Hall, Tuesday evening at eight o'clock.

Westfield, 17; Elizabeth, 3.

A large crowd of people were gathered together at Drake Park, Westfield, on Saturday, to see the Westfields play the Alerts. In this game there was double interest, first, because wretched umpiring gave the Alerts a game at Elizabeth on August 23, when the Westfields, far and away, outbatted and outfielded the Alerts; and second, because everyone wanted to see what kind of a showing Westfield would make in comparison with the late Crescent-Alert game. The gathering was highly pleased in both respects, for the Westfields showed themselves head and shoulders above the Alerts in all points of the game; gave the Alerts a sound thrashing and made a favorable comparative showing with the Crescents.

The Westfields could have had thirty runs had not the men received orders to strike out quickly in the latter part of the game; and in this game the Westfields had not DeWitt, Partridge or Warner, three of their heavy men. The score was:

A Friendly Contest.

The Trentons being too frightened at the Crescents' uninterupted succession of victories to dare play them again, the managers of the home team could only get up a scrub match for the interest and amusement of those in attendance at the ball grounds, Saturday evening. The score was:

SCHOLARS RESUME THEIR STUDIES.

Miss Bulkley Tells Them They Have the Best Advantages in the World.

The Plainfield public schools re-opened today with increased attendances. The day was occupied with arranging the classes and announcing the schedules of studies.

Interesting opening exercises were held at the Stillman High School. Besides the address of welcome by the Principal, Miss Julia E. Bulkley, who has just returned from a trip of more than a year abroad, speeches were made by Dr. J. B. Probasco, of the Board of Education, Wm. J. Leonard, and Franklin B. Wiley of the High School Class of '79. Miss Bulkley compared our public school system with that of other countries, and stated that our pupils were afforded the best advantages in the world. While in England she was allowed free access to the public schools in London, through the introduction of Dr. Fitch, Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools; and through the intercession of Minister Phelps was favored by Herr Von Gossler, the Minister of Public Instruction in Germany, with an insight into the workings of the German school system, a privilege accorded to few. As a result of her examination of the various systems she unhesitatingly pronounced ours the most thorough and satisfactory.

The corps of teachers in the public schools for the coming year has had but few changes. E. H. Hunt, an Amherst graduate, will succeed Lincoln B. Goodrich as assistant principal, taking charge of the senior class work in the languages and mathematics. Miss Stout's faithful services at the Franklin school during last year, when she filled Miss Bullock's position while Miss Bullock was absent, have been rewarded by appointment as principal of the Bryant school. Miss Stowell, of the Bryant school, has gone to the far west, and Miss Owen has been removed from the Irving building to fill her place.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Thrown Out of Their Carriage.

Just before noon today, the horse that Frederick Sandford was driving before the phaeton in which was seated himself and wife, was suddenly startled by something, and in turning from Somerset street into Craig place cramped the carriage so short as to wreck both wheels on one side. Mr. and Mrs. Sandford were thrown completely out. The former escaped all danger except to his clothes, but Mrs. Sandford was considerably bruised. She was taken to her home on Washington avenue, where she was treated by Dr. Long. No serious results are feared. The horse, which ran away with the broken carriage, was subsequently caught.

They Will Sing October Songs.

The Westfield Musical Society has over one hundred and fifty members enrolled. The first general rehearsal will be held October 4. The following officers have been elected:

President—James O. Clark: First Vice President—Joseph Sherman; Second Vice President—Robert Luckey: Secretary—W. B. Dudley; Assistant Secretary—J. W. Sansom, Jr.; Financial Secretary—Charles H. Day; Treasurer—J. W. Beebe; Librarian—L. A. Lightfoot; Assistant Librarian—R. P. Grant.

His Arm Mending.

Little George Bremer, Jr., eight years of age, who fell in the North Plainfield gymnasium, last Friday, and sustained a fracture of his fore-arm, has entirely recovered from the shock and is otherwise doing well under the care of Dr. Long.

Good 'Possum Hunting in Plainfield.

Private watchman Moran killed two opossums on East Front street, before daylight this morning. One was near ex-Councilman Beguelin's home, and the other nearer the city just in front of the Myers residence.

Connecticut Elks.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 8.—The first annual reunion of the lodges of Elks in Connecticut will be held in this city to-morrow. There are lodges in Hartford, Danbury, Meriden and New Haven, each of which will be represented. These, with other visiting Elks, will make a company of nearly 300.

Fell From the Fifth Story Window.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 8.—E. E. Smith of Binghamton, a guest at the Breezel Hotel, fell from the fifth story window of the hotel to the pavement about 1 a. m. and was instantly killed.

Fifteen New Cases of Cholera.

MADRID, Sept. 8.—Fifteen new cases of cholera and eleven deaths occurred yesterday in the city of Valencia. The disease is decreasing in the province of Valencia and elsewhere in Spain.

Inventions of the 19th Century.

The steamboat, the reaper, the sewing machine,
Cars running by night and by day,
Houses lighted by gas and heated by steam,
And bright electricity's ray.

The telegraph's click speeds like lightning released,
Then the telephone comes to excel it;
And, to put on the finish, the last, but not least,
Is the famed little Purgative Pellet.

Last, but not least, is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellet, because it relieves human suffering, adds to the sum of human comfort, and enables the relieved sufferer to enjoy all the blessings and luxuries of the age we live in.

OFFERED TO BURN DOWN THE HOUSE.

And Punctuated His Generous Speech With Pistol Bullets.

When the inhabitants of the Borough heard pistol shots, Saturday night, resounding along the atmosphere over the territory where Stony brook runs across lots from Somerset street to Grove, they knew that the old feud between Louis Sprigg and Louis Wyckoff had broken out into bloody hostilities.

Mr. Wyckoff and Mr. Sprigg both live on Howard street, in houses opposite one another. If the Wyckoffs once loved the Spriggs, and the Spriggs the Wyckoffs, that love vanished long ago, for the enmity between the two households is firmly established. Ever since the youthful scion of the house of Spriggs first uttered that charming refrain—

Wyckoff, Wyckoff,
I'll knock your head off!

in the ears of one of the younger Wyckoff children, and the insulted child responded with—

Sprigg, Sprigg, you think you're big;
Go wash your face, you dirty pig!

there has been bitter feeling between the two families.

Beyond the throwing of stones at the dogs of the enemy, however, and the casting of hot and unclean dishwater at the spies from the enemy's camp, and the hurling of cabbage-stalks against the enemy's front doors, no serious attempts to strew the sod with gore have been made, until Saturday.

Saturday night Louis Wyckoff was enjoying the pleasures of the family circle when he heard some one thumping against his side fence. In the code of punishments of the Wyckoff-Sprigg feud to thump against the side fence is a gross insult, and Mr. Wyckoff at once suspected that the thumper was the senior Sprigg.

As soon as Mr. Wyckoff showed himself Sprigg jeered and laughed, and seemed greatly tickled with the idea that he had disturbed the equanimity of the Wyckoffs. Then he produced a revolver, and fired bullets into the fence, and pranced around in the vacant lots, and fired more bullets, some at the fence, some at the wood shed, and some at the house. At this Wild West exhibition Mr. Wyckoff went in and got a gun, and told Mr. Sprigg to vanish. Mr. Sprigg was bold and defiant, and told Mr. Wyckoff to go back and get a kerosene can, so that he, Mr. Sprigg, could set fire to the Wyckoff house. Mr. Wyckoff raised his gun to his shoulder, and Mr. Sprigg, seeing that the gun meant business, retired to a respectful distance.

The result of the rencounter was the arrest of Mr. Sprigg, and when the case had been thoroughly ventilated before Justice Hardy yesterday the prisoner was adjudged guilty and fined $10 and costs.

REFORM HALL.

A Splendid Address by Mr. Haines.

A hearty welcome greeted Samuel A. Haines in Reform Hall last evening, a pleasing feature of the occasion being a large and beautiful floral display contributed by a prominent citizen of Union county in honor of the distinguished speaker.

Mr. Haines, after narrating numerous interesting incidents connected with the growth of temperance sentiment across the Atlantic, went on and delivered an address of great eloquence and power against the awful effects of intoxicating liquor. He pled earnestly for an awakened conscience among the Christian people of our country on behalf of God, Home and Native Land, and the coming of that glorious day when prohibition ballots shall fall like snowflakes in the air, all legal authority be withdrawn from the devastating liquor traffic, and home happiness reign supreme. Profound attention followed his remarks from beginning to end.

President Harper presided, the Rev. Mr. Honeyman read the scripture lesson and offered a fervent prayer, and a full choir, led by Mr. Vanderbeek, conducted the musical exercises.

The President made the following announcements:

An invitation from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to attend their anniversary meeting in the Congregational church, this evening.

The excursion of the Reform Club to Mauch Chunk and the Switchback on Wednesday, the 10th inst.

And also, that Mr. Haines would again occupy the platform of Reform Hall at an early date.

Doctor Honeyman pronounced the benediction and the assemblage dispersed.

The Bovine Concerts Must Go.

Complaints are again loud in the Borough that stray cows are impounded in the yard at the rear of the lock-up, to the great annoyance of the neighbors. THE PRESS has had occasion to call attention to this nuisance before, and for a time it was lessened, but of late, it is said, it has been especially obnoxious. The Borough has elected several pound-keepers, but there is great difficulty in getting them to serve, and the duties of pound-keeper have devolved considerably on Marshal Rutledge. The complaints sent to THE PRESS have been presented before Mayor Place, who professed ignorance of the state of affairs and heartily promised that he would see to it that in the future animals in pound shall be kept in a place where their all-night concerts won't be a disturbance to the people.

—Wm. Goeller went on a clam-bake yesterday, and when he returned in the evening he injured his foot severely by leaping from a wagon.

TURNED OUT THE PUBLIC.

Alleged Union County Road Frauds Secretly Discussed.

(From the New York World.)

The Republican majority in the Union County Board of Freeholders at their recent meeting did not openly discuss the serious charges made against the county road jobbery by Franklin L. Pope, of Elmora. They chose to debate the matter with doors closed to the press and the public. When the Board had been assembled a short time Freeholder West moved that it go into executive session on the county road matter, and the reporters and a number of prominent citizens, including the last Director of the Board, ex-Freeholder C. W. L. Martine, were forced to retire.

Ex-Freeholder Martine was fairly boiling over with indignation, and denounced the action of the Board as an insult to the taxpayers of the county, who had a perfect right to know what their representatives were deliberating about. "Such a thing," remarked Mr. Martine, "as going into secret session when public matters were to be discussed was unheard of in all my experience of several years as an officer and member of the Board. Matters must be coming to a pretty pass when Freeholders are afraid to have their opinions on important county matters published. When I was Director of the Board, if any criticisms were made by the Elizabeth Board of Trade or any individual against the acts of the Freeholders we always courteously invited the faultfinders to attend our meetings, witness the way our committees transacted business, and if there was any grievance to complain of to make it known then and there, and it would be fairly and freely considered, open and above board, and not with closed doors and the press and public barred out.

"I unhesitatingly repeat that the action of the Board in preventing the assembled citizens from hearing what the Freeholders had to say in reply to Mr. Pope's attack was an outrage. Nearly all those who attended the meeting went there expressly to hear what the Board had to offer in defense of its action on the county road question."

The charges of fraud and collusion made by Mr. Pope were pointed, and were done in a public manner over his own signature. It is the general verdict that they should have been as openly met by the Board and refuted, if possible, or satisfactorily explained. The failure to do this publicly, it is held, does not argue well for the position of the Freeholders. The county road transactions are under the especial supervision of the Freeholders, and if Mr. Pope's allegations are true they are strongly tinctured with fraud and imperfect work.

UNION COUNTY'S GROWTH.

Its Population Only 128 Less Than That of Mercer.

According to the census just taken the counties of Mercer and Union are running a neck-and-neck race in the competition for population, Mercer leading Union with only 128 more inhabitants. The population of Mercer county is 80,075, and Union's population is 79,947. At the wonderful rate of increase in Union Township during the past five years, the prediction is freely wagered that when the census of the year 1900 is taken Union will be found to be leading Mercer by a good round margin.

The growth of the small towns along the line of the New Jersey Central Railroad in Union county has been phenomenal during the past two years, and the time is not far distant when a continuous city will extend from Newark Bay to the county-line of Plainfield, as the county road system, when finished, will connect the various towns, cities and villages of the county, and the land along these fine roads will be all covered with handsome dwellings.

Even now the rapid increase of the real estate transactions in the county betokens what is coming, and every available tract of land bordering on the county roads is being largely sought for building purposes. What a few years ago was acres of farm land or grazing fields for cattle is now being fast converted into building lots, which will not have to remain long in the market waiting for purchasers.

All the signs point to a great future in store for Union county, whose close proximity to New York renders property within its limits doubly desirable to people doing business in that city but who nevertheless prefer fresh, wholesome and pure air for their families. The excellent railroad facilities in the county, through which two big trunk lines, the Central and Pennsylvania, now run, and to which will soon be added the Lehigh Valley, is another powerful inducement to outsiders to make their homes in Union county.

The Chuckle Will Change at Easter Time.

The vacation-loving young people of the Borough are chuckling today because their public school does not re-open until next week Monday, while the Plainfield schools opened this morning. The difference is accounted for by the fact that the city schools close for one week at Easter time, while the North Plainfield schools do not, the Borough Trustees preferring to add the week to the Summer holidays.

—A. B. Carney, of North Plainfield, has been nominated for Coroner by the Somerset County Prohibitionists.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

The assembly of the Scottish Rite bodies of the northern jurisdiction to be held at Cleveland next month, will be a memorable gathering in the history of the Rite. Oriental Consistory, of Chicago, in full uniform, will act as escort to Henry L. Palmer, Sovereign Grand Commander, and Cleveland Consistory will give an elaborate reception in honor of the visiting princes and their ladies. Generous hospitality and fraternal greetings will rule the occasion, and the interest of the meeting will be enhanced by the public appearance of this exclusive branch of Masonry doing escort duty in their gorgeous uniforms. The Masonic gates of the Forest City will be open to the Sublime Princes from near and far.

Knights Templar encampments in Illinois have proved so successful this year that they may be regarded as an established feature of Templarism in the Prairie State. The record of the Rockford camp is a catalogue of festivities, pleasant reunions, courteous hospitality and general enjoyment. At Havana the camp was beautifully situated, the hospitality extended by the citizens and fraters was generous in the extreme, the attendance was larger than anticipated—twenty-seven commanderies being represented—and several pleasant days were spent on the tented field. Grand Commander George M. Moulton was in attendance during the last two days of the camp.

Within the next six months the fraternity of Chicago will be able to point to a handsome Masonic Temple, completed and ready for occupancy. The foundations of the new structure are being built, and the corner stone will be laid with imposing ceremonies and a great public parade early in October. The structure will be six stories high surmounted by a dome of magnificent proportions. It will contain one of the largest and best appointed lodge halls for lodge, chapter and commandery purposes in the country.

An effort is being made by the Virginia Masons to build a memorial temple at Fredericksburg, in memory of the Masonic life and services of Washington. The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts has already contributed $1,000 to the enterprise.

Knights of Pythias.

The lodges of Indianapolis have united for the purpose of giving an exemplification of the amplified third rank on a grand scale next October. Invitations have been sent out to prominent members of the order and lodges in every part of the country, and the gathering will be a large and interesting one, the work will be illustrated most elaborately, and the costuming will be something of a novelty.

The Milwaukee conclave seems to have a stimulating effect on the Uniform Rank. In most of the States new divisions are being constantly organized and the membership in the old divisions is rapidly increasing everywhere. In Chicago a new division is about being instituted, where the initiation fee will be seventy-five dollars, which will include a standard uniform. This is to be the most exclusive body of the rank in the world.

Odd-Fellows.

The action of the Grand Lodge of Missouri at its last annual session, in excluding from membership in the order all liquor dealers, is making considerable of a row in that State. Many of the brewers are shining lights in the order and the saloon-keeping members are numerous. The brewers now declare they will, by every means in their power, resist any attempt to enforce the resolutions of the Grand Lodge on the liquor question. It seems likely that the brewers will succeed, as this class legislation meets with little favor among the conservative members of the order. In any event there is a bitter fight on hand.

The next session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, to be held at Topeka, Kan., next month, will be a lively one. The Chicago cantonment has stirred up a feeling of discontent among the order in various parts of the country, which will find expression at the meeting of the Grand Lodge. Then there will be a struggle for the office of Deputy Grand Sire, and there are several prominent candidates in the field for the office of Commander of the Patriarchs Militant. The opposition to John C. Underwood is constantly spreading, and if he is re-elected there will be a serious breach in the ranks of this branch of the order. Deputy Grand Sire Busbee will be re-elected to the office of Grand Sire without opposition.

Royal Arcanum.

The Grand Regent of Illinois has established a system of official and fraternal visitations among the councils of State that have been attended with excellent results so far. The membership is increasing, and, what is of most importance, the attendance at council meetings is improving. In other jurisdictions a similar plan is to be adopted for awakening interest in the order.

W. H. MCDOUGALL.

Paresis Perhaps.

Inquiring Guest—Waiter!

Waiter—Yes, sah.

Inquiring Guest—What is that you have let fall on my bread?

Waiter—Dat, sah, is calf's brains on toast, sah.

Inquiring Guest (after long and careful observation)—What a deuced idiot that calf must have been!—Puck.

RAISING A FAMILY.

In Some Parts of New England It Is Not an Expensive Undertaking.

The cost of bringing up a family of five or six children comfortably in the town of Mount Desert does not exceed $250 a year if the house, a garden patch and a cow pasture be already provided from savings of the husband and wife before marriage, and if the family, as a whole, have normal health and strength. Very few heads of families earn more than that sum in a year; for, although a day's wages in summer is commonly $1.75, work is scarce, the winter is long, and few men can get more than five months' employment at these wages in a year. The man and boys of a family can, however, do much for the common support, even when there is no work at wages to be had. They can catch and cure fish, dig clams, trap lobsters, pick the abundant blueberries on the rocky hills in August, and shoot ducks at the seasons of migration. Wild nature still yields to the skillful seeker a considerable quantity of food without price. Dwellers in the city may wonder how it is possible for a family to live so cheaply, but there is no mystery about it. There is no rent to pay; the schools are free; water costs nothing; the garden-patch yields potatoes and other vegetables, and the pasture milk and butter; two kerosene lamps and a lantern supply all the artificial light needed, at a cost not exceeding two dollars a year; the family do all their own work without waste; there is but one fire, except on rare occasions, and that single fire is in a stove which delivers all its heat into the house; the wife and daughters knit the family stockings, mittens and mufflers, mend all the clothes, and for the most part make all their own. The ready-made clothing which the men buy at the stores is very cheap ($10 to $15 a suit), being made of cotton with but a small admixture of wool. The cloth is strong and warm, and looks fairly well when new, but soon fades and wears shabby. For children the old clothes of their elders are cut down, the wear thus being brought on new places. The Hessian country girl wears proudly her grandmother's woolen petticoats, as well she may, for they are just as good and handsome as they were sixty years ago. A Scotch shepherd's all-wool plaid withstands the wind and the rain for a lifetime. The old Swiss porter, who is carrying the mounted traveler's valise over the Gemmi, puts on a thick woolen jacket of a rich brown color when the shower begins, with the remark: "The rain won't wet me, sir; this coat has kept me dry for twenty-five years." The American farmer and laborer use no such good materials as these, and therefore they and their children look shabby most of the time; but their clothes are very cheap in first cost, and, like the cotton clothes of the Chinese, they answer the main purposes of all clothing. In a city the best clothes of the family must be often put on, in the country but seldom. Shoes and boots must be bought for the whole household, but these articles are also very cheap in New England, and the coarser sorts are durable in proportion to their price. For protection from rain the Mount Desert man who is obliged to be out-of-doors in bad weather uses, in sailor fashion, not rubber clothing, but suits of oiled cotton cloth, which keep out not only water but wind, last long and cost little ($2 to $3 a suit). However hard it may be for city people to understand it, the fact remains that $250 a year is a sum adequate to the comfortable and wholesome support of a family of seven or eight persons in the town of Mount Desert, provided that a house, a garden and a pasture are secured to them.—President Charles W. Eliot, in Century.

Electric Visual Police Signals.

The new electric visual police signal system has been thoroughly tested at New Haven, and the results are so satisfactory that a number of the signal boxes have been ordered for the use of the London (Eng.) police. The difficulty in police signal systems has hitherto been that while the officer on patrol could immediately communicate with headquarters, the latter was never sure of being able to attract the attention of the officer on patrol, especially at night. In the new system the telegraph and the telephone are united, and the officer at the desk can attract the attention of and communicate with any policeman in any part of the city, and no matter how far away he may be. By the touch of an electric button at headquarters a red globe is made to rise from inside the alarm box. At night this change of color can of course be seen on the street for a long distance, and during the day a colored signal will be equally conspicuous. The patrolman on his beat is thus notified that communication with headquarters is desired, and he promptly responds through the telephone. The patrolman on his beat can also summon assistance from any adjoining beat by opening the iron signaling box and releasing the armature which controls the movements of the colored glass.—N. Y. Sun.

New Style of Door Lock.

The latest invention in door locks is one which can not be opened from the outside by a pliers or skeleton key if it is locked on the inside, and for this reason is especially valuable for hotel rooms and inside doors of buildings generally. It has double bolts, one above the other. The lower one is used to lock the door from the outside. Its keyhole does not go clear through the lock, neither does the keyhole of the bolt that locks the door from the inside. When the door is locked on the inside there is no means of reaching the key or the keyhole of the inner bolt from the outside of the door. This lock is being extensively used on the Pacific coast in all new hotels.—Detroit Free Press.

Johnny's Surprised.

Johnny (with inflated paper bag)—Sh-h! See me bust this bag by grandma's ear.

Grandma (after the burst, placidly looking towards the door)—Come in!—Chatter.

POETICAL GEMS.

The Fighting Editor.

Into the sanctum door-way stalked,
A black-browed, wrathful man,
Armed with a deadly weapon, and
To roar he thus began:
"Show me the man that writ this 'ere,
I 'm allin' for a scrap!
Jest trot the lyin' beggar out,
An' let me dror his sap!"

And with a wild and fiendish yell,
This villain, bold and bad,
Descended on the writing force,
Who fled away like mad—
Save one, a weazened little chap,
No bigger than a sprat,
Who snatched a printer's mallet up,
And knocked the villain flat.

Thereon within the sanctum's walls
Ensued a great uproar,
In which the villain played the part
Of mop-rag, on the floor.
The little man who held him down,
And mauled him o'er and o'er,
Was known throughout the office as
"Ye Scrapping Editor."
—Frank B. Welch, in Light.

The Two Coffins.

In yonder old cathedral
Two lonely coffins lie;
In one the head of the State lies dead,
And a singer sleeps hard by.

Once had that King great power,
And proudly he ruled the land—
His crown o'er us now is on his brow
And his sword is in his hand!

How sweetly sleeps the singer
With calmly folded eyes,
And on the breast of the bard at rest
The harp that he sounded lies.

The castle walls are falling
And war distracts the land,
But the sword leaps not from that mildewed spot—
There in that dead King's hand!

But with every grace of nature
There seems to float along—
To cheer again the hearts of men—
The singer's deathless song!
—From the German, by Eugene Field.

Git in an' Dig.

The 'ristocratic folks git up a high-toned "twi-light ball,"
An' dress themselves in silks an' lace an' costly fol-da-rol;
An' them po'r starched-up creatures thinks they're havin' stacks o' fun;
But gosh! we folks o' Frogtown, we beat 'em two to one.
When we gits up a rale hoe-down, it makes a feller rather Smile to see the young folks jump an' crack their heels together,
An' hear the caller,
Red-faced, long-legged, big
Jim Johnson, holler:
"Git in an' dig!"

First thing Old Tom Hardscrabble, he grabs his fiddle bow,
An' scrapes them there old fiddle strings—the young folks in a row
Stands waitin' till he strikes a tune, a shottish or cowtillion,
An' then away they goes. By gosh! ef I was wuth a million,
I'd rather dance that old hoe-down one night in fifty years,
Than 'tend a hundred "twilight balls" in comp'ny with my peers.
I'd a durn sight ruther
Hear that red-faced, big
Jim Johnson holler:
"Git in an' dig!"

Fact is, them high-toned city folks so cultured in an' vain,
So used to easy livin', an' so filled with proud disdain
Fer country folks' old-fashioned ways, their hard work an' their small Pretensions in the way of wealth, an' wit, an' all
Them qualities that makes one man surpass an' spurn his brother—
Them city folks, they would, I say, a durn sight ther
Not hear the caller,
Relentless, whirligig
Destiny, holler
"Git-in an' dig!"
—Allison French, in West Shore.

A Happy Marriage.

I.

He loved a maid,
But, half afraid,
He never told his passion.
Of course, she knew,
But, bashful, too,
She waited, woman fashion.

II.

At last one day,
The gossips say,
While they were idly chatting,
A mouse petite
Ran by their feet
And shot across the matting.

III.

He was so near
That, wild with fear,
She threw her arms about him.
He clasped her tight
And soothed her fright—
How could she ever doubt him?

IV.

His courage rose,
You may suppose,
After that fearful danger.
This week the same
Pair chose a name
To give a little stranger.
—Somerville Journal.

Sunset Calm.

The dying sunbeams softly play
On fields of tawny grain;
The rabbit's housed beneath the hay
That skirts the scented lane.

No breeze the leaf to music wakes
In bowers green and cool;
No swallow's wing in circles breaks
The mirror of the pool.

No sheep-bell tinkles from the fold;
And in the lilac glow
That steals o'er nature's cloth of gold
The shadows longer grow,

And melt into the silence deep,
Unbroken as a dream,
That settles like a wreath of sleep
On crimsoned mead and stream.
—R. K. Munkittrick, in Harper's Weekly.

In Love and Out.

I loved her and she seemed to me
As fair as summer skies;
Her gentle sunny face to see
Was gladness to my eyes.
Her hand was soft, her foot was small,
Her cheek was like the rose,
But I admired most of all
The freckles on her nose.

She jilted me and then I learned
That love indeed is blind;
Her many charms I once discerned
Have faded from my mind.
She isn't near so pretty as
The lily or the rose.
I'll never wed a girl who has
Such freckles on her nose.
—Chicago Post

Her Reason.

Only a kiss did I beg of her,
One little kiss of love;
Something to help me bear the pain
Of parting never to meet again,
While down o'er the waving fields of grain
Soft shone the stars above.

Faintly tremble the beautiful lids—
"Quick! for I must away!"
"I can not!" the answer came with a moan,
"For I love you, darling, the truth must be known,
My tiny kisses are all full grown;
And a little kiss don't ask, I pray,
For it happens my mouth isn't built that way!"
—Gold Dust, in Judge.

MR. HOOFNACKLE.

A Friend Plays Him a Shabby Trick.

Mrs. H. Discovers that Her Name Is Not in the Elite Directory—She Blames Her Husband for It.

[Written for the St. Louis (German) Saterne, by Louis Willich; translated for this paper by Alex E. Sweet.]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SATERNE—Dear Sir: My friend Gould, the directory man, has played me a shabby trick. I wouldn't have believed it of him. That unreliable party has published a blue book, or an elite directory, or whatever you may be pleased to call it, which purports to give a list of the high society people, and the name of Jackson P. Hoofnackle does not appear in it. I would not have believed this possible if I had not examined the book carefully, and satisfied myself beyond a doubt that my name has been omitted, and very likely it was done intentionally.

If my wife Sarah had her way I would have brought a $25,000 suit for damages against Gould, but I am afraid if I were to file any such suit the consumptive lawyer Gould employs by the year would make a motion for me to give a ten-dollar bond for security for costs, and I am not quite prepared for a financial crisis of those dimensions, so I have thus far managed to restrain myself.

This is a nice state of things, truly. The idea of a St. Louis elite directory and no Jackson P. Hoofnackle in it. To tell the truth, if it were not for my wife, Sarah, I wouldn't care a snap of my finger whether my name was in or not, but the left-handed compliments Sarah has been bestowing on me, because the Hoofnackles have been snubbed, are enough to exasperate a saint.

Looking through a copy of the directory she remarked in a cynical tone of voice: "I suppose I joined the Ladies' Geranium Club, and paid three dollars a month for nothing at all just to be snubbed this way. It's all your fault, Jackson. You never do attend to any thing as you should. You gab and gas, and frequent saloons from one year's end to the other, but when there is a chance to do something for the family you are not there. O, you are a nice one to rely on, you are. You have got no spunk. That's what's the matter with you."

Turning over another leaf, she said, with increased bitterness: "Just look at this! Here are Mr. and Mrs. McFlymsy. Fifteen years ago, when you were already a judge on the bench of the county court, he was a porter in a wholesale liquor store and she was chief engineer in a hash factory. Now they are society people."

"And just look at this," she continued: "Here is the name of Casper Knippleman: if he wants to write his name he has to rest his tongue on the table, and then make a misspell of it, while you write for the leading papers, and enjoy a great literary reputation; but he belongs to haute role, and we are nothing but common trash, and don't amount to a row of pins. And who is to blame but you? Whenever I pick up a newspaper I read some complimentary notice about somebody we know, but I never read any thing about you that's worth repeating.

"IT'S ALL YOUR FAULT."

"And so, help Heaven, here is the name of Jerry L. Dusenbury. Well, now that is rich. Ten years ago he had a little bit of a shanty of a store, where he kept on tap perfumed soap, rusty revolvers, old pocket-books, small-tooth combs, rubber sandwiches, brass jewelry and other rubbish, and it was such a miserable ramshackle shanty of a store that if his big fat wife had sneezed in it, she would have blown the sides out of it—and now he is Hon. Jeremiah Dusenbury, who comes from a very old family. I suppose his grandmother didn't die until she was two or three hundred years old. Oh, yes, they come of a very old family, and I expect they have been on a visit to Paris—Kentucky. That's what this directory does for that scum, while we have to be satisfied to be allowed to take back seats and be nobody. Jackson, that's going to be the death of me. I expect to see Hon. Mrs. Dusenbury's portrait as a society queen in one of the big dailies, and a few years ago the only use she had for newspapers was to look through the "want column," to see if anybody advertised for a cook or a chambermaid, etc."

I don't know what I am going to do about it, but if Sarah keeps up this talk about the elite directory I'll do something rash.

Your old friend,
JACKSON P. HOOFNACKLE.

DRESSING DOLLS.

All Little Girls Who Have Dolls Will Be Interested in This Article.

Herodotus, Josephus, and others who wrote ancient history, have very considerately given some information about the games and sports indulged in by boys and young men. But they have not told us what pastimes were provided for little girls.

Perhaps you think there were no dolls then. If you do, what I have to tell you will make those classic days seem very near and real, because you can see that a doll was as precious to a girl then as yours is to you now.

Last May, near the Hadrian's villa, in Rome, were found, at a depth of thirty feet below the surface, two stone burial caskets. In one of them was the perfect skeleton of a little girl wrapped in linen which, upon exposure to the air, fell rapidly to dust. Upon her head were fragments of a myrtle crown—the Roman symbol of youth—and on her fingers were four rings, one of them with her name, "Filetus," engraved upon it. There were also in the narrow sarcophagus—as the ancients called their stone coffins—many other articles of more or less value. Among them an exquisite amethyst breastpin, cut like a cameo, and set in Etruscan gold filagree work; pearl ear-rings, carved amber pins for the hair, and a gold necklace with little white pendants of elegant workmanship. But the most interesting thing of all the treasures which loving hands had laid away with little "Filetus" centuries ago was a doll, most perfectly made of oak wood. The face and hair were carved in the most minute and careful way, the latter waving low on the forehead, and bound with a fillet. The joints were articulated so that the legs, arms and wrists move in sockets, and the hands and feet were cut with extreme delicacy, with small and delicate nails.

ANCIENT ROMAN DOLL.

The dress, if there was any originally, must have moldered away, for the letter which gave this account did not speak of any.

It is thought that this little Roman girl, with her ornaments and the playthings which were probably dearest to her, must have been laid away to her rest before the Christian era, and, taking a long backward look through the centuries, it is touching to realize that the same things that were pleasing then are still the delight of young people.

The doll whose picture appears in this article has a variety of dresses, but with nony of them is her owner better pleased than this, a perfect fac simile of the German costume worn by certain natives of the Black Forest.

The coloring of the dress is certainly not a delight to the eye that loves harmony, but it is an exact copy in every particular of a costume worn by a little girl called Rikele, which you must pronounce in three syllables. It is the diminutive of Frederike, and a favorite name in Suabia, as Southern Germany is called. In the Suabian dialect the termination le takes the place of the chen of Northern Germany, in proper names.

The skirt of the dress is straight, having no gores. It is thirty-two inches wide by ten long; a hem an inch and a half wide is turned up on the bottom, the top is gathered all around.

The material of the dress is a stiff-feeling woolen, someting like thick alpaca. The sleeves are slightly wadded, which makes them look stiff and clumsy. They are cut in one piece and gathered into the arm-hole. The waist is half low-necked, and is trimmed around the neck, with a strip of the material plaited down on both edges. The waist is made straight, and with no darts. There are seams under the arms and buttons at the back. The little slashes on the pattern are to give room for the swell of the hips below the waist line. The skirt, which is sewed to a band, is separate, and fastens on over the waist. The cuts show front and back of waist.

A wide white lace ruffle is sewed to a muslin band, which buttons around the throat. A broad ribbon wound over it several times conceals the muslin band. The large bow with which it is tied at the back is quite an important addition to the costume. In front, hangs a narrow ribbon with a little silver coin or medal upon it. With the grown-up peasants the medal is generally symbolic of their trade or occupation.

The apron is a straight strip of material of some light, bright color, and is tied with gay ribbons of another shade.

The cap is made of black velvet and surmounted by a bow of black ribbon with a picot edge. Sometimes these bows have long, floating ends. The little cap is trimmed with a broad fall of plain black lace, of the kind sometimes used here for vails. In Switzerland the same kind of caps are worn, but figured lace is used. On the edge of Rikele's cap is a hem run with thick, black floss silk.

After cutting the cap from the diagram, join the edges marked x x together; then the seam made by A A is sewed on the wrong side and the cap turned. The bow hides the top. The cap should only be large enough to cover the top knot of hair dressed high on the head. The lace is fulled upon the edge of the cap. A walking rainbow would hardly be gayer than this German doll. Her dress is a dark blue, her apron light green, with bright purple ribbons. The ribbon around her neck, with the big bow at the back, is a bright yellow. Some of the skirts in Southern Germany are accordeon plaited, so a doll who wishes to go to a fancy party in the costume of that country would be justified in making herself more dressy by wearing a plaited skirt instead of the plain, if she preferred.

FRONT AND BACK.

In the district where dresses of this kind are worn, the costumes of Protestants and Catholics are quite distinctly different. Rikele was a Catholic, and in copying the distinctive dress of her sect the artist has put a little rosary in the doll's hand.

In the old countries, where people seldom seem to be in such a hurry as the Americans, they do not seem to be so saving of button-holes as we are. In a German child's winter costume, including the underclothes, there are sometimes thirty-five button-holes, so I have been told. The Italians are not sparing of button-holes, either, although their wardrobes are less profuse in them than Germans. The French and Russian peasants save them when they can, and the Bretons, who use buttons in great abundance, simply for ornament, manage to use strings and loops very extensively for fastenings.

A girl who likes to make dolls' clothes will be much more independent if she knows how to make the button-holes herself. Perhaps by looking closely at this striking portrait of a partly-worked button-hole a young worker will be able to copy it. First, a straight cut is made, then as this is for a cloth garment, the little, round hole at one end is made so it will fit nicely around the shank of the button. To me, cutting that smooth, round place at the end has always seemed a very formidable bit of surgery, but lately, by watching a dress-maker, I found out that it is easy enough.

Her way was to stick a pin through the cloth at the upper end of the cut, only taking up one or two threads, and then to cut the pin out. As I am not by your side to show you what I mean, won't you take a piece of waste cloth and experiment with a pin and sharp scissors until you see how it is done. For wash goods and thin materials it is not necessary to do more than make a plain, straight cut of a proper length for the button, but the stitch is the same, and that I think you can learn by looking at the picture. The under thread, which is to be worked over, should be linen or double silk; it is carried around the button-hole and held while working by being twisted around the needle it is threaded into. You must remember always to put the thread you are working with around and over the point of the needle before you pull it through. This is to make a strong, durable edge. In the button-hole stitch used for scallops and other embroidery, the thread is not put over in this way, but held below the needle while it is drawn through.—Mary C. Hungerford, in Christian Union.

Photographs in Natural Colors.

At a recent meeting of the Berlin Physical Society Prof. Vogel spoke on photography in natural colors as attempted at first by Seebeck, then in succession by Becquerel, Niepce, St. Victor, Poitevin, Zenker, and most recently by a Hungarian named Verres. He exhibited a series of photographs in colors obtained by Verres, which however showed conclusively that he has not solved the problem, since, although the reds appear as red in the photographs, so also do the yellows and greens appear as red and the blues as an undeterminate color. These photographs, on the other hand, mark a distinct advance in color photography, since they are fixed, while those of Zenker, although more strikingly colored, were not fixed. The speaker criticised Zenker's views on the mode of formation of a colored photograph, and expressed his disbelief in the possibility of any one substance being so changed by rays of different wave length as to emit from various parts of itself rays of exactly corresponding wave length.—Scientific American.

THERE is no use of arguing against obstinacy. If you squeeze a burr it will prick you.—Puck.

SANITARY SELECTIONS.

SPRAINED ankle has been cured in an hour by showering with hot water poured from a height of a few feet.

DO YOU use the whole of your lungs? Of course, you reply that you do; but the chances are that you don't. For physicians say that not one man in a hundred uses all his lungs.

A SIMPLE cough remedy is made of an ounce of flaxseed boiled in a pint of water, a little honey added, an ounce of rock candy and the juice of three lemons, the whole mixed and boiled well.

A WARM salt water bath is said to be very refreshing to one suffering from bodily fatigue. If away from the seashore a cup of rock salt dissolved in warm water and added to the bath produces the same result.

THOSE who find it difficult to sleep on account of the heat can readily circumvent old Sol by taking a bath. If it is only a hasty sponge bath it will do wonders in cooling the body, softening and freshening the skin, and preparing the system for the ready enjoyment of "nature's sweet restorer."

MANY people are troubled with itching eyes and try all sorts of washes. The eye is one of the most valuable organs of the body. Unfortunately for careless humanity, it is also one of the most delicate. It does not pay to trifle with it. The best way to treat itching is to use a cool, weak salt water wash every few hours. If it does no good, go to a physician who makes a specialty of eye diseases.

THE worst effect of constant cigarette smoking is the gradual unsteadying of the nerves. The cigarette is really a dram, and when that dram is repeated twenty or thirty times a day evil will assuredly follow. One has only to look at the meagre, weak-eyed, pasty-faced youths who are to be seen in thousands to perceive at once the melancholy results of the cigarette. If would be better to smoke cigars as black as one's hat and as long as a barber's pole.

DR. NEBO in Journal de la Sante says that an excessive palpitation of the heart can always be arrested by bending double, with the head downward and the hands pendant, so as to produce a temporary congestion of the upper part of the body. In almost all cases of nervous or anæmic palpitation the heart immediately resumes its natural function. If the respiratory movements be suspended during this action the effect is only the more rapid.

IT is a mistake to suppose that cold drinks are necessary to relieve thirst. Very cold drinks, as a rule, increase the feverish condition of the mouth and stomach and so create thirst. Experience shows it to be a fact that hot drinks relieve the thirst and "cool off" the body when it is in an abnormally heated condition better than ice-cold drinks. It is far better and safer to avoid the free use of drinks below sixty degrees; in fact, a higher temperature is to be preferred; and those who are much troubled with thirst will do well to try the advantages to be derived from hot drinks, instead of cold fluids to which they have been accustomed. Hot drinks also have the advantage of aiding digestion, instead of causing debility of the stomach and bowels.

AMUSING SHORT STORIES.

THE knack of looking at the bright side of things was never developed to such perfection as in the case of a Southerner, who, after a railroad accident, telegraphed to his friend's wife: "Your husband killed in railroad accident; head, both arms and both legs cut off." But later this correction was received: "First report exaggerated; your husband killed; head and legs cut off, but only one arm."

A BERLIN merchant was a daily customer in a noted restaurant, and always honored the waiter generously, as he liked him for his attentiveness. One day another waiter served him. He was much surprised. "Where is Fritz?" "He is here," said the new waiter, "but he can't serve you. You see," he continued, "we played poker the other evening, and after Fritz had lost all his money he put up his customers, and I had the good fortune to win you. Another beer?"

A COBBLER at Forfar, Scotland, who was an old offender, was sentenced to a fine or imprisonment. To be imprisoned he had to be carried to the jail at Perth. As he had business at Perth he expressed no unwillingness to go. When arrived and about to be locked up he offered to pay the fine, which the Governor was obliged to take. Then he demanded also his fare back to Forfar, which the Governor, after hesitating and looking at the law, found that he was obliged to pay. The fare alone amounted to five cents more than the fine imposed.

THE Boston girl is equal to any thing, as the following anecdote shows: A Boston girl whose verses were always "declined with thanks" hit upon a unique scheme for having them published. She would send a line or a verse from one of her poems to the query column of some paper and ask from what poem such a line came, the name of the poem and that of the author. A friend, also a rhymster, would send the querist's own poem to the paper with the desired information, and of course it would appear in print. The querist would do the same for her "friend," and so on, until between them they had most of their effusions printed.

SOMETHING decidedly original in the mortuary line is put on record by a Boston paper. After a long absence a man returned from the West, and decided to visit his mother's grave in a cemetery near the metropolis of Massachusetts. "I couldn't find the lot," he said, in telling the story; "and when I got home I asked my sister about it, and who it was that put up a big monument there, with the name 'Theodosia' on it. 'Why, that was the place,' said my sister. 'But who is Theodosia?' I asked. 'That is mother,' she said; 'I know it wasn't her name, but it is a pretty one, and I thought she would like it. And, John, as I thought mother looked lonesome in that big lot, I had a baby head-stone set up near the corner with 'Jennie' cut on it. You don't mind, do you?'"

THE MAINE ELECTION

The Republican State Ticket Elected by About 15,000.

REED'S PLURALITY OVER 4,000.

Congressmen Dingley, Boutelle and Milliken Returned by Fair Majorities.

The Election Was Quiet and Orderly. Speaker Reed Said He Was Overwhelmed With Surprise—Chairman Manley's Congratulatory Dispatch to President Harrison.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 9.—From the election returns, which are still incomplete, the Republican managers here estimate that Burleigh (Rep.) will receive a plurality of 19,000.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Two hundred and ten towns give Burleigh 40,385, Thompson 27,427, Clark 861, scattering 958. The same towns in 1888 gave a Republican vote of 50,351, Democratic 37,244, Prohibition 1,276, scattering 1,089. Republican plurality 13,508, against 13,007, Republican gain of 501.

If the towns to here from fall off in the same proportion the final vote should stand: Republican, about 64,500; Democratic, 45,000; scattering, 3,000. Total, 113,000.

In 1886, the last off year, the vote stood: Republican, 68,991; Democratic, 55,289; Prohibition, 3,868; scattering 23; Republican plurality 13,702. This year the plurality will be about 19,000, a gain of 5,300 and 1,000 ahead of the Presidential year. The Prohibition vote comes united with the scattering, or omitted, so it is classed as scattering and may be considerably larger.

The members of Congress are all re-elected by large majorities. Mr. Reed's being doubled. The county officers are mostly Republican. The Senators are probably all Republican as in the last Legislature, and the Representatives must stand fully as strongly Republican, namely 125 Republicans to 26 Democrats.

The total vote of Portland is: For Governor—Burleigh, 3,570; Thompson, 2,127; Clark, 142. For Congressman—Reed, 3,648; Frank, 2,169; Hussey (Prohibition), 77. Four Republican Legislators are elected and one Democrat, the latter on account of local dissatisfaction.

The latest estimate places Burleigh's plurality at 19,000.

Speaker Reed's Big Vote.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Speaker Reed is re-elected by the largest plurality ever given to a candidate in the district. Complete returns from all but five towns give Reed 16,097 and Frank 11,339. Mr. Reed has received fewer votes than in 1888, but the great falling off of the Democratic vote has given him a great majority. The towns yet to hear from are mostly Democratic and will reduce his plurality somewhat, but not very much. The indications now are that Reed's plurality will be between 4,000 and 4,700.

SPEAKER REED'S VIEWS.

He Says He Felt a Deep Solicitude About the Result.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—It is difficult to describe the enthusiasm that has prevailed here since last night. Nothing like it has been seen in this city since the war.

In an interview with Speaker Reed he said: "I confess to have felt a deep solicitude as to the result in this district. So great a plurality was given at the last election, owing to local causes which our own people will well comprehed, that almost any reasonable result was liable to lead to a misunderstanding.

"In an off year men do not come out on the majority side, and the short, very short campaign we have had could not have reached them in the regular way. To have received in such a year so large a plurality is something which has more than a personal significance. There have been cast for me many Democratic votes. I do not in the least flatter myself that they were cast for me personally. They were put in the ballot-box to show the world that some men outside my party applaud the idea that the House of Representatives ought to be a business body, carrying out the wishes of the American people.

"When you consider how hard a thing it is for a man who still means to stay by his party to vote against it, you will see the significance of the result. I could even bring into stronger relief this result by stating other facts, but the case does not need it."

Speaker Reed will leave here to-day for Washington.

Manley's Dispatch to the President.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 9.—Chairman Manley of the Republican State Committee sent the following dispatch to President Harrison: "Maine gives the largest Republican majority thrown in an off year since 1866, and a larger majority than given in a Presidential contest since 1868, with the single exceptions of 1884 and 1888. Governor Burleigh is re-elected by a majority exceeding 15,000. Speaker Reed is re-elected by the largest majority he ever received, exceeding 4,500. Representatives Dingley, Boutelle and Milliken are re-elected by a majority ranging from 3 to 5,000. The Pine Tree State endorse your administration and remains firm in its advocacy of protection to American industries and American labor."

Ex-Gov. Dingley's Majority Over 4,000.

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 9.—Almost complete returns from the cities and towns in the Second district show that ex-Gov. Dingley is re-elected to Congress by nearly 4,000 over Allen, Dem.

COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT.

They Were About to Start a Swindling Scheme on a New Method.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Two notorious counterfeiters, Charles Murrell, alias Salvese, and Charles Harris, alias Cereghino, who came from San Francisco two months ago to fleece Eastern merchants, were arrested here and locked up at police headquarters. Murrell was born in Italy, of Swedish parents, and Harris was born in Spain.

They had a swindling scheme based on the claim that they could make $10 gold pieces out of baser metals by a method known only to themselves. Inspector Byrnes heard of them soon after their arrival and had them shadowed up to the time of their arrest. About ten days ago the swindlers tried their art on a rich miner from New Mexico, but Byrnes sent for the miner and put him on his guard.

The Inspector then had the miner introduce Detective Conway as a promising victim, with the result that Conway was shown the modus operandi of the counterfeiters, and with the assistance of the two "shadows" nabbed them both.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

The Pennsylvania Company's Offices at Altoona Set on Fire.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 9.—Lightning struck the offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at noon and in a few minutes the building was ablaze.

The building was badly gutted before the fire could be extinguished. Great damage was also done by water, and it is feared that valuable records and memoranda are ruined. The loss, which cannot be estimated at present, will be heavy.

There was great excitement for a time among the hundreds of clerks employed in the building, but all escaped though there was several who were suffocated. All railroad business is temporarily suspended.

The lightning entered the telegraph room in which are stored tons of paper and the fire communicating with these gained great headway.

FEMALE PRIZE FIGHTERS.

They Fight Thirty-eight Rounds and Are Severely Punished.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 9.—Mary Herbert and Mabel Brown, daughters of prominent residents of Pleasantville, N. J., fought a prize fight in a sixteen-foot ring, pitched in an old barn on the outskirts of that village at 3 a. m. The cause of the fight was rivalry for the attentions of a young man named George Woodward.

Thirty-eight rounds were fought, in which both girls were severely punished, but neither had the advantage and the contest was declared a draw.

The combatants were stripped to the waist, and every part of their bodies exposed to view bore traces of punishment. The referee, seconds and spectators were all females, friends of the principals.

Woodward has since declared that he will have nothing to do with either of the girls.

The Resolution Will Pass the House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—In a canvass of the House just made by Representative O'Neill of Pennsylvania he says he found that but little more than one-tenth of the members are opposed to the Senate resolution for the removal of the remains of Gen. Grant from New York to Arlington. Of the thirty-six members who are opposed to the resolution only three are from States other than New York. Mr. O'Neill says that next Monday he will move to suspend the rules and pass the resolution.

Connecticut's Governorship.

NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 9.—Ex-United States Treasurer James W. Hyatt has consented to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. There are rumors that Col. W. H. Stevenson, of Bridgeport, who has hitherto been the leading candidate, will now withdraw in favor of Hon. Thomas M. Waller, but this is denied by Col. Stevenson's friends. Mr. Hyatt's entrance into the field will make the contest a hot and interesting one.

Found His Body in a Creek.

RONDOUT, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The body of Orlando Hayes was found in Rondout Creek last evening. He had been missing from home since Friday last. It is supposed that he committed suicide while laboring under temporary insanity, caused by ill health. He is a brother of Republican State Committeeman Hayes of this district, and has been engaged in business here and at Poughkeepsie for many years.

Rhode Island's Congressional Convention.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 9.—The State Committee decided to hold the Republican Congressional Convention at Providence on October 7. It is understood that ex-Governor Herbert Ladd will be the candidate for the First District, now represented by Hon. Henry J. Spooner, and that the present incumbent, Hon. W. O. Arnold, will be nominated as his own successor.

A Wife Murderer Sentenced.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 9.—A motion was made for a new trial in the case of George W. Moss, who on Oct. 10, 1889, killed his wife by firing four bullets into her body, while her three children looked on in horror. Judge Rice denied the motion, and on Saturday will sentence him to be hanged.

A Forger Arrested in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—John Markell, an employe of the Billinger & Small Car Works was arrested at the instance of the sheriff of Page County, Iowa, on the charge of forging a number of notes in Iowa six years ago. He was taken back to Iowa.

BASEBALL BATTLES

The Giants Badly Defeated by the Boston Team.

WARD NOW HAS SECOND PLACE.

New York and Boston National League Clubs in a Royal Battle.

A Tie After Eleven Innings—Philadelphia Turns Apparent Defeat Into Victory—Louisville Leads the Association Clubs—Athletic Players Sue the Manager for Salaries—How the Clubs Stand.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9.—Manager Ward really believes that his Brooklyn team will win the Players' League pennant. He said to-day that his team would be in first place at the close of the week. "I honestly believe," said he, "that we will sweep the deck this week, and I look for the Bostons and Philadelphias to down the New Yorks."

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Ewing's Giants were given an unmerciful walloping by King Kelly's team before a large crowd of delighted Boston enthusiasts. Keefe started in to pitch, but had enough of it after the first inning, and Thunderbolt Crane was put in. Crane's curves were also batted all over the field. Ewing retired and Brown went in to catch in the third inning.

THE PRESIDENT AT CRESSON.

He Enjoys a Quiet Drive and Afterwards Receives the Returns from Maine.

CRESSON SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 9.—President Harrison, accompanied by ex-Congressman and Mrs. Ward of Chester, enjoyed a pleasant drive to Loretto.

During the stay at Loretto the President was taken in charge by Father Ryan and shown about the premises. He was invited to go through the convent, but not desiring to delay, deferred that pleasure until a later visit. On the return trip Mr. Ward drove through Gallitzen, where a crowd of urchins recognized the President and greeted him with, "Ah, there, Harrison!" The President acknowledged the salute by raising his hat. The urchins followed the carriage, hurrahing for President Harrison and the Republican party.

Early last evening a very elaborate and costly tea was given in honor of the President and his family by Hon. B. F. Jones. The Harrisons and Halfords attended en masse and had a royal good time. It is the first reunion since the arrival of the President in which gentlemen have participated. The decorations were very elaborate.

Last night President Harrison received the election returns from Maine, arrangements having been made during the day with the special representatives of the United and Associated press to have their bulletin services extended to this point.

Both President Harrison and Secretary Halford express themselves as feeling much improved since their arrival here and both show that the pure bracing air has begun to have its effect upon them. The latter part of this week will be given up to short excursions to points of interest in this section. Mr. George E. Boyd has made arrangements to show the Executive all there is to be seen here and it is likely that Johnstown and Rhododendron Parks will be among the places visited.

LEAF TOBACCO MEN MEET.

Importers Opposed to the McKinley Bill and a Protest Made.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Pursuant to a call issued by the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade several days ago for a meeting of leaf tobacco importers to take action on the McKinley bill, a meeting was held.

There was a very large attendance, including representatives of all the leading houses in the trade. The chairman, Garson Mayer, president of the board, explained that if the McKinley bill was passed in the present shape it would result in disaster to the trade, force the withdrawal from circulation of many millions of dollars and possibly cause a panic in financial circles. It would be impossible to get the merchandise out of bond within the time proposed by the bill.

A resolution protesting against the passage of the bill in its present form was unanimously passed.

A TEST STRUGGLE.

A Strike at Southampton that Is Leading to Disorderly Acts.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The strike of dock laborers, coal handlers and sailors at Southampton is likely to develop into a test struggle between the unions and the employers.

Business at the docks is wholly suspended, the company having been unable as yet to bring a working force of non-union men through the very effective lines of pickets which the union men are maintaining.

A number of non-union men who came in on railway trains during the day were assaulted by the strikers after the peaceable methods of persuasion had failed to turn them back. These disorderly acts grew so frequent that the authorities sent to London for assistance, and a detachment of Metropolitan police were sent on by train to assist in preserving the peace and protecting such non-union men as could be induced to go to work.

High Jumping Record Beaten.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The record for high jump was beaten by the horse Roseberry, owned by Morehouse and Pepper, of Toronto, Canada. The record was broken at the Interstate fair. The jump, which was carefully judged, was 7 feet and ¼ of an inch. Consolation won the 2-year-old race in straight heats. Best time, 2:35¼. The 2:30 stake race, purse $3,000, was won by Ripple. Best time, 2:25. Robinson D. won in the three-minute class. Best time, 2:29.

Looking for Foreign Trade.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—A meeting of members of the Produce Exchange was held to express the views of the Exchange on the question of reciprocity. A resolution was adopted to the effect that "the New York Produce Exchange as a body solicit Congress to take such steps of legislation or diplomatic negotiation as will insure the enlargement of foreign markets to American products." The resolution was telegraphed to Senators Evarts and Hiscock.

Athletic Players Sue for Salaries.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Seward, Robinson and Shafer of the Athletic Baseball Club instituted legal proceedings against the management looking to the recovery of salaries for the month of August. It is said that none of the players have received any salary for the month of August and that the club is behind to some of them on account of June salaries. The other players will probably bring suit later in the week.

The Late John Boyle O'Reilly's Will.

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—The will of the late John Boyle O'Reilly was admitted to probate, and Mr. James S. Murphy, brother of the widow, has been empowered by the court to act as guardian of the children and will also be deputied by the widow to attend to the details which pertain to her in her capacity of sole executrix.

SECRET PRISONERS

Four Strikers Under Arrest for the Central Wreck.

THE KNIGHTS TO TAKE ACTION.

They Claim that Pinkerton is Trying to Force a Confession.

They Will Ask the Courts to Give the Men a Chance to be Heard—Another Attempt to Wreck a Passenger Train. The Man Who Gave Warning Fired Upon.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—With four suspects in custody, the Central Hudson road and its agents are straining every nerve to ferret out the wreckers of the Montreal express, which was hurled down an embankment near Castleton last Thursday night. The second pair arrested are John Kiernan, a freight brakeman, living at No. 396 Second street in this city, and John Cordial, a freight conductor, living at No. 58 5 Livingstone avenue. Kiernan is now confined in the Rensselaer County Jail at Troy, and Cordial has gone to join Reed and Miller in some mysterious hiding place of the company, supposed to be Superintendent Bissell's office.

The fact that the four men are Knights of Labor and former employes, who went out when the strike was ordered, has caused considerable excitement. The strikers appreciate this fact and that it will have a tendency to injure them in the public mind. They complain bitterly that if individual strikers are guilty the great majority should not be held to blame.

District Master Workman Lee said he did not believe that John Kiernan was implicated in the wreck. Mr. Lee told him of it about 11 o'clock Thursday night. Kiernan and his wife passed on their way home, stopping for a moment to chat with Mrs. Lee. This may prove an alibi for Kiernan.

The Knights of Labor propose, through counsel, to exert the power of habeas corpus on the Central Railroad authorities in favor of giving the four men a chance to be heard. It is thought that some means will be adopted to force a confession out of the men, or some of them, and that Pinkerton is working on them secretly for that end.

WRECKERS FOILED.

Another Attempt to Ditch a New York Central Train.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The 6 o'clock train out of New York, due here at 9:50 last night was thirty minutes late, and as this train is usually on time it looked suspicious. It is intimated that a blockade intended to wreck the train was discovered by a track walker at New Hamburg, and the train was flagged just in time to prevent a serious accident.

A railroad employe who was on the train, says that two men out rowing on the river near that point saw some men busy on the tracks and waiting until they disappeared they crawled quietly up. They found a steel rail wedged in the cattle guard in the same way as at Albany and braced up in the same way by pieces of flange iron. With all their strength they could not move it and started down the track to warn the Chicago Limited express.

They found a trackman, and he, swinging his red lantern, started to stop the train. In an instant several shots rang out and one took effect in the trackman's shoulder. However, the train was stopped about 100 yards south of the obstruction. According to the description of the barricade, it was of the same build as the one near Albany on Thursday night.

WRECKS ON THE RAIL.

A Bad Collision at Lockport, N. Y., and a Crash on the Baltimore & Ohio.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Passenger trains 19 and 20 on the Central road collided near this city at 4:10 a. m. Baggageman Fiddler of New York was killed. Engineer Bradley and Fireman Houston, both of Syracuse, were badly hurt, Bradley's leg being broken. No passengers were hurt.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—A green switchman, who took the place of a striker at the State street crossing of the Central road, threw a switch before the rear truck of an Albany local had passed. The end of the car was carried over against a locomotive standing on the other track and was partially turned over against the stone wall at the north end of the Congress street tunnel. Of the 12 passengers in the car at the time all escaped but one, E. J. Bliss of Boston, who was cut on the face and head by broken glass, and his elbow and hand gashed. His injuries are only slight.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 9.—Two fast freights collided at the entrance to Tree Tunnel on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad early in the morning and ten cars were wrecked and burned up. It is known that engineers Charles Lickberry and Dominick Kelley, together with both firemen, whose names are not known, were killed. The body of an unknown man has also been found in the wreck. Several other trainmen received serious but not fatal injuries.

A Boy Fatally Hurt.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 9.—Edward Spillar, 14 years old, of Newark, N. J., was found lying on the Lehigh Valley Railroad three miles from here last night. One leg was cut off. He said he fell when trying to get on a coal train. He is at the hospital and will die. Other boys were with him, but ran away.

HONORS TO A PATRIOT.

Governor Hill Presides at the John Boyle O'Reilly Memorial Meeting.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The immense auditorium of the Metropolitan Opera House was crowded last night on the occasion of the memorial meeting of the citizens of New York in honor of John Boyle O'Reilly, the poet, soldier and patriot. There were 4,500 persons present, including a large number of New York's best citizens.

On the right of the chairman's desk stood a life-size marble bust of the dead patriot hung with wreaths of ivy. Cappa's Seventh Regiment band furnished the music.

The exercises began with an overture by the band, followed by the air "The Exile of Erin." A few minutes later the strains of "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls" were heard outside the building and in an instant afterward 300 members of the 69th Regiment, led by Col. Cavanagh, marched in escorting Governor Hill. The band played "Hail to the Chief" as the Governor and his escort took seats on the stage.

After the guests were seated Judge Browne called the meeting to order, stated its object and introduced as chairman Governor David B. Hill.

The Governor in a brief speech laid beautiful garland after beautiful garland upon the tomb of one who is mourned. Then Edward O'Mahony sang that grand song by Professor Ingram of Trinity College, Dublin, "The Memory of the Dead."

Cappa's Band played "The Wearing of the Green" in a weird way that made a pin fall heard, and then Judge James Fitzgerald delivered the panegyric, a magnificent oratorical effort. Gov. Abbett of New Jersey was equally powerful and pathetic over the dead hero, but no more graceful, no grander tribute was paid to the memory of John Boyle O'Reilly than the poem by Joseph I. C. Clarke, who read it to a thrilled audience.

When the band had played "The Lost Chord," the secretary, James J. Clancy, read letters of apology from the President, who expressed his sincere regret that extreme pressure of business alone kept him from being present to do honor to the memory of the Irish patriot; from the Secretary of War, from the Secretary of the Navy, and from Senators Everett, Hiscock, Fassett and others.

BY THE WAY.

—The fourth conference of christian young men will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening at 8 o'clock. All are invited.

—It is rumored in Fanwood that the much desired post office will be established at Baker & Mead's new store, with Mr. Mead as Postmaster.

—THE PRESS homing pigeon service will bring reports of each inning of to-morrow's game, to this office where a bulletin will be displayed.

—A party of delegates from Washingtonville and North Plainfield left town today to attend the Somerset County Sunday School Convention at Somerville.

—Full reports for which there is no space today, will appear in to-morrow's issue, concerning the W. C. T. U., which held its annual meeting last evening, and its yearly election of officers this afternoon.

—Knowing by experience that generous advertising brings generous returns, and appreciating the value of THE PRESS as an advertising medium, the United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association today increase the size of their space in these columns and publish a large and interesting announcement.

—Gershom Frazee stuck his hand out of the smoking-car window of the 4:30 express from New York, yesterday, to brush the ashes off his cigar against the telegraph poles that were flying by. The experiment was an entire success; although not only the ashes, but the cigar and almost his whole hand were knocked off.

—The Board of School Trustees held a regular meeting last evening, for the transaction of general business and the payment of bills. There were present: Messrs Kirkner, Murray, Probasco and Hurlbut, Principal Bulkley and the new senior class teacher, Mr. Hunt. An agreeable showing for Irving school was reported, inasmuch as it had opened with an attendance of 184 which is an increase of last year's roll.

—The Pond Machine Tool Co's employes have been notified that their hours of labor will be 60 hours per week on and after September 29. The nooning will be 45 minutes, and the works will close on Saturdays at 4:30 P. M. The majority of the workmen are dissatisfied at this new arrangement, and a petition is being numerously signed that the present half-holiday on Saturdays be continued, and the present arrangement of working hours remain as it is.

—The "Parlor Match" as presented for the first time this year in Music Hall, last evening, is as funny as ever, which is saying much for it; but besides that the singing is better, and that is saying even more. A more pleasing chorus is not to be found with any skit company on the boards today. The Levey sisters, however, were very disappointing. Their popularity abroad must have been gained outside of the many communities who see better in their cheaper concert halls. They can't dance a bit, and they can sing but little.

He Lost a Little Piece, While His Father Lost It All.

Dewitt Frazee got the fingers of his left hand in the cog-wheels of the reel on the hose carriage when the hose was being laid for last night's fire. The result was that the end of one finger had to be amputated, but the other fingers although much mashed, may be saved.

His father, Gus Frazee, many years ago, lost a whole finger of his right hand upon a like occasion. He was running to a fire when he stumbled and fell just under Tier's dam. His entire weight came on one finger which was rigid, and pointed towards the ground. The bones were so crushed that the finger had to be cut off.

A Gala Night for the Crescent Knights.

At a regular drill of Crescent Division, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, held in their armory last evening, Lieut., Col. George H. Polhemus presented to the Division a handsome gavel. Captain John H. Carney, in a few well chosen remarks, received the gift in behalf of the Division. Col. Polhemus for Goodwill Lodge of Scotch Plains, presented an organ, an altar and a desk. The Captain also received these gifts in his eloquent way. It was a gala night for the Crescent Knights. Lieut. Flannery entertained those present by singing some of his latest selections.

PILLAGED HIS TENANT'S HOUSE.

A Grass Widower Landlord Abuses His Wife and Insults Her Friends.

Isaac Jones, a colored coachman, carried his silk hat into the City Court room, this morning, swore out a complaint against his landlord, James O'Neill, also colored, and asked for his immediate arrest. Isaac said—and a "ladifren" corroborated him—that O'Neill had been "raisin' a muss" ever since last Friday. O'Neill and his wife had apartments in the house Jones rented of him. Last week Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill had a quarrel, and Mrs. O'Neill moved her dishes and clothing and other "things" into the rooms of the sympathetic Joneses, till she could find a new home for herself apart from her husband. Every day since the rumpus with his wife O'Neill has raised a row with the Joneses, and this morning he went into the room where "Lucretia," Mrs. Jones, lay ill, bellowed abusive names at her, hurled forth anathemas at every female in the house, and proceeded to smash such of his wife's belongings as he could find. When Isaac went to seek Judge Codington, O'Neill was still talking "wretched" to Lucretia and the rest of the women folks, heaping insult after insult upon them, and the work of pillaging his wife's goods was in full blast. He will have a hearing at an early date.

GREEN HAY BURNS A BARN.

Another Midnight Blaze Due to Spontaneous Combustion.

The barn used by Austin Sturtevant and Charles A. Sturtevant, situated on Orchard place, near Liberty street, was burned at about one o'clock this morning. The fire was said to have been incendiary, but it transpires that the mow was packed with green hay which was moist enough to heat itself into a blaze, and the cause of the fire is therefore attributed to spontaneous combustion. The entire upper part of the barn was a blaze, and the flames were bursting through the slate roof, before the horses could be rescued from the stables below, and the wagons and harnesses saved. The fire department did good work, but nothing but the charred shell of the structure remains. Austin Sturtevant's house was somewhat blistered, in spite of liberal applications of water. The Sturtevants lose about $500, partially insured.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. L. Prescott, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Mary L. Force, are visiting friends at Greenpoint, L. I.

Miss May Sheppard of Manning avenue, has returned from a visit among friends in Hunterdon and Morris counties.

James C. Pope, who has been confined to his bed with severe illness for some days past, is not getting better yet.

THE PRESS is indebted to Congressman J. A. Geissenhainer for a copy of the report of the Secretary of Agriculture for the year 1889.

Mr. and Mrs. Edsall, and their son, J. Linn Edsall, started this morning for a two weeks' carriage-drive through Northern New Jersey.

Howard Fleming was seized with a severe chill, today, on the train coming from New York. Kind friends assisted him to a carriage in which he was taken to his home on Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Taylor, of Rock View avenue, Washington Park, are enjoying a visit from Mr. Taylor's brother, Laurie, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and Mrs. Granville Brown, a sister of Mr. Taylor, from Marion, Ill.

A letter to Senator McPherson from the pension commissioner at Washington, says that another of the claims the Senator has called up—that of Wm. Addis of this city—has been allowed. Senator McPherson knows no politics when the rights and rewards of old soldiers are in question.

Swore to Tell the Truth, and Then "Forgot" It.

Mrs. Eppinger, who sells candy and cigars on Cottage place, had Harry Gardner arrested last night and charged him with calling her improper names and striking her with his fists because she ordered him out of her place. This morning she "had forgotten" everything that occurred, and to all Judge Codington's questions responded that she "didn't know," though she had told Captain Grant the whole story only an hour before. Gardner, however, had already admitted that he had been intoxicated and had misbehaved, and after censuring Mrs. Eppinger for her sudden loss of memory the Court fined the young man $10, which was promptly paid by a friend.

A Quarter-Century of Wedded Bliss.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Martin, of Warrenville, celebrated their silver wedding Thursday, and entertained a large number of friends at an evening reception. Among the guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. John Bacon and Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Bacon of Westfield, and Miss Emma Hopper of Long Island City. The merriment was sustained till four o'clock in the morning. Many handsome gifts were presented.

Plainfielders on the Petit Jury List.

The Plainfielders drawn by Sheriff Glasby this morning on the panel of petit jurors were Abram Angleman, John C. Meeker, Lewis C. Dunn, Orlando E. Chamberlin and Eugene M. Laine. Jail Warden Charles W. Dodd also was drawn, but the Court excused him from serving.

THE "WHITE CAP" MAN IN JAIL.

A Long Suffering But Still Loving Wife Tells a Painful Story.

Edward C. Wilson, who received, last month, a warning, from the "White Caps," was a prisoner in the City Court this morning, accused by his wife of neglecting and abusing her. Mrs. Wilson said she didn't want to have any harm done her husband; she merely desired that he be compelled to keep sober and cease maltreating her. She would like very much to have him go back to his work in Connecticut, but still if he wouldn't work he was welcome to stay in her home so long as he behaved himself. She didn't ask him to support her, she had hands and worked herself, and had a son to help her.

Edward had been all right, she continued, for a whole year, during which he hadn't drunk a drop, but a year ago he was led astray, and another had been his ruin. During the past week he had abused her continually, both by outrageous insults of tongue, and by blows and kicks. Last night he had again applied the vilest of epithets to her, and would have beaten her, but she escaped.

Mrs. Wilson was reticent about testifying, and wanted her husband released on the promise that he would reform, but Wilson in open court applied such an insulting and cowardly insinuation against his wife that Judge Codington felt no disposition to be merciful to him.

When the option of a $10 fine or ten days' imprisonment was announced Mrs. Wilson illustrated anew the story of woman's ready forgiveness for long suffering, and offered to scrimp and save each week one dollar of her own hard earnings, till she was able to pay the fine and let her husband go unpunished. The Court, however, protested against her suffering farther for the man's misdeeds, and she sighed while Edward was led away.

The letter which Wilson received, in August, signed "White Caps, No. 9, first warning," accused him of scandalous neglect of his wife and threatened him with bodily injury.

He Likes to Laze Around and Watch the Beggars Work.

A clerk in a down-town broker's office in New York, well known among Plainfield commuters, is enjoying a unique vacation. It is the first one he has had for about twelve years. He says he is having enough fun now to last him twelve years more. Before his vacation began his friends in the office asked him where he was going. He declined to answer. When he was free he didn't hurry away to Saratoga or to Long Branch or to the mountains. He staid at his home one day. The next morning he went to the city and sauntered to his office. He sat down in an easy chair, pushed his hat back on his head, and placed his feet on a desk. There he sat for several hours. He refused to explain his conduct until just before he left. Then he said to the clerks:

"I suppose you think I'm an idiot? I'm not. For twelve long years I've been looking forward to this. I like to sit here and watch you beggars work. I'm gloating over you. It does me more good than a trip on a steam yacht." Every day since then, except Sunday, he has done the same thing. Sometimes he slumbers. He says he dreams that he is at work. The joy, he declares, of waking up and finding that he isn't is unequaled. He revels in a gigantic jag of joy.

As the warm weather continues the natural cravings of humanity call for something cooling to drink. Hires' Root Beer is sparkling, and a most delicious article. Every family should have it in their house. A 25 cent package will enable any one to make five gallons. Ask your druggist or storekeeper for it.

ROAD CROSSING ACCIDENT.

A Driver Severely Hurt and One of His Horses Killed.

Joseph Holland, a teamster, formerly employed in the mills of Wm. Bloodgood, of this city, met with a serious accident on Saturday afternoon about four o'clock while crossing the Lehigh Valley tracks near the residence of Albert Winans, at Cranford. Holland was driving a team of horses, and did not notice the approach of a freight train until he was upon the crossing. The locomotive hit his team. One horse was instantly killed, and the other very badly injured. The crash threw Holland out of his wagon, and he was severely hurt. Medical aid was summoned and the unfortunate man was conveyed to his home.

The Crescents Can't Compare With Them.

Westfield circulars in advertising tomorrow's game, say: "By way of comparison:—The Crescents beat the Acmes 10 to 9; the Westfields beat the Acmes 13 to 6; the Crescents beat the Alerts 14 to 2; the Westfields beat the Alerts 17 to 3. In the latter games the Crescents hit Mills for 13 hits; the Westfields hit Mills for 20 hits. Both Crescents and Westfields played close games, (2 to 0), with the Star-Athletics of Newark. Both teams will be represented by the strongest players and the game will be a close, hard fight."

A Lark That May Mean Horse Thief Imprisonment.

Wm. C. Kelly, of Oak Tree, drove to South Plainfield, yesterday, to order his Winter supply of fuel. While he was dickering with the village coal baron two skylarking young men, boisterously intoxicated, took possession of his horse and buggy and drove to Plainfield. After a spin through Front street they tied the horse to a tree on Leland avenue, where the animal was found this morning. The two young men have vanished. They are known to the police only as "Thomson and pal."

Another Fake.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I wish to contradict the article published in the news of last evening relating to the accident at the clam-bake on the 7th inst. The boat in which we were rowing was not capsized, but was so old that it filled with water, going down with all on board. I being able to swim reached the shore without assistance and did not call for help as stated.

The Fire Fiend in Bound Brook.

A barn belonging to the Ball estate on Malden lane was burned at Bound Brook last night. Two horses belonging to Dr. Davis lost their lives. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is attributed to incendiaries.

Inventions of the 19th Century.

The steamboat, the reaper, the sewing machine,
Cars running by night and by day,
Houses lighted by gas and heated by steam,
And bright electricity's ray.
The telegraph's click speeds like lightning released.
Then the telephone comes to excel it;
And, to put on the finish, the last, but not least,
Is the famed little Purgative Pellet.
Last, but not least, is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellet, because it relieves human suffering, adds to the sum of human comfort, and enables the relieved sufferer to enjoy all the blessings and luxuries of the age we live in.

NEWS FROM OUR NEIGHBORS.

St. Joseph's New Church—Insults From Firemen—Bad Roads and Wheelmen—Village Improvements—The Hero of a Snake Fight in Search of a Wife.

(Special to THE PRESS.)

BOUND BROOK, Sept. 9—The walls of the new St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church are completed, and the handsome new front is finished. At the top a stone cross, five feet tall, has been placed, giving a frontage height of eighty-four feet The roof-beams are being placed in position, and the work is being rapidly pushed. It has not yet been decided whether to have a bell or a statue in the belfry window, but it is probable that a statue of St Joseph will be chosen. A satisfactory bell cannot be bought for less than five hundred dollars, while a statue can be procured for about one fourth as much. A great many of the Catholics prefer the bell, and it may be that some generous-hearted citizen will present one to the church.

The towns-people are indulging in considerable talk concerning the proposed nomination of Col. C. W. Thomae on the Democratic ticket for Assemblyman. In an interview with a PRESS correspondent Col. Thomae said that some of the North Plainfield politicians had been speaking to him about the nomination, and he had told them that he would gladly accept the nomination if it were regularly made. Col. Thomae has many warm friends in Somerset county, and he would be well supported if nominated.

A number of Bound Brook people are anxious to have a fire-engine bought for the department, but it is claimed that such a purchase would be a useless expense, as the fire-hydrants give a bountiful stream under pressure enough to reach the roof of any building in town. The citizens who might afford to subscribe towards an engine will not do so, and in one way they cannot be blamed, as the firemen are constantly, it is alleged, making insulting remarks to property-holders. Only a few days ago one of our best citizens was passing through town when one of the firemen shouted at him: "You cussed old duffer, if your house ever gets a-fire we will let you and the house burn!" In consequence of such behavior the firemen are getting an unsavory reputation.

The Star Dramatic Club will produce two dramatic selections, "Border Land" and "Dutch Justice," for the benefit of the new St. Joseph's church, Tuesday evening, September 16. Manager Wicks conducted a rehearsal Saturday evening. The drama is very good, but the best part of the entertainment is the farce, in which Messrs Elder and Lair have especially funny parts.

The boys and young men who indulge in bicycle-riding on the sidewalks have been notified that hereafter they must use the streets instead of the walks. The wheelmen say the streets are not fit for bicycling, and have appealed to the Commissioners to have the ordinance changed, but to no avail. The next bicyclist caught riding on the sidewalk will have a chance to contribute ten dollars to the town treasury.

Hiram Giddis, overseer of the Windsor estate, is a hero in town because of his fight with a nest of black snakes. He had a sharp battle, and killed three dozen of the creatures, which ranged in length from six to ten feet. Hiram says his last girl jilted him because she thought him a coward, but he thinks he can get a wife now, since establishing his prowess.

Father O'Connell fired his first cannon at the liquor saloons and gambling dens Sunday, when he delivered an interesting temperance lecture.

Improvements in town are increasing: B. Billian has given his barber shop a new coat of paint, Isaac McCord is building a new house on High street, and R. F. Fennessey is the happy papa of a baby girl. R. H. McCullough, of North Plainfield has the contract for furnishing the pews in the new St. Joseph's church. A large number of bass and other fish are now caught daily along the Raritan. This is the best time of the year for fishing in these parts.

ETHEL RED JONES.

A Republican View of It.

(From the N. Y. Tribune.)

The threatened war between the Democratic bosses in Union county for leadership promises to break out shortly. There was a call issued yesterday by the Democrats in Elizabethport for a meeting on Wednesday night at Kennig's Hall, to indorse the candidacy of Wm. Hicks for Sheriff. This can only be regarded as a direct slap at the aspirations of Assemblyman Fred Marsh, who wants to be a Senator, as both he and Hicks hail from Elizabeth, and Elizabeth cannot expect to monopolize the two offices and leave the rest of the county out in the cold. The supporters of Hicks say they will bolt the ticket if he is not nominated.

Following in Plainfield's Footsteps.

The Westfield Athletic Company has filed articles of incorporation with the County Clerk of Union. The capital of the Company is $2,000. The incorporators are Albert A. Drake, George Peck and Harris W. Greene. The object of the Association is the promotion of baseball, football, lawn tennis, cricket and all other legitimate games and athletic sports. The company intends to have inclosed grounds and erect a club house.

—The first regular communication of Anchor Lodge since the beginning of Summer, will be held this evening.

TIGHT COLLARS AND COCKTAILS.

A Warning That Plainfield Dudes Should Take to Heart.

An oculist in Breslau, Germany, says the Troy Times, has traced several cases of defective eyesight to the habit of wearing tight collars. For some time he could find no reason for the impaired vision of his patients, but at length stumbled upon the collar theory, and upon ordering larger collars for the neck found the sight restored. The explanation is simple, and the wonder is that it was not thought of before. The pressure of the tight collars prevents a proper flow of blood to and from the head and, consequently, the eyes are improperly nourished and impaired sight follows. The discovery is a valuable one for many reasons, and not the least of these is the light which it sheds upon other unexplained facts.

The impeded circulation in the head doubtless leads to the impairment of other organs than the eyes, especially the brain. If this is true the origin of the dude is no longer a mystery. The youth, ambitious to shine as the wearer of pronounced clothing, dons the highest and tightest collar obtainable. Nature has not too generously supplied him brains to begin with, and the tight-fitting collar soon causes the little he has to shrink. As the parts most in use secure the larger share of nourishment, the youth has in time only a mind for the follies and fashionable frivolities of life. In other words, he has become a genuine dude. From this it appears that nature has been bearing a burden of blame which properly should rest upon the tight collar. Give her half a chance and she will keep the feeblest brain in a fair state of preservation, but block her efforts at brain nourishment and a dude with a single eyeglass and with a cane in his mouth is the almost inevitable result.

It may be too late to remedy the condition of the confirmed dude, but something can be done for those who are in the incipient stages of dudeism. Let them be forbidden the use of tight collars, cut off their supply of absinthe cocktails and champagne suppers, give them plain, life-giving food, and set them at honest labor of some sort, and in a generation the dude will have ceased to be. Such a result is worth all the trouble it will cost. A white collar is an indispensable portion of the dress of gentlemen, and all wear them when not indulging in warm weather neglige. But there are collars and collars, and the man who persists in wearing one two or three sizes too small for him, runs a great risk of degenerating into a half blind dude.

Not a Blunder in the Ballots, but the Law.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

It was declared by a Cape May paper last week that the ballots for the constitutional amendment election were all wrong, and would have to be recalled by the secretary of state. It has since been discovered that the ballots are in accordance with the law, but there is a blunder in the law. The error is so serious that it is just possible that there may be no special election after all on Sept. 30, though it is probable that the lawyers will find a way out of the tangle. One thing is at least certain, all of the 850,000 ballots prepared by the secretary of state and distributed broadcast throughout New Jersey will have to be destroyed.

County Clerk Crowell has the supply of ballots for this county, but he will not distribute them pending Attorney-General Stockton's opinion, which will be immediately given.

The second proposed amendment is all right. The error was made in preparing the first amendment, that which provides for special legislation. In drawing the law providing for the submission of the amendment to the people, the legislature mistook the clause to be amended, and the law and the ballots prepared by the secretary of state apply to the wrong clause of the constitution.

The Poor Umpire's Fault Again.

(From the Elizabeth Herald.)

The Alerts, with as goodly number of friends, visited Westfield Saturday afternoon, with a determination to again give the Westfields another "licking"—but they didn't!

Why?

Well, the boys insist that the umpire was "rank;" so much so, that they are compelled to admit their demoralization. Mills was undoubtedly sadly "out of order"—and he admits it.

Many "queer" decisions were given, meriting and receiving the hoots of the large crowd in attendance.

"Our boys" must stand a little criticism for allowing themselves to be so "broken up" by the bad decisions of an umpire, however, for a good ball player will only play the harder to win under such circumstances; and, again, it is not treating their friends justly to put up a bad game just for spite. You can and should have done better!

Nothing to Drink in Westfield, Sundays.

John Kelly was arrested at the union depot Sunday, says the Elizabeth Journal, by Officer Eckert. Kelly was drunk and acting in a disorderly manner. The officer alleged that it was not the prisoner's first offence, but that he makes a practice on Sundays of coming from Westfield, getting drunk and loafing about the depot. The justice imposed a fine of $2 and costs, or ten days. There are two or three other Westfielders charged with the same conduct on Sundays.

WOULD THEY BE WORN?

An Attempt to Prove That Artificial Gems Would Always Be Popular.

The question is a curious one, for it involves a good deal of human nature. It is the value of a precious stone wholly dependent upon its rarity and the consequent proof it affords that its owner is possessed of wealth, or at all events, of wealth which he can afford to waste? That is a nearly universal assumption, especially with those to whom wealth is itself an offense, and it has this support at least, that many a woman who would despise pretense thinks, if she actually has the diamonds at her bankers' she may wear their copies in paste. We venture, nevertheless, to question its entire correctness.

The enormous market price of precious stones, as compared to their beauty and utility, is no doubt due to their rarity and the consequent gratification to vanity which their possession affords, but their whole value does not consist in that. The desire for them is provoked also by their inherent beauty, as of flowers gifted with an attribute of permanence and possibly also by the instinctive taste for shining things which has made dewdrops strike all races as exquisitely beautiful—colors ever paid for a dewdrop—and which so many doctors know, rises in some men and women to a well marked kind of insanity. Many kleptomaniacs can control themselves against their temptation so long as the coveted article does not glitter. No possible case of manufacture can make an eternal dewdrop other than beautiful or take away the ruby's gift of setting off flesh or dim the strange flash of the opal, so utterly unlike any thing else that nature has produced. (By the way, the reference to the opal may be a mistake, for the beauty of that jewel, being the result of nature's failure and not of her success, for she can hardly have intended those hiatuses which yield the iridescence—may lie wholly beyond even the ablest chemist's art).

The taste for jewels would be universal if only the people ever thought of them as possibly procurable, and if they sank heavily in price they would be universally worn, as, indeed, the cheaper jewels and the imitations are already. What would happen, we believe therefore, if jewels became cheap is that the rich would abandon them in their present form, which tends more and more to a costly simplicity—the stones being, as it were, bared of all other ornaments—and that whole populations would take them up, thus constituting them once more a great article of commerce. Every woman above the poorest would use the stones for ornament. It is Birmingham jewelry that would die, not the real article. The rich, moreover, would defend themselves by calling art to their aid, and we should see not only a wonderful improvement in goldsmiths' work, now often devoid of even a pretense of art feeling, but a sudden and splendid revival of the art of the gem engraver, now so nearly dead. The ruby collar of the Marchioness would be almost as costly as ever, as a triumph of design and workmanship—even socialists could hardly make the first designer in Europe use his gift with a willing heart for a pound a week—while diamonds would become with the women of the people what pearls used to be in some parts of Italy, ornaments with which it was almost indecorous, certainly quite bad form, on high occasions, to dispense.—Spectator.

FREAKS OF KLEPTOMANIA.

Queer Cases That Have Come Under the Observation of Specialists.

A lady who lived in a fashionable suburb of London confined her attention strictly to keys, which she used to bury in her garden. No door or cupboard in her house was fitted with a key, and when she went out shopping she would always endeavor to edge near the door and abstract the key. She was not attracted in the least by keys unless they were in use. Her relatives used to buy up old keys, and leave them about the house, in the hope that she would satiate her passion for this curious form of the collecting mania, but they were quite unheeded. A key might lie on the drawing-room table for months without her evincing the slightest desire to bury it, but if it were brought into use, it was sure to be lying beneath a foot of mold before many hours were over. In the same way, a well-known doctor displayed an uncontrollable penchant for towels. He would as often as possible make an excuse for requiring a towel in the course of his professional duties, and would usually stuff it into the capacious tail pocket of his coat if he thought that he was unobserved. Curiously enough, this man was quite an authority upon the question of kleptomania, and used to deliver most learned discourses on the subject. Perhaps the most remarkable case of kleptomania was that of a man who refused to eat any food unless he had stolen it. This queer idea of his several times caused him to endure such protracted fasts that he was with difficulty brought round by the forcible administration of nourishment. His servants were obliged to continually watch him, with a view to keeping themselves informed regarding the amount of food that he ate. Finally, they hit upon a method of making him relieve them of their anxiety. They concealed foods of various descriptions, with the result that their master used to hunt about for it, and had no difficulty in finding sufficient to keep him in good condition.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

—Actress—"Good heavens! I am ruined. Burglars broke into my dressing room and stole every bit of my jewelry." Manager—"Don't be alarmed. The thieves have been caught and the property recovered—nearly $20 worth of Rhine-stones." Actress—"Pshaw! Well, send someone round to the newspapers to stop the articles that were going in to-morrow. I fixed the loss at $40,000, including the bracelet given me by the Czar."—America.

ENGLAND AND HER ENVIRONS.

THE Paris dinner hour is now at eight o'clock.

The milk bill of London exceeds £50,000 daily.

FRANCE claims to have seventy-six millionaires.

THE population of Ireland decreases by over 60,000 a year.

NO FEWER than 600,000 children are insured in Great Britain every year.

HELIGOLAND has a National debt of £10. The revenue is between £8,000 and £9,000.

THE famous Physick Garden in Chelsea, England, whose preservation is now a matter of discussion, has 20,000 different herbs and plants.

THE result of a large number of observations made in England tends to show that fair hair is rapidly disappearing in the British Isles, and that this darkening of hair is more marked in males than in females.

MARSEILLES, in France, is headquarters for the sale of false hair. Twenty bales of Chinese human hair recently arrived there and Yum Yum's and Fou Fou's headgear will be manufactured into curls, frizzes and crimps for American ladies.

GERMANY has adopted a uniform standard of time for the whole Empire. The fiftieth degree of longitude east of Greenwich is near the center of the Empire, and when the sun is immediately over this meridian it is declared to be noon for the whole country.

THE accounts of a pill-maker who has just died in England show that he has been spending $200,000 a year for advertising. His heirs, however, are finding no particular fault with this extravagance, as he leaves an estate valued at $25,000,000—all due to pills and advertising.

SUPPOSING that you wished to walk through all the streets and lanes and alleys of London, and were able to arrange your trip so that you never traversed the same one twice, you would have to take ten miles every day for nine years before your journey would be completed.

THE largest saw-mill in the world is at Christiana, in Norway, and is owned by one man. It runs thirty-six gang saws. From forty to fifty ships load at one time at its docks. The same man owns two large flour mills. The lumber yard of this mill extends more than a mile.

SEVENTY-NINE persons in Great Britain pay tax on incomes exceeding £50,000 per annum. The total aggregate amount of incomes thus assessed exceeds £8,000,000 sterling. In Ireland there is only one taxpayer whose income exceeds £50,000. He is returned at the rate of £76,349, and he last year contributed to the Imperial revenues the sum of £1,908.

ENGLISH gentlemen are said to dress 50 per cent. better than they used to. Time-honored traditions of patronizing one's grandfather's tailor, or leaving one's measure with the standing order to send home so many suits and so many pairs of trousers each quarter, have given place to common sense. Young dandies who once felt obliged to get their clothes at old and aristocratic establishments now go to cheaper and more wide-awake tailors.

FALLING SICKNESS AND ST. VITUS' DANCE.

Epileptic and Other Fits Cured.

For years a cure for Epilepsy and other Fits caused by disease of the nerves has been sought. It is now conceded by physicians, druggists and the people that the long-needed remedy has been found in Dr. Greene's Nervura, which has, by curing thousands of cases, proved that it is an absolute specific for these terrible nervous complaints. It is a harmless vegetable remedy, and a sure and positive cure for all nervous diseases. All druggists keep it at $1 00 per bottle.

My son had been troubled with epilepsy, loss of appetite, and had no ambition to do anything. After trying several remedies he took Dr. Greene's Nervura, and I can truly say that it made him a new boy. The fits have left him, his whole system is built up anew, and he is enjoying perfect health. It is the best medicine I ever used, and after trying others I find it has no equal.

MR. W. SCHUM,
70 West Forty-third st., New York city.

"Considers Dr. Greene's Nervura the Most Wonderful Remedy Ever Discovered."

My wife, Sarah R. Dill, was paralyzed three years ago, and was in a very low condition. She had convulsions coming on at the same time every month, which were so severe that we expected that she would never come out of some of them. Since that time she was under the treatment for 18 months of a first-class physician, who became discouraged, and finally allowed her to use Dr. Greene's Nervura, which she has been taking ever since. She has never had a convulsion or any symptoms of one since she began using this medicine; she is gaining rapidly in health and strength, and is able to be about the house and yard and do some light work. I consider Dr. Greene's Nervura the most wonderful remedy that was ever discovered.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled. Send for symptom blank to fill out or write him about your case.

OUR COUNTRY.

The following poem, by Mr. John G. Whittier, was read at Hawthorne's old home in Concord, at a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. D. Lothrop in honor of Mrs. John A. Logan. Mr. Whittier was obliged to decline an invitation to the reception, and his letter of regret was accompanied by this poem, written for the occasion.

Our thought of thee is glad with hope,
Dear country of our love and prayers;
Thy way is down no fatal slope.
But up to freer sun and airs.

Tried as by furnace fires, and yet
By God's grace only stronger made;
In future tasks before thee set
Thou shalt not lack the old-time aid.

The fathers sleep, but men remain
As true and wise and brave as they;
Why count the loss without the gain?
The best is that we have to-day.

No lack was in thy primal stock,
No weakling founders builded here;
There were the men of Plymouth Rock,
The Puritan and Cavalier;

And they whose firm endurance gained
The freedom of the souls of men,
Whose hands unstained in peace maintained
The swordless commonwealth of Penn.

And time shall be the power of all
To do the work that duty bids;
And make the people's Council Hall
As lasting as the Pyramids.

Thy lesson all the world shall learn,
The nations at thy feet shall sit;
Earth's furthest mountain tops shall burn
With watch-fires from thine own uplit.

Great, without seeking to be great
By fraud or conquest—rich in gold,
But richer in the large estate
Of virtue which thy children hold.

With peace that comes of purity,
And strength to simple justice due,
So owns our loyal dream of thee,
God of our fathers! make it true.

Oh, land of lands! to thee we give
Our love, our trust, our service free;
For thee thy sons shall nobly live,
And at thy need shall die for thee.

TWOMBLEY'S FOLLY.

A Turning Point in the Life of His Cousin Samanthy.

WIDOW APPLEBY, called Aunt Samanthy by her neighbors, was tidying up a room which had been furnished for a sleeping-room, and had in it also a desk, a book-case and a little row of drawers, in which fragments precious to a geologist had been carefully stored. The desk and book-case Aunt Samanthy regarded with reverence. The case she did not understand. Bits of stone, bits of ore; she emptied them all into her apron, and dumped them with other odds and ends out of the window upon a flower-bed that had not been dug up that year. Aunt Samanthy had no heart for gardening. Things had gone very wrong with her, and the death of her old boarder, a returned California miner, who had made and lost several fortunes, had put the finishing touch to her woes. His room it was that she was now putting to rights; knowing that she should never see the old white head and kindly smile again.

"I felt it more than any thing else, after losing poor Peter," she sighed, as a tear rolled down her cheek. "He was always so kind to me."

As she spoke, there came a heavy step on the porch, and, looking out of the window, she saw her cousin, Jedediah Twombley, standing there. Jedediah was a rich man, lately made richer by an inheritance from his grandfather, who had lived to be one hundred and five years old, and died leaving all to his wealthy grandson and nothing to his extremely poor granddaughter. It was natural that the thought should sting the widow as she looked at him.

"Morning!" said Jedediah. "Morning, Cousin Samanthy. I stepped up to get the shade. I feel the sun considerably, and my horse has lost a shoe, and I've sent Simon to get it fixed; thought I'd light here and see how you got on."

"I don't get on at all, Jedediah," said Samanthy. "Not as I should if Grandpa Twombley had left me suthin',

"I DON'T GET ON AT ALL, JEDEDIAH."

as I always reckoned he would; and now my poor old boarder has gone, I've got to that pass I've had to sell the cow."

"Too bad!" said Jedediah. "Well, come and get a pan of milk any time."

"Two miles there and back; thank ye!" said the widow. "Do you know if I was you, Jedediah, what I'd do? I'd say, 'Cousin Samanthy, I'm rich and you are poor. I'll give you a little slice of the big un grandpa left me.' That's your Christian duty, seein' grandpa was a hundred and five, and weak-minded when he died. He'd hev done it himself ten years ago, and you know it."

"Pshaw!" laughed Jedediah. "But you're a woman; that's your excuse for talkin' idiotic. I'm not a mean man. I'll give you five dollars down, Samanthy, and property is property; and wills is wills, and not to be broken."

"Well, I don't set up for proud, and I'm so poor that this is a good deal to me," said Samanthy, taking the money. "I reckon grandpa's spirit is around somewhere, prompting you to do right, seeing you influenced him to do wrong."

"Now, Samanthy, grandfather wasn't influenced by me! That I can tell you!" said Cousin Jedediah. "He always felt you made a mistake in stepping off with Peter. Peter was one of them folks that never prospers. 'What's the use,' grandfather used to say to me, 'of helping Samanthy, when Peter—'"

"Poor Peter is gone," said the widow, taking her handkerchief from her apron pocket. "Don't talk against him. He was jest as kind as kind could be to me."

"No doubt," said Jedediah, hurriedly, "no doubt. I didn't mean any offense. I always thought Peter quite—quite—but what was you a-doin' when I came in? house-cleanin'?"

"I was cleanin' out the spare room," said the widow. "It's been shut up quite a spell—since the Californy gentleman died. I thought I'd let it, if I could. I might take a few boarders this summer, if they'd come."

"I'll pay for an advertisement," said Jedediah, who was worth a million and a half, "and I'd let you have lots of cucumbers off our place. You could grow things here now, if you was to seed this bed up instead of pitchin' rubbish on it; you could grow radishes right under your window. Summer boarders generally thinks radishes hulsome."

"I jest emptied the bureau drawers out onto that bed. There was a lot of rubbish in 'em, and I meant to dig it over, only I ain't very strong."

"I'll let Simon dig it," said Jedediah, "and you seed it, and it will be a comfort to you."

By this time Simon, who had been slowly driving up hill, stopped at the gate, and Jedediah called to him sharply:

"Simon, you jest take the spade and dig over Mrs. Appleby's garden. I'll drive home myself. Good-bye, Samanthy. I thipk that idee about the summer boarders is a good one;" and jumping into his wagon he drove up the road, glad to be rid of his poor cousin.

Simon looked after his master with a very peculiar expression.

"'Some folks is born for luck and some for children,'" he said, sententiously. "I've got four."

"And I've got three," said the widow, "Now, Simon, don't you do that unless you feel like it. I know you have plenty to do."

"I'd jest as lief," said Simon. "What you been throwin' out here, Mrs. Appleby?"

"Rubbish out of my Californy boarder's bureau-drawers," said Mrs. Appleby. "What he kept it there for I dunno."

Simon laughed, and, stooping, picked up one or two bits of something, and put them in his pocket.

The bed was nicely spaded when Mrs. Appleby looked out again, and Simon was gone.

As Mr. Jedediah Twombley sat on his porch that night, counting up the profits of his hay-crop, a voice behind him cried:

"Mr. Twombley, I've got suthin' I want to show you!"

He turned. It was Simon who had spoken, and he held in his hand a fragment of something that looked dark and heavy.

"See here," he said, in a whisper; "I've been to the gold mines in my time, and if this ain't gold I'll give up and say I'm lacking."

"Why, to be sure! To be sure!" said old Jedediah, clutching the little chunk of ore in his hand "To be sure. Where did you find it?"

"Why, in the Widder Appleby's garden. Dug it up out'n the flower-bed you told me to spade up for her," said Simon.

"Then there's gold on the place," said Jedediah. "I've always thought there was gold here. I've always said so."

"Yes, I've heerd you," said Simon, with a twinkle in his eye. "Now, what a thing that'll be for the widder. A gold mine on her place."

"Hush!" whispered Jedediah, with his eyes gleaming greenly in the twilight. "Hush, Simon; promise me you won't tell her or anybody. I'll make it all right with you. You're kinder uncomfortable where you be, with your small family. I'll allow you to hev the frame house on the hill at the same rent. Don't mention any thing about it. I'll make it right with Mrs. Appleby. Though, after all, this mayn't be gold."

"P'raps not; but old miners, like me, rather calculates to know," said Simon. "If you don't mind, I'll move up to the frame house to-morrow. Wait a bit. Let's go over to the widder's. I'll pretend it's to sow the radish seed, if you'll give me some; and we'll see if there's any more there."

"Good!" said Jedediah Twombley. "A bright idea."

Accordingly, to the widow's surprise, Simon took the seed over; and, the sowing done, brought back to his master, waiting in the wagon under the trees, three or four more specimens of the same ore, which Jedediah took at once to a celebrated mineralogist of the nearest town, who declared that where these came from there was assuredly a gold mine. And trembling with delight, Jedediah went back to walk around the widow's house in the moonlight, where she, seeing him through the curtains, took him for a tramp and was frightened almost out of her senses.

Several things happened to startle her that day. The first was the appearance of Simon at her door in the early dawn as she was boiling her solitary cup of coffee over some splinters of wood.

"Widder," Simon whispered, solemnly. "'Tend to what I say, and don't forget it. Mr. Twombley is goin' to make you an offer for your place. Don't let him have it cheap. Rise on him as bold as brass. Don't chin about any thing. Don't tell him nothin'. Jest say: 'I won't sell for that' until you get what'll keep you comfortable. Mind, do as I say; don't ask questions; don't chin; you'll give yourself away."

"I don't half understand you," said the widow; "you hev such curious expressions kinder, but if Cousin Jedediah offers much for two acres of stones and a house like this he's goin' crazy."

"Mebbe he's seen a ghost," said Simon, "but you mind me."

He was off. Not too soon, for the wheels of Jedediah Twombley's wagon rattled down the road the next moment and Jedediah stood at the door in the place of his servant.

"What you said kind o' teched me yesterday, Samanthy," he said, "and I've been thinking. What you want is rest. Sell your place and go board in the village. I'll buy it. It ain't worth much, but what'll you take?"

The widow looked at him. It was not benevolence that shone in his eyes, but greed.

"Well," she said, cautiously; some of the same blood ran in her veins, and she could bargain also. "Well, what'll you give?"

"Five hundred dollars!" said the rich man. "Eh?"

Samanthy shook her head.

"Eight!"

"Lor' no," said Samanthy.

"A thousand!"

Samanthy turned pale, but shook her head.

"Two thousand!" said Jedediah.

"I reckon you're calculating I'm half-witted," said Samanthy.

"She knows about the gold," said Jed-

SIMON AT HER DOOR AT EARLY DAWN.

diah to himself; "or—yes, some one else knows and has made an offer."

The miser and the gambler sometimes mingle in one man. They had in Jedediah Twombley.

"Fifteen thousand dollars!" he cried, hurriedly. "You can live comfortably on that, eh?"

"Grandfather's ghost has appeared," thought Samanthy.

"Well," she said, "if you'll drive over to the lawyer's, and pay me now, I'll do it."

Ten minutes after this the two were seated side by side in the wagon. Two hours more Samanthy was, in her own opinion, a rich woman, with no fear of suffering before her, and no more need to toil for her bread. She was to leave the cottage that day, and bewildered by her sudden prosperity, she was packing her few poor possessions, when again, as in the dawn, Simon stood at her door.

"Sold it?" he asked.

"Yes," said the widow, breathlessly; "for fifteen thousand dollars. I reckon grandpa appeared to him."

Simon put his hand in his pocket and drew out a bunch of something.

"What's that?" he asked.

The widow looked at what he held toward her.

"It's a bit of rubbish I threw out of that case there," she said.

"It's gold ore," said Simon. "Your Californy boarder had a lot of specimens of it in that case; he often showed 'em to me. I was a miner once. I took an interest in 'em. You throwed 'em into the radish bed; I dug 'em up out of it. I jest showed them to Mr. Twombley. His idee has always been that there's gold in these mountings. He thinks there's gold on your place."

"And he wanted to give me five hundred dollars!" said the widow.

"It's all right for you, and I didn't tell no lies," said Simon. "I did dig up them specimens in the radish bed."

The widow lives at ease in the village now, and keeps her own counsel; and there's a big hole with a windlass near it, where her home once stood. People call it "Twombley's Folly;" but Jedediah Twombley intended it for a gold-mine, and spent a little fortune also in working it several years.—Asa T. Ferry, in N. Y. Ledger.

INCREDIBLE MEANNESS.

The Drummer Who Bought a Kiss and Didn't Pay for It.

The medal for the meanest man no longer belongs to the individual who turned the brick in his sidewalk to save buying new ones. At one of the Kansas City hotels the other day, says the Star of that city, a pretty little flaxen-haired, blue-eyed baby girl was playing with a big Newfoundland dog about the office, when she was induced to quit her romping and sit on the lap of a fat commercial traveler. The traveler amused the baby for awhile by showing her his watch, keyring and various trinkets, then seeing that the little one was restless and wanted to "det down," he promised to let her go if she kissed him first. His was not an attractive mouth, and the child strongly objected. As a final inducement, after much coaxing, the drummer went down in his pocket and pulled out a big, shining silver dollar and held it before baby with the remark: "If you give me a kiss you may have this." Such a glittering offer as this proved too much, so up went the little mouth, with lips puckered as though about to receive a dose of medicine, and "smack!" and all was over.

"Now 'oo div me the money," said the baby, holding out both of her chubby little hands to receive it. The man put the dollar back in his pocket, and instead fished out a copper cent and gave it to the child with the remark: "Now go and play with dogey."

SOME CURIOUS FACTS.

The Origin of Amber, Crystal and Pearls Explained by an Expert.

"Amber is curious stuff," said a collector of curios to a Washington Star reporter the other day. "It is only comparatively recently that its nature has been known, and even at this day very few people seem to have any notion as to what it is in reality. The ancients regarded it as altogether mysterious and even magical. They found that it was rendered electrical by friction so as to attract light substances, and our word 'electricity' comes from the Greek name for amber, which was 'electron.' A favorite puzzle with them was how the insects so frequently found in amber came to be so situated. Not as a modern poet has phrased it:

—that the thing was either rich or rare,
But how the devil did it get there?

"I have myself seen a chunk of very transparent amber in which a small lizard with five legs was encased, looking as if it might have been alive yesterday, though, doubtless, it had been dead for thousands of years. The mystery regarding this sort of phenomenon is easily enough explained when it is understood that amber is actually the fossil gum of an extinct kind of cone-bearing tree. In the process of hardening it imprisoned the flies and other creatures preserved in the chunks of it that are found to-day. It is discovered plentifully by digging in certain parts of the great plains of North Germany, where the strange tree once flourished. It is also found in considerable quantities along the shores of the Baltic, in the yellow sandstone. At Palmicken, in East Prussia, it is dug in regular mines; elsewhere it is picked from cliffs, and a good deal of it is gathered in the shape of nodules cast up by the waves. The finest specimen of amber in Europe is a cup made of that material, now at the Brighton Museum, England. It was found at Hove some years ago, together with weapons and utensils of stone and bronze, so it is evidently very ancient indeed. In the fourteenth century, and before amber was made into knives and forks with one prong, which were used by princes and church dignitaries, it was more valuable than gold then. Now it is worth from $3 to $50 a pound, according to its quality. The most important use made of it is for meerschaum and other pipes. Meerschaum, by the way, is a material dug out of the earth in Turkey; it comes in boxes holding fifty pounds, and valued at from $20 to $300. The dust and chips obtained from it in the process of manufacture are worked into pipes, this material being called 'imitation meerschaum.' Amber dust is melted, and the product is what is sold as 'amberine.'"

"What a very beautiful sphere of crystal this is!" said the newspaper man, taking in his hand a cool globe that looked like a huge dewdrop, which the collector handed him for examination.

"Yes, that is a pretty specimen. I suppose you are aware of the theory entertained by the ancients regarding such rock crystal. They thought it was actually ice frozen to great density by duration of time, congealed beyond liquidation. 'Krystallos' in Greek means 'ice.' The famous writer on natural philosophy, Pliny, who wrote more facts that were not true than ever any man collected together before or since, says the crystal is undoubtedly water frozen by cold so intense that nothing can melt it again. Roman ladies of that time were accustomed to carry such spheres as this one in their hands during hot weather for coolness. It was the thing also to have the material worked into wine jugs and other vessels. Nero had two drinking cups of crystal worth $3,000 each, and a crystal ladle also; but when he learned that he had lost his kingdom he broke them, lest they fall into the hands of any one else. A crystal lens was employed in Rome to kindle the sacred vestal fire. Great care was taken not to put the crystal ware in a warm place for fear that it would melt. The most remarkable discovery of crystal on record was made in 1867 above the Tiefen glacier by a party of tourists, a single cave in the granite yielding 1,000 crystals of from 50 to 100 pounds weight."

"And what is this?"

"That," replied the collector, "is a diminutive Chinese god, covered with a coat of pearl by a real pearl oyster. On such parts of the coast of the Flowery Kingdom as produce pearl oysters a regular business is often made of manufacturing pearls artificially by introducing into the shells of the live oysters foreign objects of various kinds. You doubtless know that the pearl is a morbid symptom in the bivalve. A grain of sand or some such substance getting into the oyster produces irritation and the animal protects itself by covering the objectionable particle with coating after coating of its own pearly secretion. The interruption of light by the successive coats of which the pearl is formed in this way gives it its beautiful luster. Taking advantage of this habit of the pearl oyster the ingenious Chinaman pries it gently open and puts in whatever he likes, may be a little figure of a god like this. The oyster goes to work and covers it with pearl, until after a few months the idol is a pearl idol."

England's Prize Twins.

At Bristol, Eng., are two young artisans who are the prize twins of the world. They are of the same height and weight; have eyes, hair and complexion of the same color; walk, speak, laugh and sing exactly alike; follow the same occupation, have the same religious persuasions and likes and dislikes; are both married, and have the same number of children, who are of the same sexes—three boys and three girls each.

Waiting Maids in Livery.

English ladies are adopting the fashion of putting their maids who wait at table in livery. The skirts of these livery gowns are plain and of the heraldic color of the house. All the plaits are thrown behind. Then the waistcoat and jacket are trimmed with livery bands, buttons and crests or monograms in metal. A high stiff white collar, white cuffs and a tiny cap like a top-knot complete this livery.

CARE OF THE HANDS.

Little Things That Will Keep Them in Good Condition.

Probably there is no one thing that makes girls shrink from house-work more than the effect it has on the hands, especially in cold weather, says Health. It is a real trial to sit down to the piano and spread a stained, rough hand on the ivory keys; or to take one's pen in an unsightly hand to answer a letter; or to pick up a bit of embroidery, if it is only that on perforated hose, and use the needle when every thing that touches the hands sticks to them because of their roughness. Sewing on woolen or silk is at such times a severe penance. There are methods of preserving the hands measurably against the destructive effect of dish-washing, scrubbing and the like. They should be kept as much out of the water as possible, and when the work is done they should be washed clean and rubbed dry. Borax water is good for washing the hands. Coarsely ground oat-meal is a fair substitute for soap in washing the hands. White unscented soaps are the best, as the highly scented soaps are usually made of rancid fats. A solution of oxalic acid will remove fruit stains from the hands, but it must not touch an abraded surface. After washing and drying the hands thoroughly, glycerine and spirits of camphor in equal parts mixed together is good to rub over them. Cocoanut oil is a pleasant application. Wearing kid gloves two sizes too large is helpful in preserving the hands. One should have an old pair of gloves to take up ashes in, to sweep in and to wear in all dirty work that permits the wearing of gloves. If gloves are dipped in not very hot linseed oil they become waterproof, and may be worn while washing dishes. A pair of canton flannel mittens is pleasant to wear when hanging out the clothes on a cold morning. Frequent rubbing of the hands will promote circulation and keep the skin in good condition. To take the best care of the nails, soak the ends of the fingers in hot water for some time, until the skin is softened, then dry, and with a pair of nail scissors thin off all the dead skin about the nails and trim the nails neatly.

WOMAN'S HAPPIEST HOUR.

Love Has More to Do with It Than Any Thing Else.

I have had it suggested to me by a friend staying in the house at this time, writes "The Duchess" in the Ladies' Home Journal, that the happiest moment in a woman's life is when, having brought the man of her heart to the point of proposing, she makes him wait a minute or two for her answer. To know and feel his anxiety—to understand that the anxiety is all caused through love of her—this would constitute a bliss not to be rivaled, a bliss the sweeter for being so short-lived, and because of the fact that it can never occur again. But this strikes me as being a little feline in its nature, just a trifle cruel.

For myself, I should think there would be keener joy in that moment when a woman is able to say "Yes" to the most important question of her life, and to give herself freely and gladly to the one she loves.

I think, however, the question a difficult one to answer. There are so many different natures, that what would be extreme happiness to one woman might be only mild delight to another.

Some women, for example, have the maternal instinct more strongly developed than others, and for them the vocal cry of their first-born must cause an uplifting of the heart that no other feeling on earth could outdo. All in that supreme moment is forgotten!

The ambitious woman must find her best hour when she has attained the summit of her hopes, and victory crowns her with its laurel wreath.

To the woman standing over the sick bed that contains the one being dearest to her on earth, can there be an hour more rife with thankful happiness than when the doctor declares that there is hope? O, magic word! Hope that the adored one will be given back to her from the very jaws of death!

And yet, after all, I think Love, "that great master" as he has been justly called, nas more to do with a woman's sweetest hour than any thing else on earth. To love, and to feel one's self beloved—that is, indeed, to know the best of life.

FROM STANLEY'S MAIL.

Curious Requests, Only a Very Few of Which Were Honored.

Edward Marston in his article in Scribner's gives the following selections from Mr. Stanley's mail: An enthusiast hailing from America asks for Mr. Stanley's old cap:

Right glad am I that you are once more in a civilized country. I have carefully watched your proceedings from the time you discovered Livingstone. You are a brick! Now, if you are inclined to sell the cap you wore through Africa I am prepared to give you a fancy price for it to add to my collection of curiosities; it shall be preserved in a glass case with your name on same.

A firm of tobacconists makes the following cool request:

Will you kindly accord us your gracious permission to append your noble name, and your photograph (might we ask for your autograph?) to a first-class quality of cigar and cigarette, made by ourselves from the best and finest tobacco, etc.?

A photographer writes:

SIR: Pray excuse the liberty taken by a stranger in approaching you at a time when your hands and mind must be so full, but since, to satisfy the demands of an admiring public, some one must claim the proud position of performing the task I covet, that of executing a portrait, etc.

A poetical soldier in Cairo says:

I humbly beg you will kindly accept the inclosed few simple lines from a soldier. I am no poet, but have expressed myself as well as possible, etc.

Mr. S. replied kindly to this, and has made the Cairo soldier very proud.

The following letter is from an old acquaintance of the Pocock days:

DEAR SIR: Please excuse me for the liberty I have taken in writing to you, but in knowing you, an' taking a very great interest in your travels, I congratulate you on your safe return, hoping you may long live to Injoy your health and hapness for your labours. I have always taken great entrest in your travels ever since we meet at Zanzibar. * * * I ham the man that don your boat when the Pocock Brothers was with you and I should like a few lines from you, as I should like them put in our papers here, etc.

RAILROAD SUSPECTS

The Train-Wrecking Story Losing Its Solidity.

VERY LITTLE EVIDENCE SO FAR.

One of the Men to Have an Examination in Troy To-Day.

Knights to Have Counsel Present—Mr. Webb Believes that Flagman Dunwoody Placed Obstructions on the Track Monday Night—Powderly Speaks at an Enthusiastic Mass Meeting.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The story current as the facts in the case of the wreckers of the Montreal express is losing its announced solidity based on facts.

The Central road has no definite knowledge of how many men wrecked the train. Of the three men under arrest the only one against whom there is any evidence is Kiernan. The road claims to have confessions from Reed and from Cordial, but the claim is made in the hope of getting Kiernan to squeal in return.

The habeas corpus proceedings of the Knights have come to grief. Counsellor McDonough was absent from the city yesterday and Mr. Nevitt, who had charge, got out the writs. Reed being voluntarily a prisoner no writ could be issued in his case, and the papers read for Kiernan and Cordial.

"Why were they not served?" was asked Master Workman Lee, last night. "Well, we found that they had taken Cordial to Troy, and so we thought we would wait until the examination today," he answered.

At the examination before a Troy judge there will be present Master Workman Lee, Master Workman Dulin, Counsellor McDonough and, perhaps, Roger A. Pryor for the prisoners. The railroad officials and Mr. Robert Pinkerton will also be there.

DUNWOODY'S TRICK.

Mr. Webb Says There Was No Intention to Wreck the St. Louis Express.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—"I honestly don't believe that the attempt to wreck the St. Louis express was any more than a mere hoax gotten up by Flagman Tim Dunwoody," said Vice President Webb.

"It has always been the rule of the company," he continued, "to reward heroic work done by the men with liberal sums of money. This fellow, Tim Dunwoody, I have no doubt, thought he would be presented with $400 or $500, besides gaining unlimited newspaper notoriety.

"The circumstances of the affair dovetailed altogether too nicely to be true. Besides, when any one attempts to wreck a train, unless it is done to rob the passengers, they don't hang around the place where they built the obstruction.

"What will be done with Tim? Well, that will remain to be seen. We are watching him very carefully, and when the investigation is all over then it will be time enough to decide upon that.

"But I think if the affair was a hoax, the perpetrators of it should be punished severely, as it not only endangered the lives of several hundred people, but would have done the Knights of Labor a great injury in the eyes of the public."

POWDERLY WELL RECEIVED.

He Addresses an Immense Mass Meeting in Oswego, N. Y.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 10.—General Master Workman Powderly addressed an immense mass meeting here last night. He was received with a great blaze of red fire. Hundreds of people were turned away from the hall.

Mr. Powderly reviewed and expounded the principles of the Knights. He referred to the Central strike, condemning the corporation for its course, and asked suspension of judgment regarding the men arrested for wrecking trains until they could be heard and tried.

He declared that a law should be enacted that would prevent a corporation from doing anything to precipitate a strike, or laborers from striking, until both sides could be heard and passed upon by a board of arbitration authorized to act.

Mr. Powderly declared that the telegraphic report that 10,000 glass blowers would leave the order was false, and that there was absolutely no foundation for the story. He expressed friendship for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and said the day was coming when the Brotherhood of Engineers, the Brotherhood of Firemen, the K. of L. and all others would clasp hands in their own defense and in behalf of their homes and their families.

Ex-President White to Wed To-Day.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—Ex-President Andrew D. White of Cornell University and Miss Helen McGill, eldest daughter of ex-President Magill of Swarthmore College, will be married at 4 o'clock this afternoon by the Friends' ceremony. A number of distinguished persons will be present.

Latest from Maine.

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 10.—Returns from 338 towns are: Burleigh, 51,594; Thompson, 39,368; Clark, Pro., 2,092. Republican plurality, 18226. The same towns in 1886 gave 13,915 Republican plurality.

Knights of Honor in Session.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The Grand Lodge of the State of New York Knights of Honor is in session in Congress Hall behind closed doors. About 300 members, representing every section of the State, are present.

THE PRESIDENT VERY BUSY.

Bills Ready for His Approval Sent by Special Messenger to Cresson.

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 10.—The President has been busy most of the day in his library. He has directed that the bills ready for his approval be sent here by special messenger.

Among the measures which will occupy the attention of the President during the week will probably be the River and Harbor bill. Some very prominent Republicans predict that this measure, which appropriates nearly $25,000,000, will not receive the President's approval. It may be that while the bill will not be approved, the President will recommend that adequate provisions be made for carrying on, under the direction of the Secretary of War, all work which has been begun.

President Harrison received a call from a class of young ladies who are being educated at the Loretto Convent. The President was glad to see them, and expressed much interest in their temporary home and its surroundings.

Private Secretary Halford is getting more work on hand than he can well handle alone, and it is quite likely that he will order assistance from the White House.

Mrs. Russell Harrison and her daughter left here last night for Omaha, Neb., where she will visit her mother.

WHOLESALE EVICTIONS.

Many Deaths are Reported from Exposure in the Irwin Mining District.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Sept. 10.—The situation in the case of the five thousand striking miners in the Irwin district, which has been in progress since May last, is not improved. Much excitement exists on account of the evictions of the Penn Gas and Coal Company. Out of 218 families receiving eviction notices, all but twenty-one families have left. Many deaths are reported from exposure. Many of the families are being cared for by the well-to-do people of the town, and much indignation is felt against the company.

A number of men were brought from New York to take the places of the strikers, but refused to go to work when they learned the true condition of affairs. They now declare they will sue the company for false representations. As fast as new men are brought in they are influenced by the strikers not to go to work. The company are determined not to be thwarted and will bring over 300 men to-morrow. A number of deputies are guarding the company's property. The feeling against them is strong, but the strikers will refrain from using any force.

MRS. M'GINTY GUILTY.

She Was Accused of Trying to Hire a Man to Kill a Bank President.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Sept. 10.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Sarah Randolph, alias "Mrs. McGinty," charged with soliciting the murder of W. S. Foltz, president of the First National Bank of Newcastle, returned a verdict of guilty. She was remanded for sentence.

Within fifteen minutes of the time she received her sentence her only son, William, a married man, aged 40, while waving to some friends a snapping turtle he had just caught, fell under a passing train. He will die.

New Hampshire Prohibitionists.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 10.—Josiah M. Fletcher, of Nashua, was nominated unanimously for Governor by the Prohibition Convention. A State Committee of two from each county and five at large was elected. Congressional nominations were then made as follows: First District, Rev. Frank K. Chase, Dover; Second District, Charles H. Thorndike, of Concord.

Police Prevented a Bolt.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 10.—At the Republican Delegate Convention of the Twenty-third Congressional District, Col. Wm. A. Stone was nominated over George Shiras for Congress. Stone's majority on the popular vote was 3,033. The Shiras delegates made an attempt to bolt the convention, but were prevented from doing so by the police officers.

First Trial of the Secret Ballot.

FAR ROCKAWAY, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The new secret ballot law underwent its first test in this State at the village election here. The voting passed off smoothly except in a few cases where men had to be shown how to fold their ballots properly. Three men were debarred from voting because of their inability to read or write, though they had voted in the township for years.

The Monument to Gen. Grant.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Grant Monument Fund Executive Committee met and selected a design for the monument. The character of the design will be given out to-morrow, when a meeting of the entire association will be held.

A Street Car Strike Settled.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 10.—The street car strike was settled at 1 a. m. on a basis of 9½ hours work for $1.75, the men to do no extra work except when paid at the rate of 18½ cents per hour. The cars have resumed running.

Work of Tramps.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 10.—Last night's work in putting a rail across the Boston & Maine tracks is now believed to have been done by tramps in revenge for the arrest of 14 of them for pilfering from the company's freight cars.

Stockholders Order an Assignment.

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The stockholders of the Eureka Silk Manufacturing Company at a meeting decided that an assignment should be made. The treasurer of the company will execute the assignment immediately.

FINE BALL PLAYING

Close Game Between New York and Boston Nationals.

THE WINNING RUN IN THE 9TH.

Brilliant Contest Between the Brooklyn and Philadelphia Brotherhood Teams.

The New York Giants Again Defeated by the Boston Club—The Clevelands and Cincinnatis Struggle for Fourteen Innings—The Brotherhood Game at Buffalo Postponed—Standing of the Clubs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The National League teams of New York and Boston had another battle royal at the Polo Grounds. New York won the game, but only after one of the prettiest contests on record.

The playing was sharp and of the the kind which excites the onlookers to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

Rusie sent terrific curves over the plate, and Boston's batting average was materially reduced. Getzein's pretzel curves were not so effective.

The fielding play was remarkable, a running catch by Brodie in the sixth inning receiving an ovation.

The winning run was made in the ninth inning. Bassett made a hit and he ran to second on Hornung's out at first. Clarke's timely hit to center field brought Bassett home.

THE BOULANGER STORIES.

The Comte de Paris to Publish a Letter on the Subject.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—It is reported that the Comte de Paris intends to publish a letter soon, in which he will deny many of the statements which have been advanced by M. de Mercier with regard to his transactions with the Boulangists during the political influence of the latter.

M. Drumont now declares that the Comte de Paris has in his possession a letter from General Boulanger in which the latter while Minister of War offered to restore the monarchy on the condition that he be promoted to the rank of Marshal and be created a Duke, with an allowance of 200,000 francs yearly. M. Drumont also states that Baron Hirsch provided 200,000 francs for election expenses in Gen. Boulanger's contest in the Department of the North.

SELECTED A SITE.

The Vexed Question at Last Settled by the World's Fair Committee.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—The directors of the World's Fair at a special meeting selected the dual site of the Lake Front and Jackson Park as the place for locating the exposition. The final and decisive ballot resulted: Lake Front and Jackson Park 23, North Side 4, West Side 8. The choice was then made unanimous.

It is the design to place the grand entrance to the exposition, and the buildings for fine arts and kindred displays, on the Lake Front, and the agricultural, live stock and other exhibits at Jackson Park.

$5,500 FOR DEMPSEY.

The Puritan Athletic Club Makes the Highest Bid Yet.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The largest and in all probability the surest purse that has been offered so far for Jack Dempsey and Fitzsimmons is the one which is hung out by the Puritan Athletic Club.

The directors of this organization held a meeting last night at which it was agreed, by unanimous vote, to offer Jack Dempsey and Bob Fitzsimmons a purse of $5,500. This is the largest sum ever offered any two middleweights in this country by any athletic club.

Deserting the Knights.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 10.—The German printers' assembly here has surrendered its K. of L. charter. A rumor prevails here among labor men that in the event of the re-election of Grand Master Workman Powderly, Local Assembly 300, Window Glass Workers, will leave the Knights of Labor. The principal causes of dissatisfaction are said to be the mismanagement of the Central railroad difficulty, and too lavish expenditure of money by the general officers of the order—especially in the matter of salaries.

Grand Lodge of Red Men.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The United States Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Red Men is holding its annual meeting at the hall of the New York Mannerchor, about two hundred delegates being present. The first day's session was occupied in receiving the credentials of the delegates and hearing the reports of the various officers, which showed the order to be in a remarkably good and sound condition.

Keystone Knights of the Mystic Chair.

READING, Pa., Sept. 10.—The annual State Convention of the Ancient Order of the Knights of the Mystic Chair of Pennsylvania is now in session here. Reports show that the order has a membership of 15,000 in the State, and is established in nineteen States. A street parade took place in the afternoon, several Philadelphia lodges participating.

A Defaulting Treasurer Arrested.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 10.—William F. Slingluff was arrested here on a warrant sworn out by Joseph M. Cranston, representing the Pennsylvania Rolled Steel Car Wheel Company. He was arraigned before a magistrate and held in bail for further hearing on Saturday. Slingluff was treasurer of the company and defaulted to the amount of from $15,000 to $19,000.

An Unfortunate Engineer.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 10.—William Avery, a farmer, was struck and killed near the city limits by a Lehigh express train. James Stewart was the engineer. He is very unfortunate in regard to killing people, although he is a good engineer. It is said that he has struck and killed upwards of 30 during his life on the road.

Engineer Scarles to Blame.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 10.—The investigation of the railroad accident at South Norwalk last Saturday, in which a Consolidated express train crashed into a Danbury & Norwalk train, has been finished. Engineer Stephen T. Searles, of the Consolidated road, is held responsible, and will be discharged from the company's employ.

Stone Masons Forming a National Union.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—The National Convention of Stone Masons, called with the object of forming a Stone Mason's National Union of America, is in session in this city. The delegates present come from Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Colorado and Maryland, representing 3,000 stone masons.

Cut His Body in Two.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 10—John Carpenter, a switchmen in the Erie yard here, in attempting to ascend a car, slipped and fell upon the track, four cars passing over him, severing his body in twain. Carpenter was 24 years old, and leaves a young widow.

STRIKERS IN A RIOT

The Southampton Dockers Attack the Military.

SEVERAL PERSONS WOUNDED.

The Troops Charged With Bayonets and Dispersed the Mob.

The Town Greatly Excited and Further Trouble Expected—Object of the Irish Leaders' Coming Visit to America—The Steamer Baltimore Arrives at Sweden With Ericsson's Remains.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The striking dockers, coal porters, sailors and firemen at Southampton are acting in a disorderly manner. They prevented several trains from being run, and obstructed the dock gates so that the officials could not enter.

Two companies of infantry arrived last night and cleared the railway tracks. The strikers attempted to break through the line of soldiers by driving cab-horses into them, but the troops charged with bayonets and dispersed the mischief makers.

A little later the crowd of strikers and idlers, having largely increased in numbers, attacked the military with stones. Several of the soldiers were injured, two quite badly, and a lieutenant had the bridge of his nose broken.

The Mayor appeared on the scene and read the riot act, whereupon a section of the rioters proceeded to the Mayor's place of business and attacked the building, breaking the windows with stones and doing other damage.

Meanwhile full ammunition of twenty rounds was served out to the soldiers, and the crowd having ignored a final order to disperse, the commander ordered a charge with fixed bayonets.

Many of the rioters were wounded by the bayonets, and a number of the soldiers were badly hurt by the stones and other missiles flung by the crowd before the street was cleared.

The town is greatly excited, and further trouble is expected.

OPPOSED TO DYNAMITE.

Object of the Irish Leaders' Coming Visit to America.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Mr. William O'Brien and his party will sail for the United States on October 1. Their tour will constitute the most important American campaign undertaken in the cause of Irish patriotism since the visit of Mr. Parnell. The present trip will have a new, definite object in view, which cannot but have a tendency in the direction of putting the Irish cause in America on a better footing than it has ever heretofore enjoyed in the estimation of the American people, and in carrying out more completely than has been possible on former occasions the ideas of Mr. Parnell and his associate leaders of the Irish party.

The chief aim of Mr. O'Brien and his companions will be to accomplish the formation of a moderate Irish party in the United States, quite distinct from the socialistic set which has generally gotten the upper hand in Irish matters. They have received strict instructions to have no dealings whatever with the physical force party, and to ignore or repudiate at all times and on all occasions the violent and aggressive spirits who have disgraced Irish patriotism by their preaching of dynamite and murder. The delegates will appoint agents of the Land League in all the important cities and industrial and commercial centers of America, and will collect donations to the patriotic fund and send them direct to Dublin, instead of permitting them to go through Chicago as a center, as has been done hitherto.

Mr. Parnell and his friends have finally succeeded in acquiring sufficient strength and influence to insist upon their purposes and views being accepted as the controling influence in the Land League, and after years of politic forbearance and diplomatic effort have brought, apparently, the great mass of the Irish people, and all men of thought and sense, into a frame of mind compatible with proper political agitation in behalf of Ireland, as distinguished from the wrong-headed and criminal methods, which it was impossible to overcome and change to good by any other behavior than that which has marked Mr. Parnell's course and that of his most able compatriots.

This tour of Mr. O'Brien and his comrades, with its specific object as stated, is a practical demonstration to Americans of the honesty and rightness of the Irish leaders, and is not without its influence on public opinion in England.

The Australian Strike.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Cables from Australia indicate that the great strike, which has paralyzed many trades and nearly brought business to a standstill, shows signs of collapsing. The inconvenience and even actual suffering caused throughout the country is so great that the strikers are deprived of public sympathy and support, and it is considered impossible for the present deadlock to continue much longer.

The Population of Ireland.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Irish Registrar's annual report estimates the population of Ireland at 4,730,566. The number of persons emigrating to other countries during the year was 70,477. The death rate compared favorably with other years, and an increase in the number of marriages are recorded.

The Baltimore Arrives at Sweden.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The United States steamer Baltimore, with the remains of Captain Ericsson on board, has arrived at Gothenburg, Sweden.

MRS. YOUNG DEAD.

The Jealous Husband Will Now be Tried for Murder.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Joseph Young, who was shot by her jealous husband at the Hotel Minnequa in this city last Thursday, is dead. Mrs. Driscoll and the dead woman's five-year-old daughter were with her when she died. Their grief, particularly that of the little girl, was heartrending.

The unfortunate woman was shot twice. The bullet that caused her death entered her right nostril and lodged at the base of the brain. The other wound was in the throat.

Death was caused by the pressure of the bullet on the brain. Her condition was such that the physicians did not dare probe for it.

Young, the husband who did the shooting, has fully recovered from the slight wound he inflicted on himself. When the news was brought to his cell at the county jail at May's Landing that his wife was dead he turned pale, then reeled and fell on his cot.

"Oh, God! this is terrible!" he groaned. Then he added: "Why did not I die as well? God knows I did not know what I was doing when I shot her. I was crazy jealous."

Prosecutor of the Pleas Joseph Thompson has gone to May's Landing to state the case to the September Grand Jury now in session. Young will be arraigned on a charge of murder in the first degree, but his case cannot come to trial for a month at least.

The greatest indignation is felt here against William Ogden, the cause of Young's jealousy. Immediately after the shooting, Ogden left for his home at Morton, Pa., with his wife, and since then, it is alleged, has not troubled himself even to inquire what Mrs. Young's condition was.

The Lone Highwayman Again.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—A special from Auburn, Cal., says the Georgetown stage was stopped yesterday near Greenwood while on its way to Auburn by a masked highwayman and robbed. He secured the Wells Fargo express box, but it is not known how much the box contained. One of the passengers named Thomas Stevens borrowed a gun and started after the robber, but with what result is not yet known.

She was thrown in the air, and her clothing caught on the flagstaff on the front of the engine, where she hung, her head and feet dragging, until the train was stopped. Her left leg was cut off, her arms broken and her ribs crushed. She lived about two hours.

A MAD DOG'S REIGN OF TERROR.

Dogs, Horses and a Woman Bitten—A Baby's Narrow Escape.

A mad dog held a reign of terror in the Netherwood suburbs this morning. It dashed down East Front street from the direction of Scotch Plains and entered the yard of J. K. VanNest, near the Terrill road. Mr. VanNest's housekeeper, Maggie Quenzer, was standing on the lawn as the animal came running up. She failed to notice that it was frothing at the mouth and was snapping its jaws viciously, and held out her hand, in playful manner, towards it. The dog made a sudden spring, caught her hand in its teeth, and sank its poisoned fangs into her flesh. She screamed with terror, and the dog left her and ran across the lawn. As soon as possible she was taken by carriage to Plainfield, where Dr. Long cauterized the wounds. The woman was greatly frightened, and expressed much fear that hydrophobia would develop; but the physician assured her that symptoms of madness are exhibited by only one patient out of twenty bitten by a dog actually mad.

After biting Miss Quenzer the dog bit several dogs owned by Mr. VanNest, including a valuble mastiff, and attempted to bite a hunting dog owned by William Allen. Mr. Allen himself was on his lawn when the mad dog visited his premises, and to ward off an attack struck the animal with a club. Before he could follow up the blow to advantage, however, the dog had run away and was causing a panic among the horses in the stables of the neighborhood, snapping at their heels, and inflicting slight wounds. It finally ran into the cellar of Mr. Field's house, where Chas. Field shot it.

The baby of the Allen family narrowly escaped being bitten. The dog was running directly towards her when Mrs. Allen ran forward, snatched the child from the grasp of its foaming jaws, caught the little one to her breast, and carried her into the house.

That the dog was really mad is firmly believed by all who saw it, and Dr. Long decided from Miss Quenzer's description of its actions that there was no doubt of its being in the advanced stages of hydrophobia.

Peculiar Accident to a Train.

The passengers occuying seats on one side of a car in a fast Lehigh Valley train had a narrow escape from serious injury Saturday night, between Bound Brook and New Market. The train was running at a good speed and was rounding a curve when the door of a freight car standing on an opposite track fell partly outward and against one of the passenger cars.

Five panes of glass were shattered and the fragments scattered over the passengers who occupied the seats next these windows. Three passengers were cut about the head and face by the glass, but were able to continue their journey. All the upright strips on that side of the car were reduced to kindling wood. The company has begun an investigation as to the cause of the accident.

Planning to Double Their Membership.

A novel idea instituted by Miss Frances Willard is to be carried out by every Woman's Christian Temperance Union in the country Sept. 27, which will be known from ocean to ocean as "Crusade Day." Each of the 100,000 members of the various Unions scattered throughout the land will strive during that day to secure a new member. An attempt will be made in Plainfield in this way to double the membership of the local Union, which would then reach more than 500, giving the Union a representation and voice in the proceedings of the National Convention.

An Offensive Breath

is most distressing, not only to the person afflicted if he has any pride, but to those with whom he comes in contact. It is a delicate matter to speak of, but it has parted not only friends but lovers. Bad breath and catarrh are inseperable. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases as thousands can testify.

HOUSEHOLD BREVITIES.

—Damp salt will remove the discoloration of cups and saucers caused by tea and careless washing.

Ginger Snaps.—One quart of molasses, one pound of brown sugar, three-fourths pound of lard and butter mixed, and one teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of ground cinnamon, the same of ginger, flour sufficient to make rather a stiff dough; roll very thin.—Boston Budget.

—Cream Cake.—Three eggs, one and a half cups sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup milk milk, one teaspoon baking powder, flour to make of usual consistency. For the cream: One cup sugar, one cup milk, one egg, two spoonfuls corn starch, two spoonfuls vanilla.—Housekeeper.

—Cream Omelet.—Three eggs, slightly beaten, three tablespoonfuls of milk or cream; salt and pepper to taste. Heat and butter a pan, and when almost brown pour in the eggs; lift from the center occasianally until the whole is soft and creamy. Brown slightly and serve hot.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

—Potato Fritters.—Two cupfuls mashed potatoes, three eggs, two tablespoonfuls flour, a pinch of salt. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and add them the last thing. The batter should be quite stiff, but if too stiff may be thinned with milk. It must be dropped from a spoon into boiling lard, and skimmed out as soon as the cakes are fried to a nice brown.—Old Homestead.

—Marrow Balls for Soup.—Mix four ounces of marrow, six tablespoonfuls of cracker crumbs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a very little cayenne and the white of one egg; form them into tiny balls and place them on a floured plate in the refrigerator over night; after these are cooked in the soup they should be lifted carefully into the soup tureen, as the slightest pressure will break them in pieces.—Boston Herald.

—Extreme cleanliness is indispensable to good cooking. A good cook can not be too particular as to the cleanliness of her kitchen and every thing in it. She should keep it in such a condition as never to give herself cause to regret an unexpected visit on the part of her friends. Every article and every corner should be able to stand the closest scrutiny and inspection. The only way to arrive at this state of perfection is to do it not only decently, but thoroughly well.—Household Monthly.

—Peach Ice.—Put in a vessel a half pound of powdered sugar, with six egg yelks, then mix well with a spatula for ten minutes; add a pint of boiling milk, stir for two minutes longer and pour the the whole into a copper basin. Place it on the hot stove and heat it thoroughly, stirring it continually, but not letting it boil. Remove, lay it on the table and mix in immediately one pint of sweet cream, then leave it to cool for thirty minutes. Have six ripe, fine, sound peaches, wipe them nicely, cut them in two, remove the stones, then mash into the cream, mixing thoroughly for three minutes. Strain through a fine sieve into a freezer, pressing the peaches through with a wooden spoon, then proceed to freeze.—Boston Globe.

WORN-OUT MOTHERS.

How Many Women Fail and Grow Old Long Before Their Time.

There are a great many people who break down in health and spirits and fall into actual disease when a little good sense would save them. As a rule, American women are apt to err on the side of unselfishness. They are over-conscientious and are apt to underestimate the value of their own health to their families, or the tax which they are making upon it to contribute to the trivial pleasures of others. Justice to herself is often the last thing the American mother considers, although that justice to herself, in the matter of maintaining her own health and mental caliber, is of the utmost importance to her family. No intelligent mother can under-estimate the importance of her own presence and work in her household, but it is almost a universal rule among even the most intelligent and conscientious to take upon themselves burdens they are unfitted to bear and to neglect in their own persons those precautions and safeguards of health which they so anxiously provide for all others in the family, but which in their own persons are of a greater necessity than in that of any other member of the family, not even excepting the bread-winner himself. It is a wonder that women with families so well maintain such health as they have, in view of their persistent omission of these precautions, and it is slight wonder indeed that the average of three wives are worn out in an average life of one farmer.

A woman of fifty, like a man of fifty, should be in her prime of life. She should take a keen interest in the world around her and live in the present, not in the past, as too many worn-out women do. When her daughters have arrived at an age when they can take the burden of her cares off her shoulders, she may yet reign as the queen of her household, and should have more time for intellectual pursuits than she has ever had before. A great many women fail and grow old and reminiscent because they make themselves drudges and perform duties which it would be far better for the children to do themselves. From the excess of work which so many mothers take upon themselves their appetites become jaded, their complexions pallid, their nerves unstrung, and in what should be the prime of life they are old women, unfitted physically and mentally for even the ordinary work of their positions.—N. Y. Tribune.

—Nephew (from the West, meets his uncle on the street)—"Hello, uncle, I've been in town a week trying to find you. Why don't you have your name in the directory?" Uncle—"Can't be done; they're too slow. Only publish 'em once a year. I move about every month—my credit seldom lasts longer than that."

—Rhubarb Sherbet.—Boil six or eight sticks of clean rhubarb ten minutes; strain, add the peel of a lemon, two tablespoonsfuls of clarified sugar. Let it stand five hours.—Good Housekeeping.

CO-OPERATIVE WRITING.

Walter Besant's Scheme to Outwit Grasping Publishers.

Co-operative enterprises have not in this country been successful. Their stockholders have not been able to hold them to close, economical and pushing management. Conflicts of interests and insufficiency of rewards have spoiled the theoretical beauties of the schemes and driven high-class talent away. In one branch of industry, however, co-operation should reach a high plane of satisfaction. The profession of authorship has been grumbling from the earliest days of literature over the troubles of publication. Most toilers in the business of rejected manuscript have a pet plant which they tenderly cherish in their souls—the suspicion that there is a combine of "ins" against them. It frequently does happen that literary work of high merit is rejected by publishers and editors. Sometimes, after repeated rejections, it finds its way to brilliant success.

If instances of such fortune were not frequent, literature and publishing would be superhuman trades. Most great new productions, discoveries and inventions in art, commerce and industry have been rejected at first by the experts. Experts must be guided by well-established rules. They must, in the course of their avocation, reject thousands of crude and worthless innovations and must hold back their patronage from ideas which have already been better carried out by men with standard reputations. As much genius is required to analyze, weigh and make a place for a new work of any kind as to construct it. Genius is as rare among expert judges as among virtuosi. Besides, there is a heavy risk in exploiting a new inventor or author. It is an undertaking which involves not only money, but the reputation of the man who assumes the responsibility.

Money and reputation are precious to publishers as to all other respectable men. Mr. Walter Besant, the English novelist and editor, has organized the Incorporated Society of Authors. For the purpose of fulfilling the desires and ambitions of the members, the society will publish a magazine. Mr. Besant expects that the co-operative magazine will outwit the inimical publisher, and present to the public the works of authors at small cost. In the commercial parlance of the day, the society of literary producers will deal directly with their customers, and eliminate the middleman. The vast and increasing numbers of American writers—too vast and too rapidly increasing for the capacities of the present publishing and reading machinery of the Nation—might take up Mr. Besant's co-operative scheme, and get at the public by a short cut. In this, as in all co-operative experiments, human selfishness and vanity would militate against success.

The able writers would expect more recognition and perhaps more pay than an equal division of honors and profits would admit. The inferior ones would grumble at any thing but an equal division. Civilization has not leveled the natural and artificial inequalities of men and women, and a co-operative society of authors would grind against that deep-founded truth. Still, the authors might take some chances upon that weakness of the co-operative theory. They would not be risking a great deal, and in sight of all would be the prospect of getting before the public, whose admiration and money are the dear prizes of endeavor.—Kansas City Times.

HIDDEN TREASURES.

How the Sea Is Obliged to Give Up Her Spoils to Seekers.

Not long since the Spanish steamship Alfonso XII. foundered in deep water near the Canary islands. Part of the cargo consisted of ten boxes of gold, each containing £10,000. After some delay divers were sent out with the latest appliances, and nine out of the ten boxes of specie were brought up. Every attempt to localize the tenth was utterly futile, so that a fortune seems irrecoverably lost. A Dutch bark, the Maria Theresa, sank fifty-five years ago in Goree Gatway, near Helvoetsluis, on the coast of Holland. Her hull has recently been found and some boatloads of her cargo of tin have been brought up by divers. The schooner yacht, Star of the Sea, belonging to Sir A. H. Dendy, of Torquay, was sunk on the Banjaard bank, Zeeland coast, on July 5, 1870. After an immersion of nineteen years, an iron safe containing £50 and a gold watch chain has been recovered from the wreck, together with two small guns and twenty-two pigs of lead ballast. A diving company has just succeeded in gaining some relics of the French frigate Danae, of fifty-six guns, which was destroyed near Trieste seventy-eight years since by an explosion in her powder magazine, when her crew of 600 men were hurled headlong into eternity. This find will throw some light on the construction and armament of the war ships of a century ago.

Some Danish speculators are reaping a rich harvest of golden grain from the depths of the sea which washes the coasts of Jutland. Some years previously the British steamship Helen, laden with copper, had foundered. All her cargo has been recovered, and it is probable that her machinery will follow, as the accumulation of sand in which the hull was imbedded has now disappeared. A Russian frigate, the Alexander Nevsky, which was lost in 1868, has yielded 20,000 pounds of brass. The sand which covered her has been scoured away and an attempt will be made to get out her engines. The British steamer Westdale, laden with 2,000 tons of iron, went down off the Danish coast in December, 1888. Nearly the whole cargo, her machinery and the greater part of her fittings have been saved by these Jutland speculators.—Chambers' Journal.

The World Against Him.

"You look sad and dejected. Is anything the matter?

"Yes; the discouragements of my profession are sometimes more than I can bear. Look at that sign—'Beware of pickpockets!'"

"But what has that to do with you?"

"Well, I'm a pickpocket."—Judge.

Closing Debate on the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Tariff bill virtually has passed the Senate. The vote on the third reading and engrossment cut off further amendment. The programme of the Senate for today is a debate of six hours in which Senators Vance, Vest and Turpie will appear for the Democrats, and Hiscock and Jones of Nevada for the Republicans. A final vote on the bill to be taken between 5 and 5:30 o'clock.

The Late Mrs. Brownell's Bequests.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 10.—The will of the late Mrs. Frances Brownell, of this city, has been probated. It gives $50,000 to found three scholarships at Trinity College, $100,000 to the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, at New York, and $10,000 to the Missionary Society of the Episcopal Church in Connecticut.

Ross Sentenced to be Hanged.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 10.—George W. Ross was sentenced by Judge Rice to be hanged for the murder of his wife. The date of his execution will be fixed by the Governor. To the Court Ross said: "I am convinced that the Lord does not hold me responsible for the death of my wife, and I do not hold myself responsible."

FROM THE TREE OF THE MOUNT OF OLIVES.

AN ELOQUENT SOUVENIR BROUGHT TO PLAINFIELD FROM BEYOND THE MEDITERRANEAN.

True and Marvelous Tales Suggested by the Mute Voice of a Bit of Wood Whose Home Was the Holy Land.—The Gift of Miss Yates to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.—Work of the Union in the Past.—Its Attitude on Plainfield's License Question.—Work Mapped Out for the Coming Year, and Officers to Execute It.

A group of women clustering eagerly about a neatly-fashioned mallet whose only adornment was a bit of snow-white ribbon, but whose history aroused sweet memories in tender hearts, formed an animated picture in the parlors of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union yesterday. The mallet, which had just been presented to the Union by the returned tourist, Miss Clementine Yates, for use as a gavel by the President of the society, was wrought of the wood of an olive tree from the forest which shaded Jesus when, at sight of the multitude, he went up into the Mount and taught his disciples the wonderful sermon which today bears so prominent a part in sacred history. When Miss Yates was sojourning in Palestine, during her recent twelvemonth's journey, she procured, direct from the Mount of Olives, the material for the gavel, and yesterday brought forth, beaming looks of appreciation by presenting it—mechanically perfected, and tied with the Union's badge, emblem of purity—to the organization in whose cause she is herself so earnest a worker, and whose personality was, as ever, near to her heart at even the most absorbing moments of her long absence.

The glad feeling prompted by that sigh of happiness—"Home again!"—seemed to pervade this gathering of earnest workers. Besides Miss Yates, Mrs. Tomlinson, the "Madam President," had just returned from foreign shores, and the meeting of the society was more of a pleasant reunion, tinged with the inspiration of the recollections stirred by the presentation, than it was a formal annual business session.

Much, however, was accomplished, in spite of the pardonable propensity to be more sociable than parliamentary; and besides the adjustment of various minor matters officers were chosen—in most cases re-elected—to conduct the important work mapped out for the coming year, as follows:

President—Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson.
Corresponding Secretary—Miss May Tomlinson.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. J. H. French.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. McNaughton.
Auditors—Mrs. J. W. Yates, Mrs. Stephen Cahoone, Mrs. P. H. Bennett.
Vice Presidents: —Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church—Mrs. Helen M. Eaton, Mrs. S. Cahoone. Seventh Day Baptist—Mrs. Geo. H. Babcock, Mrs. D. E. Titsworth. First Baptist—Mrs. J. C. Fernald, Miss Anna Boice. Park Avenue Baptist—Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Mrs. Seeley Edsall. First Presbyterian—Mrs. E. D. Shotwell. Methodist Episcopal—Miss Susan Jackson, Mrs. Minturn Smith. Congregational—Mrs. T. F. Gambling, Miss Mattie Powlison. Trinity Reformed—Mrs. P. H. Bennett, Mrs. Carmon Parse. Peace Street Friends—Mrs. Rachel Bogart. Grace Protestant Episcopal—Mrs. David Green. Holy Cross—Mrs. Wm. J. Ford. Unitarian—Mrs. S. R. Krom. Warren Mission—Miss Mary Mair, Mrs. Edward Ryder. Hope chapel—Mrs. Amos Andrews.
Honorary Vice President—Mrs. J. W. Yates.

Various interesting reports concerning the progress of the Union were read, both at yesterday's annual business meeting and the anniversary celebration Monday night. The most extended paper was that of the President, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, portions of which are given below:

We shall never correctly estimate the advantage of our Kitchen Garden in teaching the little girls how to do the work in the home. We are frequently informed of their great ability to do well, where they have had an opportunity to carry out their instruction. To Miss Alice Smith, our faithful Superintendent, we would give all the praise, for her patience, her firm, yet gentle teaching, which holds the children to strict obedience, and enables them, each in her place to carry out the directions so necessary in cooking. When one can control twelve girls for two hours in preparing separate dishes, we must give credit to her good training. Those who attended the Canopy Tea had an opportunity to see something of this work, but when we are established in our new home we hope to give frequent exhibitions of this very important branch. We are thankful that in the schools of Plainfield scientific temperance instruction is given; but we have deep cause for regret that in our State the bill providing for temperance instruction has again been defeated after thousands of names (655 going from Plainfield) were obtained through the efforts of our W. C. T. U. workers. Our representatives had given us hope by saying: "We believe in the measure, and will do all we can to put it through"; but alas, for human frailty! We do hope the time is not far distant when New Jersey will redeem herself, by sending sound temperance men to legislate for her children. We shall work persistently for this object, not weeping over hope deferred, and ceasing to work only when defeat is expressed by victory.

Judging from the Sunday schools, it has been my privilege to know about, I fear that with the exception of the Methodist, which holds a temperance school once a month (for which we do entertain a certain pride), temperance instruction has not been very extensively given, which I cannot but consider a great error. We cannot become very enthusiastic in anything, unless we are interested in it; we cannot have an interest in it unless we know something about it; and we cannot know unless we study. We are aware that this subject has been pronounced hackneyed, and yet we are just commencing to learn the alphabet of this language, which will open to volumes, in reference to the deadly poison and its effects, which work both spiritual and physical death. Where, so well as in the training schools of our churches, could the many lessons that treat upon the topic in God's word be taught and discussed? I know of teachers who never instruct a class without bringing some practical temperance truths to their pupils, and I wish there were hundreds of them. We should soon have an army of Christian temperance men and women who would tread to the music of unseen hands, "The saloon must go." When our schools and our pulpits ring out this song every Sabbath and every day, the brewers and distillers will begin to grow solicitous, and they will not fear alone for woman's vote, which they say would threaten their business. The International Sunday School Convention did not give us all that we asked, but we did secure, by God's blessing, two out-and-out temperance lessons a year, beginning with 1892; and two other temperance lessons a year, optional; and the leaders recommend that the subject of temperance should be emphasized in all lessons in the regular course where it can be suitably done. Why should any teacher hesitate a moment if their hearts and consciences are attuned in the right direction.

The evangelistic department brings us into the holy of holies, where we gain strength to battle with the foes within, and the foes without ourselves; where, guided by infinite wisdom, we can lead the impenitent, reclaim the wandering, and warn those who are going into unsafe doors. Our hearts have been encouraged by the trophies gathered this year, yet we have had discouragements as well in seeing some of our workers whom we thought were standing upon the rock, falling under the temptations too strong for those with an inherited or acquired habit to resist. Do we grow discouraged? Yes, when we look to the earthly: no, when we cast our eyes on the Godward side; for we are confident that in a day not far distant a radical change must take effect: for has not He said—"For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, fear not, I will help thee"? Could we grow faint-hearted with that promise? I cannot refrain from expressing my thanks as well as those of the Union to Mr. Edsall, who has led the Sunday afternoon meetings for many years. His faithfulness in attendance, his earnestness in presenting the word, his interest in our work, his desire for winning souls for Christ, are worthy of deep gratitude. Some time we hope he may know the result of his unceasing labors, and hear the welcome "Well done!" We have had several speakers during the year: Mrs. Ellis, our State Corresponding Secretary, whom we always delight to hear; Mr. P. A. Burdick, who remained three weeks, and awakened increased interest with each lecture, and whose precepts will come back to us with redoubled power in the years to come; Mr. Fernald editor of The Better Day; the Rev. W. E. Honeyman; Prof. A. R. Cornwall, of Nebraska, who spoke on "High License in Omaha"; Mrs. Laura Haviland, a Quakeress from Minnesota, and Mr. S. A. Haines, of Netherwood.

We have had during the year two receptions for the members of our Union, giving them the privilege of inviting one friend. We think this an excellent channel of promoting sociability, as well as interesting others in our work. Light refreshments are served, and the hours passed in pleasant converse. After Mr. Burdick left, we invited all interested in the work, and especially the pledge-signers, to our rooms the next Saturday evening. The place was filled, and songs of praise were sung for the conquering power given to those who had been victims to this terrible enemy of their souls.

The Kitchen Garden Committee has given three entertainments, which have almost paid for its departments: "An Evening with Mother Goose," in our rooms; a musical held at the residence of Dr. Tomlinson; and a canopy tea held in a tent, where the girls with their teacher, cooked various articles of food in the presence of visitors. The Union held a parlor sale in March, which increased the funds in our treasury.

The question is often asked "Why does the Woman's Christian Temperance Union need money?" We have room-rent to pay, and a janitor to take care of the room. In our evening meeting, and cooking school we are obliged to burn gas. We must buy provisions for the class to use. We pay our Superintendent who teaches four classes a week; and here we would mention that we should like to form a class of girls this month who would be willing to pay three dollars for twelve lessons. Have you not a daughter or friend who would like to make a trial of this important branch in the home? Then we pay a man every time he takes the coffee cart to fires, or to the polls on election days. We furnish coffee, milk and sugar. If the cartman is remiss in attending fires at any time, it is not the fault of the committee having it in charge, as he is expected to be on duty. We have leaflets on various subjects often distributed at our meetings. We cannot do this without money. We have speakers, and we must remunerate them for service and not many work harder then our temperance speakers. Even this is but a part. Think of your own homes—of fuel needed, of the various little expenditures that have no name—and you will readily comprehend the necessity of money. We do feel under obligation to the churches and their pastors who have so kindly opened their doors to us, and to the organists and singers who have helped us so grandly. May all receive a true blessing from the Father of gifts.

We would not forget the editors of our city papers, who are very kind in giving notices of our meetings, and who very often make a reduction in the printing. We are aware that these requests come to them often; and we do thank them as a small compensation for their sacrifice. We would also remember Mr. Summers, who has at different times spent many hours and hard labor in removing articles of furniture without charge.

We think the citizens of our beautiful city are commencing, like Omaha, to see that high license is a delusion and a snare. We had thirteen hotels and saloons under the $500 fee; we have seventeen under $700. Never in our experience in the work have we seen and known of so many falling under temptation. Our hearts have cried out in agony to God to touch the consciences of our Christian men who hold this responsibility in their hands. We, the women, are free from this. We have no voice, no votes; our influence must be on the side that puts no temptation in the way of those we are trying to save. Where one can stand (even with the assistance of God and human help), ninety-nine will fall. Would we parents be consistent were we to place a glass of water containing a deadly poison before a thirsty child, and tell him not to drink it? Why should we place it before him? Why should we tell him not to taste it, and that it would injure him? "But oh," you say, "he should resist the temptation." We told him not to touch it; it might kill him; but he did not believe it, and thought that as it was placed there by your hand it would not, could not, be wrong for him to drink it. He does drink; suffers; dies. Who is responsible for the act? In this same manner these places are opened for the children, the men and the women, the weak and the tempted, to drink the deadly poisons. A high tax is paid for the privilege of ruining the bodies and souls of these people; they are expected to patronize the saloon, that the keeper may raise the money to pay the city. "Alas that gold should be so dear, and human blood so cheap!" At the same time, we must work against his business by warnings, by entreaties, by prayers, in persuading men to keep away from the places created for them. A man drinks, he is crazed, is noisy; must be arrested, must pay a fine, perhaps be sent to Elizabeth for a certain number of days or weeks, perhaps is guilty of State offense and is sent to prison. Is he responsible for doing that which he would not do unless under the influence of drink which the city placed before him, yet said to him You must not drink it? Is he the only one to suffer? Think of the mother, the wife, the helpless children, who must go to bed supperless, go clad in rags, and be branded as the children of a drunkard. When will our good people learn consistency, that the way to avert evil is to be strong against it, and that one with God on the side of right is a majority? No house can be built so high, the foundation cannot be laid so deep, the walls so thick, dear friends, but this monster may climb over, creep under, or rush his way through into the sanctuary called home, and there snatch the brightest jewel from your casket, and you may find when too late that your influence might have removed the cause while you were discussing the methods. Is not your beautiful boy—bright and pure as Earth's flowers or Heaven's stars—worth more than seven hundred dollars, the price put upon him by this city! Who can estimate his worth? Are you willing he should be sold for time and eternity for this sum? Fonder well; ye know not the future, nor what it may bring to your boy, to your home. Sir Wilfred Lawson, sustained by Mr. Gladstone, in the House of Commons, said in reference to restricting the sale of intoxicating liquor in England—"The country has hitherto pensioned men for killing enemies of the nation. The bill under discussion would pension those who were daily active in killing their fellow-countrymen."

We entreat you to help us save our citizens. As we endeavor to catch glimpses of the dimly-lighted future, Hope beckons us onward to increasing toil, until the glorious dawn of another brighter morning shall dispel all the heavy mists of doubt and we awaken to a higher realization of faith, stronger in our purposes to overcome every obstacle, and finally to conquer the hydra-headed serpent which would ruin every home in this land we love.

We have been called to sorrow by losing two of our members: Mrs. Alfred Berry, who for many years was a regular attendant at all our meetings, and our dear friend, Mrs. F. E. Marsh, who was one of our efficient officers and choicest spirits. We have missed her genial presence, her earnest prayers and her sympathy with our work; but she has entered into the glories of the redeemed, and will be forever with her blessed Saviour. We could not for one moment wish her back to suffering, knowing so well her preparation for the life beyond. May each one of us be as ready to answer the summons, "Child, come up higher!"

For years we have felt the necessity of larger rooms and greater conveniences for enlarging our work, but this year the command from our Master to "arise and build" has come to us in language not to be misunderstood, so that we need not hesitate longer. A committee of the general officers and the vice presidents from the various churches, with Mrs. G. H. Babcock as Chairman, was appointed, with an Advisory Board of gentlemen consisting of the Rev. K. P. Ketcham, Messrs G. H. Babcock, Minturn Smith, Seely Edsall, S. Cahoone, Jr., Martin Cooley, S. R. Krom, J. M. McNaughton and T. H. Tomlinson. After much prayerful thought and investigation our Union decided to purchase the lot situated at the corner of Park avenue and Sixth street, and when this is paid for, as we trust it will be before the close of another year, we hope to erect a building dedicated to God, for the furtherance of His work. Already money has come to us unasked for, and since the gold and the silver belong to Him who created them we know it will not be withheld from advancing temperance and holiness, if we are true and faithful to Him who has promised glorious results.

CALVES GAMBOL ON THE GREEN.

A Somewhat Thrilling Though Ludicrous Scene in the Suburbs.

The story runs that in one of our suburban towns—say Fanwood, for instance—a gentleman owning twin calves, Bessie and Flossie, was asked by a young lady if she could not have the pleasure of mounting one of them. The request was granted, and family and friends at once repaired to the fields to witness this unique event, where Miss Flossie and Miss Bessie, with their mother, were quietly enjoying their evening repast.

While the young lady was endeavoring to tame and coax one of the gentle creatures, one other lady in the party thought she would try her persuasive powers on the twin-sister, Miss Flossie. The latter, however, apparently not accustomed to such loving embraces, did not submit very graciously to the kind treatment.

By some unexplained action, the lady became entangled in the rope, and Miss Flossie began to revolutionize around the stake—carrying the lady with her—a strange though funny sight. Finally Miss Flossie was caught and held, not without a great amount of strength, while the unfortunate victim was released from her unpleasant position, and, thankful to say, uninjured—only a little frightened.

Moral: Never try to ride calves.

Paris Illustrated by Tongue and Pictures.

Prof. Donald Downie, in his illustrated lecture on Napoleon Bonaparte, before the guests of The Netherwood, last evening, furnished what is called by all present one of the best and highest class entertainments ever presented at that fashionable hostelry. With one hundred beautiful colored views thrown vividly by the finest calcium light on a white screen the full height of the large parlors, he held a large and select audience, by his eloquent and stirring discourse, for nearly two hours. Everyone present united in saying that the professor's familiarity with the French language and history, and his enthusiasm in his subject, make this one of the most enjoyable literary and artistic treats.

September 22, in Plainfield, Professor Downie will open for the benefit of the Reform Club.

NO BURIALS ALIVE.

A Medical Journal Says Such Stories Are Unfounded.

Very comforting news is brought to those who stand in daily dread of being buried alive. The current number of the Medical and Surgical Reporter says:

"The fear of being buried alive haunts the minds of so many of our fellowmen that it may hardly be regarded as strange, in some respects, that it was recently reported that a number of physicians in a city near Philadelphia had banded themselves together to devise means to prevent such a catastrophe in their own case. And, when physicians could take such measures in view of a supposed danger, it is not remarkable that the community should have a special and exaggerated horror of being buried alive. But this horror is as without reason as is the timidity of the physicians referred to. There seems to be no good ground whatever for supposing that it is possible in this enlightened age for any person to be committed to the grave while yet living. Stories relating such occurrences are by no means rare; but any one who examines them closely will certainly remark that they are wholly lacking in originality, and that there is in fact so strong a resemblance between them as to excite the suspicion that one has been copied from another. Investigation will show, too, that this suspicion is a well-founded one; at least such has been the experience of the editor of the Medical and Surgical Reporter, who has for some years followed up every story of burial alive which came to his notice and always with the result of learning that they were false or of failing to learn any thing about their origin.

"The most recent experience of this sort occurred in connection with a story published in the daily papers on June 10, 1890, of a man who was said to have died and to have been buried alive in Chicago. After tracing the story from one point of the newspaper world to another it was found to have originated in a Chicago paper, which said the man had been sent as dead from a hospital in that city on February 23, and that afterward he had been buried; that the buriers had heard sounds like knocking on the coffin lid, but went ahead with the burial, and that after an interval the grave was opened and the coffin lid removed to disclose that the man had turned over, torn his hair out, buried his fingers in his flesh, and so on. At the end of our investigation we received a letter from the hospital stating that it never had a patient of the name given, that no person died in the hospital on the date given, and treating the story as a hoax. The Associated Press agent in Chicago, who started the story round the country, on being asked if he thought there was any truth in it, replied to our representative: 'I am not supposed to believe every thing these fellows (meaning the reporters) write.'

"This is the latest story, and it illustrates the unreliability of all that we know any thing about, and the utter lack of principle which usually lies at the bottom of them. As physicians we may, by publishing the falseness of such stories, do something to allay the awful fears which they excite in the minds of many of our fellow-beings; and we may hope that those who manage the daily newspapers will some day properly punish reporters who furnish them with such cruel inventions."

ORIENTAL TRIUMPHS.

A Most Beautiful Fabric Miss Bisland Brought From Japan.

Miss Elizabeth Bisland, during her trip round the world last spring, picked up in Japan one of the most exquisite fabrics ever brought to this country. The Orientals call it rainbow crepe, and surely never was a name more aptly given. The silky, daintily woven stuff is of silver white, having a sheen as of moonlight overlying its minute crepy twill. Then running in diagonal fashion across the narrow breadths are faint illusive colors of pale rose, light gold, the blue of early dawn, a dim green tint and shadowy lilac. These ravishing hues, that are rather suggested than defined, seem to glimmer through warf and woof of the lustrous silk, one minute burning in flames of color, to be lost the next in vague, melting lights.

Costly and adorably beautiful as this rainbow material is justly reckoned, it holds no place whatever besides the moon-cloths worn by the Japanese nobles. Looking over and even handling this enchanting silken web, one can scarcely credit its reality. All of the golden pallor of Diana's nightly loveliness has been caught and imprisoned in its spidery threads. There are silvery beams that the cunning craftsman has shot through his loom, to be subdued by the warm glow of the harvester's honey-colored moon. Here the lights are vastly heightened, and there the shuttle has thrown in a thread that hints of dusk and gloom. So far these wonderful triumphs of Celestial skill are unknown to the Western world.

A short time since Miss Bisland appeared in her rainbow gown at a dinner given by Sir John Millais, in London. The great artist had never before seen any thing of the kind, and grew vastly enthusiastic over the matchless beauty of the stuff.—Illustrated American.

The Postilion Basque.

Blouses may come and go. Coat basques may have the same experience, but the trim, well-fitting postilion basque is always in good form if it fits well. A basque that fits well is one that is not too tight to permit easy movement of the arms, and is one that does not need to be closed with a shoe buttoner. The wise woman who wants to keep her basque in good shape puts on her bonnet before she assumes it. Then, before any fastening begins, the inside belt should be drawn together, and it isn't the best thing to have the belt very tight, for that does not make the basque fit closer and does make the drawing of it together more difficult. By the by, no matter how you may be tempted to put large buttons on your bodice, remember that only small ones are considered good form. There must be a great many of these, so that the possibility of the opening standing apart even an inch between them does not exist.—Chicago News.

TO A LITTLE BROOK.

You're not so big as you were then,
O little brook!
I mean those hazy summers when
We boys roamed, full of awe, beside
Your noisy, foaming, tumbling tide,
And wondered if it could be true
That there were bigger brooks than you,
O mighty brook! O peerless brook!

All up and down the reedy place
Where lives the brook,
We angled for the furtive dace;
The redwing-blackbird did his best
To make us think he'd built his nest
Hard by the stream, when, like as not,
He'd hung it in a secret spot
Far from the brook, the telltale brook!

And often, when the noontime heat
Parboiled the brook,
We'd draw our boots and swing our feet
Upon the waves that, in their play,
Would tag us last and scoot away;
And mother never seemed to know
What burnt our legs and chapped them so—
But father guessed it was the brook!

And Fido—how he loved to swim
The cooling brook,
Whenever we'd throw sticks for him;
And how we boys did wish that we Could only swim as good as he—
Why, Daniel Webster never was Recipient of such great applause
As Fido, battling with the brook!

But once—O most unhappy day
For you, my brook—
Came Cousin Sam along that way;
And, having lived a spell out West,
Where creeks aren't counted much at best
He neither waded, swam, nor leapt,
But, with superb indifference, stept
Across that brook—our mighty brook!

Why do you scamper on your way
You little brook—
When I come back to you to-day?
Is it because you flee the grass
That lunges at you as you pass,
As if, in playful mood, it would
Tickle the truant if it could,
You chuckling brook—you saucy brook!

Or is it you no longer know—
You fickle brook—
The honest friend of long ago?
The years that kept us twain apart
Have changed my face but not my heart—
Many and sore those years, and yet
I fancied you could not forget
That happy time, my playmate brook!

Oh! sing again in artless glee,
My little brook,
The song you used to sing for me—
The song that's lingered in my ears
So soothingly these many years;
My grief shall be forgotten when
I hear your tranquil voice again
And that sweet song, dear little brook!
—Eugene Field, in Chicago News.

A PEDDLER'S ADVENTURE

His Terrible and Lonely Battle with a Mad Man.

WAS visiting an old uncle of mine who lives in Banbridgeport in a four-story brick mansion which I am likely to inherit. Uncle Claiborne was formerly an active, enterprising peddler, fond of adventure, and never slow to relate events in his personal experience. I remember one stormy December evening, when the wind was howling dismally outside and the snow driving fiercely against the window panes, he stirred the log fire into a cheerful blaze, and related to me the following exciting adventure:

When I was about your age, Moses, I was reckoned the stoutest lad and most active young peddler in the country, ready for a fight or a frolic; but while a constant pedestrian, meeting with no incident worthy of testing my courage and endurance, until an event occurred, which, though not of the character anticipated, was sufficiently novel to satisfy for some time to come my love for personal adventure.

I started off, one week in November, with my pack on my back, cheerfully whistling as I trudged through the lonely by-roads, where many a helpless traveler had been waylaid, ever and anon starting as some jagged stump or gnarled oak assumed the fierce guise of a lurking robber.

Towards the evening of a raw, chilly day I reached the outskirts of a small village, rejoiced to recognize a tavern sign, with a full-length figure of Lafayette, swinging in the breeze; so I marched inside and quite independently ordered a hot supper and a bed for the night.

The landlord—a burly, red-faced individual—cocked his head on one side and considerately informed me that while the hot supper might be furnished, not

"YOU CAN'T ACCOMMODATE ME, THEN?"

a bed was to be had in the house for love or money, as it was assize week and every spare room and closet was occupied.

"You can't accommodate me, then?" said I, much disappointed.

"No," replied he, decidedly. "I am sorry, young man, I can't; but seeing it's a pretty cold night, and no chance of you finding quarters elsewhere, I'll take you in, provided you'll keep watch over a sick man upstairs, and have your supper gratis in the bargain."

"How far is it to the next tavern?" I asked, after a short pause, undecided as to the offer.

"Ten long miles."

I looked up the road, thought of the cold wind and inhospitable farm-houses on my route, and rather hastily concluded to accept the strange proposition of mine host.

"You see," observed he, as he led me into the supper room, "we've a man here, a young lawyer, sick of a fever. All his friends are tired out watching with him. I don't like to leave the poor fellow alone, for I hardly expect he'll last the night through. All you've got to do is to keep an eye on him now, and then when he dies just let us know."

I imagined at that moment the innkeeper's face bore rather a singular expression. I wondered at it then, but I understood better before two hours had passed.

When I dispatched my supper, I was shown into the sick man's chamber, and Boniface, after a few instructions to me, bade me good evening and left me there.

The apartment was of ordinary size and situated in a wing of the building where the noise and bustle would not molest the invalid. The furniture was in the usual style; but there was something very familiar in a portrait that attracted my attention, for, after casting a glance at the sick man, who lay muffled up in bed and breathing heavily, my eye involuntarily turned to the picture again.

It was the portrait of a young and beautiful female that had barely reached her sixteenth year, the face beaming with the innocent vivacity of girlhood, and the eyes sparkling with a wonderful degree of light and intelligence.

Riveted there by an unaccountable and mysterious fascination, I stood gazing at the lovely embodiment, almost expecting the face to glow with animation, the lips to part and speak, when I was startled as a clear, musical voice observed: "A beautiful picture, that."

I turned round to discover, with no small degree of astonishment, that the sick man had partially raised himself to a sitting posture, and was also contemplating the lovely portrait with as much earnestness as myself.

The invalid, despite the ravages of disease, which showed itself in his hollow eyes and attenuated frame, was an uncommonly handsome man; his features bore the impress of aristocratic lineage, and his finely chiseled nose and mouth expressed strong passions and uncontrollable will.

"You feel better," I said, recovering from my surprise.

He waved his hand impatiently.

"You have not answered my question. The picture—the picture; what do you think of it?"

"Pardon me, sir. It is beautiful!"

"You have no idea of the original?"

"None, sir."

"It is the portrait," replied the sick man, speaking slowly and deliberately, and fastening upon me his black, glittering eye—"it is the portrait of my dearest wife."

"Your wife!" I repeated.

"My wife, Evelyn St. Croix," pursued the sick man. "Do you notice her eye?"

"I do."

"A strange, unearthly expression; the artist was true to nature. She was mad when he painted her; she died raving mad."

"What a dreadful fate for one so young!"

"Listen; she deserved it. Evelyn St. Croix was beautiful, but she was weak and vain; she was graceful as a nymph, but false—false as hell!"

The sick man fell back on his pillow, exhausted by the violence of his exertions; then, after a few moments, he raised himself again and muttered hoarsely: "It affects me, the remembrance of her perfidy. It sometimes makes me wild and delirious. Stop! you shall hear about it—the story of my wrongs and sufferings."

"You are too weak; it excites you. I will listen to the story some other time."

"No; you shall hear it now," reiterated the sick man, almost fiercely. "I loved her—met her—loved her in a moment, before I had time to ask her whether she had any affection to bestow upon me. She was disappointed, and married me when she could not wed him whom she adored. I worshiped her, and deemed her as pure as the driven snow. She whispered in my ear that she loved me; and I, fool like, believed it, and accepted her caresses and protestations, never dreaming that woman loves silently the best, and kisses and blandishments are too often an artful cloak to conceal base designs. I was cozened and beguiled with soft, honeyed words and flattering caresses. I dreamt not all the while I was clasping a viper to my bosom—you are not listening to me!"

"I am."

"My family physician was young and fascinating. He had free access to my wife's society. He availed himself of it, and made her love for him a vehicle to his own selfish passions. The world guessed the truth. I knew nothing of my dishonor, for I had faith in Evelyn. My friends wondered at my blindness and pitied me. But finally a note fell in my hands; it opened my eyes—made me feel wretched. I laid a snare for my faithless wife and her paramour, and slew him before her eyes. She went raving mad. Since that fearful hour I have sworn a vow which I have ever kept."

The invalid paused and glanced at me with a ferocity that caused a feeling of uneasiness to creep over me.

"You can not guess?"

"No."

"I will tell you. Every year I have offered up a sacrifice on the altar of my vengeance. You must be the victim now."

"You do not mean that?"

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed the sick man, suddenly raising himself upon his feet, while his eyes flashed like two balls of fire. "You think me weak—you are mistaken. I have the strength of Samson. You shall see."

As he said this, with one bound he vaulted to the floor, and deliberately locked and bolted the door. And now the horrible truth flashed upon me that I was with a madman, and that he had me completely and absolutely in his power. Confounded as I was by this discovery, I endeavored to preserve my composure.

"I am to be your victim?"

"Yes; you can not escape me!" he hissed. "You are a coward; I know it—I see it in your eye! Call and shout to the walls; they have ears and will listen; every one is asleep; no human ear can catch your cries; you are doomed; ha! ha! ha!"

Long and loud the maniac laughed. I felt the perilous situation I was in, yet I quailed not; every thing depended upon my own courage and self-possession. Quick as lightning I darted forward and caught up my walking-stick—a stout, knotty weapon of defense, nearly as hard as iron.

"Come on!" I cried, defiantly. "If you wish to have a bout with me, you see I am ready."

The maniac seized a chair and struck at me with all the superhuman energy of his nature, endeavoring to force me into a corner.

I wisely kept in the middle of the room and parried his fierce blows with my trusted stick, but my stubborn defense seemed to inspire the maniac with ten-fold fury. The chair finally was shattered to pieces; but the madman quickly seized another, and fairly rained on me a torrent of desperate blows, which required the utmost vigilance on my part to ward off. Failing in overpowering me, the madman, with diabolical cunning, suddenly rushed to the hearth and scattered the burning brands on the floor; and, while clouds of smoke rose from the burning embers, he attacked me with renewed ferocity.

THE FIGHT WITH THE MANIAC.

I had hoped that my continual shouting, and the din of battle, would have aroused the household; but no one came. A new danger menaced me; several times the bedding took fire, but was promptly extinguished by the most tremendous exertions on my part. My antagonist seemed endowed with the strength of 10,000 devils, while I was comparatively growing weaker and weaker. My arm seemed palsied and my head swam dizzily. In a moment I must give up—my strength was nearly exhausted, when, to my great relief, the madman suddenly paused.

Drops of perspiration rolled down his body, and his limbs trembled violently; yet I could see, though the exciting contest had told fearfully on him, he was by no means as exhausted as myself. His eyes glittered with latent ferocity as he shrieked: "You fight well, but I shall win; you are doomed already; I can see it; I will tear you limb from limb!"

I had no opportunity to reply, for, almost immediately, he resumed his savage attack. But the momentary respite had saved me; and, as I warily husbanded my strength, I was overjoyed to perceive that he began to show evident signs of exhaustion; but no—he suddenly recuperated with wonderful power. Again his blows thunder on my stout stick. I am gradually losing my strength. I can not hold out much longer, and the madman sees it, and redoubles his exertions. My weapon is struck at last from my weak grasp; I hear the exultant shout of the maniac in my ear and clinch my fist in one feeble, despairing effort to defend myself from the impending stroke, when suddenly a strange transformation takes place in the madman. He pauses and drops his weapon, his fierce eye assumes a dull, filmy aspect, and the fierce expression fades away in a stupid air of idiocy; he reels and falls to the floor in a death-like stupor; his tremendous vitality vanished as quickly as it came.

At the same instant I hear a hurried tread of feet outside and loud knocking. The door was burst open, and, with the consciousness of safety, the reaction came. With a faint ejaculation of joy and gratitude, I fell insensible to the floor.

When I was restored to consciousness, Moses, I found a crowd of curious faces of men around me, all eager to hear from my lips the particulars of my desperate encounter with the madman.

It appears that I literally battled with him all night, and the extraordinary exhibition of endurance on my part earned for me the reputation of a young hero; but I never told any one that I owed my victory over the madman chiefly to that portrait of the pretty girl; for, whenever I felt myself growing weak, a glance at the face would inspire me with tenfold strength. You smile, but the portrait was, after all, the landlord's daughter, and the story only aromantic fiction of the diseased brain of the madman.

"The picture was not, then, the portrait of Evelyn St. Croix?" I asked.

"No, my dear boy, it was your aunt's picture, as it afterwards proved. So you can now understand the inspirations that gave me the strength to go through that fearful night in a struggle for life."—N. Y. World.

—Johnny (looking at lightning rod on barn)—"I'd like to know why it branches out into two parts after it gets up on the roof." Willie (with supreme contempt for the other's ignorance)—"To catch the forked lightning, o' course!"—Chicago Tribune.

—"John, will you mind the baby?" "I will, my dear, if you think I can make him mind me." — Munsey's Weekly.

VARIED AND INTERESTING.

A BICYCLER recently rode down Mount Washington, making the journey—about eight miles—in an hour, and without accident.

THE most valuable metal in the world is said to be gallium, which is worth $3,250 an ounce. Calcium brings $1,800 a pound and cerium $1,920 per pound. Gold is worth $240 a pound.

THE following notice is posted on the main street at Athena, Ore.: "To my neighbors: If my spring chickens are disturbing your garden, kill them and eat them. Don't pile them out in the alley to become a nuisance. John Edington."

AMONG the examination papers recently submitted by candidates in San Bernardino County were the following answers: "Seattle is on the west coast of Africa;" "Seattle is in the southern part of France;" "The towns of San Bernardino County are: San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, San Rafeal and Sacramento." Another gem: "The Gulf stream is a cool, moist breeze that helps to cool the air."

N. L. COURTER, of Manatee, Fla., says he has killed his last blacksnake. It was four feet long, and from its mouth protruded a moccasin's tail. He stood on the tail and had his boy pull the blacksnake off, disclosing a moccasin about two feet long, which had been swallowed. Mr. Courter saw a blacksnake swallow a blue moccasin several years ago, and Dan Richards saw one kill a large rattler, and George Brown saw one kill a moccasin, so spare the blacksnakes, he says, for they do more good than harm.

THE method proposed by Captain Woolward, of the British marine service, for doing away with oars as a means of propelling ship's life-boats, consists of a hand-power screw propeller, which enables the boat to be driven by any one in it, though unacquainted with rowing. This arrangement, he claims, will obviate the chance of passengers who may get away from a stranded ship finding themselves in a boat without oars, or, having them, without any one skilled in their use. The machinery takes up little room, is simple and efficient.

THE pastor of one of the Babylon (L. I.) churches is quoted as delivering the following brief but pointed discourse at the morning service for the benefit of the gaudily dressed young men who had been in the habit of sauntering into church late and leaving before the services closed: "For the benefit of the young men who come into this church after service has commenced and leave before the collection plate is passed, I wish to say that the hour of service is eleven o'clock and the benediction is pronounced by twelve. I would also remark that the style of attire adopted by these young men, while perhaps very becoming, is more suited for tennis court, ball field or bull fight than for the house of God."

WHY so many bald-headed men are bachelors is thus explained by a recent writer: "There is a great deal of capillary attraction in love. Girls adore a handsome suit of glossy hair; it is lovely. And when a lover comes to woo her with the top of his head shining like a greased pumpkin he is at a disadvantage. Just as the words that grow and thoughts that burn begin to awaken in her bosom a sympathetic thrill she may happen to notice two or three flies promenading over his phrenological organs, and all is over. Girls are so frivolous. She immediately becomes more interested in those flies than in all his lovely language. While he is pouring out his love and passion she is wondering how the flies manage to hold on to such a slippery surface."

RARE RELICS OF ANTIQUITY.

RECENT discoveries among ancient tombs in Etruria unmistakably show that dentistry was practised as far back as six centuries before the Christian era. Several of the skulls examined had false teeth, carved from those of some large animals, while many of the natural teeth had gold-filling.

THE British Museum has recently become possessed of a Chinese bank note issued from the Imperial mint three hundred years before the circulation of paper money in Europe, or in the first year, or one of the first years, of the reign of the first Ming Emperor. The first real bank in Europe was that of Barcelona, established in 1401.

A COFFIN inscribed with the date 1793 was recently opened in a grave-yard of St. James' Church, Clerkenwell, and, to the surprise of the workmen, there was little about the corpse to show that it had been buried a hundred years and not a few days. The flesh seemed to have turned into a kind of wax. The body was that of a finely formed woman of thirty-five. The features were perfectly distinguishable, the teeth were in place, and the lines of the body were firm and clear.

NEAR Sumerset, in Perry County, O., is an ancient ruin, whose walls, inclosing forty acres, were built of undressed stone, now lying in confusion. They have been estimated sufficient to build a wall seven feet high and six feet broad around the whole forty acres inclosure. One gateway between two large rocks opened into the country and was defended by a huge bowlder. The inclosure contained a large stone mound. No skeletons have been found and the inclosure was certainly used for other purposes than habitation or sacrifice.

IT is reported from Maine that, buried among the clam shells at Cundy's Harbor, the Pejepscott Historical Society recently found "some rare and suggestive reminders of prehistoric times. Bones of the deer, porpoise, beaver, fox, woodchuck and some smaller carniverous animals, birds of several kinds, including a well-preserved specimen of the wing bone of the great auk, now wholly extinct, were picked up. Fragments of pottery were numerous, as well as chips of stone broken off in the manufacture of stone implements. Of implements, half a dozen perfect and some broken ones were discovered. Only one piece of worked bone occurred, a broken awl."

ABOUT EXTRAVAGANCE.

In the Past Money Was Spent More Recklessly Than at Present.

Pessimism continually charges a woful extravagance upon our age. The fathers, it says, were compeled to scrape and to save, mindful of every dollar, and content if only a meager balance remained to their credit at the end of the year. We are rapidly drifting into enervating luxury, it affirms, and our costly buildings, and paintings, sculpture, our comfortable modes of life, and our reckless way of considering public and private expenditures are indicative of an unhappy mental and even moral degeneration. There is much apparently in support of such statement. We are weary of prosaic living, in great degree, and long for a release to a civilization eminently comfortable if not luxurious, and, at least, "interesting," as Matthew Arnold would say. Not so far beneath our greed for monetary prosperity, indeed, existing as a potent motive to accumulation, is the natural desire for a better social condition. We take a half-holiday now and then to study great pictures or statues; we read more than ever good books and magazines, and we live in better houses. All this is necessary to proper development, and yet we must confess a certain tendency to extravagance, careless and dangerous. Still, however reckless we may be, it is perhaps a consolation to know that we are less extravagant than the people of certain other times. We pay our thousands for our houses, our pictures and our sculpture, and yet do not equal the Greeks and the Romans in expenditure. Attalus offered Nicias a sum equal to $75,000 for a painting, and the artist refused him, preferring to present the picture to his country as a gift. Julius Cæsar bought of Timomachus, the Athenian painter, two figures for eighty talents, or $100,000, and Apelles received some $25,000 for a portrait of Alexander wielding a thunderbolt. Indeed, he himself paid $75,000 for the pictures with which Protogenes had adorned his studio, and which had proved unsalable, and this chiefly as an encouragement to a struggling fellow-artist. Some of our public lecturers command excelent salaries, assuredly, but none of them would demand any thing like the $12,000 which Athens paid to Herodotus for reading his history at the Panathenaic festival. Socrates, it is said, received almost $19,000 for one oration, and, probably, even Dr. Depew could be engaged at a figure more reasonable. We all remember that Virgil was rewarded most generously for his few lines on the young Marcellus, and Suetonius says that Asellius Sabinus received four hundred thousand sesterces—some $17,000—for a dialogue between a mushroom, a cabbage, a thrush and an oyster. It cost the city of the Averni in Gaul a round million and a half for a statue of Mercury, and this expenditure seems to have been not especially exorbitant for the age. A hundred other examples of ancient extravagance might easily be found, but all would point to the same general truth, that our recklessness of expenditure has not yet equaled the recklessness of the past. But we must remember that a national lapse into luxurious idleness is followed always by national decay, and keep our eyes wide open to the pleasant but dangerous tendency of the present.—Providence Journal.

AMERICA'S RICHEST WIDOW.

She Maintains a Private Chapel Costing Seventy Thousand Dollars.

Never has there been such universal church-going in New York as during the present season. I saw a lady in black step out of a handsome mourning carriage in front of St. Thomas' church, last Wednesday afternoon, and some one told me that it was Mrs. Moses Taylor, who, with Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt, shares the honor of being the richest widow in America. She is a member of the Presbyterian church, but is subject to no bigotries and finds pleasure in occasional attendance upon services in Episcopal churches. Churchgoing is one of her favorite pursuits at all times, and down at Long Branch she has a private chapel and chaplain of her own, who ministers to her spiritual needs during her summer sojourn. This chapel cost her $70,000, is attended by quite a large congregation of the local Presbyterians and is the center through which she distributes her many beautiful and lavish charities. It was a great surprise to her, upon her husband's death, to find herself so rich a woman, for he never talked to her about his business, and though she knew he was a wealthy man, she had formed no calculation as to the amount he was worth; no one, indeed, not even his executors, had credited old Taylor with more than half a dozen millions at the most, and the surprise of the latter was great on the appointed day, when they and the widow went to open the doors of the particularly-solid vault which the old man had built into the wall of his office.

The innermost compartment was large enough to hold certificates of stock and and the like securities without folding. There was a great stack of these papers lying neatly on top of each other, unwrinkled and uncreased. They represented Taylor's investments in railroads, banks and insurance companies, deeds of real estate and every sort of sound financial venture. The widow did not comprehend the full meaning of this great pile of documents, but the executors looked at each other with pleased significance, and set about making an inventory, jotting down figures on the back of a card, and announcing in awed tones to the widow, when this pleasing task was done, that she was the sole possessor of a fortune amounting to $40,000,000. She bore it with that meek and gentle resignation of which even the worst of us would be capable under similar circumstances, and many unfortunates have since had reason to be grateful that this great sum fell into such discreet and charitable hands. Mrs. Vanderbilt is also a faithful church-goer, having pews in several different churches, one of her favorite places of worship being old Trinity.—Brooklyn Eagle.

KNIGHTS DEPRESSED

The Strike on the Central Road at a Standstill.

NO HOPE FROM CHAUNCEY DEPEW

He Upholds Vice-President Webb in All That Has Been Done.

Powderly Speaks at Syracuse—He Believes the Pinkerton Detectives Are the Real Train Wreckers—He Will See Depew About Arbitration—An Assessment Levied Upon the Knights.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The strike on the Central is regarded as at a standstill. The Knights of Labor have been holding out awaiting the arrival home of Chauncey M. Depew, the president, and they entertain a small hope that he would condemned in some measure the stand which his third vice-president has maintained since the strike commenced.

The leaders of the Knights feel disappointed and chagrined that President Depew does not only not condemn, but actually commends and upholds H. Walter Webb in all he has done.

President Depew was seen by a reporter at the Windsor Hotel. He said he would not talk at present in regard to the strike and the position of the Central company.

"I must have time to rest after the fatigue of the ocean voyage. I shall look into all the affairs of the company, especially those connected with the strike, as soon as I have breathing space, and will, I think, be in a position to talk in a day or so."

A RUSH TO HEAR POWDERLY.

He Thinks the Pinkerton Detectives Were the Train Wreckers.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Two thousand people went to the Alhambra Rink amid a torrent of rain last night to listen to an address by General Master Workman Powderly. The Mayor presided at the meeting.

Mr. Powderly's address was largely devoted to the exposition of the principles underlying the organization of the Knights of Labor, hostility to land monopoly, tax reform, Government ownership of railroads, the prevention of child labor, equal pay for both sexes and arbitration between employer and employe.

Speaking of the strike on the Central, he said it would not cease to make itself felt until a law had been written upon the statute books putting organized labor on an equal footing with organized capital.

With regard to the recent attempts to wreck Central trains, he asked for a suspension of public judgment until the truth should be brought out in the courts, expressing the utmost confidence that the responsibility for them would be traced, not to the Knights of Labor, but to the "thieves and thugs hired by the railroad company under the name of Pinkerton detectives."

The following reference was made to Chauncey M. Depew: "Mr. Depew arrived in this country to-day, I hope that he will have the good sense to speak to the men in the old time spirit. He is on record as saying that the settlement of labor questions lies in arbitration. We will see now whether he is prepared to square his action with his words."

An admission fee was charged to the meeting and the money will go to the strikers.

SUSPECTS EXAMINED.

Kiernan and Cordial Plead Not Guilty to the Charge of Train Wrecking.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Kiernan and Cordial, the two men arrested at Albany for attempting to wreck the Montreal Express, were brought before Judge Griffin of this city to plead to the charge. Judge Griffin said:

"You are charged with having feloniously tried to wreck a train on the night of Sept. 5. How do you plead?" Both men promptly responded not guilty.

District-Attorney Kelly, for the prosecution, said that the grand jury met on Monday and that an examination might as well therefore take place on Saturday. The counsel agreed to this and the matter was adjourned until Saturday at 11 a. m.

When this was announced Master Workman Lee took out a roll of money and handed a ten-dollar bill to Cordial and four dollars to Kiernan.

The men were then taken back to jail, no application having been made for bail.

The Knights express themselves as confident of the prisoners' innocence.

John Reed, one of the train wreckers, and who is supposed to have turned State's evidence, was taken to Troy and locked up because it was intimated that a writ of habeas corpus had been issued. He says he was arrested on Saturday without a warrant and locked up in Superintendent Bissell's office. The road detectives say they will have the other two by morning.

Knights of Labor Assessed.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—Official notice has been received in this city that an assessment of twenty-five cents has been levied upon each member of the Knights of Labor for the support of New York Central strikers.

NEWS FROM CRESSON.

Pennsylvania Grand Army Posts to Call on the President.

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 11.—The President has been advised that the Grand Army posts of Altoona and Tyrone, Pa., have arranged to pay their respects to him during the stay of the Chief Magistrate in the mountains.

Having found the official mail entirely too heavy to handle without assistance, Secretary Halford directed that the President's stenographer be sent to Cresson.

The President and Mrs. Dimmick drove about the hills with Mrs. Halford's horse and phaeton until dinner time, the President handling the reins.

Dispatches were received at the Executive cottage announcing the convening of the Indiana State Republican convention and the selection of Hon. Richard W. Thompson as chairman.

The President is feeling very well, but the damp weather has had its effect upon Mrs. McKee, who is suffering from a slight attack of neuralgia. Mrs. Harrison has kept in-doors, not exposing herself to the weather any more than has been necessary. However, she is not feeling at her best.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 11.—The Fletcher Mills, including the Providence and National Worsted Mills at Olneyville, and a large mill in the north end of the city, have been sold to a syndicate of English capitalists. George Vanslyck, a New York lawyer, was in the city yesterday and completed the transfer. The purchase price is stated to be about $3,000,000.

The mills have six hundred looms, employ about twenty-five hundred hands, and turn out six thousand yards of goods daily. The syndicate is represented by G. R. Bonnard and D. Engle, of the Bank of England.

Hanlan Will Row Gaudaur.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—Ned Hanlan says that upon consideration he has decided to row Gaudaur, but not upon the conditions contained in the articles sent from St. Louis. Hanlan will row on Creve Cour Lake in two months, but will not consent to allow him to name the referee, or he will allow Gaudaur 15 seconds start if he will row on Toronto Bay, the referee to be mutually agreed upon. If these conditions are not acceptable Hanlan suggests the selection of a neutral course.

In Memory of Gen. Grant.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—L. M. Wheeler Post, G. A. R., of this village unfurled a fine silk flag over the Drexel cottage on Mt. McGregor, where General Grant died. Stover, of Gloversville, delivered the oration. Gen. W. B. French, of Saratoga, and others also spoke.

$65,000 Offered for the Stallion Nelson.

Trouble Expected on the Erie Road.

New York's National Leaguers Beaten by the Boston Team.

The Bridegrooms Allow the Phillies to Win Easily—Anson Captures a Game from the Pittsburgs—Comiskey Plays Two Games With the Buffalos and Break Even.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—The last championship game for 1890 on the Brotherhood League grounds in this city was played in almost a rain storm. The clouds, however, managed to contain themselves until nine innings had been played and the Bostons had won their seventy-third game and defeated the New Yorks for the twelfth time.

Buck Ewing astonished the crowd by taking the delivery instead of receiving end of the battery. He did pretty well, but the local players put in fourteen hits at opportune moments and earned four runs. The visitors' three errors did not contribute to their defeat, which was due solely to inability to bat Gumbert safely at the right time. The fielding was sharp and often brilliant.

The home team was in its best fielding form, and allowed no chance to escape except that Kelly muffed a foul fly. Quinn's play at second was almost phenomenally good. The game was distinguished for senseless kicking.

JILTED AT THE ALTAR.

Lizzie Bennett Leaves Her Waiting Groom and Elopes With an Old Admirer.

KEYPORT, N. J., Sept. 10.—Miss Lizzie Bennett eloped with George Voorhees shortly after the time set for her marriage with Mr. Monroe, at Crawford's Corners, yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Bennett, who live some miles from here, are the happy possessors of a very handsome daughter, Lizzie, who is 18 years old, and who, it appears, had two admirers, one Fred Monroe and the other George Voorhees.

Lizzie first became acquainted with Monroe six months ago, and four weeks ago the young couple decided to be married. The day set was yesterday at 2 o'clock.

In the meantime Lizzie became acquainted with George Voorhees, and he being the best looking of the two, she decided to take him rather than the other. His visits were also unknown, but no word in regard to marriage was spoken until Voorhees learned that Lizzie was to marry Monroe. Voorhees then asked Lizzie if she loved him. She answered affirmatively and consented to elope.

Both then got their wearing apparel together and disappeared. When 2 o'clock came Monroe and Rev. Wheeler and the parents were on hand, but Miss Lizzie was not to be found. The expectant groom became alarmed. It was found out later that George Voorhees, stable boy and farm hand, was also missing. Monroe departed in hysterics.

DANGEROUS FLOODS

Central New York Deluged and Railroads Blocked.

SEVERAL BRIDGES SWEPT AWAY

Water Rushing Through Houses Several Feet in Depth.

Hornellsville Inundated and Great Damage Done—The Chemung River Up to the Danger Line—Traveling in Boats in Ithaca—People Flee from Their Homes at Wellsville.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Nearly three inches of rain has fallen here in 24 hours and the water, increased by the streams above, has raised the Chemung river to the danger line. The lower parts of the city are under water and much damage is apprehended.

The railroads are experiencing a great deal of trouble. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western is not running any trains owing to the high water at Kanona. The Erie road is blocked by landslides and washouts at Addison and Hornellsville. There is also some trouble on that road at North Elmira.

The Northern Central road has a bridge and a long piece of track washed out at Watkins, where the water from Watkins' Glen comes down in destructive force. The Addison & Pennsylvania road had a trestle washed out near Addison, and the road is blocked.

The Erie has several washouts below here. Bridges have been swept away and considerable damage has been done to the country roads. The Canisteo Valley is flooded and the Erie has been unable to get any trains through.

Tobacco raisers along the river flats will be heavy losers.

Traveling in Boats.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Rain has fallen in this city steadily for 24 hours. Many streets and yards are flooded, compelling the use of boats. The Tompkins County Fair, which opened yesterday, was to continue four days, but the entire fair ground is four feet under water. Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting the stock out. Most of the hogs and small stock swam ashore. The rest were drowned. The exhibits in the tents and halls were greatly damaged and are now being removed with boats and rafts. The fair will be given up. The damage will approximate $50,000.

Worst Flood in Years.

CANISTEO, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The inhabitants were aroused early in the morning by the ringing of fire alarm bells and found the village partially under water, from one to three feet in depth. It rained all night. Much damage will be done unless the rain ceases, as the creeks are over their banks and the river is rapidly rising. The flood is the worst in years.

Forced to Leave Their Homes.

WELLSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The residents of Broad street, on the east side of this village, were compelled by water to fly from their houses in the morning to save their lives, and within a short time the water was rushing through the houses several feet in depth.

Hornellsville Inundated.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Over one-third of the city is inundated and great damage has resulted. The Erie road is completely tied-up.

AN UGLY STRIKE.

More Troops Summoned to Southampton on Account of the Labor Trouble.

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 11.—The Mayor's house was threatened by the mob again during the day, and he at once telephoned for soldiers, who instantly responded, arriving in cabs. The condition of affairs is still very menacing. Boats, manned by the strikers, are lying out in the stream, with a view to intercepting incoming steamships and prevailing upon their crews to strike. The Admiralty has been asked by the local authorities to assist in preventing this new move.

Seventeen more arrests of strikers for resisting the authorities have been made. The mob tore down the placards containing the Mayor's address urging the strikers to remain at their homes.

Business throughout the town is almost paralyzed. Before charging the crowds last night with bayonets the troops threatened several times to fire, but without making any impression upon the mob.

Mrs. Maybrick's First Year in Prison.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Efforts to secure a pardon for Mrs. Maybrick are still being pushed. She has just finished the year of solitary confinement with which her punishment was ordered to begin. She has now been placed in the ranks of second class prisoners for the remainder of the term.

A BOY COMMITS SUICIDE.

He Had a Dread of Being Obliged to Go Away to School.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Sept. 11.—Nathan Irwing Alberts, Jr., a lad of 16 years of age, who resided with his parents on Cottage place, in this village, committed suicide by hanging himself in a shed adjoining his parents' residence. The boy left the house at 9 o'clock. At bed time he had not returned, and the family grew alarmed. They thought he had gone out with some young men.

Shortly before midnight his brother Edward set out to search for him. He walked into the shed and groped about in the darkness. Suddenly he ran up against his brother Nat's body. It was hanging by the neck from a beam overhead. He immediately procured a light and made an investigation. He ascertained that Nat had stood on a buggy, removed his coat and collar and necktie, and had then fastened a rope around his neck and tied it securely to the beam. The lad had jumped off the buggy and hanged himself. The alarmed family hastily gathered about the swinging body, and the coroner was notified. He took charge of the remains and will hold an inquest.

No cause can be assigned for the boy's suicide, except his dread of being obliged to go away to school, where his parents were to send him.

Close Election in Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 11.—A larger vote was polled in the city election than was anticipated. A total vote of about 3,100 was cast out of a full vote of 3,900. The count is proceeding slowly. The Democrats believe they have won, because they think they have got out a fuller vote than the Republicans, but the latter claim that they are ahead. The vote is undoubtedly very close.

The offenders before the City Court this morning were Michael Kennedy and John Sullivan, who had been causing a disturbance over a petty gambling affair. Each was fined $2.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Joseph Sattels left town today for a two weeks' visit to his brother at Martinville, Indiana.

Cards are out for the wedding of Isaac Schwed of Plainfield, to Miss Florence Frank, of New York, at Victoria Hall, Lexington avenue, September 21.

The incoming foreign mail brings to THE PRESS today, copies of the Paris edition of the New York Herald and The Galignani Messenger, of August 30. W. A. Lord, of Netherwood, is the far away traveler who thus remembers us.

Of the students ordained on the 9th inst., at St. Joseph's, Teignmouth, South Devon, England, by most Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Bishop of Plymouth, was R. J. Bingham, C. S S. R., brother of J. M. and W. H. Bingham, 653 Broadway, New York, and East Orange, N. J., and M. Bingham, of this city.

The German-American, Real Estate Title Guarantee Company, of which John W. Murray of this city is Vice President, has given Russell Sage a security against loss in his big loan of $125,000 to the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage for the completion of the new Talmage Tabernacle at Greene and Clinton avenues, Brooklyn.

In an artistic circular, C. Potter, Jr., & Co., have the following deserved expression of appreciation to make: "We take pleasure in calling the attention of the trade to the appended notice announcing the admission to our firm of David E. Titsworth, who for many years has been closely identified with us both in the office and on the road. We are confident that this announcement will bring pleasure to his many friends, and from the new acquaintances and customers with whom he may come in contact, we bespeak the same uniform courtesy and consideration which has always been extended to us, his partners.

The Wife's Property Safe From the Husband's Debts.

When S. Frucht, the Hebrew merchant, failed in business several weeks ago, his wife, Rosa, protested that some of the goods which Constable Rockfellow levied on belonged to her. The right to the property was contested in Justice Nash's court yesterday, and the title was granted to Mrs. Frucht, whose counsel was John Ridley. Foster M. Voorhees appeared for Loring Lane, the New York merchant, who wanted to secure all the Frucht property in payment of Frucht's debts to him.

A Councilman Who Holds Office in Three Counties.

M. Marvin Dunham was chosen Township Secretary for North Plainfield Township, at the annual convention of the Somerset County Sunday School Association, Tuesday, and Israel J. Coon was chosen Secretary for Warren Township. Mr. Dunham was also elected Corresponding Delegate to the Middlesex County Association. The next meeting of the Somerset Association will be held in North Plainfield.

An Offensive Breath

is most distressing, not only to the person afflicted if he has any pride, but to those with whom he comes in contact. It is a delicate matter to speak of, but it has parted not only friends but lovers. Bad breath and catarrh are inseparable. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases as thousands can testify.

COMPELLED TO WIN IT TWICE.

The Crescent's Nine Succeed in Getting a Game From Westfield's Ten, After it is Repeatedly Snatched From Their Grasp.

In writing of yesterday's game between the Crescent League's team and the Westfields, the following from THE PRESS of August 21, may first be quoted:

The Westfield's pitcher, O'Neill, has some speed but absolutely no control of the ball. He struck out 13 of the Dauntless, but 10 of these should have been given their bases on balls.

The above applies to yesterday's game as well. Had not the umpire, Wes. Roberts, of Bayonne, been the most blind or biased official that ever served, the score would have been like the handle on a jug, all one side for the Crescents. In the beginning, the people who could all plainly see the overhead balls that O'Neill pitches during the most of the time he is in the box, thought Roberts was blind in calling them strikes because Hatfield was given his base on balls the first two times he went to the bat. But when in the fourth inning, with Martin and Lufbery on the bases and no one out, Roberts struck out Wiegand, Lever and Jones in quick succession, the people understood it was robbery. The hissing on the grand stand was then so loud that the umpire could not be heard, and one of the Westfield managers had to announce that hissing would not be allowed.

Of the eight Crescents that Roberts struck out, only Wiegand and Hetzell were guilty. The consequence was that the Crescents were compelled to get up on a ladder, reach all around, and hit at anything, or else be called out. Therefore their hits could not be placed to any advantage. But it was not only in that way that the game was continually snatched from their grasp. Here is other circumstantial evidence of the same fact:

In the sixth inning, O'Neill at the bat was trying to bunt the ball. Jones told Roberts to look out, as he (Jones) would jump to one side of the batter so as to get the bunted ball. As Hetzell drew back his hand to pitch, Jones stepped away, and Hetzell, misunderstanding the play and supposing Jones' glove was loose, did not deliver the ball. Roberts then gave O'Neill his base in spite of rule 32, which distinctly says:

The base runner on a base is alone entitled to a base on a balk, in all cases where the pitcher makes a motion to deliver the ball to the bat and fails to do so. The batsman is only entitled to a base on a balk when the ball is actually delivered to the bat after the pitcher has stepped outside the lines of his position.

This bit of rob bery gave the Westfields another run. But in the closing inning the efforts of the umpire to save Westfield from defeat, almost culminated in a row. On a passed ball, Hatfield started from third base with the winning run for the Crescents. There was only one out, and it was not necessary to take any risks, but the runner had plenty of time. He made one of his grand-stand dives and slid through the dust over the plate in fine style. McMannus had meanwhile recovered the ball and thrown it to O'Neill, who made two passes at Hatfield and touched him at last after he had crossed the plate. The umpire's decision was that Hatfield was out because he had not touched the plate, Then everybody who was fair and honest, was mad. Even Quiet Jack Hatfield lost his temper and would have struck Roberts had not the other Crescents restrained him. There was of course nothing to do but again swallow the decision, and start in to win the game once more. There were two out, but Martin got his first by being hit, stole second and came home on Lufbery's fly to centre field that Johnston muffed.

The Westfields got their runs in this way: Desiring to save Gregg for Saturday's game, the Crescents' managers put in as a substitute pitcher, Hetzell, of Newark. In the fourth inning O'Neill made a single, and was followed by Murray, who got a chance hit over the fence that is built close up behind the right fielder's back. These two runs were added to by one in the sixth inning made off the "balk" told of above and a wild pitch of Hetzell's.

After Martin came in with the winning run, he first asked the umpire if he was safe. He then stood on the home plate and bowed solemnly to the cheering crowd. A feature of the game was Lever's opportunity in the ninth inning. He put the whole side out by catching Johnston's and Edmeson's flies, and returning the latter to Wiegand in time to catch McLoughlin off first base. The finest play of the game, however, was McLoughlin's catch of a long foul fly of Jones' in the sixth. It looked like an impossible catch, yet he got it after a long run and recovered himself in time to throw it way across the field to Warner for a double play. There were two runs in for the Crescents, two men on bases and only one out at the time.

The grand stand was about half filled with Plainfielders. The charge of 50 cents seemed too heavy for the home contigent. Most of them sat around in the grass and shouted at the Crescents at the bat. The Plainfield players were decorated with handsome blue silk badges embroidered with gold crescents, presented by Mrs. VanVliet, Mrs. Leggett and Mrs. Slater. The Crescent League's ladies, of whom about fifty were present, all wore bows of blue and gold. The score was:

MISS QUENZER INOCULATED.

She is Treated for Hydrophobia Today at Pasteur Institute Where the Brain and Spine of the Dog That Bit Her Will be Analyzed.

At the Pasteur Institute, 178 West 10th street, New York, of which Dr. Gibier is in charge, Miss Quenzer of East Front street, was inoculated this afternoon. Her attending physician, Dr. M. B. Long, of Park avenue, was present. She is the young woman who was bitten yesterday by a dog supposed to be mad, as told in THE PRESS.

The brain, spine and other parts of the dog, will be analyzed at the institute to determine whether the animal was rabid. Dr. Long who cauterized the wound caused by the bite of the dog on the little finger of the woman's hand, and treated it with carbolic washes, assured her there was no danger. Yet if she would feel safer, he advised inoculation by the Pasteur method.

School Boys and Shorthand.

In connection with the shorthand class which will soon be organized by the Young Men's Christian Association, the attendance of boys in the higher classes of the public schools is called to the opportunity this affords for acquiring this most useful and practical art. The study can be taken up with their other studies and without interfering with them, as the class meets but once a week. The principles of the art will be fully taught before the Spring, and then the boys who intend to enter business life will be better fitted to do so.

This is a very practical matter, and parents who wish to have their boys furnished with a practical knowledge of great value which cannot be acquired at the public schools should inquire into it. The General Secretary will be glad to meet all such inquirers.

Promised to Reform, But Was Scared Out of Town.

Charles F. Stephens, of North Plainfield, foreman of a Somerset street printing shop, has been charged, at various times during the past few weeks, with abusing and neglecting his wife and two children, and has been threatened, by his employer and Marshal Rutledge, with arrest. He had promised his friends that he would reform, and was, it is said, actually doing better. Yesterday, however, it is alleged, his employer lectured him severely on old charges, and from what was said Stephens is said to have understood that a warrant had been issued for his arrest for wife-beating. The result was that in the afternoon Stephens drew from the bank his savings of $100, and last night left town, dressed in his best suit of clothes, and carrying a well-filled sachel.

That Great Game Next Thursday.

The manager of the Norwich base-ball team writes that he will bring the same men to Plainfield, next Thursday, that defeated the Crescents the other day by a score of 7 to 0.

The contest is exciting interest all over the State. The Norwichs have already won the championship of Connecticut; and as the Crescents have defeated every am they have played this year, the match will to all intents and purposes decide the Inter-State semi-professional championship.

Boys Singing Class at the Y. M. C. A.

Such boys as would like to receive lessons in singing and reading music, are invited by the Young men's Christian Association to join a new class to be organized at the Association rooms, Tuesday afternoon next at 4:30 o'clock.

E. A. Embury, who has continued the instruction of the original class throughout the Summer, will teach in the new class boys between the ages of 9 and 12.

The Mob Got the Worst of It.

Last night while walking along Fifth street, three of Plainfield's young men were set upon by a mob ranging from ten to 20 years of age, headed, it is charged, by Gus Wilson, Sam Terry and Robert Perine. No policemen were at hand, and the mob took advantage of the occasion. A small riot enesued in which the three young men came out on top.

—The regular mid-week meeting in Reform Hall will be held this evening; all are welcome.

Terrible If True.

Between the hours of two and six o'clock on Thursday and Friday afternoons and all day Saturday, Rogers Bros. will sell all of their $2 50 shoes for $2; all $3 shoes for $2.50; all $3 50 shoes for $3. They have a few more men's lace shoes that they are closing out at 50 cents. Be sure and be there at two o'clock when the sale begins. They warrant every pair.

SPICY PERSONALS.

GABRIELLE SAND, famous George Sand's granddaughter, is a very handsome girl, with big black eyes and a profusion of heavy black tresses.

THE telephone must have a new field of usefulness scored for it. Sir Humphrey de Trafford, near Manchester, has, perhaps, the finest kennels in England, the kennelman's house adjoining them. From each kennel a telephone arrangement leads to the kennel-man's room, so that when any dog is noisy at night the keeper can speak to him so as to be heard without leaving his room.

MRS. WILLIAM A. SLATER, of Norwich, dropped a smelling bottle in New London harbor while being rowed from her husband's yacht, the Sagamore. She has so many associations with that smelling bottle, which in cold cash is said to be worth only $500, that she persuaded her husband to engage the services of Captain Thomas Scott, the professional diver. Thus far, however, the search has been unsuccessful.

THE youthful King of Spain has not been out of the cradle long, but he appears to have a full appreciation of his position in life. One day recently he was served for lunch with the breast of a chicken cut into small pieces. He at once began to help himself without the aid of either spoon or fork. "Sire," said his attendant, gravely, "Kings never eat with their fingers." "This King does," responded his Majesty, continuing his meal.

E. W. WINTER, general manager of the Omaha railway, enjoys a good story as much as any man I know, particularly if it be on himself. He tells the following tale with great gusto: "My grandmother is a dear, innocent lady, who lives up in Vermont. She was telling a visitor all about the family one day, and when my turn came she said: 'Now, there's Erne, he's doing right well,' and her voice sank impressively. 'They do say he's getting as much as a thousand dollars a year, though I don't see how he can earn all that money honestly.'"

THE reigning Prince of Monaco has just had a new yacht built for himself in England. It is a vessel of 555 tons burden, fitted up with cabins to serve the purpose of laboratory and aquarium, in order that he may be able the more fully to gratify his taste for capturing all kinds of sea monsters and marine flora, and duly preserving and classifying them. Matrimony has not chilled his ardor for these pursuits, and it appears that the Princess, whose maiden name was Heine, and who was a Jewess, far from objecting to her husband's hobby, takes nearly as much interest in his investigations of the briny deep as himself.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW is said to be as rapid with his pen as his tongue. A correspondent relates the following: "I remember an instance when I was at his house at seven o'clock one evening. He was to deliver one of his most important addresses that evening at eight o'clock. He had not written a line of it. He talked leisurely with me as if there was not a thought on his mind. At 7:15 o'clock he went into his library; at 7:50 o'clock he was reading over his manuscript entirely in his own writing! In ten minutes more he was wheeling through the streets to the hall, and at 8:10 he was on his feet talking, glancing at his manuscript only three times during the entire address of forty-five minutes' duration."

As the warm weather continues the natural cravings of humanity call for something cooling to drink. Hires' Root Beer is sparkling, and a most delicious article. Every family should have it in their house. A 25 cent package will enable any one to make five gallons. Ask your druggist or storekeeper for it.

A MESSAGE FROM THE FIGURES OF A DIAL.

"TIME: OUR ESTATE"—THE MOTTO OF '79—THE BASIS OF AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE.

Franklin B. Wiley, Plainfield Graduate, Makes a Memorable Address Before the Students of Hi Alma Mater at the Opening of the Public Schools—Editor Leonard's Good Advice—Miss Bulkley's Welcome Home—Bright Prospects of Student-Life At the Dawn of Another Busy Year.

The exercises at the opening of the High School last Monday morning—which were briefly mentioned in THE PRESS Monday night, were of unusual interest. All the seats in Assembly Hall, behind those reserved for the students, were filled by friends and former members of the school. On the platform—besides the Principal, Miss Julia E. Bulkley, who is looking well since her return from abroad, and the new Assistant Principal, Mr. Hunt—were Dr. J. B. Probasco, of the Board of Education, W. J. Leonard, formerly editor of the Central New Jersey Times, and Franklin B Wiley, of the class of '79. On the wall facing the school and the spectators hung the handsome clock presented by the class of '79 last June, its suggestive motto, "Time—our estate," appearing on the front in gilt letters clearly visible to all. After the usual Scripture reading, the repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison, and a song, Miss Bulkley, in a few well-chosen words, expressed her pleasure at being once more among her pupils, and welcomed them back to their studies, and then introduced Mr. Wiley, who she mentioned, had traveled nearly three hundred miles from Cambridge, Mass., simply to be present on this occasion. His address occupied over forty minutes in delivery but was listened to with close attention and apparent pleasure throughout. He spoke in part as follows:

The Principal, and Fellow-Students of Alma Mater:—

"Ike Partington" has declared that he "never opened his mouth but he put his foot in it," and I once heard no less wise and eloquent a man than the Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby, then Chancellor of the University of New York, say that he was like "Ike Partington." His admission gives me confidence to confess that when I received the invitation to address you this morning I began to wonder whether I too might not be like "Ike," and I then questioned whether it was worth while to travel nearly three hundred miles in order to talk to you if the moment I opened my mouth I was in danger of putting my foot in it. I had about decided to be present but say nothing, when some imp of mischief recalled to my mind the fate of the dull son of an eminent Englishman at a reception which his father tendered to a party of distinguished foreigners. He was told to say nothing and then no one would imagine that he was a dullard. He followed the directions so implicity that even when spoken to he answered never a word. At last, however, he overheard one of the visitors who had spoken to him and received no reply, say to another, "What a fool the fellow is!" and he promptly bawled across the room, "Father, father, they've found me out and I didn't open my mouth." With this awful fate staring me in the face I was forced to reconsider my determination to be present but to say nothing. The young Englishman's barrier of silence had proved ineffectual to preserve him from discovery; clearly I had no reason to expect that however careful I might be not to open my mouth you would not find me out. It appeared that whether I spoke out or kept silent I was "in for it." The line of an old hymn occurred to me—a hymn sung long ago before books were as cheap as they are now and when the only hymnbook in a country church was generally the one from which the precentor read out the hymns one line at a time for the congregation to sing. The opening lines of the hymn I refer to were—

"The Lord will come, and He will not Keep silent, but speak out;"

and after the minister had announced the number the precentor would rise and give out the first line—

"The Lord will come, and He will not,"

and then the second—

"Keep silent, but speak out."

It was this second line as given out by the precentor of which I thought. Was it possible to follow its directions and "Keep silent, but speak out?" My difficulty would then vanish. But on reflection I was forced to the conclusion at which Bayard Taylor arrived when asked to write a poem on "The Helmet." He could not write upon the helmet, he stated, because he once had had one on and there was nothing in it. At the eleventh hour away out of the difficulty has suggested itself. It flashed upon me when I mentioned the magic name of Dr. Crosby. Having drawn confidence from his confession, I shall profit by his example, for on the occasion when he said that he was like "Ike Partington," he continued to open his mouth for half an hour or more with the most charming results, and hundreds who heard him then can testify that he never once put his foot in it.

With the lesser difficulty disposed of, I will hope that another and a greater one which has beset me may now be overcome—I mean the difficulty of fully and fitly expressing to your Principal and to you, my thanks for this welcome opportunity of taking part once more in the familiar morning exercises in the old Assembly Hall. It is both a privilege and a pleasure—how great a privilege, and how keen a pleasure, I find it hard to say.

I was a student, like you, when last I spoke in this Hall more than eleven years ago, and my classmates sat on these front benches where you are sitting now. It is perhaps natural therefore, that in the contrast between that time and this I find something to regret—the absence of the old familiar faces, the presence of the sad conviction that I shall never see all of them together again. As a class, organized and coherent, '79 no longer exists. But the class spirit is not dead. Still, though lost to sight, the Alma Mater, the Fair Mother of our girlhood and boyhood, is to memory dear. Of her each member of '79 can say, as Paul Clifford, the daring highwayman and dashing punster of Bulwer-Lytton's romance, said of his old nurse, "Notwithstanding my absence, I show my affection by my presents." As long as that clock hangs upon yonder wall, so long will it serve to remind the pupils of the public schools in what loyal and loving remembrance the High School is held by the Class of '79. You notice that above the inscription: "Presented by the Class of '79," are the words: "Time—our estate." For twelve years that phrase has been our motto, and it is now what I may call the corner-stone of our gift; for as a corner-stone contains in compact form everything which will be of use and interest in after times when the building of which the stone is a part no longer stands, so our motto within its three words comprehends all of the many useful lessons which we hope will be learned by heart and long remembered—not only by you but by all the future students of the Public Schools, to whom we trust it may continue to recall those lessons long after the gift on which it is inscribed has ceased to discharge its monotonous but beneficent task. At the request of your Principal I have come here this morning to tell you what those lessons are, so that a clear and complete comprehension of the significance of this time-piece and its inscription may abide with you as a potent aid and a perpetual stimulus throughout the work of the coming year.

It is a pleasant thing to possess an estate—to be able to stroll to the summit of some breezy hill and to feel, as you look abroad over woodlands, and pastures, and spreading fields, that you are monarca of all you survey, and that there is none to dispute your right. Only a favored few among earth's many millions can know this peculiar pleasure. There are more who are able to derive pleasure from the ownership of a farm in the country, or a house in town; and probably few among you have not known what a delight it is to call a certain corner of the garden, or a particular flower-bed, all your own; and therefore you know that delicious sense of proprietorship which steals over one as one digs the soil and realizes that it is one's own property and that one can plant what one pleases in it and do what one desires with it. But have you ever realized that from the moment you were born you were the sole proprietor of an estate which is more entirely your own than any flower-bed, or garden-corner, or city mansion, or country place can ever be? That with the first breath you drew you took possession of Time, your estate, an inheritance more vast than any other, stretching away to the remotest confines of life, into the mists of futurity, to the very portals of eternity itself? Ascend with me to the summit of the vantage-ground of youth and survey the superb domain of which you are the master. No two of you look forth over exactly the same prospect. While, for instance, there is a resemblance in the general aspect of the days, and months, and years stretched out before you, the territory of some is far more fruitful in advantages and far richer in opportunities than the territory of others. Also, shadowy and uncertain as are the limits of each estate, we know that destiny has decreed that the estate of one shall be of more ample size than the estate of another. But the fact that your estate may not be as large by a few years as the estate of another need, be no disadvantage, for

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on a dial."

Like many proprietors of great estates, you are apt to grow so accustomed to your vast estate of time that you fail to take the pleasure in it that you might. Worse than this, most of you are apt to grow so used to having it at your disposal and drawing your income from it that you become careless about its management and reckless in the expenditure of its revenue. Believe me, "I come not here your morning hour to sadden," but I cannot resist asking you at this point to look for a minute at the serious side, the ultimate outcome of such a misuse of Time, your great estate. To nearly everyone there comes a day when that unwelcome creditor, Old Age, draws near and begins knocking at one's door, and often him one can see a grim train of other creditors, Ill-Health, Decrepitude, Failing Mind; and, always speeding from over the distance, Death on his pale steed,—that grimmest creditor of all; and when one seeks to satisfy their demands one finds that only a few months or perhaps days are left of one's many years, and that one's broad estate has shrunk to the measure of an unmade grave. Suppose that hour in your life has come and that you can look back only on wasted treasures of time and opportunity, and then think with what far different sensations—had you from the first managed your estate wisely and spent its revenues judiciously, you might meet your importunate creditors, and instead of cringing as now before their stern demands, might then meet them,

Calm-fronted, staunch, expectant and unshaken.
And dare the worst that any fate might bring.

Repinings that are as base as they are fruitless would not then embitter your enjoyment of the last crumbling remnant of your estate; and, freed from all the responsibilities so long resting upon your shoulders, you might even experience a rarer happiness in the regulation of the remnant you have left than you ever experienced in the conduct of the fruitful realm that is lost, as the child often takes keener pleasure in pottering over a tiny flower-plot than the man takes in managing a thousand fertile acres.

Doubtless each one of you feels the same relief that I feel in leaving this warning, now that it has been uttered, with the consciousness that you can yet heed it and profit by it; that your estate of time is almost intact instead of being almost gone; and that you have the opportunity and the power to make the most of it. The opportunities will be given you, but the power, the instrument with which to make your estate blossom like the rose, you will have to gain for yourself. For your guidance you have before you the originals or the models of all the many implements, ancient and modern, from the crudest to the most complete, with which the broad estate of time has been cultivated by those who have held its highest honors and reaped its richest reward.

First and foremost among these is the mind, which, when trained, can bend thousands of minds that are untrained, to its will. This fact has never been driven home with greater emphasis than in Stanley's thrilling account of his marvelous achievements "in darkest Africa." When he marched at the head of his handful of followers through the unbroken twilight of the mighty African forest for over four hundred miles from the Aruwimi to the Albert Nyanza, all the way not only exerting authority over, but exacting aid from the myriads of murderous savages who swarmed about his path and menaced him and all his band with extinction, he gave such a demonstration of the majestic influence of the trained intellect over the untrained as the world has seldom seen before.

With education and study the mind can accomplish much, even without the aid of genius. For the mind is in some respects like a locomotive. Its delicate and complicated, yet powerful mechanism may be in perfect order, but unless there is a sufficient head of steam on and it is kept properly oiled it will not go. You educate your mind for the same reason that an engineer gets up steam—to make it go; and you study for the same reason that he oils his engine—to keep it in running order. You should, however, be careful not to try to make the mind do more than it is meant to do. There are two reasons why you ought to learn this lesson as soon as you can: in the first place, if it is not learned easily and early, it will have to be learned painfully and late; and in the second place, when once you have learned that you cannot accomplish all things you will then begin to accomplish some things. Beware, therefore, of too much education. Over-education is as bad for the mind as too great a pressure of steam is for the locomotive, and in each case the result is the same—a break-down or an explosion. Observe moderation also in what you are doing as well as in what you attempt to do. Even the most ambitious among you need not feel that any chances are being sacrificed when you cease to study and cast your books aside. For it is no more necessary for you to be always studying than for an engineer to be always oiling his engine. After a locomotive has done a certain amount of work its fires are drawn and it is run into the round-house and left there for a while. Draw the fires of your education and run your mind into the round-house now and then. That is what you have been doing during the months of your Summer vacation, and surely you need ask no more conclusive proof of the wisdom of such a course than is found in the freshened energy and the finer zest with which you are returning to your school-work today.

You stand on the threshold of a new school-year, with almost every opportunity of your life before you. When those opportunities are all behind you, may the recollection of the promptness with which you took advantage of them and the wisdom with which you turned them to account make them shine like stars upon your past inwrought, to make and keep you glad. It may be that you will have to go through life "uncrowned, unthroned, unattended," content with doing in a patient and useful way simply what comes to your hand. It may be that

"Borne on wings of glorious endeavor,
You yet shall rise above your baser clay—
Throned in high deeds forever and forever,
That will not die and shall not pass away."

Which lot shall be yours, I do not know. What I do know is that the possibilities of any human life are the possibilities of yours.

There was hearty applause at the close of Mr. Wiley's address, and then, after a song, Mr. Leonard was introduced and made a short but effective speech, in which he said that he hoped all the scholars present would heed the good counsel given in "the eloquent effort which had just been heard;" he then referred to the system of review-work which has recently been introduced into the Public Schools, assuring the scholars that so far from that being a waste of time, as some of them might be inclined to think, it meant an actual saving of time in the future, since it helped to form the excellent habit of accuracy. After another song, the Principal introduced Dr. Probasco, who, for the Board of Education, welcomed her and the scholars back to the work of another year, and then in a few well-chosen words, brought home to the scholars the inestimable value of an understanding heart. When another song had been sung, Miss Bulkley arose, glanced at the new clock and remarked that she had intended to say a few words, but owing to the lateness of the hour it would perhaps be better to defer saving them until the following morning. At this point Mr. Wiley arose and said that he would be a little selfish and ask her to say them now, as he would not be present the following morning to hear her. The burst of applause which supported this request showed that it was seconded by every one in the hall, and Miss Bulkley, yielding with a charming grace, read a most interesting comparison of the school systems of Germany, Egypt, Russia, and our native land, pointing out wherein ours inculcated a higher standard of character and scholarship than the others. After some words of sound advice to the school, she concluded with words in praise of the new custom, introduced in her absence, of flying the national colors above the school buildings while the schools are in session. The exercises were brought to an end by the singing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," in which every body joined with hearty emphasis.

Killing Outright Cheaper Than Maiming—When It's a Dog.

The Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals won a case tried before Justice Nash and a jury yesterday. The complaining witness was Matthias Schmit, of Scotch Plains, whose dog Geo. W. Ogden had shot. Ogden's own testimony was that he had first chased, with murderous intent, a Schmit dog which was scouring the mountain for rabbits. He fired at the dog, but missed his target. On his way home he came across another Schmit dog, and, having missed the first one, shot at that. He maimed it so that the dog had to be killed.

Ogden said in his defense that the dog had attacked him before he fired, but the attack was denied by others.

The jury adjudged Ogden guilty of cruelty and awarded Schmit $15 damages, which Ogden paid, in addition to $3 costs. Had he killed the dog outright, the Court said, there would have been no cruelty, and damages would have been harder to prove.

FALLING SICKNESS AND ST. VITUS' DANCE.

Epileptic and Other Fits Cured.

For years a cure for Epilepsy and other Fits caused by disease of the nerves has been sought. It is now conceded by physicians, druggists and the people that the long-needed remedy has been found in Dr. Greene's Nervura, which has, by curing thousands of cases, proved that it is an absolute specific for these terrible nervous complaints. It is a harmless vegetable remedy, and a sure and positive cure for all nervous diseases. All druggists keep it at $1 00 per bottle.

---

My son had been troubled with epilepsy, loss of appetite, and had no ambition to do anything. After trying several remedies he took Dr. Greene's Nervura, and I can truly say that it made him a new boy. The fits have left him, his whole system is built up anew, and he is enjoying perfect health. It is the best medicine I ever used, and after trying others I find it has no equal.

"Considers Dr. Greene's Nervura the Most Wonderful Remedy Ever Discovered."

My wife, Sarah R. Dill, was paralyzed three years ago, and was in a very low condition. She had convulsions coming on at the same time every month, which were so severe that we expected that she would never come out of some of them. Since that time she was under the treatment for 18 months of a first-class physician, who became discouraged, and finally allowed her to use Dr. Greene's Nervura, which she has been taking ever since. She has never had a convulsion or any symptoms of one since she began using this medicine; she is gaining rapidly in health and strength, and is able to be about the house and yard and do some light work. I consider Dr. Greene's Nervura the most wonderful remedy that was ever discovered.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled. ## POEMS RECENTLY PENNED.

Before the Baby Came.

(Aggrieved Husband.)

There was a time when my discourse
Was wrenched not out of joint;
I did not shout till I was hoarse,
And point out every point;
Nor thrice the same joke try to tell,
And mangle it and maim—
My wife had time to listen well,
Before the baby came!

There was a time when here and there
I flitted like a bird;
My wife went with me everywhere,
Just when I said the word;
We saw the boat-race and the play,
We watched the base ball game—
We had a free foot, as they say,
Before the baby came!

There was a time when I alone
Was by my wife adored;
I sat on the domestic throne
The sole and sovereign lord.
My crown is gone. Without a thank,
He takes my very name—
I've not a vestige of my rank
Before the baby came!
—Fannie Windsor, in Century.

Forgive and Forget.

Oh! forgive and forget, for this life is too fleeting
To waste it in sorrow o'er days that are gone.
This life is a conflict, the drums now are beating;
Let by-gones be by-gones, the years hurry on.
All the injuries suffered, all evils committed,
All the tears we have shed, all the trials we met
Can ne'er by revenge or despair be remitted;
We can drive them away by "forgive and forget."

Ah! the darkness will come and the shadows will linger,
Some days e'en the mocking-bird loses its song.
But the sunshine will break through the darkness, the bringer
Of all the bright angels that tarried so long.
Then lift up thy burdens and bear them on bravely,
Thou'lt lay them down shortly, when evening hath set,
There's One who will help thee, His love now can save thee,
He'll teach thee the lesson: "forgive and forget."

Then banish the gloom of all past tribulations,
They "endure but a moment"—why cause them to stay?
There are meetings of joy after sad separations,
When sorrow and sighing shall all flee away.
Look on to the future, not in the past living,
Hope's star is not dimmed, there is joy for thee yet,
Let us trust, pray and wait, for a Father is giving
Peace to His own who "forgive and forget."
—J. T. Wright, in Voice.

As You Go Through Life.

Don't look for the flaws as you go through life;
And even when you find them,
It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind
And look for the virtue behind them.
For the clobdiest night has a hint of light
Somewhere in its shadows hiding;
It is better by far to hunt for a star,
Than the spots on the sun abiding.

The current of life runs ever away
To the bosom of God's great ocean.
Don't set your force 'gainst the river's course
And think to alter its motion.
Don't waste a curse on the universe—
Remember, it lived before you.
Don't butt at the storm with your puny form—
But bend and let it go o'er you.

The world will never adjust itself
To suit your whims to the letter.
Some things must go wrong your whole life long,
And the sooner you know it the better.
It is folly to fight with the Infinite,
And go under at last in the wrestle.
The wiser man shapes into God's plan
As the water shapes into a vessel.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in Ladies' Home Journal.

A Variation.

An angler, with a costly pole
Surmounted by a silver reel,
Carven in quaint poetic scroll—
Jointed and tipped with finest steel,
With yellow flies,
Whose scarlet eyes
And jasper wings are fair to see,
Hies to the stream
Whose bubbles beam
Down murmuring eddies wild and free,
And casts the line with sportman's pride
Where the fish 'neath the bushes glide.

A shock-haired boy, with birch-wand light
Pronged somewhat with a fish's spine,
And on its end a bit of white—
The commonest kind of grocer's twine,
With naught but great
Ground worms for bait,
Tramps to the water full of glee;
His hat beneath,
Observe the wreath
Of smiles most beautiful to see,
While he casts in the plashing nook
A bended pin—his only hook.

The angler with the costly pole
Comes homeward full of airy grace—
If rapture thrills the urchin's soul
It doesn't blossom in his face,
The former, he has twenty-three
Fishes that speckle in the sun.
The shock-haired boy
Is reft of joy—
He's caught what's known as "nary-one."
The rod and reel have won to-day—
Somehow it sometimes works that way!
—Puck.

Brush.

I have learned a beautiful lesson,
Taught by the sweet-pease standing there,
Those little clouds of sunset glory
Caught out of time in morning air.

You see their fragrant blossoms nodding,
Purple, crimson and pale rose blush,
On slender stems too slight to bear them
Without the helping, hidden brush.

To its brown arms, so strong and trusty,
The little tendrils cleave and cling.
The vine, unheld, in dust were lying,
A fallen, bruised and flowerless thing.

And yet the brush itself was barren,
Unquickened at the summer's kiss,
It bore no scent or sign of blossom,
But now it blooms again like this.

I think it must forget the sadness
Of its own broken life, and glow
With love for all the warmth and sunshine
That makes the sweet-pease bud and blow.

It may seem but a dreary failure,
Deadened and storm-tossed, dulled with strife,
But it has helped to bear the blossoms
That crown another, fairer life.
—Bessie Chandler, in Harper's Bazar

The Inevitable.

I like the man who faces what he must
With step triumphant, and a heart of cheer;
Who fights the daily battle without fear;
Sees his hopes fail, yet keeps unfaltering trust
That God is God: that somehow, true and just
His plans work out for mortals; not a tear
Is shed when fortune, which the world holds dear,
Falls from his grasp: better, with love, a crust
Than living in dishonor: envies not,
Nor loses faith in man; but does his best,
Nor ever murmurs at his humbler lot,
But with a smile and words of hope, gives zest
To every toiler: he alone is great,
Who by a life heroic conquers fate.
—Sarah K. Bolton, in Youth's Companion.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

A MODERN HOME.

It Is Most Conveniently Arranged and Can Be Built for $2,000.

This is a beautiful country or city residence consisting of nine rooms and reception hall, that can be built of good material on posts for $1,800 or on stone foundation for $2,000; size of building 24x40 feet. You pass up wide, inviting steps to the front porch which is 8x10 feet, then into a beautiful reception hall which is 10x10 feet; between the reception hall and parlor there is a turned spindle grille supported by turned columns all in place to receive Japanese draperies or beaded curtains which will give a fine harmonizing effect between the hall and parlor.

The parlor is 14x18 feet with one corner rounded off and small high windows looking on the porch, and one large window in the front makes the parlor a very desirable room. From the parlor, pass into the entry that leads to pantry, kitchen, dining-room and to laundry or furnace room in basement. The stairs lead to the second floor from dining-room and from kitchen, where you find four large rooms, the front one being a half round and a very desirable room; the bath-room is to the rear and the house is a full two story and is arranged to suit the most fastidious taste.

G. A. W. KINTZ.

CAMELLIA CULTURE.

Hints for Those Who Are Interested in This Subject.

For green-house decoration no plant that will flower in an equally low temperature can at all compare in desirable qualities with the camellia. In every respect, with the single exception of scent, it is the equal of the rose, while in its ability to thrive in a low temperature, in the beauty of the plant with its heavy, dark, glossy foliage, in its freedom from insects, and in the durability of the bloom, it excels even the queen of flowers.

The camellia is so hardy that it will live in the open air in many parts of the Southern States and in England. In cultivation under glass, it will in a dormant state live and thrive in any temperature above the freezing point, and will take little or no hurt if subjected to three or four degrees of frost. The plants will bloom freely in a temperature of 40 degrees, though 45 degrees suits them better.

As a rule healthy camellias produce enough thrifty young shoots every year to require no cutting back. If, however, there be a lack of these, or it is desirable to improve the form of the plant, there need be no hesitation about cutting it back, for few plants will bear the knife better than the camellia. The moment, or even before, the late blooms fade, is the time for pruning.

Few young leaves or shoots are more tender and easily burned by the sun than those of the camellia; scorching not only disfigures the foliage, but also hinders the formation of fine growth and the development of flower buds. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that during the growth of the tender leaves and young shoots in their first stages, the plants should be shaded from direct sunshine.

During the season of growth the atmosphere should be kept moist by the surface sprinkling of the greenhouse walks, stages and walls, and the plants themselves should be lightly syringed at least twice a day. If the drainage of the plants is good it is hardly possible to overwater them during this period of wood-making. The atmosphere may range from 50 to 65 degrees during most of this time.

As the flower buds appear in sight, indicating that the new wood is hardening, the temperature may be allowed to become lower again, say in the forties at night. The plants now can hardly have too free a circulation of air about them. A close and arid atmosphere is one of the causes of that greatest trouble with inexperienced camellia growers, namely, dropping of the flower buds.—Popular Gardening.

Cracked Ice in the Sick-Room.

Finely cracked ice, administered in a teaspoonful of champagne or brandy, has been the rallying point for many a sinking patient. Or the ice alone, finely crushed, so that it simply melts away in the mouth, trickling down the throat, rather than being swallowed as a draught, is a most useful stimulant.

People who take cracked ice get the stimulus of ice upon the nerves of the mouth and tongue, and not flooding by water of the feeble throat and stomach.

The uses of cracked ice in cholera cases are familiar to some. It is possible that with hot water bags at the feet, hot mush poultices on the stomach and a constant diet of cracked ice no further treatment might be needed to complete a cure. Nursing skill counts for much, and every woman should have as much knowledge of it as will be sufficient to keep patients from sliding down hill until the proper officials arrive.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Boiled Milk.

Boiled milk will not produce an inactive state of the bowels, if a child is cared for properly otherwise. If it does, a little barley gruel or oatmeal gruel, well prepared and strained, may be given, and this will entirely counteract any such effects. Simply heating milk is not enough; it must be cooked fifteen or twenty minutes. There would be comparatively little "summer complaint" if milk were always cooked before using. Sour stomach, wind, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, etc., are all due to germs, and children fed upon sterilized milk are free from these diseases. Cooked milk is more digestible, and when one becomes accustomed to it, is more palatable as well. When one is tired and hungry a glass of hot milk, slowly sipped, or taken with crackers or dry bread, is exceedingly refreshing.—Dr. Kellogg.

Hock Cup.

One of the most delicious of summer drinks is the Hock cup, which is as satisfying to the thirst as milk and water or oatmeal water, and withal, more epicurean. Take equal parts of Hock and Londonderry Lithia water, and put them in a clear, crystal pitcher, sweetening with three lumps of sugar to a quart, and adding a slice or two of pineapple and a long paring of cucumber rind. Let this filled pitcher stand for a few minutes in a vessel of ice, or wrap around the pitcher a towel of cracked ice and salt. Under no circumstances put ice in the drink, for that would injure the fine flavor. Just before the cup is served throw some bits of mint upon the top.—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

JAPANESE POT PLANT.

The Weeping Double-Flowered Cherry, the Favorite Plant of the Japs.

Readers of garden literature have in late years become familiar with the descriptions and illustrations of the dwarfed conifers of which the Japanese are so fond. Less is known of their dwarfed deciduous trees. It is a weeping double-flowered cherry, in which the Japanese especially delight, and which they grow in great numbers for the decoration of their gardens, often grafting them to assume curious and abnormal forms, and cherishing them year after year among the most precious of their household belongings.

A JAPANESE POT PLANT.

Our illustration was made from one of a large series of photographs of these plants taken in Japan by Dr. William Sturgis Bigelow, of Boston, who has favored us with a set of them.—Garden and Forest.

About Onions.

Onions contain, says Dr. J. H. Kellogg, a volatile oil as strong as prussic acid, and I do not think it was ever intended that this vegetable should be eaten. A smarting or stinging sensation is nature's signboard "Beware!" If onions are cooked so that this volatile oil is removed then they will not be injurious.

An Illustration from Nature.

Mr. Theo. Rea (the accountant)—There, now; I think my system is absolutely perfect. There isn't a crack or a flaw in it.

Mr. Ben Tharr—There isn't in an egg-shell, Teddy; but you can open one easier than you can an oyster.—Puck.

Mr. CITTMAN (who has taken board on a farm)—Is there a bank anywhere near here?

Farmer Catchum—No, sir. We ain't never had no use for banks in this section. You see, this is the first season any of us has kept summer boarders.—N. Y. Weekly

GEWGAWS OF FASHION.

It is a new caprice to set cameos in silver.

A TINY nosegay secured in the bows of the bonnet strings is the latest and Frenchiest touch of millinery.

PAPER pulp, which looks like frozen or petrified foam, is cut in layers, painted in garlands and used as dinner cards.

THE spiral combinations of silver, bone and ivory remain favorite handles of every implement, from an umbrella to a button hook.

A BRACELET that has recently been revived is a close gold chain band which can be fastened with a buckle at any point of its length.

THERE is a sudden and marked popularity in flower jewelry of deep tinted gold, usually uniting a diamond in the center. The pelargonium is a new form and adapts well to the style.

PERFUMED gloves are becoming popular in Paris, and the scent most admired is the odor of sandal-wood. The idea is borrowed from Catherine de Medici, who displayed her shapely hands in perfumed kid.

YOUNG lovers, after having a dime split in half, each take a portion and get their jeweler to mount it in any peculiar manner that appeals to their fancy. Many curious scarf pins and bracelet bangles are the result.

A LONDON fad is gold-kid shoes for evening wear. The kid is covered with a layer of solid gold, which loses its brilliancy, but never rubs off. These shoes are usually ornamented with paste buckles and have Louis heels.

THE latest novelty in the willow-ware business is a honeymoon basket, also known as the wedding-hamper, but in reality best suited for a camping, hunting or picnic party. It is a miracle of compactness and convenience, a complete outfit for a tea being packed in the smallest compass that one could imagine for the reception of four cups and saucers, four plates, a caddy and compartments for cream, sugar, biscuits, knives, forks and spoons, besides a kettle and spirit lamp. The kettle and all the fittings are made of lacquered brass, and the rest of the furniture of white metal lined with gilt. Thread-like jets extend from the lamp by means of which the kettle can be kept boiling hot.

ODDITIES NOTED IN NAMES.

A. H. JONES, of Pulaski County, Pa., is one of seven brothers, the first name of each of whom begins with the letter A.

THE name of a woman who died in Kansas City was Joicy Jane Permelia Ann Sarah Elizabeth Douglass Carr Gentry Ballard.

THERE is a man in Detroit, Mich., named Andrzjewski and another named Schewicdki. It would be interesting to be present when they were introduced to each other.

THERE are six brothers in Kansas City named Frost, each one of them bearing a wintry name as follows: Jack Frost, Winter Frost, White Frost, Cold Frost, Early Frost and Snow Frost.

A KENTUCKIAN in Buffalo has discovered there the firm of Irish & English. What is considered especially remarkable about this firm is that Mr. English is an Irishman and Mr. Irish is an Englishman.

SQUIRE ADAMS of Chattanooga discovered a curious matter in connection with his signature. He happened to glance over his name from right to left, or more properly backward, and saw that "S. M. Adams" could be read both ways. Another gentleman present said he had a relative who could spell both her Christian and surname either forward or backward—Hannah Dreppert. A reporter said he could go them one better: that the names of the children of his family in the order of their birth formed a question: "Peter, May Emma Carrie Jennie?"

THERE is a family living in Athens, Ga., whose head delights in long names for the children. The first child is named Mary Magalina Mandy Mectum Elizabeth Betsy Polly Mack Barrett; the second child is named Alice Georgia Ann Yorena Barrett; the third child is named Mattie Frances Anna Tranna Barrett; the fourth child is named Emory Spear Walker Buster Barrett; the fifth child is named Tila Cory Coston Estelle Liniment Ettie Isiduler Barrett; the sixth child is named Montino Cinicar Barrett, and the seventh child is named Effice Bozina Mondenay Virginia Barrett.

BY FIENDS WHO FIGURE.

A HUNDRED laying hens produce in egg shells about 137 pounds of chalk or limestone annually.

ONE million dollars of gold coin weighs 3,585 pounds avoirdupois; of silver coin, 58,929.9 pounds.

ACCORDING to a French savant, a journey around the world could be made: By a man walking day and night, in 428 days; a railway train, forty days; sound, at a medium temperature, 32½ hours; a cannon ball, 21¾ hours; light, trifle over one-tenth of a second; electricity, a little under one-tenth of a second.

AN eminent German has undergone the enormous labor of counting the number of hairs in heads of four different colors. In a blonde one he found 140,400; in a brown, 109,440; in a black, 102,962; and in a red one, 88,740. What the red and black heads wanted in number of hairs was made up, however, in the greater bulk of the hairs individually. It is to the fineness and multiplicity of hairs that blonde tresses owe the rich and silk-like character of their flow.

A MAN of figures at Saginaw has calculated that the average person trims off a thirty-second of an inch of nail from each finger every week, or three inches a year. The average of human life the world over is forty years. Ten feet of finger nail for each finger—a round 200 feet from the twenty fingers and toes. There are 1,300,000,000 people in this world and altogether they waste on an average 300,000,000 feet, or 56,818.15 miles of finger nail in a generation—sufficient to reach around the earth and still leave 10,000 miles to do our scratching with.

PRECOCIOUS PRATTLERS.

"MAMMA," said Willie, as he gazed on a gaudy-plumed parrot, "was that chicken hatched from an Easter egg?"

"SH!" exclaimed Tommy, listening at the door. "There's company in the parlor." "How do you know?" inquired Willie. "Mamma's calling papa 'my love.'"

"WHICH would you rather be, Charley, a monkey or a giraffe?" "Giraffe, every time. It would be bully in the summer time for looking over the base-ball ground fence."

LITTLE FREDDY (at the window)—"Here comes Uncle Bob, mother." Mother—"Who is he with, darling?" Little Freddy—"He's with himself, and that's nobody."

PAPA—"Now, Paul, run over as quick as you can and tell your auntie that mamma has just received a present of another little boy." Paul—"But what'll I say if she asks me who she got it from?"

A BOY in Sunday-school, when asked from the catechism "What is the chief end of man?" instead of giving the answer gave the following interpretation: "The chief end of man is the end what's got the head on."

BOBBY—"Don't be scared, Johnnie. Perhaps your father didn't mean it when he said he would lick you." Little Johnnie—"Yes, he did. It wasn't as if he had promised to bring me home a new whistle."

"WHAT's the matter, Eddie?" "Willie Thomas has gone and moved off this street. boo, hoo." "Well, don't cry, there are plenty of other little boys in the neighborhood to play with." "Y-e-s, ma; b-u-t he's the o-n-l-y one I could l-i-c-k."

"MAMMA," said a little five-year-old boy who disliked to be washed: "do you know why papa growed big so much faster than I do?" "Why do you think he did, my child?" "Because grandma did not rub so hard when she washed him. You rub so hard that you keep me rubbed down little."

A VERY little fellow has a very lively tongue, and talks so much at meals that on a recent occasion when there were to be guests at the table his elder brother hired him with a nickel to be still. After ten minutes of silence the little boy whispered anxiously to his brother: "Arthur, Arthur, mayn't I talk a cent's worth?"

BOBBY, looking out of the window—"What's the matter with that horse, mamma?" Mother—"The horse is balky, Bobby; he won't obey his driver." Bobby—"Well, what's he patting him for?" Mother—"He is coaxing him." Bobby, with an injured air—"That ain't the way you coax me when I'm balky."

ELDERLY gentleman (to a little boy who is buying candy)—"My young friend, don't you think that instead of spending all the pennies you get it would be better to put some of them away for a rainy day?" Little Boy—"Naw. What's the good of money on a rainy day? Ma never lets me stir out of the house."

SMILES OF GREAT MEN.

HENRY WARD BEECHER used to tell the story of a traveler who, finding himself and his dog in a wild country and destitute of provisions, cut off his dog's tail and boiled it for his own supper, giving the dog the bone.

THE other day a friend said to Bismarck that he must have been deeply gratified by the popular demonstration on the occasion of his quitting Berlin. "Oh, yes," answered Bismarck, laughingly, "they gave me a first-class funeral."

LABOUCHERE got hit badly the other day. Colonel Saunderson, in a heated speech, compared him to a "gargoyle." "I believe you don't know what a gargoyle is," said Labby. "Yes, I do!" shouted Colonel S.; "it is a grotesque gutter-spout!" Labouchere was forced to join in the general laugh.

MORITZ SAPHIR, the witty Austrian journalist, was once standing in a crowded theater. Some one leaned on his back, thrusting his head over his shoulder. Saphir drew out his handkerchief and wrung the man's nose violently. The latter started back. "Oh, I beg your pardon," said Saphir; "I thought it was mine."

ALTHOUGH Disraeli is a long time dead, anecdotes of his wonderful tact are very much alive. Thus we read that soon after his elevation to the peerage a brother lord asked him how he liked it. "Like it? like it? I feel as if I were dead and buried.—And in the land of the blest," he added, seeing the discomfiture on the peer's face.

TOM CORWIN had an enormous mouth, which, when it opened, was as huge in its way as an alligator's. He once said he had been insulted by Deacon Smith. The good brother asked for further explanation. "Well," said Corwin, "when I stood up at the lecture-room to relate my experience, and I opened my mouth, Deacon Smith rose up in front and said: 'Will some brother please close that window, and keep it closed?'"

LORD CAMPBELL tells this story about Henry Erskine: Having been speaking in the Outer House, at the bar of Lord Swinton, a very good but a very slow and deaf judge, Erskine was called away to the bar of Lord Braxfield, who was Lord Ordinary for the week. On his coming up Lord Braxfield said to him: "Well, Dean, what is this you've been talking so loudly about to my Lord Swinton?" "About a cask of whisky, my Lord," replied Harry; "but I found it no easy matter to make it run in his Lordship's head."

DR. JAMES MACGREGOR, Queen Victoria's Scotch chaplain, is a brilliant preacher; and he is also a man of very small stature and slightly deformed, a defect which has gained for him the title in Edinburgh of "Bowdy" MacGregor. Once when a minister of a rural parish he called at a farm-house, and as the members of his congregation whom he wanted to see were not at home, he good-naturedly consented to be taken round the premises by the farmer's boy. After he had seen the minor sights about the place, he was taken to the pig-sty to see the pigs, where a curiously shaped animal was triumphantly pointed out to him as "Bowdy MacGregor, ca'd after oor minister, ye ken." The story is told by the worthy old doctor himself.

TWO MEN KIDNAPPED

The Alleged Train Wreckers Brought from Canada.

FOOLED BY PINKERTON'S MEN.

The Prisoners Held in Troy Say They Have Made No Confession.

Chauncey Depew Waited on by Strikers. He Refuses to Interfere in the Trouble. Another Wreck on the Central—Freight Cars Consumed by Fire—A Brakeman Fatally Injured.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The true story of the arrest of the two men, Cain and Buett, the alleged wreckers, is as follows:

Pinkerton detectives had followed the men for two days, and Wednesday afternoon tracked them to the Canada line. They were not quick enough, however, to keep them from getting across the river. The men went to Prescott, Can., just across the river from Ogdensburg, N. Y., and therr they met a friend.

One of the men had a heavy beard, and he went into a barber shop to get it shaved off. While they were there three armed men entered the shop and closing the door, said: "We are Pinkerton men, and we want you." The men saw escape was impossible and went with the detectives to the boat. They were taken across to Ogdensburgh, being virtually kidnapped, and from there were taken down on the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburgh road to Utica. The men are at some way station, as they have not arrived in Troy or Albany.

CRASH ON THE CENTRAL.

Burning Freight Cars Make the Track at Schodack Unpassable.

ALBANY, Sept. 12.—A locomotive to which was attached two cabooses, while running at a high rate of speed between Castleton and Schodack, on the Eastern or South-bound track crashed into the caboose of a regular freight train running just ahead on the same track. The caboose of the regular freight was reduced to kindling wood. The cabooses attached to the second locomotive were thrown across the tracks, blocking it. They soon after took fire and were consumed.

The heat warped the rails so much that it was necessary to relay them, and a wrecking train from Hudson was soon on the grounds.

A brakeman who was in the caboose of the first train had both legs crushed and was not expected to live. Beyond that there was no other person hurt. All the up trains were held between the wreck and Hudson for several hours.

Mr. Depew Will Not Interfere.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A committee of five of the ex-employes of the New York Central Railroad, who went out on strike, called on President Chauncey M. Depew at his office at the Grand Central Depot. Mr. Depew refused to reopen the issues of the strike, stating that the strike is over and there is nothing left for them to do, also, that Vice-President Webb's action had been endorsed by the directors, and there was nothing left to settle.

The Alleged Train Wreckers.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 12.—William J. Ludden, of Troy, who is counsel for the accused men who are charged with wrecking the Montreal express train, claims that the railroad has got the wrong people, and that none of the men arrested "squealed."

Most of the witnesses have arrived with the attorneys, including Judge Ingersoll, Mrs. Cowles, Mrs. Bolton and Harry A. Garfield, a son of the late ex-President, who was a college student with Hale, and who will testify as to Hale's character.

Fraudulent Life Insurance Claims.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 12.—The arrest of Matt Gelthern, an ex-agent of the Home of the Friendly Insurance Society of this city, has brought to light another corpse trust case similar to that of the Bond case. Gelthern defrauded the company by means of fraudulent claims and forged medical certificates. Charlotte A. Miles had been reported as dead and the money collected on her policy. Charlotte is still alive.

MARRIED IN FUN.

The Knot Was Legally Tied by a Justice of the Peace.

BRIDGETON, Pa., Sept. 12.—The marriage of Charles F. Harris of this city and Miss Nellie Butler of Norfolk, Va., last evening, has an interesting story connected with it.

Not long ago Miss Butler came to Millville as the guest of Miss Eva Paine, and while here she formed the aquaintance of Harris, and, one evening about two weeks ago, the two determined to go through the marriage ceremony "just for fun."

A gentleman who was present acted as master of ceremonies, and after the supposed mock ceremony had been performed, the couple learned, to their astonishment, that he was a justice of the peace, and that the knot had been legally and tightly tied.

However, they concluded to make the best of it and to have the ceremony performed in due shape by a clergyman. Accordingly, Mr. and Mrs. Harris went before the Rev. Clearfield Park of Millville and, in the presence of a few friends, were reunited in marriage.

COKE WORKERS TO STRIKE.

It All Depends on To-Day's Convention of the K. of L.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Sept. 12.—The coke region is threatened with a big strike. The matter of striking depends upon whether or not the Standard miners' troubles are settled at to-day's convention of the Knights of Labor.

A committee composed of Messrs. Rae, Watchorn, McBride, Kerfoote, Parker and the three representatives of the Standard miners were appointed to confer with General Superintendent Lynch, of the Frick Company, relative to adjusting the Standard difficulty.

The conference will be held to-day. If a settlement is not reached a general strike at Frick's works is likely to be the result.

A large meeting was held at the Valley works last evening. The Standard affair was discussed at length.

Ten Years' Hard Labor.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Sept. 12.—Judge Conover sentenced Wm E. Webb, a young carriage painter of Long Branch, to 10 years' hard labor in the State prison, and to pay a fine of $1,000. The crime of which Webb was convicted, was the enticing of George Fatty, 15 years old, of Elizabeth, N. J., from Long Branch to Highland Beach where, after beating him into insensibility, he robbed him and threw his almost lifeless body into the Shrewsbury River. Fatty recovered after lying at the point of death for two months. Webb waived trial and pleaded guilty.

Sampson, of the Sampson Maufacturing Company, will lay out about 10 acres of land surrounding the hospital, in a beautiful park and gardens.

Looks Like Murder.

READING, Pa., Sept. 12.—Near Lottstown the body of an unknown man was found on the Reading Railroad premises with a hole in the back of his head. Boston's National League Team Defeats the Philadelphias—No Games Played by the Brotherhood or the Association. Boston and Brooklyn Teams Hold the Lead for the Flag.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The rain played sad havoc with baseball, especially in this neighborhood. Singularly enough, not a Brotherhood or American Association game was played, yet five National League games were played to a finish, but none in New York or Brooklyn.

Fairly favorable weather conditions at Boston permitted President Soden's aggregation to gain a lap on the leaders in the National League race by defeating Harry Wright's Philadelphians. "Old Man" Anson and his colts snatched a couple of games from Cleveland and Cincinnati managed to beat Pittsburg twice.

GEN. BARRUNDIA'S DEATH.

He Fired Two Revolvers at the Captain of the American Steamship.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 12.—Advices just received here respecting the shooting of General Barrundia on board the American steamship Acapulco, at St. Jose de Guatemala, state that Captain Pitts, of the Acapulco, had made a declaration which the Guatemalan authorities claim completely justifies their action.

Mr. Mizner, the authorities say, was consulted as an act of courtesy only.

It is further alleged that when Captain Teriello and Captain Pitts read to Barrundia the order for his delivery to the Guatemalan authorities, Barrundia asked permission to change his clothes which was granted, turning away Barrundia suddenly grasped two revolvers, and fired on Teriello, Pitts and the policeman, who in turn fired on Barrundia killing him.

Captain Pitts had taken the precaution of ordering the passengers to withdraw, otherwise some of them would have undoubtedly been hit by the bullets from Barrundia's pistol.

A Quarrel Results in Murder.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Sept. 12.—At Lanesville, three miles south of here, John J. Waters, aged 45, was shot dead by George Knowles, aged 21. It seems that Jay Knowles and Dr. David Knowles each claim the ownership of a house left by their father. David locked up the premises and placed his wife and son George on guard therein. Later Jay Knowles came with a party of neighbors and started to break in the door. George fired, killing Waters, who was in the party. Dr. David Knowles, his wife and George Knowles have been arrested. Waters leaves a widow and six children.

BURNS IN COMMAND

The London Labor Leader is Called to Southampton.

STRIKE AFFAIRS BADLY MIXED.

The Men Resolve to Return to Work and Afterward Rescind Their Action.

A Large Delegation of Englishmen to Visit America—London Newspapers Dislike Our Tariff Bill—Only Six Copies of Marshal MacMahon's Memoirs Printed—The Duchesse d'Uzes Contribution.

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 12.—At a conference of the strikers it was decided to return to work on the concession offered a fortnight ago. The decision was fiercely opposed by a strong minority. The concession means an increase of a penny an hour in wages. The question of employing non-union men is left open.

McCarthy, the leader of the men, said in an interview that the fact of the strike having been begun without obtaining authority from the Dockmen's Executive Committee at London precluded the hope of success. The men had been warned against precipitate action, but had chosen to disregard the advice. McCarthy strongly condemned the local union for having forced a strike under such circumstances.

Later, John Burns arrived with instructions from the Executive Committee to assume the management of the strike. The men have, therefore, decided to suspend the resolution to return to work until after a further meeting, which has been called for to-night.

WILL VISIT AMERICA.

A Big Party of Englishmen to Make a Tour of the United States.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The members of the Iron and Steel Institute of Great Britain, who are preparing to visit America, number three hundred, and will be accompanied by a large number of friends. The first contingent start to-day from Southampton on the Normannia, and later the Servia will take a considerable number.

It is understood that the American reception committee will provide sleeping and luncheon cars to take their visitors over 3,000 miles of the United States. The week beginning September 29 will be devoted to reading of papers and discussions by members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers and the English Iron and Steel Institute.

Excursions will be made to the iron ore and copper regions of Lake Superior and to the iron districts of Alabama.

Don't Like Our Tariff Bill.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The English newspapers comment upon the passage of the Tariff bill by the American Senate in terms severely denunciatory of that measure. Most of the writers express the belief that the new tariff will prove so disastrous to the country that it will lead to a reaction toward free trade.

Marshal MacMahon's Memoirs.

RAIN AT CRESSON.

The President Attends a Children's Hop at the Mountain House.

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 12.—The President entertained Private Secretary Halford and family, and Mr. Horace Pettit, of Philadelphia, at dinner last evening, and afterward spent an hour at the children's hop in the parlor of the Mountain House.

Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McKee, who have been somewhat indisposed, have fully recovered. The rain storm continues, with no prospects of abatement, and the indications are that the trip proposed for the President to different points of interest in this locality will have to be deferred until next week.

Senate Bills to be Pushed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A caucus of Republican Senators met in the morning to determine upon an order of business, and what measures on the calendar should be pushed to passage before adjournment. About a dozen bills were talked of as worthy of speedy action. Among them are the Anti-Lottery bill, the bill for the relief of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Senate Pure Food bill, the Lard bill, the Bankruptcy bill and the Labor bills that recently passed the House of Representatives. These measures will be taken up in about the order named, the Anti-Lottery bill being the first to receive consideration.

KEPT THE LETTERS.

A Woman's Scheme for Getting Prominent Men in Trouble.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Lillie Church, the pretty young wife of Dr. Church, a popular dentist, has created a sensation here in society and dismay in several manly bosoms. She is one of the prettiest women in the State, and was married some five years ago.

Inside of three years she wearied of her chains and began to enjoy herself with such freedom that her husband procured a separation. Then, accompanied by her maid, a remarkably pretty young woman named Lotta Ivers, she started out for herself, and since then has led a life of glorious freedom. She visited all the fashionable resorts and lived in such splendor that her acquaintances were greatly mystified to account for her source of income.

Early this summer she and the maid quarreled over a man and parted. About this time she began to write letters to men of prominence in wealth or official circles, in which she stated she needed funds to obtain a divorce, and promised to return the obligation if favored. She got many sympathetic replies, all of which she kept. How much money she got will never be known.

One of her probable sources of revenue has just been revealed by her arrest for larceny. The charges are legion and include every hotel and house at which she had stopped during the entire summer. If they are true she has literally robbed right and left. The grand jury promptly indicted her, and her conviction seemed certain, when to-day she came out and proclaimed the possession of criminating letters, which she swears to make public if she is prosecuted.

Her alleged victims are of the highest circles, and tremendous pressure is being brought to bear on the district attorney to quash the case.

BY THE WAY.

—Take the trains leaving Plainfield at 1:59 and 2:32, to-morrow afternoon, for the Somerville ball game.

—A. P. Burbank, the well-known elocutionist, will entertain the guests of Hotel Netherwood, this evening.

—Special Policeman James Babbitt is doing patrol duty for Night Watchman Giese during the latter's absence from the city for a few days.

—Those who intend driving to Somerville, to-morrow, to see the ball game, should be told that no vehicles will be admitted within the ball field.

—The exercises attending the presentation of a handsome American flag from the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union to the Bryant Public school, will take place next week Tuesday.

—The members of Jerusalem Lodge courteously surrendered their hall, last evening, for the use of the Union choir now practicing for the approaching Christian Endeavor Convention.

—On the third page of today's PRESS Geo. W. Force, the West Front street boot and shoe dealer, calls attention to his Fall and Winter stock. His assortment is large and prices low.

—Tickets for general admission to the Somerville ball grounds, are now on sale at Stelle's pharmacy. By buying there, the crowd at the ticket office will be avoided. The price is 25 cents.

—Chas. Thorn, of Fanwood, has transferred to Margaret L. Carpenter, of this city, land on northeast side of Liberty street, 53 feet northwest from Orchard place, 108x26 feet, for a consideration of $1,325.

—Gus Wilson and Sam Terry say they were not on Fifth street, Wednesday evening, and consequently could not have been with the gang that attacked the three young men whose story was told in THE PRESS of yesterday.

—Members of the Hope Chapel Gospel Temperance Club are earnestly desired to be present at their meeting in the chapel this evening at eight o'clock. Business of importance will be considered, and prompt attendance is desired.

—Chas. Wann, representing the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company, of New York, to whom the Plainfield fire alarm contract was awarded, appeared before the Common Council of Burlington, Tuesday evening, and secured by a unanimous vote the contract for the extension of the fire alarm system of that city. Mr. Wann met competition, but triumphed as usual.

—Overseer of the Poor Bauersachs of North Plainfield, says there has been no complaint made to him by Mrs. Stephens because of her husband's neglect and harsh treatment as told exclusively in yesterday's PRESS. Therefore there is no warrant issued. Mrs. Stephens does not want to get her husband in trouble; she merely desires the support from him that is her right.

Watch THE PRESS Base Ball Bulletin To-morrow.

The carrier pigeon service of THE PRESS gave the people great satisfaction Wednesday. At the end of every inning of the Crescent-Westfield base ball game a pigeon bearing the score was released. The birds flew well, and as rapidly as they reached THE PRESS left the message they brought was announced by bulletins at the front of THE PRESS office, where a crowd of people excitedly discussed the progress of the base ball contest and waited eagerly for further returns. The bird that brought the news of the ninth inning made the best trip of all, but a telephone message announcing the Crescents' victory was said to have been received a minute before his arrival. The telephone rumor, however, did not satisfy the bulletin students, and they held their enthusiasm in check till THE PRESS announced the official figures, when the people broke forth in cheers.

To-morrow's great game between the Crescents and the West Ends at Somerville will also be attended by THE PRESS pigeons, and THE PRESS bulletins will announce the score as the game progresses.

Very Badly Treated Fish.

Five Plainfield fishermen last Thursday started in a scow to make a voyage from the bridge to the dam. All were capsized and almost immediately after the immersion of the bold mariners many dead or debauched fish floated down stream.—Somerville Messenger.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Prof. Eugene Reilly has returned from a six weeks' visit to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Boss of North Plainfield, have returned from a sojourn at Smyrna, N. Y.

Wm. E. Lowe and family, of Park avenue, have returned from a Summer outing at Lake Placid, N. Y.

Mrs. G. Q. Dolliver, of Manning avenue, is convalescent from a severe attack of quinsy sore throat.

Mr. and Mrs. George Burgess, of Linvale, are visiting Mrs. Rachel Allen, a sister of Mr. Burgess, on Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Sandford, of West Seventh street, are among the recent arrivals at the Spring House, Richfield Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Holmes have gone to Haines Corners, N. Y., to enjoy the Catskill breezes during the remainder of September.

Miss Louisa Verdon, of "Shady Lawn," left Plainfield yesterday for a trip through the Northwest to Wisconsin and the Great Lakes.

The Rev. Mr. Goodrich will preach for the Rev. Dr. Lewis, at the Seventh-day Baptist church, to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Joseph Frederic Wharton and Miss Alice Gleason, both of this city, were united in marriage by the Rev. C. B Mitchell, last evening. The ceremony took place in the new home of the bride and groom, 272 West Third street, and the happy couple will at once begin housekeeping.

Wednesday afternoon took place the marriage of Philip Giese, of this city, to Miss Gussie Mager, of Newark. The Rev. Dr. Schambach, of the Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. Only relatives and a few intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Giese have gone to Pennsylvania to spend a honeymoon, and upon their return will live with the groom's parents, at 8 Orange street.

The opening meeting of the Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., held at the Association rooms last evening, was a great success. The boys were fortunate in having with them two men of experience in boys' work—Geo. G. Peck, of Newburgh, who was visiting in the city, and R. G. Leypoldt, of New York, who was in town on business. S. F. Dudley, of Orange, will be present at the social meeting to be held Tuesday evening next.

Accused of Violating the License Laws.

Eugene Hoerster, a North Plainfield beer bottler, is to be tried before Justice Hardy next week on the charge of selling liquor to minors. Two sons of Lewis Sprigg—both under age—last night made affidavit to the statement that Hoerster had repeatedly sold them intoxicating drinks for their own use. When Lewis Sprigg was on trial for disorderly conduct Sunday morning his eighteen-year-old son stated under oath that not only had he himself procured liquor at Hoerster's place but had seen other minors buy of Hoerster.

Hoerster is already under bonds to appear for trial in the Somerset County Courts on the charge of selling liquor to be drunk on the premises. The story that will be told in Court is that one Borough Marshal caught another Borough Marshal drinking, at Hoerster's place, liquor he had just bought of Hoerster. The license granted to Hoerster is merely for "quart" sales, and provides that no liquor must be drunk by customers on the premises.

Why the Blackguard Keeps One Man's Name Out of His Paper.

When President Moffett and wife, and Councilman Gallup and wife, went to West Point for a day's pleasure trip, Wednesday, the news said that some members of the Council had gone out of town, and intimated in its customary, disgusting way, that they would come home drunk. But the paper mentioned no names.

On another occasion, recently, in referring to Mr. Gallup, the news spoke of "another Councilman." The gentleman meant was asked by a PRESS reporter if he knew why his name was so uniformly omitted. He smiled and said that when the news first began its usual dirty methods of attack upon him, he told the editor, "If you mention my name in your filthy sheet, I'll horsewhip you."

Who is This Curse to the City?

The people of Plainfield would pay a reward for the discovery of the correspondent who continues to send such lies as this to the World;

PLAINFIELD, Sept. 9.—Firebugs again applied the torch in this city shortly after midnight last night. The barn of A. Sturtevant on Orchard place was set on fire and burned to the ground. The loss was only $1,200 and is covered by insurance. This is the eighth building destroyed by fire here in two weeks. All these fires are said to have been of incendiary origin.

They are not said to have been anything of the sort. Chief Doane says the cause of Sturtevant's barn burning was green hay, and that there has not been an incendiary fire in this city in months and months.

All such reports are of great damage to this city. They spread everywhere. Even the Philadelphia papers have had columns of stuff about "the reign of terrible fire-bugs in Plainfield, again."

Sugar Given Away—Biggest Inducement Yet Offered.

To-morrow we will give to every purchaser of a pound of our famous 50 cent special mixed tea—three pounds of granulated sugar free. United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association.

ROBBED THE SECOND TIME.

Burglars Blow Open the Bound Brook Post office Safe and Get Away With Its Contents.

The Post Office at Bound Brook was visited by burglars last night, the safe blown open and robbed of about $75 in money and a like amount in stamps. The burglars obtained entrance into the rear of the office by forcing apart the iron bars which guard the windows, after attempting to find the bolts of the door by boring some twelve-inch augur holes in the panels. The thieves left a half-pint bottle behind them partly filled with fine ducking powder, also other implements which may lead to their detection.

A PRESS reporter visited the scene this morning, and is confident that the work was done by amatuers, and not by "Mickey" McDonald, the Plainfield Post Office robber, who is at present at large. A hole was bored in the safe, powder inserted and the door and filling blown out and scattered over the interior of the office. Only two registered packages were found by the thieves and broken open. One probably contained jewelry, and was addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Talmage." The contents may lead to the burglars identification as the case was with "Mickey" McDonald.

Postmaster W. B R. Mason immediate-wired to the Post Office authorities to visit the office. This is the second time the office has been robbed in two years. There are facts and evidences of guilt that the PRESS is not at present authorized to divulge, which may be the means of bringing to justice the guilty parties. Postmaster Mason is editor of the Bound Brook Chronicle.

SACRED CONCERT AT NETHERWOOD.

Greenop's Philharmonic Quartette's Programme for Next Sunday Evening.

One of the features of the Hotel Netherwood this season, has been the music by Greenop's Philharmonic Quartette. Plainfield residents have also been cordially welcomed to an enjoyment of it with the guests. Next Sunday evening the following programme will be rendered:

Overture—"Oberon".....Weber
Adagio—From Fourth Symphonie....Beethoven
Grand Selection—Les Huguenots.....Myerbeer
(a. Serenade.....Moszkowski
(b. Spring Song.....Mendelssohn
Prelude—To William Tell.....Rossini
Bridal Music—From Lohengrin.....Wagner
Divertisement—Faust.....Gounod
Prayer—From "Mose in Egito".....Rossini
Andante Spinato.....Chopin
Coronation March—From Prophet.....Myerbeer

Too Much Rivalry in Somerset.

"Ex-Congressman John Kean," remarks The New York Times, in a column of chat concerning New Jersey politics, "is willing to measure lances with Congressman Geissenhainer, his fellow-townsman in Elizabeth, whom the Democrats will nominate. Mr. Kean carried the district once or twice against Miles Ross, whose Cheesequake Creek appropriation had brought him into disfavor, but he has not had the same good luck with others. Mr. Geissenhainer ought to be an easy winner.

"The Senatorial canvasses," The Times continues, "are taking shape quite as rapidly as the Congressional canvasses. Somerset presents a picture of sorry Democratic disunion, and it is feared that the rivalries of the half dozen candidates there will give the county to the Republicans. Andrew Lane, a wealthy Neshanic miller, whom Senator Thompson beat three years ago, is hot after the nomination again. H. M. T. Beekman, a young Jersey City lawyer, who is ambitious to represent the honor of his birth in the Senate, is his chief competitor. James J. Bergen, ex-Assemblyman and Prosecutor of the Pleas, is showing some strength, however. The Republicans talk of Chas. B. Place, Lewis H. Schenck, and Senator Thompson again.

"Rumors from Union county represent that Assemblyman Fred Marsh is not ambitious for the Democratic nomination. Foster M. Voorhees and Mayor Rankin of Elizabeth, are the chief competitors for the Republican support."

Plainfield Women Their Ruslest Workers.

The sixth annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Union county, to be held in Etta Hall, Broad street, Westfield, Thursday, September 18, will be conducted largely by Plainfielders. Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, of LaGrande avenue, is President, and will deliver an interesting address; and noteworthy reports of the departments which they superintend will be read by Mrs. P. H. Bennett, of Craig place, on Juvenile Work; Mrs. J. W. Yates, of East Seventh street, on Literature; Mrs. J. H. Coard, of Putnam avenue, on Hygiene and Heredity; Mrs. S. R. Krom, of Madison avenue, on Press Work; Miss May Tomlinson, of LaGrande avenue, on the Kitchen Garden; and Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Dunellen, on Tobacco and Narcotics.

Good People from the Borough Will Attend.

The 73d annual meeting of the Somerset County Bible Society will be held in the Presbyterian church at Lamington next week Tuesday, Sept. 16. The Rev. T. J. Schock, of Bloomington, will preach the annual sermon, and the Rev. W. J. Henderson, of Somerville, will deliver a special address in the afternoon. Delegates will be met at the station at New Germantown, on the Rockaway Valley Railroad by carriages. The meeting, which will be attended by delegates from North Plainfield and Washingtonville, is expected to be an interesting one.

THE FIRST OF THE THREE.

In One Particular Only Are the West Ends at All the Equals of the Crescents.

To-morrow at Somerville, the West Ends of that town, and the Crescents of this city, will meet in the first of the three games arranged to be played between these two ball teams who are probably the most bitter rivals on the diamond today. The excitement is already intense on both sides, and the Somerville sporting men have bet the Plainfield bloods to a stand still.

The batting order will probably be as follows:

West Ends—Carbonell, cf; Bowes, c; Williams, 3b; Harkins, p; Reilly, ss; O'Rourke, 1b; Farrell, 2b; Bergen, lf; Davenport, rf.

Crescents—Hatfield, rf; Martin, ss; Lufbery, 2b; Wiegand, 1b; Lever, cf; McIndoe, lf; Gregg, p; Jones, c; Lee, 3b.

A glance at the above lists of batters, gives the one reason for the caution that is felt by the friends of the Plainfield team. The Crescents have merely the usual nine that has been on their salary list all Summer; while the West Ends today, include a pick of professional players engaged at much expense especially for the occasion. It is not probable therefore that the contest is an even one for Plainfield even on its own grounds.

However, the Crescents will try to hold the West Ends down, at least, and beat them one game if possible. The Crescents have more to fear from Harkins' batting than from his pitching—in fact at all points, except with the stick, the West Ends are out-classed by the Plainfield team.

Primaries Over the Brook.

The Democratic County Convention, to select candidates for Senator, Assembly man, County Clerk and Coroners in the Fourth Congressional District, will be held at the Court House, in Somerville, on Monday, Octoner 13, and the primary meetings will be held the Saturday previous, except in North Plainfield. In that borough the primary will be held in the new school house, this evening, at eight o'clock, when four delegates will be selected.

The Largest Conversion in Plainfield's Church History.

Forty-five new members joined the Plainfield Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday, the largest number ever admitted to any church in this city at one time. This happy ingathering is due to the untiring zeal of the pastor, the Rev. Chas. B. Mitchell, during his earnest revival work last Winter.

A Plainfielder's Unfortunate Fate.

William Martin, the second son of J. Marc Martin, of Park avenue, fell from the platform of a car on on a branch of the West Shore Railroad at South Bethlehem, eight miles from Albany, Wednesday night, while the train was crossing a trestle, and was killed by the fall into the ravine below. The body will be brought to this city to-night.

A Good Judge Lost His Judgment.

When it is known that Judge Codington so lost his head and stooped so low as to reply to a base attack upon him published in the news, the people will wonder greatly that so sound a man should make so bad a break. But he probably wonders himself, now, as he looks back and contemplates the greatest mistake of his life.

—Tunis J. Carey is mastering the art of bicycle-riding.

Before the Ways and Means Committee.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee have determined to insist upon several days consideration of the Tariff bill in the committee and then allow the bill to be disposed of as soon as possible. The Ways and Means met to-day to consider the Senate bill. Protests from importers against the bill going into effect on October 1 are still coming in from various quarters.

In Case of Panic.

WASHINGTON Sept. 12.—It is said that if there is any danger of a panic through want of money to withdraw goods from bonded warehouses before the Tariff bill goes into effect, the period of withdrawals may be extended, but the date of the bill, October 1, will not be changed.

Appointed to West Point.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The following named cadets have been appointed to the United States Military Academy, West Point: L. C. Lyon, Williamsport, Pa.; Edgar T. Collins, alternate, Hepburn, Pa.

Terrible if True.

Between the hours of two and six o'clock on Thursday and Friday afternoons and all day Saturday, Rogers Bros. will sell all of their $2 50 shoes for $2; all $3 shoes for $2.50; all $3.50 shoes for $3. They have a few more men's lace shoes that they are closing out at 50 cents. Be sure and be there at two o'clock when the sale begins. They warrant every pair.

PASTEUR'S PLAINFIELD PATIENT.

Drs. Gibier and Long Are Satisfied That the Dog Who Bit Miss Quenzer Was Mad, and she is Being Inoculated Therefore.

There is no doubt in the minds of Dr. Paul Gibier of the Pasteur Institute, New York, and Dr. Monroe B. Long, of this city, that the dog who bit Miss Quenzer of East Front street, Wednesday, was mad. As told exclusively in THE PRESS of yesterday, the dog was sent to Dr. Gibier for examination, and Miss Quenzer went to the Institute for inoculation. Dr. Long who was present when Miss Quenzer was inoculated, gave a PRESS reporter the following information about her particular case and hydrophobia in general:

"The post-mortem on the dog showed it to have been a genuine case of rabies. The stomach contained at least two pounds of unnatural food only, such as sticks, stones, hay, straw and grass. The brain and spinal cord of a rabid animal do not show any signs proving the disease to have been hydrophobia. It is believed, however, to be a diseased germ effecting the nervous centres. The microbe or germ has not been discovered by the microscope.

"When the person bitten is treated at once, as in the case of Miss Quenzer, fifteen antirabic inoculations are given, one daily, beginning with a mild virus and increasing its strength, day by day, for the whole time. If several days have passed before there has been any treatment, twenty-five inoculations are given. The virus used is taken from the brain of rabid animals, and allowed to dry for different lengths of time according to the strength desired. The mildest, which is used first, has dried for 15 days, the second, slightly stronger, for fourteen days, and so on. The preparation of the virus is a very elaborate affair conducted in an extensive laboratory.

"More than ten thousand people have been inoculated during the five years in which the Pasteurian inoculations have been practiced. The application of the method has, undoubtedly, been successful in preserving a great number of persons from the frightful death which is the consequence of hydrophobia. The sixteen persons who had been inoculated at the New York Pasteur Institute in the two months following its opening, are enjoying good health, whilst several domestic animals, bitten by the same dogs that attacked several of these patients, have died of hydrophobia. A man bitten by one of these dogs and not treated at the Institute, has also died of hydrophobia."

But may not all this expense of probably $200, and the attending discomforts of the treatment, be entirely unnecessary on the part of Miss Quenzer or anyone else who has been bitten by a dog? The Medical Record says that everyone who has studied the subject, acknowledges that hydrophobia, if, indeed, it exists at all in the human subject, is at least a very rare disease. Compare this fact with the almost countless number of persons who are bitten from year to year by dogs supposed to be rabid. If statistics were collected on this point the results would prove that there is no more apparent relation of cause and effect between the bite of a dog and hydrophobia than between an accidental sneeze and a stroke of lightning. And yet what do we read in the daily papers in connection with the present hydrophobia scare? Judging from these accounts it would be fair to assume that the community was as much exposed to hydrophobia as to typhoid fever, pneumonia, or any other of the ordinarily common diseases. Scarcely a day passes that some new cases of dog-bitten patients do not present themselves in the terrible plight of fear of a horrible death. It does not make any difference, apparently, whether or not it is known that the dog was mad; the patient gets the benefit of the doubt, and the so-called preventive does its perfect work. And the cry is still they come.

Scientifically speaking, it is still to be proven that this inoculation of hydrophobic virus has ever prevented an attack of hydrophobia or modified its course. And where are the cases of hydrophobia said to be dying or dead throughout the country? What has become of those which have been abandoned to their fate as beyond the reach of the preventive treatment? Surely such are interesting enough to warrant detailed records in scientific journals. And yet we never hear of them except in sensational reports connected with the booming of the inoculation theory and the popularization of special hospitals in which the alleged wonderful treatment is practiced. We say this in no captious spirit of criticism, but in the true interests of hundreds who may become unnecessarily alarmed and may be in despair of timely assistance. All things being equal, they can from the present outlook afford to take the chances of treatment by the family physician. We can certainly hold him responsible for any marked increase in the mortality statistics from this dreadful disease in case he fails in the performance of his duty.

The man, woman or child who may be bitten by dog, cow, horse or hen may still live; at least, he or she has a much better chance for so doing than either of the offending animals, even without further inoculation.

As the warm weather continues the natural cravings of humanity call for something cooling to drink. Hires' Root Beer is sparkling, and a most delicious article. Every family should have it in their house. A 25 cent package will enable any one to make five gallons. Ask your druggist or storekeeper for it.

SPRIGG'S TALE.

He Says the Whole Affair was a Farce—Yet He Accuses Justice Hardy of Suggesting a Counsel for Him—And When He Told the Justice He Would Not Stand a Fine, the Justice Told Him He Could "Lay Down."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your paper of September 8, in the article headed, "Offered to Burn Down the House," you do myself and family a great injustice, and therefore I take the liberty to write you a few lines in order that the public may know the true situation. In the first place you state that there is and was been for a long time, enmity between myself and Louis Wyckoff. I think that is correct so far as Wyckoff is concerned, and he has fully demonstrated that fact by his actions toward me. As to the charge made against me on Saturday night last, the whole affair was a farce.

In the first place as I sat on my back porch smoking my pipe about 10 o'clock Saturday evening, the constable came and asked me to go with him to Justice Hardy's. I inquired what for and he informed me that Wyckoff had charged me with having threatened Wyckoff's life with a pistol in my hand, and threatened to shoot him. I of course was astonished, but went with the officer to Hardy's office thinking there must be some mistake as I had not had any pistol in my hand for a month or more, much less having threatened Wyckoff, or anyone else. When we arrived at the Justice's office, the Justice asked me if I was guilty. I said I was not. He then fixed my hearing for Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, at which time I appeared and asked to have the case adjourned until Monday morning so that I would have an opportunity to employ counsel. The justice asked me who my council was, I informed him, and he suggested another counsel. I insisted on my own choice. On the trial some of the witnesses swore that they heard the pistol shots on Somerset street, and Wyckoff swore that they were at and near his place. While I had been at home all the evening, except for an hour or so—when I was staying at a neighbor's who was mourning the loss of a child who had died a day or so before—I therefore knew nothing of the affair as charged. The justice fined me $10 and costs. I consider I was unfairly dealt with from first to last.

I was forced to trial on Sunday morning without an opportunity to employ counsel, and although I am a freeholder of the Borough, I was told by the Justice that unless the fine and costs were paid at once I would be imprisoned for 10 days. I paid the fine and told the Justice I would not stand it. He told me I could lay down to it. I think I shall take his advice, as I believe right will come on top in the end. I have lived in the Borough about fifteen years, have treated my neighbors in a neighborly way, pay my debts, served in the U. S. army in the Rebellion, am a member of the G. A. R. post and feel that I am as a good citizen entitled to protection, both in court and in print, and therefore state the above facts.

LOUIS SPRIGG.

The Great Metropolis Talking of Next Thursday's Game.

(From the New York Sun.)

A game that is creating the most intense interest in semi-professional base ball circles is that to be played at Plainfield, N. J., on Thursday, Sept. 18. The game is to decide the inter-State amateur championship of New Jersey and Connecticut. The contending teams will be the Norwich of Norwich, Conn., who have won their series from the Mystics and Hartfords, and the Crescent League team of Plainfield, who on Wednesday closed the unprecedented record of defeating once or more every team they have played against except the Norwich. The following are teams the Crescents have defeated this season: Metropolitans, Acmes, Cuban Giants, Gorhams, Hackett, Carhart & Co., Columbia College, Stars of Newark, Unions of New Brunswick, Silentias, Rutgers College, Flushings, Allertons, Monroes, Lees, Vernons, Ridgewoods, Greenpoints, Alerts of Elizabeth, and Westfields; the Crescents having lost but five games this season.

A Speedy Mustang Causes Trouble for His Master.

Jeremiah Rowe appeared before Justice Hardy, of North Plainfield, yesterday, to answer to the charge of fast and reckless driving. Rowe pleaded not guilty, and said that the mustang he was driving had selected a pace which he as driver could not control. He had no intention of violating the law, and had not been conscious of doing it.

The Court decided that the mustang had been going faster than the law allows, and that Rowe had made no effort to reduce the gait. Sentence was suspended, however, and Rowe was put on his good behavior, with the warning that another offense would be severely punished.

Rowe was fined only a short time ago, for fast driving, and the case is now pending on appeal.

Yes, he loves you now, 'tis true,
Lass with eyes of violet blue,
Lips as sweet as honey-dew,
Bonny little bride!
Will he love you as today,
When your bloom has fled away,
When your golden locks are grey—
Will his love abide?

Yes, if it is the true kind it will survive all the inevitable wastes and changes of life. But, it is every woman's desire and duty to retain, as long as she can, the attractions that made her charming and beloved in youth. No one can keep her youthful bloom or equable temper if weighed down and suffering. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a remedy for these troubles. Sold by druggists.

CRISP NEWSPAPER CURRENCY.

A CARPET used in a room of the Philadelphia mint, after being in wear some years, was burned the other day in pans, and yielded $2,500 worth of gold.

THERE are fifty different kinds of ice-cream in the market, thirty-five styles in dog-collars, nineteen novelty wedding rings, six baby bibs and five shades of canary-colored hair dye.

A DEXTER (Me.) man scratched a match on a convenient pane of glass, and, to his surprise, it lighted as readily as though the glass had been sand paper. To those who have been accustomed to seeing people search for a rough surface on which to scratch a match it would be rather startling.

ONE of the letter carriers in Franklin, Pa., says the idea of having their mails delivered is such a novelty to some of the people along his route, that although they probably do not get a letter in a month in actual correspondence they answer newspaper advertisements and devise various other plans for the purpose of receiving something at every delivery.

BY far the most expensive coffee brought to this market comes from Blue Mountain, Jamaica. The whole product of the region is small, and only a few thousand bags reach New York. It is usually bought by Delmonico at a very high figure. At the same time the Delmonico coffee does not contribute to the restaurant's reputation. Quite as good coffee is served at half a dozen less famous places.

A BELFAST (Me.) lawyer does considerable marrying, and was heard to say to a young couple whom he had just married: "Married life in the best regulated families has its troubles, and should either of you come to the conclusion that you have made a mistake don't forget to call on me and I will get you a divorce cheaper than any other lawyer in town. That balance of seventy-five cents you owe me for marrying you you can hand in at any time."

AN Ohio clergyman surprised his congregation on a recent Sunday by making the following announcement: "Nearly every member of this church is either wealthy or well-to-do, although no one would think so from an inspection of the collection plates, which are burdened principally with nickles. I would remind you, brethren, that the collection plate is not a nickel-in-the-slot machine, and that a few bills would come in very handy in the work of the church."

A DIAMOND dealer in Maiden lane, New York, was in the habit of going to Europe so often that he aroused the suspicions of the custom-house detectives; but repeated searches of his person and trunks failed to reveal smuggled goods. Then it was noted as a remarkable fact that his partner always engaged, for a trip to Europe, the same state-room which the other had occupied coming here. Investigation disclosed the fact that one partner concealed smuggled diamonds under the state-room carpet, in a hole he made in the floor; the other partner, having engaged the same room, would visit it two or three times just before the sailing of the vessel eastward, and carry off the hidden gems.

AN ingenious New Yorker with a wife who insisted upon wicker rockers with dainty head rests, and small tables with blue china, and who frequently had to get up nights for the paregoric, went out one morning after a night's groping for the match box and brought home a pot of phosphorescent paint, which he daubed on all corners, points and edges of those darling little rockers and sweet tables, decorating the match box, the bed-posts, the gas bracket and door knobs, determined upon avoiding the shoals and wreckages of the midnight cruise. And now at night the room looks like the ghost scenes from "The Flying Dutchman." The phosphorescence gathers light all day and lets it loose all night.

REMINDERS OF YEARS GONE BY.

IN 1820 a pair of rubber shoes were seen for the first time in the United States. They were about an eighth of an inch in thickness, and in shape like the heavy shoe of a Chinaman.

AMONG some paper rags in the Plainwell (Mich.) paper mill, there has been found an order allowing one Stephen Stillwell to carry cloth and trimmings for a suit of clothes, from New York to Brooklyn. The order is signed by the "Superintendent," and dated "New York, October 7, 1783"—about thirty days before the British evacuated New York.

FROM Cairo by way of Germany is reported the discovery of a Coptic manuscript which contains much new light upon the Council of Ephesus in 431. It consists of a series of letters written from Ephesus by Cyril Patriarch, of Alexandria, to his agent at the Court of Theodosius II., and a report by this agent, Victor the Younger, on the result of his negotiations.

ACCORDING to some one who has been looking over the records of the Academy of Sciences at Paris the use of India rubber for erasing pencil marks was first suggested in or just prior to 1752 by an academician named Magellan, a descendant of the great navigator. It was added in the report that this substance was more satisfactory than bread crumbs, which had been the usual means up to that time.

B. DEAN, of Jonesboro, Ga., has a block from a garden gate post that was hewn out and placed in the ground in 1804. He made a visit to his sister in Baldwin County, and it was at her home that he secured the block from the aged yet serviceable post. The post was hewn out of a light wood tree, and is perfectly sound to-day. Mr. Dean says it is good for another eighty-six years and perhaps much longer.

THE Earliest Banks. Established.—The Bank of France, 1803; the Bank of Genoa, 1345; the Bank of Ireland, 1783; the Bank of Scotland, 1695; the Bank of Venice, 1157; the Bank of Barcelona, 1307; the Bank of Bengal, 1800; the Bank of England, 1694; the Bank of Hamburg, 1619; the Bank of Amsterdam, 1609; the Bank of North America, 1781; the Bank of Vienna, 1703; the Bank of Berlin, 1765. Banking was carried on by the ancients in several countries centuries before the Christian Era.

NATURAL HISTORY NOTES.

THE tongue of the giraffe is nearly a foot and a half long.

A JAGUAR will rather attack a black man than a white one.

THE reason given why birds do not fall from their perch is because they can not open the foot when the leg is bent. Look at a hen walking and see it close its toes as it lifts its foot and open them as it touches the ground.

FOR those interested and who want to know how a turtle digs her nest a gentleman who witnessed the performance says that after finding a suitable location the old "hen" digs the hole, something like a jug, using the hind flippers, first one and then the other, moving her body about so as to be able to get at the nest. If the sand is not too hard she will make a nest in from twenty-five to thirty minutes.

ONE of the most brilliantly colored snakes that exist has just been added to the reptile house at the Zoological Gardens, Philadelphia. It has a black color, with regularly arranged rings of yellow and red, the texture and colors together producing an effect much like that of a strip of freshly cleansed oil cloth. This snake is one of the most venomous, and its bright hues may be regarded as a warning of its dangerous qualities.

A FEMALE dromedary was born recently in Captain Cassell's stable, Baltimore. The proud mother is Druid. The little lady stands about three feet high, and has a slender body but very long legs. This is the fourth dromedary born at the park. The first, Horace, died in infancy. His hide, hump and all Captain Cassell had mounted. It is now in the Captain's parlor. The second, Kate, was sold to the circus, with the grandmother of the baby just arrived. The third, another Horace, still lives. He, with Druid and the baby, compose the drove now at the park.

MR. ALFRED BENNETT, who has studied the habits of the emu, states that the hen begins laying about the end of October or beginning of November, and in about six weeks completes the brood of twenty or more eggs. In the meantime the cock begins to sit, and the eggs subsequently laid are deposited at his side by the hen; he then stretches forth his foot and draws them under him. He not only hatches the eggs and does all the subsequent nursing, but has to thrash his wife continually, as she attacks him furiously, and would apparently kill the chicks if she could get at them.

A GEORGIA editor's little son caught two young mocking birds several hundred yards from the house and carried them home and put them in a cage, which was left out of doors. Next day the two young birds were adopted by two old mocking birds, and they have been feeding the young ones ever since. The same day the old birds began feeding them a blue jay flew up to the cage with a blackberry in his mouth and wanted to help feed the young ones, which so enraged the old birds that they attacked the blue jay with great fury and drove him away. While fighting the bluejay the mocking birds plainly showed their anger by making a shrill, discordant noise that had no resemblance to the beautiful songs they sing

ASTRONOMICAL ATOMS.

THE cause of sun spots is held to be the result of increased electric activity on the sun.

ACCORDING to Popular Science News it is possible at the equator for a solar eclipse to remain total for seven minutes and fifty-eight seconds. A person, however, moving eastward on a rapidly moving train during totality could prolong it to eight minutes.

PROF. BOYS, in a communication to the Royal Society, England, on measurements of the heat of the moon and stars by means of his radiomicrometer, gives an account of a test with a candle at 250.7 yards distance, which gave a deflection of 38 mm. In other words, this instrument would show the heat of a candle at 1.71 miles distance.

PROF. PICKERING, basing his conclusions on a series of photographs of the planet Mars in April, concludes that the southern temperate regions of Mars have just experienced an irruption of polar ice no less remarkable than that which still adds the zest of danger to the navigation of our own North Atlantic.

TWO FULL moons in July seem to have astonished some people. Why? The "phenomenon," as it is called, happens about once in three years, in fact, as often as the first full moon falls on the first or second or early on the third day of a thirty-one-day month. This occurred, for instance, in December, 1876, August, 1879, July, 1882, December, 1884, and October, 1887.

THE star which gives the greatest parallax of any, and which in consequence is believed to be nearest the earth, is Alpha Centauri, a star never visible in this latitude. But even this star's parallax is only 93-100ths of a second, which corresponds to a distance of 221,000 times the sun's distance from our earth, or over 20,000,000,000,000 of miles.

MISS CATHERINE W. BRUCE, of New York, offers $6,000 to aid in astronomical research during the present year. The sum will be divided and precedence will be given to institutions and individuals whose work is already known through their publications; also to those cases which can not otherwise be provided for, or where additional sums can be secured if a part of the cost is furnished.

THE diameter of the dome containing the great Lick telescope in California is seventy-five feet. It is made of steel plates, and weighs 130 tons; yet by the turning of a little wheel, the dome is noiselessly moved so that its window opens to any part of the sky that is desired. The telescope is fifty-six and a half feet long, and weighs twenty-four tons, and is so poised that it can be moved to point in any direction by the turning of a wheel or by placing one hand on the lower end of the telescopes The entire floor of the observatory can be lowered or lifted by hydraulic power a distance of seventeen feet.

TITLED BEAUTIES.

Well-Known English Women Who Are Popular.

Lady Carew, Lady Curzon, Lady Charles Beresford, Lady Granby, Lady Raincliffe and Others.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

What's in a name? Though a name may have an empty sound, if it is attached to a pretty woman it has a significance that carries a great deal with it. Yet there are plenty of women who have not much claim to beauty whose reputation is almost world-wide, and whose pictures can be seen on all sides.

Take a picture of one of these in the academy and watch the crowd collected around it and you will discover that there is a good deal in a name, after all. How much more prominent, therefore, will a woman be who has a name and a claim to good looks as well, and yet does not owe her name to her looks alone.

One of the foremost of those seen is the Row, in the royal inclosure at Ascot, at the garden parties at Marlborough House, in the smartest drawing-rooms, in fact everywhere that the chic set do congregate, is Lady Carew. She is very tall and has handsome and rather prominent features, and is generally accompanied by her sister, Miss Lethbridge.

Both sisters dress much alike, vary only perhaps in a little color, and both wear rather bright clothes, which are the more distinguishable from the wearer's station, which is quite equal to that of Lady de Grey, better known as Lady Lonsdale.

Lady Carew is the wife of Baron Carew, and is deservedly a great favorite with her uncle's tenants.

Another woman who has a name as well as looks is Lady Charles Beresford. She, however, gets a good deal of her notoriety from the reflected glory of her husband, who is one of the most popular men and one of the most advertised in England. "Well done, Conder," achieved him as everlasting fame as if he had won the battle of the Nile, and Lady Charles comes in for a goodly share of public notice and attention.

LADY CHARLES BERESFORD.

LADY CURZON.

Four champing black horses, harnessed to a coach with a red body and red running gear, have attracted a good deal of attention, not only because of their looks—they belong to Baron de Hirsh, the millionaire, and cost $20,000—but because they are driven by a lady.

She who handles the team in such scientific style is Lady Curzon, wife of Lord Curzon, the eldest son of one of the richest men in England. Lady Curzon was, before her marriage, Lady Georgiana Churchill, the youngest daughter but one of the last Duke of Marlborough and, therefore, the sister of the present.

When the present Duke of Portland came into his estates and power he, like was said ... tious to marry pretty Miss Violet Lindsey, but the match never came off. If Miss Lindsey, however, was not to wear the Welbeck strawberry leaves she was destined to wear some day those of Rutland, and not seven years ago she married the Marquis of Granby, the eldest son of the Duke of Rutland, so her loss has not been a great one.

Lady Granby is rather peculiar in appearance, but has a very interesting and taking face. She rather resembles Miss Terry in some ways, and is very fragile and delicate-looking. She can, however, stand any amount of fatigue, and is seen at all the smart balls and parties in the season, and has graced the box seat of several coaches at the different meets this year.

MISS EDITH LANE FOX.

Curiously enough, one of the best-looking and most admired girls in London this season was a cousin of Lady Yarborough, Miss Edith Lane Fox. She has hair Venetian red in hue, and a tall, slim figure with deep, dark, liquid eyes that thrill the gazer. She has the reputation of having worn out three chaperons in one season and looked none the worse for it.

She is seen at all the best houses and entertainments in London, her looks being such as to make her always the center of an admiring coterie, while her sharp tongue has made her plenty of enemies, who say, it is alleged, that she is inclined to be rather fast. However, be that as it may, she is one of the best-known and most admired women in London.

LADY CYNTHIA DUNCOMBE.

Another lady who is admirably suited to belong to the ranks of well-known young women in London is Lady Cynthia Duncombe, the second daughter of the Earl of Faversham and sister of the beautiful Duchess of Leinster, whose reputation for good looks extends over the whole of Europe and America. She is much taller than the Duchess and has all her fascinating manners and ways.

She will shortly be married to Sir Edgar Vincent, who at one time was engaged to Lady Lonsdale.

Lady Raincliffe is another Englishwoman whom every one knows. She has the advantage of exceptional height, and that alone attracts attention. She is fair, and has a haughty, rather overbearing look which stamps her as a "somebody" wherever she may be.

LADY RAINCLIFFE.

She is the daughter of the Earl of Westmoreland, and is therefore connected with every noble house in England. Her fair complexion and fair hair come to her from her mother, who is extremely blonde.

MISS VIOLET LANE FOX.

Another beauty who is celebrated and is about to join the ranks of married women is Miss Violet Lane Fox, a tall, pretty girl with a lovely figure. Miss Lane Fox has for years been the object of persecution by a man whose addresses she refused, and who has persisted in annoying her by kneeling before her in Hyde Park, ball-room or in any public place he met her. Several times he has been chastised for his insults. He has at last been put in durance vile, and by the time he comes out will find Miss Lane Fox is married and has a stalwart protector.

Her sister, Lady Yarborough, is also a beauty, and is tall and slender, rather in the Lady Dudley style. She is not strong, but is to be seen at all the large entertainments in London beautifully dressed and looking the Countess to perfection.

Lord Zetland's position as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland calls a great deal of attention to him, and his daughter, Lady Hilda Dundas, naturally comes in for a great deal of notice and attention. She is pretty, tall, with a very graceful figure and deep black eyes, dresses very quietly and in excellent taste, and is a capital rider, though she does not aspire to the ribbons, as does Lady Curzon.

LADY HILDA DUNDAS.

She has a bright future before her, and will for many years be one of the belles of London, whether she marries or remains single. Of course this list may be prolonged indefinitely, but those given above are some of the best-known and best admired of the younger set.

CANOE CRUISING.

Some Interesting Hints from an Experienced Canoeist.

Utensils Needed—The Division of Camp Work—What to Put in an Outfit—The Chances of Upsetting—The Cost of a Cruise.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

Canoeing is becoming more and more popular every year. The meets of the various clubs not only attract scores of visitors but, through the medium of the press, they arouse interest in the subject all over the country. Wherever there is a river or a lake there the American youth is bound, sooner or later, to try a little canoeing as an experiment, and the chances are that he becomes a confirmed canoeist. It is for the benefit of this young man particularly that we publish the following useful article by Mr. C. B. Vaux, the well-known authority on canoeing.

A CANOE TENT AND DUFFLE.

The man who truly enjoys canoeing as a recreation will journey alone rather than stay prosaically at home. The pleasure of a trip is more than doubled if a friend accompanies one—in another canoe. The perfect cruising party is three in three canoes. The fact that each man navigates his own boat, carries all his own belongings and enjoys perfect freedom insures good feeling during the trip even under trying circumstances. There are many ties to bind the men together—the frying-pan being not the least among them. One set of cooking utensils is enough for all equally divided among the three; and as a meal can not be cooked unless all are present at roll call, a mutual agreement is sure to result when a camp-site is under discussion. The majority rules, and with three in the party the odd man must obey the dictates of the others.

The camp work naturally divides itself into cooking, the procuring of supplies, firewood and water, and dish-washing. Each man in turn assumes these duties, or agrees to do one of them all the time, if he has a natural aptitude that way. When his work is over each man can attend to his personal wants, bed-making, putting up his tent and the like.

It is foolish to start on a canoe cruise alone without having had a previous canoe and camp experience, as the discomforts will become simply unbearable. The wise novice accompanies two experienced cruisers on his first trip and learns the ropes gradually and without suffering abject torture half the time. A little experience is absolutely necessary before a cruise is undertaken, as even the simple work of paddling is very tiring to untrained muscles. The man who can not swim should remain at home until he learns, or seek his recreation on dry land.

UNDER SAIL.

The first necessity of a canoeist's outfit is naturally a canoe. Canoes are not "to let," and one must be bought or borrowed—the latter being a difficult thing to do and generally unsatisfactory when accomplished. Leaving out of the count racing canoes and big sailing boats built for open water cruising, there are two general classes to choose from—the open Canadian and decked cruiser. A light open boat is best for shallow water, rapids, camping in the woods, and on cruises where the canoe has to be carried over land around falls or through the woods from lake to lake. Either the single or double blade paddle may be used. These boats cost in Canada from $20 to $80 and one-third the cost must be added to the price here for duty. Small open canoes are made by builders on this side of the border weighing from 10 to 30 pounds that can not be improved upon for some kinds of cruising. A good decked canoe weighing from 60 to 100 pounds and costing about $100 now is the best boat for river, lake and rapids, when it is not necessary often to lift it a long way out of the water to pass an obstruction. Excellent second-hand canoes of this variety can be obtained for much less money from members of canoe clubs who every now and then get a bad attack of the racing fever and part with good cruisers for nominal prices.

The personal outfit for a canoe cruise is a simple one and consists of one coat (rarely worn except on shore), two pairs of trousers, two flannel shirts, two suits of underclothes, four pairs of socks, two pairs of shoes—rubber-soled canvas or leather—one hat, a suit of oil skins for rainy weather and a few handkerchiefs. A complete change of clothing is kept in a rubber bag tied up water-tight and stowed away in the canoe hold ready for use in case of a wetting from rain or an unlucky capsize. A double-bladed paddle nine feet long, jointed in the middle, is the instrument of locomotion. The canoeist must travel "light," and therefore every article he carries should serve more than one purpose. The paddle is the weapon of offense and defense, and may be used to pole the canoe up a rapid. A four-foot-six cork cushion serves as a bed on the floor of the canoe at night, a cushion to sit on by day and a life preserver in case of necessity at any time. The most comfortable night dress is a suit of flannel pajamas, and they can also be worn on hot days when away from settlements.

A well handled canoe properly loaded is not likely to upset. It may get more or less water aboard, however, from spray and rain, and therefore all perishable goods must be kept dry. All the duds should be so fastened in the canoe that in case a capsize does occur—and it is sure to come at the most inconvenient time—nothing can be lost, and then it is a matter of little consequence. The paddle must be held on to whatever occurs. If it is lost, the trip must come to an untimely end. Each man must be supplied with a plate, knife, fork, spoon and cup, which he washes and carries in his canoe. The party need a frying pan, broiler, pot for boiling vegetables in, small pail for coffee water, French coffee pot, stew pan and double-decker (one vessel within the other) for oatmeal, prunes, apple sauce, a milk pail, pail (or sausage skins) for butter, pepper and salt boxes, a water-tight fruit jar with screw top, to carry plenty of matches, a small axe and fire irons, if an open fire is to be used. These things and the provisions are evenly divided up among all three, so that each carries his share of the common load.

Sugar, coffee, tea, oatmeal, dried apples, prunes, flour and similar articles are put in muslin bags having puckering strings at top. All of these small bags are placed in a large waterproof one when not in use. Rubber bags, large enough for clothing, blankets or provisions can be got at the rubber goods stores. During rainy weather it is always well to carry a little dry kindling wood in the canoes to avoid delay in starting a camp fire. An open fire for cooking should be a small one. The fire irons are placed over it and cooking vessels rest on them. Meat should be broiled when the fire has burned down to a bed of live coals. It is an art to so arrange the cooking that the "long" and "short" stock of a meal is all ready and hot at one time. Dish water is put on to heat while the meal is being eaten. Two hot meals a day are enough on a cruise—breakfast and dinner; lunch can be taken cold, and thus save labor and time.

A small tent over the cockpit of the canoe (securely and firmly placed on shore) affords shelter for the night, and keeps reptiles and insects at a respectful distance. This tent is made of waterproof canvas or oiled muslin. It is supported at the ends by sticks (or the halves of the paddle) stepped in the mast tubes.

The cost of cruising is about fifty cents a day. Twenty-five dollars will pay for an outfit, railway fares, provisions and a few luxuries for a two weeks' trip, not including the original cost of the canoe.

The constant surprises, the difficulties to be conquered, and the pleasures of exploration are but a few of the attractions that canoe cruising has for those who have a bit of the spirit of adventure in them. It costs little, benefits health, adds strength and vigor to the whole body, occupies the mind constantly, and is capable of furnishing rare sport to those who have the grit to thoroughly master the details.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Ancient Egyptian Glue and Veneering.

Among the many occupations of the carpenter, that of veneering is noticed in the sculptures of Thebes, as early as the time of the third Thothmes, whom I suppose to be the Pharaoh of the Exodus, and the application of a piece of rare wood of a red color to a yellow plank of sycamore, or other ordinary kind, is clearly pointed out. And in order to show that the yellow wood is of inferior quality, the workman is represented to have fixed his adz carelessly in a block of the same color while engaged in applying them together. Near him are some of his tools, with a box or small chest, made of inlaid and veneered wood, of various hues, and in the same part of the shop are two other men, one of whom is employed in grinding something with a stone on a slab, and the other in spreading glue with a brush. It might, perhaps, be conjectured that varnish was intended to be here represented, but the appearance of the pot on the fire, the piece of glue with its concave fracture, and the workman before mentioned applying the two pieces of wood together, satisfactorily decide the question, and attest the invention of glue 3,300 years ago.—J. G. Wilkinson.

Lead in Lace.

Ph. De Clarmont gives an account, in La Moniteur de la Teinture, of a white satin dress totally ruined by its trimming with English lace. The dress had been worn but once, had then been packed into a trunk which was deposited in a damp place and exposed to emanations of hydrosulphuric acid from gas. When taken out, it was found that the pattern of the lace, particularly of its tulle ground, had been printed in indelible black upon the white satin. The accident was not difficult to explain. English lace is habitually charged with sulphate of lead, which in this case had absorbed hydrogen and hydrosulphuric acid from the atmosphere, forming sulphide of lead, which had been imprinted and fixed upon the white satin, which naturally had also absorbed hydrogen and hydrosulphuric acid. The seller of the lace showed that charging English lace with white lead (sulphate of lead) was commercial usage and thereby escaped paying the damage. An objectionable usage it is at any rate, as the absorption of lead through the skin from such lace may become dangerous to health.

The Inhabitants of Cheese.

Mr. Adametz has just made some microscopic researches upon the microscopic organisms that inhabit cheese. From an examination of Emmenthal, a soft variety of Gruyere cheese, he has obtained the following results: In each gramme of the cheese, when fresh, from 90,000 to 140,000 microbes are found. This number increases with time. Thus, a cheese seventy-one days old contains 800,000 bacteria per gramme. The population of a soft cheese twenty-five days old and much denser than the preceding is 1,200,000, and that of a cheese forty-five days old is 2,000,000 microbes per gramme. But the population of a cheese is not everywhere distributed the same in it. The center is but moderately inhabited with respect to the exterior portion. The population of a soft cheese, near the periphery, is from 3,600,000 to 5,600,000 microbes. According to the mean of these two figures, there are as many living organisms in 360 grammes of such a cheese as there are people upon the earth.—La Nature.

The Birch.

London Garden speaks as follows regarding a valuable hard wood: "The birch is capable of supporting a much greater degree of cold than any other tree. In the old world its northern limit is 71 degrees upon the west and 63 degrees upon the east coast; in America its northern limit is 64 degrees upon the west and 58 degrees upon the east. In Germany the highest elevation at which it is found is 5,200 feet above the level of the sea; in Sweden at 3,900 feet and in Lapland at 1,722 feet. It is worthy of remark that this tree decreases in size not only as it advances toward the North, but also as it proceeds southward beyond the limits of its native region. It attains its highest perfection and greatest height in Germany and Southern Sweden. The birch is not particular in its choice of soil or situation, and will grow almost equally well in sandy, rocky, dry or damp soil."

A New Gas Detector.

Spongy platinum, as is well known, glows in a mixture of combustible gas and air, but hitherto no convenient arrangement has been devised for utilizing this reaction. H. N. Warren proposes to saturate asbestos yarn with a saturated solution of platinum oxalate and then ignite it in a platinum crucible. This prepared yarn when heated to 80 degrees Fahrenheit becomes incandescent in an atmosphere containing five tenths per cent. of coal gas by volume, and by arranging it by the side of the wick of an ordinary spirit lamp it is easy, by lighting for a short time, to raise the temperature of the yarn to the requisite temperature, so that when the lamp is blown out it will become incandescent if there is any escape of coal gas in the neighborhood.

The Cost of Firing a 110-Ton Gun.

According to a calculation made by the Economiste Belge, the cost of firing a 110-ton gun is, in round numbers, $832, divided as follows:

|---|---|
| 900 pounds of powder | $380 |
| 1,800 pounds projectile | 435 |
| Silk for cartridge | 17 |
| | $832 |

But this is not all. The 110-ton gun, it appears, can be fired but 95 times, and after that becomes incapable of being used, and requires repairs. Now, the cost of the piece being $82,400, it is necessary to estimate the cost of wear at about $868 for each shot, thus raising the cost of each charge to $1,700.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Treasury to Relieve the Money Market.

ONE OF THE MINOR MEASURES.

Payment in Advance of a Year's Interest on $65,000,000 of Bonds.

Secretary Windom Says He Will Meet the Difficulty as it Exists—Thanks for Ex-Assistant Postmaster-General Clarkson—Progress of the Tariff Bill—Glass Manufacturers to be Heard.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—General Nettleton, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in respose to inquiries on the subject by a reporter, made the following statement:

"The Treasury Department in addition to its regular disbursements, which are unusually heavy, paid out $2,348,084 on account of bond purchases and advance interest as follows: Interest prepaid $1,063,034; redemption of 4½ bonds $585,050; purchase of four per cents $750,000.

"The four per cent purchased to-day were accepted at 125. This is the first considerable purchase of four per cents for some time, and the price paid is one per cent. above that heretofore paid under the circular of July 1890. It is thought that there may be an impression among holders of four per cent. bonds that the Government has withdrawn from the market for four per cents. This is not the fact, as the Treasury is ready to take a considerable amount of fours if they are to be had.

"The inquiry instituted yesterday by the Secretary of the Treasury develops the fact that the total balance of duties due on all imported merchandise in bond at the port of New York on September 1 was only $17,500,000. Only a moderate portion of these goods will be subject to increased duty under the schedule in the new Tariff bill. These facts would seem to indicate that anxiety based on this feature of the situation has been largely without foundation.

"As for further measures of relief, in so far as the existing stringency can reasonably be said to be due to the inevitable operations of existing laws governing the collection and disbursement of the government revenues, the Treasury Department will not hesitate to apply such effective remedies as the law permits and the situation requires.

"The Secretary of the Treasury on his return to Washington from New England will be in New York this afternoon, and will adopt such a course as shall seem to him timely and calculated to meet the difficulty as it exists."

It is said that one of the minor measures of relief for the market that may be adopted by the Treasury will be the payment in advance of a year's interest on the $65,000,000 of government bonds known as currency sixes.

An Old Veteran Drowned.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The body of Michael Bryson, an old Mexican war veteran, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, was found in the little lake near the Home in the morning. It is supposed that, coming home late last night, Bryson fell into the lake and drowned. Several drowning accidents similar to this one have occurred in this lake within a few years of old soldiers who have made too many stops while on their way home at the various liquor saloons and low resorts that are to found along the roads leading out to the Soldiers' Home.

Mr. Clarkson Thanked.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Ex-Postmaster-General Clarkson was honored at Republican League headquarters by a call from the Republican clubs of Maryland to thank him for his opposition to the present civil service law. Hon. A. Worth Spates, of Baltimore, spoke on behalf of the clubs, and General Clarkson responded, reiterating his opposition to the civil service law.

Taking Time by the Forelock.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—A committee of glass manufacturers, representing the window and flint branches of the trade, have arrived here from Pittsburg to appear before the conference committee on the Tariff bill Wednesday.

Progress of the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The Tariff bill was received in the House from the Senate, and by direction of the Speaker was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

They Mourn Her Departure.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 13.—Mrs. Anna M. Adams, for many years proprietress of the Hotel Ridgway in this city, has left town, leaving various business men here to mourn her departure to the extent of between $8,000 and $12,000. She has been in the habit of giving to her dealers notes and worthless checks, and in attempting to present them at bank they found that no money was deposited to meet them.

Eloped With the Boarder.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 13.—Mrs. John Myer of Cliffwood ran away last night with Hermann Graschel, a German who boarded at her house. Husband Meyer is now in New York trying to find his wife and her lover. Mrs. Meyer packed up all the furniture and took it with her.

Sudden Death.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—William Brockie, president of the Maritime Exchange and well known in shipping and mercantile circles in this city, dropped dead on Chestnut street during the morning of heart disease.

ANGRY STRIKERS.

Central Men at Albany Advised to Get Back on the Road.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The strike on the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad seems to be over as far as Albany is concerned. The closing scene was enacted last night at the Lark street rink, when the men were advised to get back to their places.

Edward Bowan called the meeting to order and was termed a liar by two or three of the audience for saying that the strike was still on. John J. Hart was called upon when the disorder had somewhat subsided, but his address called for the wildest excitement and it seemed that a riot was imminent.

Mr. Hart said there would be money here by Monday and he was called a liar. One man asserted that the leaders were living high and paying the expense of wreckers' counsel instead of giving bread to hungry men and their families. Master Workman Dulin got the floor and said:

"You are a lot of d——d white-livered curs, and you will sneak back to work because a number of dirty paid newspapers say the strike is over."

During this speech it looked as though the meeting would break up in a row. Men were cursing each other and the leaders of the Order in a frightful manner. When Master Workman Dulin's voice could be heard above the tumult he was heard to advise the men in a few words, choked with sarcasm and rage, to get back to their places.

All the speakers spoke harshly of the newspapers. The meeting broke up in confusion.

A FATAL SHAFT.

Flame Exposure Causes a Second Dreadful Explosion.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 13.—The ill-fated South Wilkesbarre shaft of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company, within whose wreck-choked galleries still lie entombed the bodies of the eight men killed in the disaster of last February, was the scene of another disaster.

For the last three months men have been at work clearing up the workings of the mine. Near the foot of the shaft a gang of six men were laboring, the air there being especially bad.

George Ford and Isaac Jones were working close to the base of the shaft, when Ford remarked to Jones that there was much gas about, as his safety lamp showed a full flame. A short time after this his lamp grew extremely hot on account of the large flame and the bottom unexpectedly melted and dropped out. Instantly there was a violent explosion, and a volume of flame, smoke and dust rushed up the shaft.

All escaped without serious injury except Ford, who was instantly killed, and Isaac Jones, who was very badly burned.

For three hours the men remained at the foot of the shaft before a carriage could be lowered to them, the shaft being partially blocked with broken timbers.

Strike Detectives Exonerated.

DUBOIS, Pa., Sept. 13.—In the Brookville court the cases against Andrew Nichols and Frank McGovern, of the Coal and Iron police, serving at Punxsutawney while the Walston and Adrian miners were on strike last winter and spring, charged with killing a Hungarian and an Italian, have been dismissed without the formality of a trial. The court decided that the officers were acting in self-defence and in the the performance of their duties. These are the last of a series of long cases in the Jefferson county court growing out of that strike.

The Susquehanna Booming.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 13.—The floods that have prevailed along the Chemung River during the past few days have swollen the Susquehanna at this point to an unusually high point. The water is 16 feet above the recognized summer line and is still rising. Should it rise two feet more all communication with points on the west side of the river, along the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad will be cut off.

Counterfeit Silver Certificates.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Within the last two days three counterfeit $3 silver certificates have turned up in this city, indicating a probable attempt to flood the city with the spurious notes. The first to discover the counterfeits was the Mechanics' Bank, and later it was offered for deposit at the Tradesmen's Bank. The counterfeit is easy of detection, the engraving and paper being of poor quality.

A New Railroad.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Sept. 13.—The Providence & Springfield Railroad yesterday filed with the Supreme Court the location for a branch from Primrose Station to Woonsocket. The stock of the road recently passed into the hands of the New York & New England, and with this connecting branch the New England will have a second line between Boston and Providence.

Niagara's Tunnel to be Built.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—A telegram has just been received here from W. B. Rankin, secretary of the Cataract Construction Company, stating that the contract for building the tunnel has been signed. There is great rejoicing on the street over the news, which has been anxiously awaited for nearly four years. All the papers issued extra editions.

Goldsmith's Last Year at Trotting.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 13.—Jimmie Goldsmith, one of the most noted trainers and drivers of the trotting turf, has decided to make this his last season behind a string of trotters. Goldsmith, in a letter, says he is going to join Knapsack McCarthy in the running horse business. It is believed that Goldsmith will take hold of August Belmont's string next year.

Comiskey to Leave Chicago and Go to Philadelphia.

KING KELLY MEETS DEFEAT.

Ward's Wonders Capture a Game from the Boston Nine.

Clarkson's Curves Pounded by the Philadelphias—Anson's Team Working for Second Place—Cincinnati Twice Victorious—The New York-Brooklyn Game Postponed—Records of Four Leagues.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—The Public Ledger publishes an article in which it says that Captain Comiskey has been secured to pilot the Players' League Club of this city next season.

Comiskey is dissatisfied in Chicago because he did not have full power to engage and release players, and told the people at the head of that club that he would not remain with them another season. When given the choice to name the club he wanted to handle in the future he at once selected the Philadelphias.

The Players' League directors passed upon the matter at their last meeting and agreed to allow Comiskey to come to Philadelphia. Comiskey and President Wagner agreed upon terms two weeks ago when the Chicagos were in this city.

Indicted After a Long Wait.

ALBANY, Sept. 13.—John Connors, charged with the murder of John Walker on July 23, 1887, at Waterford, N. Y., has been indicted by the Grand Jury for murder in the first degree.

Big Price for a Horse.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The three-year-old filly Ruperta, by Prince Charlie-Marguerite, has been sold to F. A. Walcott for $16,000.

WITH THE PRESIDENT.

The Money Market Closely Watched by the Chief Magistrate.

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 13.—The President is watching closely the tone of the money market. He communicated with the Treasury Department and learned that the market was somewhat easier. With a view to meeting any further emergencies, he spent nearly two hours conferring by telegraph with the Treasury Department. The principal results of the telegraphic conference was the issuance of orders by the President to anticipate the interest on outstanding currency six per cent. bonds to an amount not exceeding $5,000,000, to offer to pay 125 for outstanding four per cent. bonds, instead of 124, the rate heretofore offered.

The conference between the President and the Treasury Department also had reference to the propriety of suggesting an extension in the bonded period under the proposed new tariff law, but that subject was deferred without conclusion for further deliberations. It is quite probable that the President will decide to make a recommendation to Congress respecting the matter.

The President and Mrs. Dimmick, using Mrs. Laughlin's handsome victoria and horses, took a long ride through the country, returning very enthusiastic over the beautiful scenery which they had viewed.

The President's stenographer, Miss Sanger, arrived here last night and found a large amount of mail matter awaiting her.

Secretary Halford has recommended to the telegraph company that they arrange to transfer their present telegraph office which is located in the old colored church to a room in the Mountain House, where it will be convenient for the President to conduct his telegraphic conferences which, it is thought, may be more frequent during next week.

THE PARSON IN DEMAND.

Made Famous by Horse Trotting but Sorry for It.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Sept. 13.—J. W. Arney, of Saranac, the Methodist Episcopal minister who made himself famous by getting up and managing a trotting meeting in his town, at which his own horses won all the first prizes, has been tried by his conference.

Parson Arney confessed that he was sorry for having participated in the horse matinee which has made him notorious, promised never to do it again, and the conference passed his character and continued him in service.

Since the horse trot several congregations have applied to the presiding elder to have Parson Arney assigned to them.

Strikers' Action Not Approved.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Mr. Holland, a member of the General Executive Board, Knights of Labor, said emphatically to-day that neither he nor Mr. Powderly nor any member of the Board had anything to do with the visit made by Chairman Goffney's delegation yesterday to Mr. Depew. General Master Workman Powderly refused to express any opinion on the wisdom of the call of the committee of the strikers on Mr. Depew. Mr. Powderly claims that the New York Central is not doing half their usual freight business on account of the strike.

Jewelry Robbers Arraigned.

DANBURY, Conn., Sept. 13.—George W. Wallace and George A. Wallick, who a few weeks ago entered Larne's jewelry store, knocked down and gagged the clerk, and stole $10,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry, were arraigned for trial. They pleaded guilty and were sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment each. As sentence was pronounced upon Wallace he jumped from his seat, kicked over his chair and made a rush at the judge. He was overpowered by the officers and removed.

A Powerful Combination.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.—The headquarters of the Westinghouse Manufacturing Co., says that George Westinghouse has authorized the statement that the interests of the Westinghouse Electric Company and the Pullman Manufacturing Company are to be joined together. He left yesterday afternoon for Chicago, and in a day two an authorized statement of the details of the combination with a capital stock of not less than $20,000,000, will be arranged.

The Hazing Case.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 13.—The alleged fatal hazing case published as occuring at Lafayette College is not as bad as reported. Medina, a Spaniard, and a leader of a dozen sophomores, who did the hazing, and who was reported to be dying from a blow with a baseball bat, is suffering with a cut two inches long on the forehead and a discolored eye. The doctor says that his skull is not fractured, and that he will be out within a week.

Nothing to Live For.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Mrs. Frederica Horn, the aged mother of the demented girl who Thursday hanged herself in the house No. 130 Fifth street, Hoboken, attempted to end her life this morning in a similar manner but was discovered in time to prevent her. The father of the family, who also attempted suicide yesterday, still lies in a precarious condition at St. Mary's Hospital.

The Wyoming Election.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 13.—Telegrams received from various points in Wyoming indicate that the Democrats have carried the State by a safe majority, electing Governor Baxter, Congressman Beck and the State Legislature, which would also mean a Democratic United States Senator. The Republican State Committee refuse, however, to admit the defeat of their ticket, and claim a small majority.

UPRISING OF SWISS

Details of the Revolt Difficult to Procure.

CARE TAKEN TO SUPPRESS NEWS

The Failure of the Southampton Strike Now Conceded.

The American Swimmer Six Hours in the Water—Twenty Miners Entombed in Germany—Another English War Ship for Halifax—Several New Cases of Cholera in Spain Reported.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The news of a revolution in Switzerland is the most interesting topic of the hour. Details of the uprising are difficult to procure, the Federal authorities having maintained a telegraph censorship which would do credit to the more despotic neighbors of the little democracy.

From the pains taken to check communication between the disaffected canton and the outside world, and from the absence of any encouraging official announcement by the Federal Council, it is feared that the revolt may be more widespread in its effects than the brief dispatches permitted to pass the censorship would indicate.

Ticino, the canton now in rebellion, has, however, a more turbulent record than her sister cantons, and the news of the present trouble is therefore less alarming than if the offending canton was one of those which had always maintained a peaceable and loyal demeanor.

BELLINZONA, Sept. 13.—The revolt here has collapsed. The troops have been well received by the revolutionists. It has been agreed that the question of the revision of the Constitution be submitted to a popular vote.

Trouble at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, Sept. 13.—There is a feeling of uneasiness prevailing in the provinces and the Cabinet is holding meetings daily. In the province of Entre Rios the situation is threatening and further reinforcements have been sent there. The cedula compromises have not yet been arranged for. Senor Rocca, Minister of the Interior, is being violently attacked by a portion of the press and it is likely that he will resign.

Fortifications for London.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Gen. Viscount Wolseley and Major-General William John Williams and staff, yesterday visited the Caterham district with a view to selecting sites for the erection of a series of fortifications intended for the defence of London. These will form a part of an elaborate system which, when carried out, will circle the great metropolis with a chain work of great forts. A site for a fort was selected on Tilburstom Hill.

Cardinal Manning and Labor.

LONDON Sept. 13.—Advices from Rome indicate that the Pope is not pleased with Cardinal Manning's late utterances on the labor question. His Holliness is said to have expressed the opinion that the Cardinal was being led by personal sympathy to endorse labor programmes which are not entirely in harmony with the settled attidude of the Church on such questions.

Berlin's First Anarchistic Meeting.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—The first Anarchist meeting ever held openly in this city has just taken place by permission of the police. The Anarchists are not very numerous in Germany as compared with the Socialists, the Anarchistic programme not being attractive to the the methodical and regulative Teutonic mind. The meeting was a very tame and unimportant affair.

The Southampton Strike a Failure.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The failure of the Southampton strike is now conceded to be due to haste and bad counsel at the start. The men would have had a fair chance of success had they waited for the sanction of the London Executive, but the irregularity of the movement was a serious handicap.

Stabbed a London Policeman.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Thomas Jackson, an American who has been staying at the Star and Garter Hotel at Richmond, was arraigned for disorderly conduct and stabbing a policeman with a sword cane. As it was discovered that Jackson's mind was unbalanced, he was remanded for further examination.

Another English Warship.

HALIFAX, Sept. 13.—It is stated that another warship is to be added to the North American Squadron, and that when the new fort at the York redoubt is completed several large guns of the most approved pattern will be sent out by the War Office and mounted there.

Dr. Koch Will Experiment.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—The celebrated German physician, Dr. Koch, who claims he can cure consumption, is about to experiment on human patients.

Twenty Miners Entombed.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—An explosion occurred in the Loederburg coal pit at Stassefurt. Twenty of the miners are imprisoned in the pit and their fate is doubtful.

Dalton Swims Again.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Dalton, the American swimmer, swam from Blackwall to Gravesend in six hours and a quarter.

Minister Phelps on His Way Home.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—Mr. William Walter Phelps, the United States Minister, and family have started for home.

POWDERLY ON DEPEW.

He Says The Central's President is a Figurehead.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—T. V. Powderly arrived in this city yesterday. No meeting of the General Executive Committee will be held until next week, as A. W. Wright and Devlin cannot be here until then.

Mr. Powderly said, when asked if he would seek an interview with President Depew, that he would not, as it was evident that Mr. Depew was controlled by the Vanderbilts. "I had always understood that Mr. Depew was president of the company," said Mr. Powderly. "Now I am convinced that he is merely a figurehead. From his individuality I thought he was too proud to occupy such a position, but I was mistaken. He has assumed the actions of Mr. Webb, and whatever Mr. Webb has done becomes, of course, the action of Mr. Depew."

Mr. Powderly reiterated what he had said before—that the strikers would return to the service as Knights of Labor or not at all. The strike would not be declared off under any circumstances.

The mass meeting to-night promises to be a great affair. A proclamation has been issued by the Central Labor Union notifying all affiliated bodies to be at Union Square at 8 o'clock. The Knights of Labor organizations will march from their headquarters. The speakers announced are T. V. Powderly, Henry George, Dr. McGlynn, Father Ducey, Rev. Heber Newton, General Roger A. Pryor, Hugh O. Pentecost, James Redpath and T. B. Wakeman.

ROBBED A WOMAN.

She Is Found Wandering Demented in the Woods—$1,800 Gone.

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 13.—The little lumber settlement, Glyndon, in the big woods near Corry, is in a high state of excitement over the robbery and almost the murder of Mrs. Mary Batchelder, the wife of Benjamin Batchelder, a prominent lumberman. She had been the bookkeeper of the mills for some time, and had gone to Corry, several miles, for the money to pay the men. She got $1,800, and started back by a narrow and muddy road through the woods to the mill.

Night came and the woman did not return. Her husband and another man set out for her at dark, but not until yesterday was she found. She was then encountered wandering in the woods in a demented condition. She had evidently been chloroformed and robbed by some person or persons who had followed her from Corry. She is a mental and physical wreck, and can give no rational account of how the affair occurred. The purse in which she carried the money was missing, and the torn condition of her clothing and bruised limbs and a lacerated throat showed that she had passed through a terrible ordeal.

FORCING THE CRISIS.

The New Scheme Which the Brick Manufacturers Will Put Into Effect.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The brick struggle seems at last likely to reach a positive crisis at a very early day.

The manufacturers up the Hudson have proposed a new scheme to their colleagues which they say they will put through whether it receives unanimous endorsement or not. Their yards will soon close and they intend to transfer men, horses and carts to this city, and thus handle the incoming brick themselves as fast as it arrives.

By this method they will be able to fulfill their contracts with the builders by delivering to them direct, ignoring the middle men entirely, and placing the boycotting laborers in a hopeless plight. The builders will embrace this opportunity eagerly, as the bricklayers have agreed to handle all the brick which may be delivered.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

General Ezeta was regularly elected President of Salvador by the Congress.

Snow and cold weather in the Northwest threaten great damage to wheat and corn.

Rains continue in New York State and have extended to other parts of the country, doing great damage.

Matthew Mullen, a brakeman of the Erie Railroad, while coupling cars in the depot at Jersey City, was crushed to death.

The Massachusetts Republican State Committee decided that, at the State convention on Wednesday next there shall be as many ballot boxes as there are contestants for nominations, so that all officers can be voted for simultaneously. This arrangement will not prevent nominations by acclamation, however.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—For New England: Rain, stationary temperature; southwesterly winds.

For Eastern York and New Jersey: Rain; slightly warmer; southeasterly winds.

For Western New York: Rain; warmer; southeasterly winds; cooler Sunday.

—Wetumpka Lodge, Knights of Honor, of this city, will make a fraternal visit to Easter Lodge, of this city, next Monday evening.

—Whitlock & Hulick, carpenters, were yesterday awarded the contract for putting the rear of Warren engine house in the same condition it was before the fire.

—The Hope Chapel Temperance Club last evening elected the following officrs: President—D. Bowden; Vice President—W. G. Gray; Secretary—W. Johnston; Treasurer—G. H. Fountain; Chaplain—Benjamin Hand. The meeting night was changed from Friday to Monday.

—John Howard Payne, colored, was monopolizing a section of Park avenue, last evening, and singing, in rollicking style, the song his namesake wrote, when a policeman protested and advised him to go to the "Home, Sweet Home" he was singing about. Payne was intoxicated and wanted to fight. The officer bundled him up, and carried him, struggling, to the station house. The episode cost Payne $10.

—Last year's short-hand class at the Young Men's Christian Association contained four or five lads who were studying in the public schools, and they proved to be apt pupils. Some of them expect to enter business life on leaving school, and are certain of getting more lucrative situations than they otherwise would—because stenography is so useful an acquirement and the demand for qualified short-hand writers so great.

—A handsome landscape picture, showing a straw thatched cottage, rustic bridge, moss-grown rocks, waterfall and stream, built by a disabled fireman and displayed in the window of City Treasurer Titsworth's office on North avenue, will be sold by chance and the entire proceeds donated to the poor fireman's family. The picture is a work of art, and the cause is one that should appeal to every member of the community.

You Can Count Them Yourself.

If it was necessary to prove to the satisfaction of anybody that THE PRESS is the Plainfield people's paper, there are many straws that show the fact plainly and indisputably. For instance look at the past week's record of "Wants, Offers and Information" advertisements in the cent-a-word column of the two dailies.

Monday's issue of THE PRESS contained 28; Monday's issue of the news contained 12.

Tuesday—PRESS, 24; news, 14.

Wednesday—PRESS, 23; news, 19.

Thursday—PRESS, 27; news, 16.

Friday—PRESS, 25; news, 17.

To Compel the Comptroller to Disburse.

Comptroller Myers of New York, who has been a Netherwood resident recently, was Wednesday served with an order to show cause why a peremptory mandamus should not be issued by Judge Edwards of Albany compelling him to sign a warrant for the $3,223,259.89 of State taxes due from the city in 1888. The question has been in litigation, and the testimony was taken before ex-Judge Countryman as referee. The order is returnable September 30.

Knights Who Like a Merry Time.

The members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, at the close of their regular business session, last night, held an old-time jubilee meeting, and enjoyed a pleasant programme of speechmaking and singing, with D. A. Pope as master-of-ceremonies. Mr. Pope broke the ice with a few interesting remarks on the good of the order, and a comic song, and J. H. Carney entertained the gathering with his funny sayings. He was received with rounds of applause. The next to step to the platform was B. R. Force, who recited in fine style. A series of musical selections was rendered by L. Rarrick and Messrs Jones and Higgins, who were called out again and again.

The next entertainment of the Lodge will be given Friday evening, October 31, after which such events will be of frequent occurrence till the Winter season is ended.

The Vested Choir Entertained.

The choir of Grace church, numbering about twenty-five, were entertained on Thursday evening in a royal manner by Mrs. Benjamin A. Mumford at her home on Arlington avenue. As usual on occasions of this kind, there were few absentees. The choir contributed to the enjoyment of the evening by singing a number of selections, and otherwise entertained themselves by playing "Blind Man's Buff," shouting through ex-Foreman Mumford's silver fire-trumpet, etc.

The "boys" unanimously voted that the triumph of the evening's entertainment was the bounteous supply of good things to eat provided by the hostess. The party broke up about 10 o'clock and returned home full of gratitude and many other things, totally unable to sing another note.

The music at both services will be rendered by a full choir. Solos will be given by Miss Kate Opdyke and sister, Mr. Davenport and others.

Father Bogaard has built a beautiful place of worship, well worth seeing, and all are invited and welcome. Train leaves Plainfield at 9:48.

That Dirty Mouth Again.

Yesterday morning as A. L. Force, one of the proprietors of this paper, was passing the corner of Grove and Front streets, where the Carey furniture store is located, the proprietor, ex-Councilman and ex-Captain of Police, Tunis J. Carey, called out:

"I should think you'd be afraid to go by this place."

Mr. Force stopped and asked: "Why? who and what should I be afraid of?"

"I should think you'd be afraid you'd get killed. It would be a —— good thing for this community if you was dead and buried."

A Model School.

The Rodman Seminary at 25 East Fifth street, which opens next Wednesday for young ladies and children, both girls and boys. It has prospered greatly under the management of Mrs. R. C. Dingee. Stage will call mornings for North Plainfield pupils, free of expense to patrons. The school rooms are commodious, thoroughly ventilated and nicely furnished. Able assistants are employed.

—The Central N. J. Land Improvement Co., has sold to Jacob Grieb and wife, of Piscataway, lot in this city South corner Stebbins place and South avenue, 125x80 feet for $660.

Which of the Four Plainfield Nichols Is This?

(From the Somerville Democrat.)

I heard a good fish story about Mr. Nichols, of Plainfield, who came to our neighborhood to enjoy his favorite pastime—angling. One day last week, while fishing in the neighborhood of Millington, with a small catfish as a bait, a five-pound bass made a sudden move on the tempting morsel, and soon catfish and hook were in his possession, to the great delight of the angler. The fish quickly hurried away beneath some driftwood in order to enjoy his rather unexpected meal. Mr. Nichols' apparatus was rather too light to attempt landing his prey by ordinary means, so he had recourse to the extraordinary.

Quickly peering over both shoulders, and feeling safe, he divested himself of all his wearing apparel, and in a few seconds, he stood on the bank, dressed only in nature's garb. Hurriedly seizing from his pocket a preparation compounded of pepper and salt, he boldly plunged into the river in order to apply the mixture to the tail of the fish, as he had heard of this being an old and invaluable remedy when other means failed. Peering cautiously around, he soon spied the fish under the root of a tree, trying to enjoy his lunch seasoned with steel. Gently inserting the hand which contained the condiment, he was just on the point of application, when the fish giving him a wicked look with his left eye, whisked his tail so viciously that the mixture was thrown into his eyes, completely blinding him for a time. When he recovered his sight no trace of the prize that was so near and yet so far.

The fish that eats your bait and runs away,
Will live to eat your bait some other day.

Come again, Mr. Nichols.

Here's His Name Again.

A person by the name of Miller came into the office of THE PRESS, last evening, and in spite of the presence of ladies, profanely abused the editor because the New York despatches to this paper a few days ago, corroborated by the New York Times, stated that he worked for the firm of Sawyer, Wallace & Co. The facts of the matter seem to be that he works for another firm in the same business, while a person of the same name and initials as he, works for Sawyer, Wallace & Co.

Failing to appreciate the allowance that for obvious reasons, last evening, was made for him, this Miller took advantage of our forbearance and leniency, and, with additional profanity, stated that the next time we put his name in THE PRESS he would do all sorts of terrible things.

If the people hear within a few days of the tragic death of any member of this paper's staff, they will know the reason why; for here's his name in THE PRESS again? ROBERT S. MILLER.

May the Best Team Win.

(From the Somerville Democrat.)

Now, Crescents, get up and hustle. We are after you with sharp sticks.

The Plainfield people say if you lay no money on the game Saturday you will lose none.

A. W. Mack says if the West Ends can take two of the three games from the Crescents star aggregation they will be right at the front.

The West End and Crescent series, which begins on the West End grounds Saturday afternoon, will be very interesting and important and each of the three games is sure to be hotly contested.

It is said that the Plainfield base ball cranks have chartered a train of six cars to come to Somerville with to-morrow. Will they be as happy when they go away as when they come?

Good Democrats to Represent North Plainfield.

John Vetterlein, John Bodine, Lewis R. Blackford and Henry Woodland were elected delegates, at the primary held in the North Plainfield school house last night, to attend the Democratic Convention of the Fourth Congressional District at Belvidere, Sept. 18. E. C. Morse was chairman of the meeting, and John Vetterlein was secretary.

A Tree With a Flinty Heart.

The story comes from the corner of West Front street and Plainfield avenue that workmen engaged in cutting down a tree a day or two ago broke three axe-blades in chopping and then discovered a large piece of flint like an Indian axe-head buried in the heart of the oak.

Sugar Given Away—Biggest Inducement Yet Offered.

Today we will give to every purchaser of a pound of our famous 50 cent special mixed tea—three pounds of granulated sugar free. United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association.

The Contrast.

Whoe'er repeats an idle tale,
Or that which bring a neighbor ill,
Life's better teachings doth assail
And robs himself of man's good will.
But good repeaters, 'tis confessed,
Are blessings; Collier keeps the best.

Help to Mothers Nursing.

Mothers who have the care and draught of nursing infants, need the aid of strengthening tonic to make up the nourishment required for the growth of the child. Ale, porter, and lager beer, have often been recommended. Of late, since physicians have become aware that the Port Wine produced by Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., is strictly pure, they have prescribed it instead of ale or porter, as being more blood making. This wine is principally sought for by mothers who have nursing infants at the breast, as the best supplying medium to be found. The wine is rich in body and not intoxicant, but gently stimulating and makes good blood. Druggists generally keep it, and sell it for a dollar a bottle.—Enquirer.

Clothing Clubs to be Suppressed.

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—The Attorney-General has instructed the State police that clothing clubs, in which members pay $1 a week and draw each week for a suit of clothes, comes within the lottery laws and must be suppressed.

Fined $100 for Killing a Moose.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 13.—A prominent citizen of Levant was yesterday fined $100 for killing a moose that deliberately walked into the principal street of the village, the close season not expiring till October.

A BEDBUG HUNTER.

Scientists Discover a New Torment Which Is Worse Than Its Victim.

At a recent meeting of the San Francisco Microscopical Society President Wixon exhibited a specimen of the red bedbug hunter (Opsicoetus personatus) captured in San Joaquin valley. This insect is about three-fifths of an inch in length, and to the naked eye is of a dark-brown color, but under the microscope shows black with greenish tints under the eyes.

Though called a bedbug hunter, this little insect devotes but a small portion of its time to hunting bedbugs. It feeds on flies and worms and has been known when hungry to attack sleeping humanity. The bite inflicted by this insect is very painful, and in some cases so poisonous as to cause death.

Dr. Le Counte said that many people bitten by this insect believe the bite to be from the spider or bedbug—as the wound produced by the insertion of the proboscis through the epidermis is much the same with all these insects.

Though not often resulting in death, the bite is always accompanied with an itching, or burning sensation at first, and afterward by a hard and highly inflammatory swelling, which lasts for two or three weeks and is exceedingly painful.

A Russian Mayoress.

The town of Kniazeff, Russia, has elected a woman, Mme. Alexandra Elyne, to the office of mayor. She set forth in her platform that she was the one woman in the community best fitted to defend and maintain the interest of the citizen, and on this platform she won the day. All the egotism of Russian women did not die with Marie Bashkirtseff.

But the Crescents Will Not Go to Westfield Next Wednesday.

(From the Westfield Standard.)

The Plainfield Press of Sept. 11, publishes an unnecessarily foolish article and one full of untruths. What is said about the umpire is simply ridiculous. No one who knows anything of base ball would ever think of accusing Roberts of being partial, blind or biased. That he made mistakes—we acknowledge; but they were in as many cases in favor of the Crescents as in favor of Westfield. The truth of the matter is that the Crescent people have had the umpire under their control all Summer and do not think any umpire is fair unless they get all of the decisions their way.

The crazy move of Jones which betrayed Hetzell into an illegal delivery, was simply school boy base ball on the part of the Crescent catcher.

The Press says:—"Desiring to save Gregg for Saturday's game, etc., etc." This is all rot. All Westfield wants is to get at Gregg, and this is where the managers broke their word with Westfield—though we cannot say that we expected them to keep it. And, now, right here let us say that if the Crescents will appear with their own team on the grounds on next Wednesday, they will find the result much different.

[Manager Leggett has sent word to Westfield that the Crescents will not go to Westfield next Wednesday. He also stated his belief that the Westfield management did not treat the Crescents honestly or courteously on last Wednesday—ED.]

Yes, he loves you now, 'tis true,
Lass with eyes of violet blue,
Lips as sweet as honey-dew,
Bonny little bride!
Will he love you as today,
When your bloom has fled away,
When your golden locks are grey—
Will his love abide?

Yes, if it is the true kind it will survive all the inevitable wastes and changes of life. But, it is every woman's desire and duty to retain, as long as she can, the attractions that made her charming and beloved in youth. No one can keep her youthful bloom or equable temper if weighed down and suffering. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a remedy for these troubles. Sold by druggists.

Notes of the Theatres.

Strewn with anything but successes is the opening of the Autumn theatrical season in New York. The Casino has a quasi failure in "Mme. Angot;" "The Tale of a Coat" has been received with marked chilliness, at Daly's; the Bijou's "Canuck" has not been sufficiently attractive to fill even that tiny theatre; "One Error," the title of the new play at the Fifth Avenue, now under H. C. Miner's management, "is well named," said the critics after the first performance. The public evidently think it full of errors. The Madison Square Garden has, in professional vernacular, proven the most gigantic "frost" known in the annals of theatricals in America, the loss, since its opening a little over three months ago, being enormous. The only real substantial financial successes thus far have been the Hanlon-Volter and Martinetti Pantomime and Novelty Company at the Academy; "The Merry Monarch" at the Broadway, and John L. Sullivan in "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands," at Niblo's. Mansfield's season at A. M. Palmer's 24th Street Theatre, has been fairly successful and is near its close, and Marie Tempest and Duff's "Red Hussar" is in the fourth week at Palmer's Broadway House; "The Senator" has returned to the Star, (Sept. 8,) and "The County Fair" has just begun its season at the Union Square.

* * * * * *

The famous Grace Church scene in Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead," which begins its fourth metropolitan year at the Academy, October 6, will, besides a double male quartette and revolving snow scene, contain additional attractiveness in the shape of a choir composed of two score of sweet-voiced youngsters.

* * * * * *

Baldwin of parachute notoriety will jump no more. He has settled down in England on $400,000, gained in two and a half years.

* * * * * *

After the retirement of John L. Sullivan at Niblo's, "The Pupil in Magic," with a big cast of wee thespians will be exhibited for the first time in America. The opening spectacle of the Liliputians will be presented with a wealth of gorgeous scenery and dazzling effects, and will be distinguished by two grand ballets. Together with the dramatic mites, the smallest of whom, by the way, is less than three feet in height and the tallest less than four, the organization complete will number 100 people.

* * * * * *

Preparations are fast being completed for the stupendous production at Niblo's, New York City, about the middle of October, of "Nero," the new spectacular drama to be brought out by Messrs Locke & Davis. The dramatic material for the new work is taken from Eckstein's recent valuable resume of early Roman history. A realistic feature of the production which will set New York agog will be the introduction in the arena scene of eight cageless lions, handled by Professor Darling, an intrepid lion tamer of Paris. For the protection of the audience during the arena scene, a skeleton curtain, consisting of a network of solid steel, will be lowered between the stage and auditorium. The services of 500 people will be enlisted in the production, which, it is claimed, will entail an outlay of $35,000.

A good man has started business in London as a "ballet-girl evangelist," and devotes himself to awaking the moral sense of the airy-costumed coryphees who pirouette about the stage to the delight of the bald-headed contingent in the front rows.

Is This Irony or Sarcasm?

(From the Bound Brook Chronicle.)

The far-seeing eye of the Madison Eagle has discovered that

"Bro. Messler, of the Democrat, Somerville, is a poet. Bro. Mason, of THE CHRONICLE, Bound Brook, is also securing recognition in that direction. We have considerable sympathy for our brother knights of the quill."

As far as this paper is concerned it cheerfully yields the poetical palm to the clever story-teller of the Plainfield Press. In a neat half-column concerning a family feud which has attracted some attention in North Plainfield, between the Wyckoffs and the Spriggs, our if-you-see-it-in-The-Press-it-isn't-so contemporary makes the little Spriggs salute their neighbors with

"Wyckoff, Wyckoff,
I'll knock your head off!"

To this the heir of Wyckoff estate is credited with saying:

"Sprigg, Sprigg, you think you're big;
Go wash your face, you dirty pig!"

Such effusions as these show the author's rare genius, and when once his abilities become known to the outer world his services will be in demand by some great daily newspaper, and we may before long find him doing the obituary verses on the Philadelphia Ledger.

What Plainfield's Enemies are Fighting Against.

(From the Bound Brook Chronicle.)

Monday night's fire proved conclusively the great value of the Bound Brook water works. The hose was attached to the highest hydrants in town, where the pressure is the lowest, but two streams were turned on the flames and at once it was seen that the fire was under control.

As the warm weather continues the natural cravings of humanity call for something cooling to drink. Hires' Root Beer is sparkling, and a most delicious article. Every family should have it in their house. A 25 cent package will enable any one to make five gallons. Ask your druggist or storekeeper for it.

USING TROUT FOR BAIT.

It Was the Only Thing the Muskallonge Wanted, and They Got It.

There are several small lakes on the head waters of the Monistique river in Michigan, where there are enormous pickerel and muskallonge. Brook trout are abundant in the streams running into them. Fishermen have always lamented the failure of all their efforts to capture muskallonge in these lakes with any of the known live baits or lures, but a party of anglers who were bait fishing near one of the lakes this season discovered that the muskallonge would not accept any of the ordinary bait simply because they were highly epicurean in their tastes. One of the party of fishermen referred to, after exhausting all his skill in trying to capture a muskallonge, went to the mouth of one of the streams that empty into the lake and made a few casts for trout. He hooked a small one and was reeling it in when there came a sudden swoop and splash in the water and down went the trout and the fisherman's leader in the whirlpool that marked the spot where the trout had been.

The angler knew that a muskallonge had swept the trout and leader away, and he kept alive the next six-inch trout he caught, hooked it to his muskallonge hook and tossed it into the lake where he thought muskallonge would be apt to lie. The trout had scarcely sunk beneath the surface when it was ravenously seized, and the fisherman had the satisfaction of landing a fifteen-pound muskallonge. By using small trout for bait in that way twelve large muskallonge were killed in a short time by the party. At the same time every other kind of bait was used at the same spot without one muskallonge noticing it. At any time during the party's stay there muskallonge could be caught with trout as bait, but at no time with any thing else. The big fish were connoisseurs. The stream furnished them with the most delicate of food, and they refused any morsel less choice. Trading trout for muskallonge seemed like decidedly unsportsmanlike thing to do, but the knowledge obtained was worth the sacrifice.

Another lake in that vicinity has nowhere more than a four-foot depth of water, and it has a bottom so soft that a pole twenty feet long will not fathom its depth. This lake is literally full of big pickerel. They bite at almost any thing, but the moment they are hooked they dive into the soft bottom and go down so deep that sometimes they have to be pried out with poles. It is no uncommon thing to mine them out from a depth of four feet. The lake bottom is not mud or mire, but a pulpy mass resembling tapioca pudding.—N. Y. Sun.

THOUGHT SHE'D DROP IN.

And While She Was In She Told a Pleasant Little Story.

A busy Chicago housewife had just dusted the furniture and was about to wash the windows, when there came a violent ring at the door bell. A faded-looking woman, carrying a green parasol and a bag that puckered like a tobacco sack, walked in when the door was opened, and, refusing to give her name, entered the parlor.

"Would you object to giving me your name?" said the housewife, when the strange woman had seated herself.

"Never mind my name."

"Will you please state your business?"

"Never mind my business."

"Well, but why am I honored with this visit?"

"You'll find out soon enough."

"I should like to find out now, if it will not be putting you to any unnecessary inconvenience."

"All right. My business is not very important, to be sure, but perhaps you might take some little interest in it. Your name is Mrs. Natterson, I believe."

"Yes."

"Ah, hah. How long have you known your alleged husband?"

"My alleged husband?"

"Yes."

"I have been married three years."

"That is, you think you have been married that long."

"I surely do not understand you."

"Oh, it's a matter of no consequence, but as I happened to be in this town and more especially as I chanced to be passing, I thought that I would drop in and tell you that this man Natterson married me in Massachusetts some five or six years ago, I forget which. But it amounts to nothing, you know."

"Merciful heavens, madam, you horrify me!"

"Oh, not necessarily, I assure you."

"Is it possible that I have been deceived?"

"Well, it looks rather that way."

"And have you come here to claim my husband?"

"Oh, not at all. I just happened to be passing and thought I'd tell you. Please don't think for a moment that I want him. It is true that men are rather scarce in the East, but even if they were ten times scarcer than they are, I shouldn't want that fellow. I have had quite enough of him, I assure you. Just happened to be passing and thought I'd drop in and tell you. Hope I haven't put you to any inconvenience. Good day."—Arkansaw Traveler.

THE National gallery of Ireland has come into possession of a priceless treasure in the form of a Rembrandt portrait. It is the likeness of a young man, and is painted in the artist's earlier manner.

FIFTEEN MILLIONS of dollars is mentioned as the value of the art treasures accumulated in Hilford House by Sir Richard Wallace, and it is rumored that all this will go, under the will, to the English Nation.

A MAGNIFICENT sword of the fifteenth century is shortly to be placed in the Louvre Museum in Paris. It is ornamented with graceful designs from the hand of the great sword-maker, Hercules de Pesaro, who did the work for the Bargras, the Ganzagas and the house of Este, and is thought to have belonged to Francisco de Ganzaga, who commanded the Italian army crushed by Charles VIII. in 1495.

AT last a use has been found for the bugs. The Persian entomologist whose collection of insects attracted so much attention at the Paris exposition last year is preparing a landscape, the subject being a water-mill, a river and a mountain, which will be composed wholly of insects. Four hundred and fifty thousand night-flying insects will form the foreground, the remainder of the picture to be made up of 500,000 insects, composing over 8,000 species.

Nervous Debility.

Weakness, Nervousness, Despondency and Depression of Mind.

We are careless of our strength, vigor and energies in youth and early life. We use them up in business, work, pleasure or dissipation, and suddenly find ourselves old before our time, broken down in health, exhausted in brain and nerve power, and left without physical energies, nerve, strength or ambition. Then follows that terrible despondency—that gloom and depression of mind which is a thousand times harder to bear than pain. It blots out hope, happiness and ambition, and makes life seem scarcely worth living, turns nights into sleepless, restless anxiety, and days into almost hopeless despair.

Luckily, there is a great and wonderful restorative which will give back to the weakened and exhausted system the strength it has lost; a marvellous remedy which imparts strength and vigor to the brain and nerves, vitalizes and invigorates all the physical powers, dispels, as if by magic, the despondency and gloom of mind, and restores us again to that grand degree of lusty strength, of bounding pulse and strong physical and nerve power which in ignorance or folly we have exhausted.

This wonderful discovery is Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great brain, nerve and strength restorer. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and can be procured at any druggist's for $1 per bottle. It is an absolute specific for nervous and physical debility. Persons with weakened nerves and exhausted vitality can regain perfect and complete strength by its use. It cures malaria, restores lost energy and invigorates the weakened vital forces in old and young. Try it, and you will never regret it.

POSITIVE PROOF.

I was afflicted for five years with nervous debility, and last Winter I was down sick with it. I had a good doctor, but got only temporary relief. I then took six bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura and it cured me.

FOR LITTLE PEOPLE.

MY GRANDPA'S STORY.

I wonder if grandpas can always tell
Stories that boys like, and girls as well?
Mine tells always the nicest kind,
But a grandpa like mine is hard to find.
The last one he told was so very good—
Though he made the lesson well understood—

That I want to tell it just as he did,
He kept the moral so nicely hid.
Said Grandpa: "The first year I went down
To the old academy out of town,
There was one boy there among the rest—
A smart one, but just the queerest dressed!

"His name was 'Jonathan—Jonathan Joy.'
His name was no queerer than was the boy.
His folks had lately moved, they said—
His mother and sister—his father was dead.
He was only thirteen, and small at that,
But there's little we fellows could beat him at.

He took all the care of the schoolhouse too,
And a colder winter I never knew.
He must have suffered, his clothes were so thin,
But matters like that boys don't take in.
And homely he was, this little boy!
I never saw plainer than Jonathan Joy.

"But the very queerest thing of all
Was his boots; he was so very small,
And his boots were a man's boots, stout and strong,
Thick, and heavy, and wide, and long;
How such a boy could tug 'em about
I don't know, but the toes were all stuffed out.

"Now to our shame it must be told
That we scorned this boy whose clothes were old.
Often and often, each hour of the day,
We sneered at his boots, and would call and say:
'Boots, where are you going with that little boy?'
It must have been awful to Jonathan Joy.

"At last the leader of all our band—
He's been dead for years, poor Charley Rand—
Proposed to do something so bad and bold—
Almost too ugly to ever be told,
He knew that every night, he said,
This Jonathan kept his boots in a shed.

"He knew the house—such a poor little home—
And he said: 'Now, boys, if you'll all keep mum
I'll tell you something first-rate to be done
Let's go to-night and have some fun;
Let's all of us go as still as a mouse,
And steal those boots from that old woodhouse.'

"We all agreed, to our shame, be it said,
And at night, when we should have been in bed,
We stole to the home of Jonathan Joy—
I feel so ashamed of every boy!
We went to the window to listen first,
And that for our plan was just the worst.

"He and his mother were there alone;
It was cold that night, but fire they had none;
We saw his mother as well as he;
His head in her lap, we all could see;
Her hand was caressing the brow of the boy
And the rough red tresses of Jonathan Joy.

"Then we heard her voice and the words she said,
Till we wished we had been at home in bed
'Johnnie,' she said, so soft and low,
'Tis a terrible trial, that I know,
But it's wear the boots or stay away—
Not go to school another day.

"'We can't buy boots as well as bread,
And keep this poor roof over our heads,
And you hope to be able, you always say,
Through your learning to build a home some day.
Those boots were your father's; 'tis hard, I know—
The boys must be ugly to treat you so."

"The soft voice faltered, and then there came
The sound of sobbing. O, 'twas a shame'
But Charley turned to the rest of his crew
And whispered: 'I've thought of a thing to do;
Come out of this—here, follow my lead;
I feel as small as a mustard seed.

"'Boys,' he said softly, 'let's buy him a pair—
Just such as the rest of us fellows wear.'
Then he took us away and told his plan,
And each of us felt rather more like a man
We put our mites together, and then
Next night we went to the woodshed again.

"And still and sly as we went before
We left the boots and shut the door.
Such beauties they were, and brand-new ones,
Red-topped, with letters which shone like suns,
And the rest of the winter, I'm glad to tell,
We treated that fellow extremely well.

"Years have passed; his place is higher by far,
And he's richer than all the rest of us are.
His mother died long, long years ago,
But she lived to be proud of him, I know;
And I know he was pure gold without alloy.
For I married the sister of Jonathan Joy."

FOUND IN A TREE.

The Strange Story of a Papoose Uncle Jock Told the Children.

Here is the very latest story which Uncle Jock told the children the other day, while Uncle Jake was carving a whistle out of an alder branch for little Ted.

"You want an Indian story, do you?" said Uncle Jock.

"Tell 'em about what we found in a tree once," said Uncle Jake, as he smoothed the mouthpiece of the whistle with his big knife.

"Well, well, so I will. Sit down, every one of you, on the grass and keep still."

And when they were all seated Uncle Jock began:

Our house stood on a hill, on the edge of the old apple orchard which reached from the back door-yard fence to the river shore. A great, spreading russet tree grew near the bank, and it was under this tree that the Indians used to camp when traveling up and down the river in their canoes. We got so we were pretty well acquainted with them, and we would run down the hill the minute we saw the smoke from their fires, or caught a glimpse of their wigwams through the trees.

One morning mother came to the foot of the stairs and called us to breakfast. But we were like little Ted here—we hated to get up. So we just opened our eyes a little, threw the bed clothes off and then turned over and went to sleep again. But when she called us a second time, and told us the Indians were in the orchard, we jumped into our clothes in a hurry and started on a run for the river, forgetting all about breakfast and every thing else. We rushed along the path through the tall rye that grew on the flats, slipping and sliding on the windfalls that were scattered under the apple trees, never stopping until we reached the wigwam.

There was no one to be seen, and we thought at first that they were all asleep, but pretty soon we heard strange sounds inside, as though some one was groaning or trying to sing without knowing how. We were at a loss what to make of it. Always before the Indians had come out to meet us when we visited the wigwam, and we began to feel a little bit scared.

"Let's go home," whispered Jake. "They ain't our Indians."

"Wait till I take a peep," I said as I lifted one corner of the blanket door. But I did not have a chance to see very much, for just then a tall Indian, with stripes of red and black paint across his cheeks, and a long knife in his hand, shoved the blanket aside and jumped out, giving a loud whoop.

Did we run? Well, now, you ought to have seen us. We didn't wait to follow the path, but took a bee-line for the house, straight through the tall rye and melon patch. Mother saw us coming and ran out to meet us.

"Keep away from them," she said, when we told her. "They've been drinking, and it's not safe to go near them."

You better believe we kept on the right side of the door-yard fence all that day. The next morning the camp was gone. We waited until we were sure there were no strange Indians loitering in the orchard, then we went down to the river. The fire was still smouldering on the sand, and there were scraps of dried meat under the tree. All of a sudden Jake cried out:

"What's that, Jock?" and my heart began to thump, for I expected nothing else but to see a big painted Indian ready to grab me. Jake pointed to the tree over our heads. A piece of bark with a string at each end was hanging from one of the lower branches, swinging back and forth like the hammock there, only a great deal smaller than the hammock. A bundle wrapped in a blanket was fastened to it with strips of buckskin. We looked at it awhile before we spoke. We hadn't quite got over out scare. Then I whispered:

"Let's climb the tree, Jake, and see what it is."

It didn't take us long to get where we could look down on the bundle. And now what do you think it was? You can't guess, eh? Well, it was a real live papoose—an Indian baby—pretty as a picture, fast asleep in its bark cradle. We didn't dare touch it, for fear the Indians might be watching us, but we climbed down as quickly as we could, and ran home to tell mother what we had found.

"They've gone off and forgot it—the poor little creature," she said, as she tied on her sun-bonnet and went with us.

When we got back the papoose was wide awake, laughing and crowing in fine style. We climbed the tree and untied the strings, while mother held out her arms and caught it as it fell, cradle and all. It cried a little at first, when it saw the strange faces, bending over it, but mother crooned, and talked baby talk, and it soon was laughing again. She carried it to the house and fed it. Then we spread the blanket on the floor, and Jake and I got down on all fours and played with it. It was such a good-natured little fellow that we had lots of fun.

Did we keep it? Yes, for a couple of hours. At the end of that time, just as we were in the midst of a grand frolic, the papoose stretched out its hands toward the open door and began to cry. We looked around and saw an Indian woman standing there. She walked in, picked up the papoose, wrapped the blanket around it, and walked out again, without saying a word, and that's the last we ever saw of that baby.—H. H. Hollands, in Detroit Free Press.

Dried Strawberry Leaves.

"Mr. Childs will pay twelve cents a pound for strawberry leaves."

Two small pairs of ears heard Mrs. Allison say this about the new merchant. Then Alice went out of the room, and beckoned Nettie to follow.

"Did you hear that?" she asked, excitedly. "Just think of the strawberry leaves in our pasture! Why, we can pick tons of em!"

"Why, Alice, I don't believe we could find time to pick a ton."

"I should think we might if we tried hard. Let's go at it this very day. We'll make our fortunes."

Mother Banks wasn't as much excited as the girls when they told her their plans.

"It will take a great many to weigh a pound," she said.

But the girls were all courage, and that afternoon they went into the pasture and busily picked strawberry leaves where, a few weeks before, they had picked berries.

It was pleasant work. The bobolinks came about and chattered saucily, the robins whistled in the treetops, and they found a ground-bird's nest with three tiny, spotted eggs.

When the horn blew for supper, they went home and spread their leaves in the back chamber to dry. The floor was covered.

"What shall we buy with our money?" was now the great question, and they made all sorts of plans.

They looked at the leaves every day, surprised that they shrank up so. When at last they were dry, the girls took them to the store, and Mr. Childs weighed them—half a pound!

So they had three cents apiece.—Youth's Companion.

A Disagreeable Inheritance.

"What is the matter with that baby?" growled an irascible husband as the little one persisted in howling and kicking to the extent of its might.

"The matter is, sir," calmly replied the wife as she strode up and down the floor, "the matter is that this baby inherits your temper."

And the husband returned to his paper with a gloomier face than before.—Boston Courrier.

Quite Likely.

Sympkins—Don't you think, Mrs. Snobkins, that I tried to kiss my wife at the kitchen door to-night as I was leaving, and—

Mrs. Snobkins—Of course she did not object.

Sympkins—Object? I should say she did! She said that she didn't want people to be mistaking her for the hired girl.—West Shore.

SEEING SIGHTS.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Visit Coney Island.

"COME, now, Miranda," said Mr. Austin, "get your things on and let's go down and take an iron steamboat for Coney Island. We haven't had an outing yet, and we won't if we ain't pretty quick about it."

"Take an iron steam-boat, John! Why, I would be afraid it would sink."

"Nonsense. Iron floats just as well as wood when it is made into a steamboat."

"But s'pose it should blow up, and we should be left clinging to a chunk of iron we had grabbed hold of, would it float?"

"You expect to catch hold of the anchor, or a piece of boiler plate if there should be an explosion, don't ye?"

"I would try to catch on to something."

"Well, you just catch on to what I am going to tell you. There isn't the least bit of danger in sailing down to Coney Island on one of these iron steamboats, if you don't try to get away with any of the iron. Friends of mind run down there every day, and they come back full of—"

"Beer, I suppose."

"No; full of stories of the fun they've

THE LEADER OF THE BAND.

had. Bill Jones liked to've got drowned in the surf only day before yesterday."

"That must have been fun."

"Well, it was fun for the other fellows, anyhow."

"I never went to Coney Island in my life."

"It's time you did, then. We'll go right down to the iron pier."

"Got an iron pier, too, have they?"

"That's what they call it, though there is a little wood work about it, I believe."

"Well, I'm ready; let's be off."

ON THE BOAT.

Mrs. Austin—My! what a crowd of people. A steamboat needs to be made of iron to hold them all. Does the boat carry any sails, any sheets?

Mr. Austin—Yes, and they are made of sheet iron.

Mrs. Austin — You don't say! And liquors are served over a "bar" of iron, I suppose.

Mr. Austin—No more of that irony, my dear. Listen to the music.

Mrs. Austin—Ask them to play "Little Annie Rooney," John.

Mr. Austin—They haven't been playing any thing else. Little Annie Rooney! You will have a good deal of Annie Rooney before you get back.

Mrs. Austin—There comes the leader of the band, with his hat in his hand, begging what you will have next.

Mr. Austin—Begging for a dime, you mean. I gave him one last summer, so that lets me out.

Mrs. Austin—Look, John; there's a ship standing out to sea.

Mr. Austin—Yes, and there's Barthèldi's Statue of Liberty standing out to see, too.

Mrs. Austin—It was a waste of money to make Liberty of bronze. Any cheap material would have done just as well.

Mr. Austin—How so?

Mrs. Austin—It would have been bronzed by the sun, wouldn't it?

Mr. Austin—Is it the motion of the boat that makes you throw off these things?

Mrs. Austin—Look at that boat-load of people coming home. Are they all seasick? What makes them look so ill?

Mr. Austin—They are not ill. They have been off having a good time, that's all. They have been enjoying themselves. That's the way Americans always look returning from a pleasure excursion. We'll have that appearance coming back.

Mrs. Austin—I hope not.

ON THE ISLAND.

Mrs. Austin—What do all these people do here?

Mr. Austin—Some of them do the shows, while the shows try to do the greenhorns.

Mrs. Austin—Where is the elephant we hear so much about, John?

Mr. Austin—I don't see it now.

Mrs. Austin—But you have seen it, haven't you, John?

Mr. Austin (mournfully)—Yes, I have seen it, and many a dollar it cost me, too.

Mrs. Austin—Well, then, don't let's go near it. We can go to the top of the tower, can't we?

Mr. Austin—Yes, we can go to the top of the tower.

(They make the ascent of the tower.)

Mrs. Austin—What a splendid view! Is that Stationery Island?

Mr. Austin—Staten Island, you mean. Yes, that's it.

Mrs. Austin—And there is Sandy Hook, I'll bet.

Mr. Austin—No, that's Brooklyn bridge. There is a hook to it, though, you may be sure.

Mrs. Austin—Isn't that Brigantine Island off to the left?

Mr. Austin—You're way off to the left; that's Quarantine Island.

Mrs. Austin—That's what I meant. But the wind blows too hard up here; let's go down.

(They descend).

Mr. Austin—Want to go in bathing, Matilda?

Mrs. Austin—Haven't got any bathing suit with me.

Mr. Austin—But you can hire one, you know.

Mrs. Austin—I would like to see myself in a hired bathing-suit.

Mr. Austin—So would I.

Mrs. Austin—John, you ought to be ashamed of yourself!

Mr. Austin—Let's try the merry-go-round.

Mrs. Austin—There isn't enough merry to go 'round, I judge, the people look so solemn.

Mr. Austin—Americans always take their amusements very seriously.

Mrs. Austin—Yes, it's hard to make them understand that fun is fun. They want to make something else of it.

Mr. Austin—Well, my dear, have you seen enough?

Mrs. Austin—Yes, dear, let's go home.

And they go.—A. Miner Griswold, in Texas Siftings.

The Man He Wanted.

Applicant (to proprietor of great newspaper)—Have you a vacancy on your staff, sir?

Proprietor—I need a circulation affidavit editor, but I don't know that you would suit.

"I think I would, sir. I have been a census enumerator at Minneapolis."

"The place is yours." — Munsey's Weekly.

An Heroic Remedy.

Mrs. Cumso—My husband suffers so from insomnia. I really don't know what to do for him.

Mrs. Fangle—You should try Dr. Sullivan.

Mrs. Cumso—Sullivan! Who is he?

Mrs. Fangle—I don't know, but I'll ask Mr. Fangle. He says Sullivan can put any man to sleep.—West Shore.

A Slight Difference.

A broker addresses a friend who is about to begin a letter:

"How can you say 'Honorable director' to a man who has done enough to send him to the gallows?"

"Well, what shall I say?"

"Oh, 'My dear confrere,' or any thing equally commonplace."—Judge.

Sunday Evening.

Mr. Fidget—Officer, I'm sure that saloon on the corner is open. Men have been going in there all day.

Officer McNabb—Well, what av that? Would yez have me breakin' th' lah, too, by goin' in?—Puck.

WOULD RESUME PAYMENTS.

Wiggins (who has obliged his friend with a five)—What would you do, Jack, if you had a fortune left to you?

Borrowit—Why, I wouldn't have to "do" anybody, then!—Texas Siftings.

A CONUNDRUM.

Mrs. Broughne—George, dear, why is the ocean blue?

Mr. Broughne—Because it has to embrace so many objectionable people.—Life.

A Bright Face.

De Smith—Don't you think Miss Jinks has a very bright expression on her face?

Jones—I can't say that her face is very bright, but there is much no doubt about her being lantern-jawed.—Texas Siftings.

No Cause for Worry.

Potter—I have read in a newspaper that the sun is gradually losing its heat. Where is the future heat to come from?

Barnes—Don't let that worry you. You will find out before you really care to know.—Texas Siftings.

Will Have to Cease Kicking.

Robinson — Bismarck has got the rheumatism again.

Brown—He has, eh? Perhaps he will not kick so much hereafter.—Texas Siftings.

A Mean Reply.

Husband—No, don't make me mad. When I get angry I am a wild beast.

Wife — Humph! You have never stopped being angry.—Texas Siftings.

On the Editor's Desk.

"Dry up!" said the blotter to the ink. "I want to make an impression on you first," replied the ink.—Munsey's Weekly.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

THERE are 4,394 telephones in use in Belgium.

PLOWING by electricity is in contemplation for a large property in Central Spain.

SEA air has been found to have a thickening effect upon the leaves of plants and trees. Moreover, plants grown in salted soil produce thicker leaves.

AT an equality of age the male is generally heavier than the female, except toward the age of twelve, when the average weight in both sexes is about the same.

OBSERVATION shows that the dust particles in the air vary enormously during the presence of mist or fog without being accompanied by any difference in the apparent density of the fog.

THE amount of water the sun raises from the earth is estimated at the enormous weight of 37,000,000,000 tons a minute; the quantity of coal required to produce a heat in any way equivalent to the sun is calculated to be 12,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

IT has been lately observed that water purified as much as possible, and standing only a short time in contact with the air, showed next day a continuous decrease of conductivity, which gradually disappeared, giving place to the normal unavoidable inerease. Prof. Pfeiffer concludes that this is due to micro organisms coming into the water and absorbing the conducting substances present.

THE prize of forty thousand francs offered by the French Academy for some certain test of death, looking to the prevention of being burned alive, was given to a physician, who announces that on holding the hand of the supposed dead person to a strong light, if living, a scarlet tinge is seen where the fingers touch, showing that the blood continues to circulate, there being no scarlet when the subject is really dead.

THIS is a scientific description of what happens when you light a fire: The phosphorus on the match is raised by friction to a temperature of 150 degrees Fahrenheit, at which it ignites; it raises the temperature of the sulphur (if it is a sulphur match) to 500 degrees, when the sulphur begins to burn; the sulphur raises the heat to 800 degrees, when the wood takes up the work and produces a temperature of 1,000 degrees, at which the coal ignites.

WHEN whispering it is said that stammerers rarely show any impediment in speech. On this fact a new method of treatment has been advocated, which is as follows: In the first ten days speaking is prohibited. This will allow rest to the voice, and constitutes the preliminary state of treatment. During the next ten days speaking is permissible in the whispering voice; and in the course of the next fifteen days the ordinary conversational tone may be gradually employed.

IT appears from some carefully recorded data on the subject that there is required about as much energy to convert water into ice as to evaporate it into steam, for the same amount of heat is found to be absorbed, when, for example, seventeen pounds of ice are melted as in the evaporation of ten pounds of water into steam, about as much as a pound of the best coal can furnish. A liquid that will boil under a pressure of sixty pounds in the heat of a tropical sun should make as much use of a cake of ice for power purposes as could be obtained in midwinter from two-thirds its weight in coal, at least so say the experts.

LITERARY LIGHTS.

LORD TENNYSON is now in better health than he has had for years.

MISS CHARLOTTE M. YONGE is engaged upon what is said to be her one hundred and first book.

MRS. MARY J. HOLMES, novelist, is studying phases of San Francisco life as material for a novel that will be her twenty-ninth. Next year she will visit St. Petersburg.

CARMEN SYLVA, Queen of Roumania, was never in Wales, but when she finishes her novel, the scene of which is laid in that principality, she will go to see whether her local color is all right.

ANDERSON, the popular Danish author, was the son of a cobbler, and in his earlier years worked "on the bench" most industriously, doing his first literary work on scraps of paper kept beside him in the moments when he rested from his regular duties.

THOUGH Mr. William Waldorf Astor has thus far published but two novels, he is said to have a number of manuscripts more or less complete, which will see the light by and by. He has devoted to literary composition many of the hours that wealthy young men usually devote to social relaxation.

MR. ROBERT J. BURDETTE is an inveterate joker, and by no means confines his humorous writing to the articles prepared for publication. Some time ago he received a letter enthusiastically praising him for his verses beginning: "Out on the borders of moonshine land." He sat down and wrote a letter of several pages, in which he gratefully acknowledged the praise of his correspondent, and flattered the latter's taste by saying that he always thought himself that those were pretty good verses, and after signing his name wrote the following postscript: "I didn't write those verses. They were written by my friend, James Whitcomb Riley."

THE new editor of the Atlantic, Mr. Horace E. Scudder, tells a droll story of how near he once came while in London to dining with Tennyson. "I had been invited by one of the young English writers," Scudder would explain, "to meet a few persons at dinner. As I was chatting with him a few minutes before we went to table, he turned to his brother and said—as I understood him—'I wonder if we are not going to have Tennyson?' Of course I was gratified at the prospect of meeting the great poet. But we dined without him. And as I sat at the table it occurred to me that what my host really said to his brother was: 'I wonder if we are not going to have dinner soon?' That's the nearest I came to dining with Tennyson."

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

In Its Worst Form.

BENTON, LAF. CO., WIS., Dec., '88.

Rev. J. C. Bergan vouches for the following: James Mooney who was suffering from Vitus Dance in its worst form for about 1½ years was treated by several physicians without effect, two bottles of Pastor Koenigs Nerve Tonic cured him.

Prejudiced, yet Convinced.

So. Norwalk, Con., May, 1890.

Although I took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic with a certain prejudice, it has done me so much good that I must thank him for it, because now I can sleep again. Since the terrible catastrophe of the Johnstown flood, where I lost five members of my family, terrible fictions occupied my mind, so that I was since quite despondent. But now I come to myself again, and attribute this to the good effect of the Tonic.

THE PLAN OF RELIEF

Sixteen Millions of Four Per Cents to be Purchased.

SECRETARY WINDOM'S CIRCULAR

This Year's Interest on the Six Per Cents to be Paid at Once.

Proposals Will be Received at the Treasury Department on Wednesday—The President Watches the Financial Trouble—General Nettleton Says the Bonded Period Will be Extended.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Secretary Windom has announced that he will purchase $16,000,000 of four per cent. bonds and prepay the interest on between fifty and sixty millions of six per cents., in order to relieve the stringency in the money market.

The order was issued from Washington this morning giving notice that offers for the bonds to be purchased will be received at 12 o'clock, noon, next Wednesday. Mr. Windom said that he had named $16,000,000 as the amount of bonds to be purchased because, as the entire available surplus is now $52,000,000, the Treasury has outstanding offers for bonds and interest amounting to $30,000,000, and the amount of four per cents. now asked for will require about $20,000,000. This, together with what will be required for the prepayment of the interest on the six per cents. will consume the entire available surplus.

Mr. Windom further said there was no doubt in his mind that the action taken will bring satisfactory relief if the holders of the bonds are disposed to co-operate with the Treasury. He sees no great danger of serious financial trouble, and it will not be the fault of the Treasury department if it comes.

The offer for four per cents, he says, is exceptional, and is not to be regarded as the policy of the administration, for with this purchase, if it shall be made, the Treasury goes out of the market for the purchase of that class of bonds, and will hereafter apply the current surplus to the purchase of four and a half per cents.

Mr. Windom has gone to Williamstown, Mass., to join his family.

THE OFFICIAL NOTICE.

Proposals for the Sale of Bonds Will be Received on Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The following official circular has been issued by the Treasury Department:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15, 1890.

In pursuance of the authority contained in Section 2 of the Act of March 3, 1881, public notice is hereby given that with a view to the purchase of $16,000,000 of the bonds of the 4 per cent. loan of 1907, proposals for the sale of such bonds to the Government will be received at the Treasury Department in the City of Washington, D. C., at noon, on Wednesday, Sept. 17, 1890. The right to reject any or all bids is hereby expressly reserved.

(Signed) WILLIAM WINDOM,
Secretary Treasury of United States.

The President Watching Affairs.

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 15.—The President is still watching closely the threatened embarrassment to financial affairs in New York city. He had a telegraphic conference with the leaders of the House of Representatives, and while nothing of an official character can be obtained, it is understood that the President made his views quite plain on the subject, and there appears to be no doubt that he favors the extension of the bonded period on goods in the custom house to a date which will remove all probability of financial embarrassment to importers. The President's advices from Secretary Windom have all been of a character to leave the impression that the worst of the threatened trouble had passed and that no immediate apprehension need be felt.

Goods in Bonded Warehouses.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Acting Secretary of the Treasury Nettleton, authorizes the statement that after conference with Senate and House Republican leaders, he can say that "it is as sure as any future legislative event can be foreseen that the date for withdrawing goods from bonded warehouses will be fixed at February 1, 1891," in the Tariff bill when it gets into conference. Gen. Nettleton says the President concurs in changing the date to February 1.

The Baptist University Presidency.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 15.—Prof. W. R. Harper, of Yale, who has lately returned from the West, said in reply to a question whether he intended to accept the presidency of the new Baptist University in Chicago: "They are making certain presentations to me, but I am very happy here and not thinking much of going out there. I hope to stay in New Haven for some time to come."

Mother and Babe Drowned.

MANNINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 15.—On Pyle's Creek, near Mannington, while two families were trying to ford the swollen stream in a wagon, the current overturned the vehicle and Mrs. Hughes and babe were drowned.

Three Infant Corpses.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The large pond in the rear of the baby farming establishment of Bernard Claus, at Newtown, L. I., was drained yesterday, and three infant corpses were found lying in the mud at the bottom.

Arrested for a Murderous Assault.

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—John Day, first mate of the bark Oliver Thurlow, was arrested here charged with a murderous assault on one of the bark's crew during the trip from Rosario.

AN INSANE MOTHER'S ACT.

Arrested While Preparing to Kill Her Two Children.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A young woman dressed in black was seen kneeling in front of a lamp post at Third street and the Bowery, praying to God to forgive her for the awful crime she was about to commit.

She had a child 9 months old in her arms, and a little girl 7 years old was clinging to her apron.

A large crowd gathered around her, and she was heard to say:

"These dear children are of no use to me and they would be far better off in Heaven. Take them, God, as I shall be compelled to kill them to-night."

The crowd of people became excited and called Policeman Hock of the East Fifth street station, and he arrested the woman. Then she jumped up and bit his finger. It required the united efforts of three men to carry her to the station house.

She said her name was Caroline Lackman, of No. 253 East Third street, and that two months ago she was deserted by her husband, who is a drunkard, leaving her destitute with her two children. She put them in the House of Mercy and went home to her friends in Connecticut.

She continually worried over her children and returned to New York day before yesterday, removed the children from the House of Mercy and lived with them until last night. Having made up her mind to kill them, she went out on the Bowery to commit the deed.

A CARELESS COOK.

She Attempts to Fill an Oil Stove Without Extinguishing the Fire.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Sept. 15.—Clara Stewart, one of the negro cooks at the Wilson House, this city, attempted to refill an oil stove from a three gallon can without first extinguishing the fire. The oil was quickly ignited and the can exploded, setting fire to the hotel and the clothing of the cook who, enveloped in flames, rushed screaming into the street.

Charles Van Sciver and Albert Warner caught the girl and rolled her in the muddy road until the flames were extinguished. Her face and arms are so badly burned that she will probably die. Van Sciver and Warner were also severely burned.

The hotel was saved only by the most strenuous efforts of the fire department. The loss will amount to considerable. The insurance policy expired last mont.h

Director-General of the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—The local directory of the World's Fair have been in conflict for the past two weeks on the question of authority as to the appointment of a director-general. Hastings of Pennsylvania was thought to be the choice of the National Commission, but it is understood that Smalley of Vermont, who is also a member of the Commission, is in favor of ex-Congressman A. A. Stephenson of Bloomington, Illinois. Stephenson is a Democrat and Hastings is a Republican. Each wants the prize and it is probable that there will be a fierce fight when the Commissioners meet here this week.

Horribly Cut With a Knife.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 15.—Alexander Pickett, aged 19 years, was found lying in a dying condition, at 1:20 a. m., near the Onsary Hotel in Georgetown. He had been slashed all over the body with a sharp knife, and across his abdomen was a gash from which his intestines protruded. The ground near the spot indicated that a desperate struggle had taken place. John Shannon, who was seen with Pickett at a late hour Saturday night, has been arrested on suspicion of having inflicted the fatal wounds.

A Railway Superintendent's Suicide.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 15.—Curtis P. Upson, superintendent of the Pittsfield Street Railway Company, committed suicide by taking two ounces of laudanum. He was 51 years old, and has been in Pittsfield twenty years. He has been manager of the street railway since the organization of the company in 1886.

Fell from a Tree.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept 15.—Albert Lang, 11-year-old son of Charles Lang, lies at his parents' home at the point of death. He climbed into a large "horse" chestnut tree for the purpose of shaking off the chestnuts. He lost his footing and plunged headfirst to the ground, fracturing his skull. He cannot recover.

Fled with $17,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Lewis I Young, clerk to the Health Officer, is a defaulter to the amount of $17,000, and has fled. A further examination of his books may increase this amount. It is believed that Young's relatives will make good the amount taken.

Will Fight To-night.

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 15.—The Warren-Van Hess fight will take place to-night. Warren, his backer and a large delegation of sports will leave this city to-night for the scene of the fight. The ring will be pitched on the New York State line in the vicinity of Knapp's Creek, Pa.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Senate Ready to Take Up Important Measures.

PROGRAMME OF THE CAUCUS.

The Anti-Lottery Bill to be Considered and Acted on To-Morrow.

Several Labor Bills to be Called Up. Contested Election Cases to be Pushed Through the House—The Tariff Bill to be Reported on Wednesday from the Committee on Ways and Means.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Senate this week will work industriously on several bills which head the list of measures which the Republican caucus last week decided should be acted upon promptly and before the close of the session.

The conference report on the Land Grant Forfeiture bill is still unfinished business, and is likely to be disposed of this afternoon. The Anti-Lottery bill, according to the Republican caucus programme, is the next thing to be considered and acted on, and will probably come up to-morrow.

The bill for the relief of the Supreme Court of the United States is next on the list, and this and the bill providing for the transfer of the revenue marine to the Navy Department, which Senator Gray has given notice he will call up on Wednesday or Thursday, and the several labor bills that recently passed the House, and which come next on the list of measures on the Republican caucus programme, are more than enough to occupy the time of the Senate during the week.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

The Tariff Bill to be Reported From Committee on Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Republican leaders of the House have not only determined that the filibustering proceedings which were so successfully carried on last week while the majority was endeavoring to call up the Langston-Venable contested election case for discussion shall not be carried further, but have determined to administer discipline to the minority by pushing through the contested election case of Miller against Elliott from the Seventh District of South Carolina immediately after the Langston-Venable case is disposed of.

The discipline which the Republicans will enforce will consist in limiting the debate to about forty minutes, a vote to be immediately taken when the debate is closed.

In conformity with the action of the Republican caucus the Tariff bill will be reported from the Ways and Means Committee early this week, on Wednesday probably, accompanied by an order from the Committee on Rules setting apart for debate what the committee consider reasonable time. When the time allowed for this discussion has expired a vote on non-concurrence in all the Senate amendments will be taken and the Republican votes will send the bill to conference. It is believed by prominent Republican members, and was so stated in caucus, that the conference reports will be presented in both Houses in less than a week.

The rest of the week in the House will be consumed as the Committee on Rules sees fit. The general Deficiency bill with Senate amendments now in the hands of the Appropriations Committee of the House is likely to be reported back to the House during the week, with disagreements and a request for the appointment of a committee on conference.

Twins All Around.

MITCHELLVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The wife of John Beam, of this place, aged 65 years, gave birth to twins on Monday evening. Her daughter, Mrs. Stratton, who lives in a neighboring township, presented her husband with twins the same evening. Mrs. Stratton's daughter Eva was married a year ago, and lives in Bradford. The friends of Mrs. Stratton and her mother were not through congratulating them over the interesting natal coincidence in their families, when Mrs. Stratton received a letter from her son-in-law announcing that her daughter had given birth to twins herself on Monday evening.

Fighting for Cronin's Slayers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Attorney Daniel Donahue went to Ottawa, Ill., to file the bill of exceptions and the certified copy of the record in the Cronin trial in the Supreme Court on behalf of his client, Patrick O'Sullivan, the iceman. Mr. Forrest also has a bill of exceptions in behalf of Dan Coughlin and Martin Burke, but when asked why he did not go to Ottawa, too, replied that the question must remain unanswered.

Oregon Wants a Recount.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 15.—The Chamber of Commerce, of this city, has issued a call for a State convention, to meet September 18, in Portland, to take steps toward securing a re-enumeration of the inhabitants of the State of Oregon. Resolutions were passed denouncing the inaccuracy of the recent census, which has been abundantly proved, and demanding a recount.

Preparing for the Criminal Term.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Sept. 15.—It is now said the trial of Birchall for the murder of Bennell will commence next Monday. The prisoner shows no signs of nervousness and is as cool when discussing the case as he was at the time of his arrest. He spends his time reading and painting He is so confident of acquittal that he says as soon as the trial is over he will sail for England with his wife to take up a permanent residence there.

HIS TRAGIC DEATH.

Robert Ray Hamilton's Body Found in a Tree in Yellowstone Park.

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 15.—The particulars of the drowning of Robert Ray Hamilton, the central figure in the famous scandal case at Atlantic City, N. J., are furnished by F. O. Green, son of Dr. Norvin Green, of New York.

Green and a hunting party left Beaver Canyon, on the Utah & Northern Railroad, on the Idaho line, August 15, and struck across country to Yellowstone Park. They reached a ranch on the Snake River, which had been purchased by Hamilton with the intention of making it an outfitting station for travelers.

They learned that five days before Hamilton had started out alone on a hunting trip and had not yet returned. Green, on August 23, organized a searching party and started out to find him.

About seventy miles below the ranch Hamilton's body was found in the overhanging branches of a tree in the river. It had evidently been there several days. A mile away his horse, with an antelope tied to a reversed saddle, was found grazing. Near by was his dog.

It was evident that he was drowned while fording the river, which is very high at that point. In his coat were found letters relating to his divorce suit, now pending, and concerning business matters.

Hamilton came to the country some time ago and purchased the ranch with a view of making it his permanent residence. He intended returning to New York October 1 and close up some business matters before returning here to remain.

It is not learned what was done with the body. Green, after the discovery, went through the park to Great Falls and then came here, leaving for the East last night. He was personally acquainted with Hamilton, whose identity is beyond a doubt.

THE HUDSON RISING.

Two Feet Over the Top of the Wharves at Albany.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Never in the remembrance of the oldest inhabitant has the water in the river been as high as it is at present.

With the commencement of the rain a week ago the water began to rise, and this morning it reached a point two feet over the top of the wharves and was rising at the rate of half an inch per hour.

The Mohawk River and all the other streams that are tributary to the Hudson are just at present pouring into it vast quantities of muddy water. No serious damage so far has been reported.

Women Quarrel Over a Hammer.

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Sarah Eustis, manageress of the Italian theatre on North street, was hit with a hammer on the head by Mrs. Antonio Davito during a quarrel, cutting her severely. Mrs. Davito was arrested. The trouble arose over the possession of the hammer. Mrs. Davito's ten-year-old daughter had taken the hammer from her home and tendered it in payment of her admission fee. The mother followed and demanded it of Mrs. Eustis, but the latter refused to give it up unless the ten cents admission fee was paid. A row followed and Mrs. Davito seized the hammer and dealt the Eustis woman a terrible blow.

Cholera in an Ohio Town.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 15.—A dispatch from Carrollton, this State, says an epidemic has been raging in the eastern part of that county for the past week. Saturday Dr. Williams of Carrollton was called in to the home of John Tool, who lives in Washington township, who was taken ill in the morning. He died at four o'clock, of cholera, after intense spasms, and frequent fits of vomiting, purging and other symptoms of that dread disease. Dr. Williams pronounced it a case of genuine Asiatic cholera.

Convention of Street Railroad Men.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The American Street Railroad Association will hold their convention in this city October 15, 16 and 17. Arrangements have been completed for the exhibition of new devices, motors, cars, machinery, etc., pertaining to the street railroad business. Delegates to the number of about 200 are expected to attend the convention, and they will combine many of the most prominent and wealthy men of the United States.

A Princely Salary.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—The Board of Managers of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company have decided to increase the salary of President and General Manager A. A. McLeod to $40,000. This amount is said to be the largest paid to a railway official in the United States with the exception of Chauncey M. Depew, of the New York Central, who, it is said, gets $50,000.

Suing for Many Millions.

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 15.—Suit has been begun by George Weinbiddle, the nephew of General Weinbiddle, one of the founders of this city, to secure possession of property in the heart of the city valued at several millions of dollars. The property covers the city parks and adjacent square, a valuable square in the eastern part of the city.

Serious Runaway Accident.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 15.—While Mr. James Brenaman, Miss Maggie Hamilton and Mrs. A. Phillips were driving, the horses ran away, overturning the carriage and throwing the three to the ground. All were very seriously injured, and Mr. Brenaman will probably die.

A Cyclone in Vermont.

CHELSEA, Vt., Sept. 15.—A cyclone passed over Vershire Saturday night, unroofing barns and completely ruining several fruit and sugar orchards. The highways are closed by fallen trees.

LANDED IN SWEDEN

The Body of Ericsson in His Native Land.

THE CEREMONY AT STOCKHOLM.

One Hundred Thousand People See the Casket Taken from the Baltimore.

The Strikers at Southampton Make a New Demand—Disgraceful Action of English Soldiers—Dillon Prevented from Coming to America—A Cabinet Officer in Italy Forced to Resign.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 15.—The body of Ericsson was removed from the United States steamer Baltimore yesterday and conveyed ashore in a royal barge, which was plainly draped in black.

Upon landing, the casket was carried by sailors of the Baltimore to the pavilion specially erected to receive it. The Governor of Stockholm received the body. After the brief, formal remarks attending the transfer, the body was escorted by an enormous procession to the railway station.

The cortege was headed by the official representatives of the King, the Crown Prince, the American Ministers to Sweden and Denmark, the officers of the Baltimore, bodies of infantry and cavalry, and many distinguished Swedish officials and citizens. At the station the body was placed in an elaborately draped carriage and conveyed by special train to Filipstad, near the great engineer's birthplace. Here the body will lie in state until the public funeral and interment.

It is estimated that 100,000 people witnessed the transit of the body from the Baltimore to the railway station. Minute guns were fired by the shore forts and the Baltimore's guns while the body was being landed. Admiral Peyron, head of the Swedish navy, was in command of the funeral barge, and accepted the body for conveyance ashore.

The harbor was a mass of flags, vessels of all nations doing honor to the dead. The quays and the streets leading to the railway station were thronged with people, who uncovered their heads and maintained a most respectful demeanor.

This evening and to-morrow the Baltimore's officers will be entertained at official banquets and receive other honors at the hands of the representatives of the grateful people. On every side praise of the American people and Government is heard.

On Wednesday the officers of the Baltimore will dine with the King at the royal palace in Drothningholm.

SOUTHAMPTON'S STRIKE.

Firemen and Seamen Take Important Action at a Big Meeting.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The situation at Southampton is chaotic, the various bodies of strikers being at loggerheads, and neither workmen, employers nor the public being able to prophesy to what extent work will be resumed. At an immense meeting of the striking seamen and firemen it was decided that if their latest demands were not agreed to by noon to-day they will abandon the port in a body, leaving numerous vessels without crews.

There are a good many members of these unions, however, who are dissatisfied with the meagreness of the amount paid them by the unions during idleness, and who therefore favor a return to work on the conditions proposed by the owners. It is possible that these malcontents may be strong enough to defeat the practical carrying out of the resolution adopted at the meeting.

Outrages by Soldiers.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The national encampment for rifle shooting at Bisley has been marked by a disgraceful series of outrages committed by the soldiers upon the country people in the vicinity. The farmers have been obliged at last to band together for mutual protection, and a constant feud is the result. Affrays are frequent, and the condition of affairs is so scandalous that governmental interference can hardly with safety be much longer withheld.

A Cabinet Officer Forced to Resign.

ROME, Sept. 15.—Seismit-Doda, Minister of Finance, has resigned. He was recently present at a banquet where a toast to the Irredentists was drunk. The newspapers commented so severely upon this fact that the minister felt it his duty to relieve the Government of embarrassment in the matter by retiring from the Cabinet.

Elopers Arrested.

HAMBURG, Sept. 15.—Vera Odalska, a Russian girl of 14, who had eloped with a man of 45, a friend of her father, after stealing 500 rubles, has been arrested here while buying steamer tickets for America. The girl was sent back to her parents. The man had deserted his wife and thirteen children.

Has Dr. Seymour Fled?

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 15.—It is believed that Dr. Louis N. Seymour, the dentist on Cookman avenue in this place, who was secretly married last April to Miss Marie Ellsworth of Keyport, and who denied she was his wife when she came here last week, has fled to avoid the expense of supporting his wife.

A Brutal Father.

BIRMINGHAM, Conn., Sept. 15.—John Robinson, a blacksmith, beat his 13 year old daughter so severely because she attempted to reply to some of his remarks that she is not expected to recover. He has been arrested.

THE BASEBALL WORLD.

Both Leagues Now Working Hard to Win the Closing Games.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The present week will see the last series of baseball games in this city. After that the League and Brotherhood clubs go West for the last bout. The Bostons will in all probability end where they are. New York and Brooklyn will battle for second place, and the other clubs will content themselves with minor positions.

The past few days have witnessed some remarkable changes in both organizations, and during the remaining three weeks none of the clubs that have a chance to get a place will let up in their playing. In the Players' League Ewing and Ward's men have met with serious setbacks by the superior playing of their opponents and bad weather. They are not dead yet, although they have been badly bruised. Ward has succeeded in getting back into second place, but his lead over the Giants is not surprisingly large. His team is nevertheless much better prepared for a good battle than the New York club. Ewing's pitchers are in a bad way at present. If they recover by the time they face the Brooklyns at Brotherhood Park a bomb may be expected to burst.

In the National League the Chicagos have worried all the leaders lately. They have been playing a remarkably strong game, and its continuance means that neither Brooklyn nor the Booton will end in first place. It is hardly to be expected that Anson can keep up his present gait. When the Eastern clubs go West his club will likely get a setback. He is nevertheless preparing for a staunch battle and will be found a bitter foe to crush at this stage of the game.

The Brooklyns are receding rapidly. Their defeats in Philadelphia were not anticipated, but in baseball the unexpected always occurs. A little more ill luck such as the Brooklyns met with the past week will rob them of the honors they have fought for so nobly. The "Phillies" and New Yorks have started in as record breakers. They have little chance of winning the pennant themselves, but find consolation in preventing some of the others from getting there.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mansfield G. Duckworth will leave the employ of Doane & VanArsdale Saturday to accept a flattering offer made by a prominent Newark shoe house.

A letter received from Mrs. L. B. Boice, of this city, in California, announces that her son Coriell is slightly improved over his condition of a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Albert Hardy, wife of the brother of Theo. H. Hardy of West Second street, died at her home in New Brunswick Saturday evening, after two and a half years of happy married life. Mrs. Hardy had many friends in Plainfield, to whom the news of her death is particularly distressing.

The wedding of Miss Marion Haines, eldest daughter of Samuel A. Haines, of Netherwood, to Count Constantine Pantaleone Balli, will take place October 4. The Count will give a stag dinner at Roseneath September 25. He is a member of the firm of Brown Bros., of New York, London and Paris.

Chas. Willis, of Mountain avenue, is watching with much solicitude the growth of a pumpkin, on his mountain farm, which he intends exhibiting at the coming Inter-State Fair. It is of the "cheese" variety, and already has attained a diameter of twenty inches, and a circumference of five feet, three inches. And it's young yet.

Attacked His Family and Religion.

Trouble among the hackmen at the North avenue railroad station continues. This morning it was especially manifest between James McCormick and Thomas Burns. McCormick shouted "crazy!" in such a way that Burns felt personally insulted, and a war of words ensued, during which McCormick said various unpleasant things concerning the religion and the family happiness of the Burns household. Burns felt hurt and angry at this public announcement of what was not so, but instead of following the dictates of passion and bruising McCormick's features he sought out Police Sergeant Lynch and had McCormick arrested. The case will be heard by Judge Codington to-morrow.

Suit Yourself.

THE STREET RAILWAY ROUTE.

One Resident Who Demands it Should be Located on the Handsome Thoroughfare West of Plainfield Avenue Where the Property Owners Have Already Given the Right of Way.

A PRESS reporter this morning was shown the following letter by the Plainfield Councilman who had received it; copies of which, he said, others of his colleagues were also in receipt of. It certainly shows earnest intent, on the part of the writer, at least to agitate the question of a street railway route, and not let it be finally fixed without the consideration due so important a factor of the scheme. The letter goes on to say:

"It will be very offensive to the residents of the Southwest section of Plainfield if a charter is given to an Electric Railway Co., to run down from Sixth street to Fourth street on Plainfield avenue and out Fourth street thence to Grant avenue. Such a crooked "crank route" would utterly fail to meet the pressing needs of our section now or hereafter, and is sheer nonsense.

"We ask that the company shall be required to locate their road where it is wanted, and where the franchise will also be of greater present and prospective value to our city and to the railway owners, viz.: on West Seventh street from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue, and down Grant avenue to Front street, etc.

"You will see at once how preposterous it would be to fail to compel the company to locate its tracks so as to accommodate commuters and others arriving at and departing from Grant avenue station, who reside on and beyond West Seventh street. The number is considerable now, and increasing, with such accommodations the increase will be rapid. We ask that you will press this point earnestly upon your colleagues; for our daily comfort and natural rights are involved. It is a well known fact that the right of way on Seventh street West of Plainfield avenue has been given for an electric railway. Our people crave the advantage thus to be had, and take no stock at all in the notion that electric street railways injure property. We know better, and that the reverse is true everywhere and always.

"We earnestly deplore the narrowness of those who reside on Seventh street East of Plainfield avenue who oppose the railway being put there, where it ought to be of right, with due regard for the comfort of our people, including themselves, instead of on Sixth street, which is not a main artery of travel and is too narrow. Eighth street and beyond would then be handsomely accommodated also, and the people would have a beautiful route to ride on for recreation and pleasure. When properly curbed and stoned the driveways each side of the tracks would be wider than is now used on the centre where stoned. The street would be handsomer than now, the danger of collisions removed, and the value of property thereon be greater. The electric cars are clean and ornamental, and the wires are not noticed where they are up, smaller and neater than those we have now. If this selfish, narrow and mistaken provincialism must force the railway on to Sixth street, so let it go to be regretted; but whether or not, we, out beyond on Union avenue, want members of the Council to understand that if our desires and interests are sacrificed, there will be a good deal of bitterness created, for in some respects we feel that our wants and rights have been too secondary heretofore, and are becoming aroused.

"The fact that people on a narrow or unfrequented street give the right of way, does not justify Council in allowing an electric railway to be located inconvenient to the people, who have a right to traveling facilities on their main arteries of travel, where they walk now and will want to ride. There is trouble ahead for Councilmen who fail to consider first the legitimate rights of our people and second the proper development of our city, in doing which they will conserve the interests of the railway owners, and of the city as well.

"We want no anaconda crooked nuisance of a railway, running in narrow streets, and on unfrequented highways, and failing to give us accommodation to and from Grant avenue station to our homes on West Seventh street and beyond. If you will kindly co-operate with the Councilmen who represent the Third ward in the matter, you will be honored for it.

"By having a beautiful route our people in the heart of the city will derive great pleasure in using the electric cars day and evening for riding around, as in other cities this is a great source of health—giving comfort and enjoyment as well as income to the railway companies. Electric cars have a larger function than horse cars."

Real Estate Changes Hands.

Among the recent transfers of real estate in this vicinity are recorded the following:

Walter L. Hetfield, exr., Plainfield, to James Flannery, of Scotch Plains, 1 acre land in Fanwood township, $220.

Maria M. Frear, of Owego, N. Y., to Frances Montanye, of Plainfield, lot northeast side Arlington avenue, Plainfield, 155 x50 feet, $2,250.

George M. Phillips and wife of Plainfield, to F. Wilfred Powell, of North Plainfield, lot on Mariners' avenue, Plainfield, 50x145 ft., $275.

—The annual meeting of the New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society will be held at Force's Hotel Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock.

THE PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

The Children Must Attend Their Own Schools.

Especial reference was made the other day from the altar in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, to the standing law of the Catholic church, requiring that the children of Catholic parents attend the parochial schools. The following paragraphs from the utterances of the officiating clergyman, are of interest to the Catholics of Plainfield, particularly the sentence at the end of the first paragraph:

"The population of this parish is about 8,000 or 9,000, and it is a sorry fact that the attendance at our schools last season was only 600. This is shameful and out of all proportion to the children of school age in the parish. Parents must understand that it is a sin for them to send their children to the public schools, and they will not receive absolution in confession while they continue to do so, unless they have received permission from the Bishop.

"Another cause for the comparatively small attendance is that many parents take their children away from school and put them to work of some kind three or four years before they should be disturbed from their studies. Others again are so lenient with their children that they allow them to have their way in staying away from school. Either or all of these reasons account for the fact that we have had a school attendance of only 600, and most of these were very young. The responsibility of parents in this matter is a very grave one, and I put it to their conscience whether they think they are doing right in permitting such a state of affairs to exist."

An Amusing Opera for Wednesday Night.

The "Pearl of Pekin," which is booked for Stillman Music Hall, Wednesday evening, September 17, will be presented by a large and competent cast.

The opera tells of a young Frenchman, Petit Pierre, the quartermaster of a man-of-war at Pekin, who rescues from peril a Chinese maiden (the Pearl), whose father is Pekin's principal mandarin. According to Chinese law anyone who has seen the uncovered face of a Chinese girl must marry her or suffer death, and as the quartermaster has kissed the fair lips of the maiden he rescued he is in a dilemma. In the midst of his trouble the Frenchman is carried off to the mandarin's palace to undergo either marriage to a Chinese girl or torture. He chooses marriage; and his wife, Finette, who is the lively keeper of a restaurant for foreigners, in bringing a basket of champagne to the palace, finds him dressed in Chinese costume, ready to become the husband of the Pearl. She protests, but is reassured by the Chief of the Imperial Tigers—himself in love with the Pearl of Pekin—who conspires with the two women to relieve Pierre of his bigamous responsibility. It is arranged that the Pearl of Pekin shall change costumes with Finette in the final ceremony. In this way Ty Foo, the mandarin, is deceived, but in the third act he discovers the imposture, and orders the Frenchman to be beheaded. Pierre's wife, however, has a happy thought, suggests that her husband die in good humor, and proposes that her basket of champagne be uncorked. The Chinese readily agree to this, and in the midst of their festivities the French vessel, which has been signaled by Finette's waitresses, sends sailors to rescue the quartermaster, and all ends happily.

The Mastiff's Dead, Whether Mad or Not.

The handsome large mastiff owned by J. K. VanNest, of East Front street, and which was bitten by the mad dog which wounded Maggie Quenzer, Mr. VanNest's housekeeper, last Wednesday morning, showed symptoms of rabies, it was thought, today, and was shot, at the request of the VanNest family, by Chas. Field, a neighbor.

That the mastiff would ultimately have become mad there seems to be no doubt, but it has been suggested that to shoot the dog so soon after being bitten was premature. The rats which Dr. Gibier of the Pasteur Institute inoculated from the virus of the dog which bit Miss Quenzer will not develop hydrophobia within nine days after the inoculation, and the rabbits not within fifteen. It is only five days since the mastiff was bitten, a period of time which is considered too short for the development of the disease.

A Good Speech. From a Good Woman Coming.

After the opening services in Reform Hall last evening, President Harper announced that owing to illness the expected address from a prominent temperance lady of Plainfield would have to be postponed to the near future.

The speakers of the evening were George F. Opdyke, Eden Boice and Wm. B. Ayres, all of who ably discussed the temperance question from the standpoint of individual total abstinence and the legal suppression of the liquor traffic. Instances of the havoc wrought by intoxicating drink were vividly brought to mind, and personal responsibility and the obligations of duty were clearly set forth. Each speaker commanded unbroken attention.

A full choir, under the leadership of Mr. Vanderbeek, with George Rogers as accompanist, rendered the best of music.

Good for young and old. We know of no better tonic for the system than Hires' Improved Root Beer. It is delicious, effervescent, sparkling, appetizing, and a helper of temperance. Satisfying the thirst, enriching the blood, and fortifying the system against the advances of disease. A 25 cent package makes five gallons. Sold everywhere.

Boys Wanted Who Want to Sing.

Boys between 9 and 12 years of age who would like to receive lessons in singing and reading music are invited by the Young Men's Christian Association to join a new class to be organized at their rooms to-morrow at 4:30 P. M. E. A. Embury will have charge of this class. Boys who care for music are urged to interest themselves in the matter, as it is believed that the lessons will afford them much pleasure and profit. In payment for their lessons the boys who learn to sing well will be expected to sing occasionally at the meetings of the Association and so make their voices and skill in singing a pleasure and benefit to others.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

ST. PETERSBURG is the only capital of Europe in which the population is steadily diminishing. During the last seven years the inhabitants of that city have decreased by eighty-five thousand.

A BOOK-BINDER in Vienna was called upon to bind a volume of one hundred leaves worth one hundred thousand gulden. Each leaf was a bond for one thousand gulden, the book being the owner's gift to his only daughter.

THE wire to be used for the telephone between Paris and London is made of bronze. It is estimated that the French share of the expense of establishing the telephone will be about one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Enthusiasts believe that all the telegraphic communication will be superseded.

THE largest advertisement in the world is that of the Glasgow News, cut in the shape of flower beds on the side of a hill in Scotland. The words, Glasgow News, can be seen and plainly read a distance of four miles; the length of each letter is forty feet; the total length of the line, 323 feet; the area covered by the letters, 14,845 feet.

THOUSANDS of sweltering Americans would like to live, in the summer months, within a convenient distance of such an ice cavern as has just been discovered in Bosnia, Turkey. The principal grotto contains stalactites five feet in diameter, consisting of the purest ice. The cavern also has several frozen waterfalls, and other picturesque ice formations.

PARIS has a rendezvous where singers wishing to be the fashion meet with a view to engagements. Here a patron can hear the singer she wants for her musicale, or can have her evening programme made out by the manager, at a cost of from one hundred and twenty-five to twenty-five thousand francs. The lowest price for a singer is twenty-five francs. For that a young lady will sing two songs, and the mistress or daughter of the house has to accompany her.

"ALMACK'S" known later as "Willis' Rooms," famous in the history of London society, and the delight of innumerable novelists; the place to which all social aspirations pointed, and into which the Duke of Wellington was denied admittance because he had not on a white cravat or breeches of the proper cut; the scene of great battles with cards between Charles James Fox, Lord Carlisle and other Napoleons of gambling—this classic property is now offered for sale, and worse, nobody seems to care enough about it to buy it. Almack's, it may be mentioned, was christened after its founder, a Scotchman named McCall, who twisted around the syllable of his name.

SOMERVILLE WINS THE FIRST.

The West End Batters Hammer the Ball, But the Crescent Fielders Pull it Down —Consequently, Instead of 8 to 0, the Score Was 2 to 1.

A glance at the (Somerville) list of batters, gives the one reason for the caution that is felt by the friends of the Plainfield team.—The Daily Press, the day before the game.

The first of the series of three games for the championship of Northern New Jersey, between the West Ends of Somerville, and the Crescent League's team of this city, is a thing of the past, yet to this day it is a matter of some wonder why the Plainfield team was not defeated worse than it was. They were away from home, sliding around in the soft mud of a strange field, and the West End's aggregation of sluggers kept the heavy, slippery ball in the air all the time, for the Plainfielders to squeeze and handle with particular care.

It was much easier in the field for the West Ends. Not a ball was batted outside of the diamond within reach of the West End fielders, until the last inning, when a solitary fly went to Carbonell. Harkins pitched a perfect game and but four lonely hits were scored against him. These hits were very like angel's visits to the Crescents in many ways. They were few; they were far between, being one each in the second, third, fifth and eighth inning; and they were most thankfully received, especially the one of Lufbery's in the eighth that brought Hatfield home from second base, which he had reached on four balls and Martin's sacrifice.

As were the Crescents at the mercy of Harkins, so was Gregg at the mercy of the West End batters. Harking struck out the Crescents' heaviest hitters when he chose. Gregg struck out but one—and that was with the help of the only error of judgment Umpire Quinn made during the entire game—while his pitching seemed to be just plain home-made pie for the West Ends. In the fourth inning Farrell, Harkins, Reilley, O'Rourke and Bowes hammered the curves all out of his balls. There were twelve balls pitched to them, and they netted two singles, a double, and long flies to centre and right field, in quick succession.

It will be understood from this state of affairs that the Crescents' outfield must have put up a marvelous and errorless game to hold the victors down to two runs. The outfield got nine flies, on two of which were double plays, and in consequence only four of the West Ends hit Gregg safely. The dropping of almost any single one of these flies would have been most disastrous, yet many of them would have gone out of reach if the ball had not been wet and soggy.

Thus did the Crescents escape a crushing defeat by the good work and good luck of their outfield, and they might have reaped a victory if Jones had not had an off day. The West Ends' two runs were both made in the fourth inning by great luck. Farrell made a hit and then a dash for home on Harkins's two-bagger. This ball was thrown in from the field to Jones at the plate. It reached him on the bound loaded with mud, and he dropped it. Many believe if he had held it he would have caught Farrell. That is not so. He had to go too far from the plate to get the throw in. A few minutes afterwards he tried to retrieve himself by catching Harkins off of third base. Harkins is a big fellow, and in trying to throw over his head Jones threw away over Lee's also. Harkins thus scored, but those fortunate runs were all the West Ends got.

The infield playing of both teams was marred by only one error each. Wiegand dropped the first ball thrown him because he had not discovered it was wet and slippery. Reilley got a little rattled over a ball hit by Lee, on which he could have made a double play; but his three safe hits were ample apology for even a worse error. Lee accepted five chances and Lufbery and Martin three each, without an error; while Farrell's playing was a feature. He had seven chances all handled in fine style, and one especially called forth applause from the rooters of both teams.

As has already been said, the West End outfielders had little to do. The only fly that came to them was McIndoe's in the ninth. It was one of those hits that go over the right field fence at the home grounds. It started the same way, but finding the fence at Somerville much farther, the ball began to swing around towards left field. It was a low sailer, and the five hundred people that watched it could hear it hum. There was no one out, the West Ends were only one run ahead, and McIndoe was already on his way to second. Everybody thought it was Davenport's ball but it skimmed over towards Carby and sailed away towards a vacant spot between centre and left field. Carbonell started after it, but all believed it an impossible catch. After a long run, however, he just reached it with the tips of his fingers not many inches above the grass. That was another thing that won the game for Somerville.

The umpiring of Quinn was entirely satisfactory, but it was a game that anybody could have umpired easily. There was not a close decision throughout. The crowd was most orderly, and the visiting team and their friends were shown the utmost consideration and courtesy. Of the 500 present at least 300 were from Plainfield. The score:

AMONG THE NEIGHBORS.

A PRESS Correspondent Watching Men and Events in New Market Township.

Fishing has proved good sport here for the past few days. Phillip Mitze, standing on the dock of his own premises, caught some very good bass.

The new desks for the school have not yet arrived. They were shipped from Michigan three weeks ago, which does not speak well for the transportation of freight on our railways. I know of an instance recently where a package from Cincinnati to this point was over two weeks on the road.

The question of the change of boundary line in School District No. 3 has been a disturbing element for some time, the only party affected being Nelson Blackford, who has declined to pay his bond tax for 1889. The question as to the date of the change has now been definitely settled as taking effect May 1, 1889, and both County and State Superintendent decide that Mr. Blackford must pay his pro-rata amount of school bond tax until the last bond is redeemed.

Another important decision by the State Superintendent is to the effect that the township must assume and pay all delinquent bond tax, throwing the responsibility of its collection upon the Township Committee, who have not thus far aided much in the enforcement of the rights of the district in the Blackford matter.

I shall watch the subject and see whether any more shirking is done.

BROAD BRIM.

The Jewish New Year.

The celebration of the Jewish New Year—5651 in the Hebraic calendar—was inaugurated last evening with the usual impressive ceremonies. The festival "Rosh Hashana," or the New Year, is universally observed by the Jewish people, orthodox and reform Jews uniting alike in the festal celebration. The festival is celebrated on the first day of the seventh month (Tishri.) The manner of observing the festival is by complete rest from labor and by participating in the synagogal services, which are of great solemnity and impressiveness. The distinguishing service is the sounding of the "Shofar," or ram's horn, which is symbolical of the sounding of the "Shofar" at the giving of the law on Mount Sinai, and is intended to remind its hearers of the Day of Judgment and to rouse them to repentance and preparation for "Yom Kippur," or Day of Atonement, which follows closely upon "Rosh Hashana."

Sweet Harry Woodruff Never Out of Style.

In a list of "Men who dress exquisitely" the New York Press makes appropriate mention of a son of S. V. F. Woodruff, former manager of Hotel Nethergood, who is remembered by many Plainfielders:

"Oddly enough"—says The Press—"actors dress less well throughout than any other class, most of them being utterly indifferent to the state of any garment that does not meet the public eye. Of course there are notable exceptions. There is Mr. Sothern, for instance, who is always dressed with absolute perfection; there is Herbert Kelcey, who is the 'glass of fashion'; there is Lawrence Barrett, who is exquisite in all the details of his apparel; there is dear, pretty, golden-locked Harry Woodruff, who is always attired in the height of fashion, and Francis Wilson, who is ever scrupulously clothed a la mode."

Tried Hard for the Crescents' Grounds, But Were Refused.

What is considered the most disgraceful feature in base ball circles is the female sporting crowd now traveling over the country giving a burlesque of the sport. The women cannot play base ball, and never will be able to learn how to play the game. It is safe to say that nine boys in knickerbockers, picked up at random, could defeat this women's team without any difficulty. The exhibitions are disgraceful, and some think ought to be stopped by the police. The manager of the females tried to get the Crescent League grounds for the women's team, but, like other reputable base ball inclosures, they were refused to them.

—At the meeting of the Plainfield Common Council this evening three subjects will receive special consideration—street railway matters, the water-works question, and the proposition to audit and pay city laborers' bills every two weeks instead of monthly.

AN APPETIZING SIDE-DISH.

A NEW invention in musical instruments is a violin piano. A case containing six violins, two violas and two violoncellos resembles a pianoforte frame. The instruments are connected by circular bands, which are brought into contact with the strings by means of the keyboards, the hammers of which bear upon the bands with varying pressure.

IN a certain section of California there is said to be a portion of railroad exceedingly unique in its construction. Where the railroad passes through a deep ravine, the trees have been sawed off on a level with the surrounding country, and the road-bed has been formed upon their stumps. At the very bottom of the ravine stand two immense redwood trees, which have been sawed off at a height of seventy-five feet.

THERE are four letters in the Pencoyd (Pa.) post-office, the addresses of which would puzzle most people. They are as follows: "Ann Herrn Karl Durst, Penkoyd, Contri Montogamri. Stadt Penselfenie, Phieladelfia, Nord Amerika;" "Yohan Krosh, Penkoid, Upps-st., Penselfenie, Nord America;" "Mr. Pant Bukkvoy, United St. Amerika, via England, Montgnmore, Penoboyed;" "Ar. Hern, Yosep Kandroe, Contri Montgumri, Pencod, Nord-amerika, Pa."

"WHEREVER you find petroleum you won't find mosquitoes," said an oil country man. "The infernal insects can't stand the smell of the grease, and wherever oil wells are plenty there is no call for mosquito bars. Over and over again I've seen mosquitoes leave a new oil field as soon as a well flows. Whether petroleum applied to the face and hands will drive off mosquitoes I don't know. But one of the few compensations of the driller is that he's seldom troubled by mosquitoes."

HONG TEE is an ingenious Chinaman who has constructed and put in operation in the Chinese quarter of San Francisco a complete telephone and electric system. He has a telegraph office, an electric-light plant, an electric storage outfit, and every other appliance known to modern science in a little rookery up three flights of stairs. He derives his power from storage batteries put up by himself. Incandescent lights produced by Tie's own process light up the place brilliantly at night, and he has electric bells and calls of his own manufacture at his disposal.

THERE is a negro living in Scriven County, Ga., whose home is a huge log. This log is twenty feet long and five feet in diameter. It is divided into three apartments, one of which is occupied by the proprietor's three hogs. The negro occupies another, and the third is filled with hunting and fishing apparatus. The negro makes his livelihood by hunting and fishing. His clothes are of skins of wild beasts and he lives alone by himself. His two dogs are the fiercest to be found anywhere. He procures his ammunition by bartering game with the employes aboard the Savannah river boats and the passengers.

THE quantity of meat thrown overboard into the Atlantic is very great, says an English paper. Out of 185 cargoes of animals sent to British ports in one year from Canada, consisting of 61,092 head of cattle, 61,382 sheep and 75 pigs, 658 cattle, 1,170 sheep and one pig were consigned to the deep during the voyage. Of the 432 cargoes imported from the United States to this country, comprising 138,661 head of cattle, 30,317 sheep and 17 pigs, 1,570 of the first and 857 of the second class of this live stock were thrown overboard during the voyage, thus numbering 4,856 animals which were pitched into the sea for the year.

POULTRY PLUCKINGS.

LICE must be kept down. The fowls will not fatten as long as they are lousy.

POULTRY, if well managed, will make as cheap meat as any thing that can be secured on the farm.

ESPECIALLY with fattening fowls, make it a point to feed regularly. Fowls soon learn their feeding time and will be on hand.

A SUPPLY of road dust to use as a dust bath during the winter and to scatter under the roosts as an absorbent will be a help.

IT is necessary that the hens should have warm, dry, comfortable quarters in the fall and winter if a regular supply of eggs is secured.

IF the fowls are fed for market without penning, those that are to be kept for breeding should be separated or they will soon get too fat.

FOR ordinary diarrhea put a teaspoonful of chalk mixed in a tablespoonful of boiled milk, with a pinch of cayenne pepper, and give this mixture in the morning and at night to the affected bird. Do not allow other drink while ailing.

EXERCISE is an all-important factor that must not be lost sight of. If your fowls are confined to small runs, so that they do not get the proper amount of exercise, their grain feed should be buried under straw or chaff, causing them to hunt it out for themselves.

A SIEVE is a very useful as well as necessary article to keep about the coops. The pail of ashes may seem to be fine enough to please the daintiest hen, but sift them and sharp cinders will come on top and can be useful used about the runs. The finer ashes are, of course, used for dusting. If the ashes are mixed with dust or fine dirt, some claim they are better, claiming that wood ashes are too strong—that they mar the luster of the plumage.

CROWDING the fowls in the coop may save space and expense of coops, but it results in ten per cent. of dead fowls before they arrive at distination. A cup for water should be at every corner of the coop, and each fowl should have room enough to move from one point in the coop to another freely. The food is not so important as the water, and unless you have water at every convenient point in the coop the fowls will not know where it is and can not drink, the consequence being that they perish of thirst.

LITERARY AND ART GEMS.

A VALUABLE diary relating to the poet Cowper has just been discovered at Olney.

THE original manuscript of Captain Cook's "Voyage Round the World," 1768 and 1771, on board his Majesty's bark Endeavor, with the captain's autograph on the last page, was sold at the sale of the Cozens manuscripts for thirty-one pounds.

A COLLECTION of glass flowers, made by a secret process by a Dresden firm, and representing all the families of plants in North America, will soon adorn the botanical shelves of Harvard University. Nearly four hundred specimens have already been received, and they are said to be very beautiful.

THE authorities of the Louvre are about to put on exhibition the fragments of an ancient and valuable mosaic. It measures two by fourteen metres, and was brought to France by M. Renan in 1860. Up to the present time this valuable art treasure has lain hidden and forgotten in a cellar of the Louvre.

THE new edition of Ruskin's poems will fill two volumes, in consequence of the inclusion of a large number of hitherto unpublished pieces. The best accounts represent the mental condition of the author as deplorable, he having attempted suicide several times during his fits of depression, and requiring constant watching.

A STATUE of Apollo has been discovered at Samos. The head is wanting, but the rest of the body is intact. It is of archaic style, the arms hanging down close to the body, the hands closed, and the feet, as it were, in motion, the left foot being a little in advance of the right. On one of the thighs is a dedicatory inscription of two lines.

THE famous "Tinted Venus" has been recently sold for $9,185. She was the work of Mr. J. Gibson, who in fashioning her endeavored to imitate the Greek colored statues. Those who have seen the Venus say that the cold white marble was made to look very passably fleshy by the use of paint. The statue when first exhibited attracted wide attention, but was looked upon in the light rather of a curiosity than of a model for further imitation.

A WILL made by Frederick the Great in 1741 during the first Silesian war was printed in the first volume of "The War of Frederick the Great," just published in Germany. It reads as follows: "I am only King as long as I am free. If they kill me I wish my body to be burnt in Roman fashion and my ashes to be inclosed in an urn at Rheinsberg. In this case Knobelsdorf (his architect) shall construct a monument for me like that of Horace at Tusculum."

MR. WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR possesses two books which have no duplicates. This are his own historic novels, Valentino and Sforza, interleaved and illustrated with water-color drawings, pen-and ink sketches, and illuminations in gold and silver, all done at his own suggestion and expressing his own ideas. The artist is Major David E. Cronin, who is one of the best of living illustrators, and the beautiful volumes are said to have cost three thousand dollars each.

AMERICAN MEN OF PROMINENCE

SENATORS Ingalls and Carlisle are warm personal friends.

SECRETARY TRACY'S hair has turned from an iron gray to a snow white in the last twelve months.

JUDGE LAMAR recently visited his first home in Georgia, and slept in the room where he was born.

SENATOR GEORGE, of Mississippi, has a head of long, flowing hair that waves picturesquely about when he is excited.

MR. POWDERLY dresses neatly in black, and his linen is always clean and spotless. His head is bald and he wears gold-rimmed spectacles.

WITH reference to security in fast travel across the Atlantic, Depew says it gives him more concern to ride in a cab from his house to the steamship dock than it does to cross the ocean.

MINISTER PITKIN is making a reputation in Buenos Ayres as a literary light. He recently delivered a lecture on "The Fools of Shakespeare" before the cream of the Argentine capital's society and produced a strong impression on his audience.

PRESIDENT HARRISON received his invitation to attend the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the admission of California into the Union in the shape of a plate of solid gold with the State coat of arms in relief on it in enamel and gold, and the words of the invitation finely engraved on the surface. The invitation, by a coincidence, came on the President's birthday.

N. A. MCDAVID, of Fellowship, Fla., carved out a "rebus" on the end of an orange cane which translated is the name of President Harrison. On one end of the handle is the head of a hare, near the center is an eye, then a sun. Putting them together the symbols spell Harrison. The cane is elegantly finished in oil and has been sent to the President by C. P. Haycraft.

SENATOR HAWLEY possesses, in handsome binding, George Washington's own copy of the statutes of the First Congress, which met in New York in 1789. The book is printed by Francis Childs and John Swaine, of Philadelphia, printers to the United States. It has a large, handsome page, but the paper has changed color with curious irregularity in the hundred years of its existence.

THOMAS EDISON is said by an intimate friend to be a kind of intellectual debauchee; he riots in his inventiveness. So absorbed is he in this that he frequently forgets to take his meals or go to bed. He spends eight, ten, even twelve hours in his laboratory without tasting food and often sleeps in his chair. One unacquainted with Edison would regard such habits as the precursors of insanity, but they who know him have no fears. Intense, protracted thought seems to agree with his constitution. He is almost always in the highest health and never better than after a season of remarkable productivity.

RELIGIOUS MATTERS.

FAITHFUL SERVANTS.

The high-toned Sons of Mammon boast their churches aroad and high,
Whose window-panes are gems of art, whose steeples pierce the sky;
Whose highly-polished pews can boast the upholsterer's nicest care,
And in whose vast interior wealth shows plainly everywhere.
The pastor is a gentleman of courtly, solemn mein,
Of deep scholastic knowledge and reasoning clear and keen;
He deals in well-turned periods, and advances ideas new,
But in my thinking he is not a missionary true.

Our blessed Saviour, while on earth, taught not in temple grand;
He gave no heed to pomp and wealth—He owned no foot of land.
His chosen ones were men of toil, who earned the bread they ate,
And followed humbly after Him, well pleased with their estate.
Their dwelling was the broad, bare earth—their covering the sky—
Their task to teach the vicious how to live and how to die.
With simple faith they gladly went where there was work to do,
Each strong in love and charity, a missionary true.

And some brave ones are treading now the path the Saviour trod—
They seek the vicious in their dens, and point the way to God.
Once sunk in crime and anguish, now they've found the priceless gem,
And tell the vile in simple phrase what Christ had done for them.
They take the drunkard from the street, and strength to him impart;
They argue with the felon till they reach his flinty heart;
And many a crime-stained, guilty wretch a convert is enrolled,
And many a sincere penitent is gathered in the fold.

God bless these brave, unselfish men who labor for their kind,
They may not be so full of grace, so learned and refined
As others who are working in the vineyard of the Lord,
But when their labor endeth they will meet their true reward.
"Well done, good and faithful servants!" will be the verdict given;
"Come up, ye humble workers, and enter into Heaven!
For in our blissful mansion there's a place prepared for you,
Come up and reap thy guerdon, ye mission aries true."

—Francis S. Smith, in N. Y. Weekly

GOD'S BOOK AND OURS.

The Human and Divine Elements in the Bible.

There must be a human element in all books, since all are written by men. But the Bible proves itself super-human, as well as human, just because it is the most intensely human book in the world. It is fuller of human nature and truer to it than any other book. The Bible is among books what Jesus of Nazareth was among men. He showed that He was more than man by being the most manly of men—by being the model man of the race. No mere man could have been so perfect a man. And no book written by uninspired men could be so full and accurate in its pictures of humanity.

The Bible is a mirror revealing the human heart. It is an epitome of the history of the race. As men felt in Bible time, so they have felt in all ages since. What men did in Bible times, they have been doing ever since. Do you want an example; do you want a warning? You can find it in the Bible. Do you want to know what to do in any fresh emergency? You can find a precedent in the Bible. The Old Testament is sometimes called the Sacred Book of the Jews, as if it were narrow and national. But every reader knows that even when giving the annals, the genealogies and the title deeds of a peculiar people, it is a microcosm, a history of the world in miniature. Its grandest characters—Abraham, Moses, David, Daniel—are not Hebrews or Jews so much as they are men. In studying their lives you always forget where and when they lived. You think of them as the heroes, teachers and models of the race.

God's Book and ours—these four words give us the key to many things that seem mysterious. Those long lists of names—what do they teach us? God regards families as well as individuals. He loves the children for the father's sake. He wants us to cherish the memory of the wise and good who have transmitted to us the blessings of His grace. We put our family records in our family Bibles. Where did we learn to do that? From God Himself. He did not think that the pages of inspiration were too precious or too holy to preserve the genealogies of His people. So we write on blank leaves between the two Testaments, our names, the names of our parents, the dates of births and marriages, and of the deaths of our kindred; and we feel that to these human interests he God of the Bible can not be indifferent.

Scholarly critics do not take into account sufficiently that the Bible must be most thoroughly human, just because it is divine. They are tempted to try and get rid of parts of it that seem to have no moral or spiritual significance. But the great heart of humanity gladly accepts the Bible just as it is. With all in it that the critic calls rubbish, or regards as only the vein stone to hold the precious metal, the Bible has gone for centuries into millions of homes, and few readers have thought that it was too large or too small, too minute or too comprehensive, too human or too divine. The masses of intelligent and pious people have welcomed it as just the book they needed, and have found springs of living water even in such seeming deserts as Leviticus and the Chronicles. The common mind doesn't receive truths best in a didactic form. It needs illustration and repetition. God meets this need with the patience of a loving father. He tells the story over and over again; He puts the promises and warnings into varied forms of speech, and presses them by affluence of illustration and example. All the sixty-six books that He inspired He brought together, and has kept together by a succession of providences. He wants us, then, to have the Bible as it is, and the Christian world agrees with Him in this. It has no patience with the conceited sciolists, who would hack and hew this living word to suit their ideas of a revelation. A scientist is reported to have said, when lecturing on Ichthyology: "If the Creator had consulted me when He made the fishes, I could have given him some valuable suggestions." So certain men seem to think about the Bible. They would make a better one for us out of the old one by cutting off what they call human excrescences. They might as well take a living man and try, with knife or razor, to make his form and features more symmetrical. As they could not cut anywhere without reaching sensitive nerves and veins full of blood, so they can not cut into the Word of God, into Deuteronomy or any other part, without mutilating that which God has given us as "truth and life," and which He has declared "liveth and abideth forever."—Interior.

MURMURING.

Remember the Goodness of God Before Complaining of Him.

Faith in God produces a contented and happy state of mind. The believer knows that God is always dealing with him in mercy. He knows that He is just and good, that He is righteous in all His ways, and that whatever He sends upon us is for the best.

In the case of the believer there are no adverse providences. All things are working together for his good. If personal affliction is sent upon him, it is sent in mercy. If he suffers worldly losses, the result in the end will be lasting gain. If he does not prosper in business as he had hoped, he does not fret and complain. He does not think that some strange things has happened unto him, or that this is a cruel dispensation that thwarts his cherished plans, and brings loss when he had hoped for gain.

Murmurers do not consider that their discontent grows out of their selfishness. But it does. They think more highly of themselves than they ought to think. God's benefits are forgotten, or if thought of at all they seem less than they should receive. If they felt as they should their own unworthiness, their language would be: "The Lord hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities." When the hand of the Lord is laid upon them, they would not fret and murmur, but would say: "Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?" They would be thankful that the affliction is so light, and the Divine support so great, and would express their gratitude in the words of the prophet: "It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because His compassions fail not."

The Christian should consider that this is not his rest; that here he must toil and suffer; that here he is but a pilgrim in a strange country; that his pathway through life at best is rough and rugged; that hindrances are to be overcome; burdens are to be borne; trials are to be endured, and only when life's day and labor are over is the reward to be received.

When Israel murmured against Moses they were reminded that their murmuring was in reality against God. They blamed Moses for bringing upon them what they supposed were great trials and hardships, when God was subjecting them to just chastisement for their sins, and dealing with them in covenant love and faithfulness. If they had considered, when chiding Moses, that they were distrusting God and exhibiting an ungrateful and rebelious spirit toward Him, they would hardly have dared to manifest so much discontent.

If we will only observe, when inclined to murmur, how much we have to be grateful for; how pleasant has been the way by which God has lead us as compared with the rough and thorny paths which others have trodden; and if, when we number our days, we reflect how many of them have been bright, joyous days, how few have been the nights of weeping, and how often joy has returned with the morning light, will we not cease our complaints? "Wherefore doth a living man complain?" Is it not enough, that we are living, to silence every murmur? Protected by our Father's hand, our wants supplied by His bounty, our souls saved and sustained by His grace, our pathway cheered by His presence, and our souls resting in His love, we will not complain on account of needed chastisement or the smitings of divine love. "Neither murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed by the destroyer."—United Presbyterian.

Alone with God.

Christian life in our day is full of activity. It finds pleasure in planning, giving and working for the growth of Christ's Kingdom. The spirit of consecration gives joy to all Christians who recognize it, and inspires confident hopes in the aggressive movements of the church. But it conceals also a great peril. All Christian power springs from communion with God, and from the indwelling of divine grace. One can do good to others only as his own heart pulsates with love to Jesus, and has a present experience of His love. We can impart only what we receive. Any spring will run dry unless fed from unfailing springs. Any Christian labor will be fruitless, and Christian zeal be like sounding brass, unless the soul waits daily upon God, and finds new strength in prayer and in the study of the Bible.—N. Y. Observer.

Forbearance of Christ.

What tenderness was ever shown by our Lord! How patiently He bore with His disciples in the slowness to understand and in their doubts and mistakes! While men would have stoned a transgressor He spoke words of hope. When Peter denied Him He made sure that he especially should be told of His resurrection. So all His earthly life told of His compassion and forbearance, and knowing that He is "the same yesterday, to-day and forever" we may have hope that in our infirmities and failures we shall find the same tenderness manifested.—Christian Inquirer.

BILLY GOATS.

P. Nuckle Tells What He Knows About Them.

I HAVE been doing a light jobbing trade in miscellaneous jokes and paragraphs for some time, and have never yet said a word about goats. Having had a little experience in the goat line, I am aching to tell it, and it seems to me as though my previous good conduct ought to have a palliating effect on this, my first offense. But, be that as it may, if I am ever going to breathe my experience to the world, now is the accepted time. The grand jury will be in session in Chicago next week; and if I wait, my opportunity will be lost forever. Now, anybody who don't want to hear what I have to say on the goat question may get out and walk.

Early last spring, the Mulford family, next door to us, got a kid. Not a real, live, human kid, but a genuine goat kid, like gloves and chamois skins are made of.

AS NATURAL AS LIFE.

Nevertheless, the Mulfords thought as much of that infant goat as if it had been one of their own kids—of course, it was their own kid—as if they had had a kid of their—hang this slang business, anyway! It's always getting a fellow into trouble.

Well, the Mulfords thought as much of that kid as if it had been a poodle dog, or a pet cat, with a personal history. They nursed it and coddled it, and fed it nice things, in a way to make a person wish he was a kid again. No, not again—wish he was a kid. The way the Mulfords used to talk up that kid was a caution. I can see it now, in the cool, calm deliberation of thought that distance lends; but, at that time, I absorbed so much of the enthusiasm from next door, that I began to think that goats, as a class, were a much maligned race, and I began to look with suspicion upon the paragrapher who poked stock fun at the goat family. I began to impugn his motives and to fight shy of him. Now, I think, as Sheba said of Solomon, the half has not been told. It was after I had been brought into this first condition of mind that Mrs. Mulford came over one day and asked us if we couldn't keep "dear little Hiawatha" for them for a few weeks. Mrs. Mulford breathlessly explained how they had been invited to visit Mr. Mulford's sister's folks at the sea-side, and that she was "just dying to go," but, of course, couldn't take little "Watha" with them, and that she wouldn't think of leaving him with any one who wouldn't take good care of him. But she knew we would be so kind to the little fellow, and so she felt she could trust him with us. It didn't take very much persuasion to get our hearty consent to look after the kid as though he were one of our own little ones. So, after leaving numberless directions as to little Hiawatha's diet, hours for sleep, bathing and general exercise, all of which we promised to faithfully carry out, the Mulfords left for the seashore.

It did not take Hiawatha long to get acquainted with our family; in fact, he seemed to know us real well from the start. As we became acquainted with Hiawatha's many traits of character, we found that a wild fondness for society was one of his most notable characteristics. He was always under some one's feet. My wife declared "the little dear was lonesome," so I let it go at that. Another rapidly developing characteristic about Hiawatha that worried me more, was his passionate and continuous longing for grub. My wife excused it by saying "the little dear was growing." There was no denying that fact; Hiawatha was growing. I could notice it every day. Still, it did not seem as though the rate of growth justified Hiawatha's appetite.

The Mulfords had been gone just a week, when my wife met me one evening on my return home, with a terrified face, too terrible to look at. "Hiawatha," she exclaimed, breathlessly. "Hiawatha's got the croup, and I know the poor thing will die. He's in the nursery. Hear him wheeze."

Hiawatha did wheeze, for a fact. You could hear him breathe all over the house. The kid stood on the baby's bed, in the nursery, apparently unconcerned enough, breathing away like a bag-pipe, and looking for something to eat.

"I can't understand it," exclaimed my wife. "This attack came on so suddenly, and I've done everything I could think of for it; hot applications and all, same as we do for baby. Besides, I've been so careful about Hiawatha's food and exercise ever since we've had him. I can't understand it."

I suggested "castor oil." I knew I'd have to say something, and castor oil was all I could think of.

"Do you think it will do any good?"

"Of course it will," said I. "Go and get some."

When the castor oil was brought, I poured out about half the bottle in a saucer. My wife offered to put a little on his tongue, if I held him, so he couldn't run away, and held his mouth open wide. Hiawatha listened while all this plotting was going on, and submitted with very good, because unsuspecting, grace, while I pried open his mouth. Hiawatha wheezed louder than ever. My wife gritted her teeth to prepare for the ordeal, and held the dreadful dose to his lips. As soon as Hiawatha whiffed the stuff, he struggled hard to break away from me, but not away from the castor oil. He stuck his nose deep into the saucer, and in exactly two gulps and three laps he had swallowed the whole of it. Then Hiawatha jumped down from the bed, walked into the center of the room, gave a few convulsive, wheezy coughs, and produced baby's rubber rattle, with a whistle in the handle. I never saw such a remarkably short cure of a severe case of croup in my life.

After awhile, Hiawatha's tastes got more patrician, as his ideas became broadened, and his intellect developed. Only the choicest bric-a-brac suited his fancy. By the middle of August, he would no more think of eating a rubber baby rattle than he would have thought of fasting. The finest sachets were none too good for him. Linen doyleys and piano covers were his usual diet on week days, with something like a memorial pen-wiper for Sundays.

Any one would suppose that after a goat had devoured a lunch basket cover, six yards of wire picture cord, a bolt of wall paper, and such highly fatal food products, that he would learn better; but "Reform" never occurred to Hiawatha as being a first-class watchword. He simply ate on. He grew so after awhile that he could scratch his back on the bottom side of the table and look longingly up into our eyes as we ate our frugal meal. Then, in his whole-souled, frank way, he would reach up on the table and help himself to the best the market could afford.

It was one hot day, in the latter part of August, that Hiawatha met his fate. The Mulfords had written that they would be home the next week, so we were anxious Hiawatha should get into as good condition as possible, and guarded his appetite accordingly. After refusing his mute appeal for a third piece of pie at dinner at that day, Hiawatha calmly butted over the baby in his chair, an' walked out upon the front porch. Revenge was in every feature. He was determined upon something desperate. He would eat the first expensive thing that struck his eye, so he stalked past the hammock, reached up and grasped a thirty-five-cent tin thermometer between his teeth, and swallowed it at one gulp. Hiawatha had seen us examining the thermometer several times during the morning; and so, in his subtle intellect, he reasoned the thermometer must be like a piece of Limoges ware, in which we took particular delight.

"A WILD FONDNESS FOR SOCIETY."

Hiawatha walked proudly around, master of the situation, for two hours, when his internal heat worked the mercury up, and out through a defective place in the top of the tube, and little Hiawatha died soon thereafter.

After it was all over, I got to thinking how badly we had been treated by Hiawatha; and yielding to the importunities of a patent medicine man, who was something of a taxidermist, I sold him. I thought it better Hiawatha should be stuffed, than to be cut up and made into four-button gloves.

When the Mulfords got home, in answer to their request for Hiawatha I had to take them down to Dr. Gilead's office. There, on a table in his front window, stood Hiawatha, as natural as life, with this inscription pinned to a card on the side of the case:

MERCURIAL POISONING KILLED THIS GOAT!
WHAT WILL IT DO FOR YOU?
BEWARE OF ALL BLOOD-PURIFIERS CONTAINING MERCURY.
GILEAD'S BALM IS GUARANTEED PURE.

My wife and I were very much shocked, but the Mulfords looked on indifferently. "Little Hiawatha" had out-grown their memory of him, and they didn't appear to realize their loss.—Light.

CHAT ON CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE Emperor of Japan is having a State coach built for himself, at a cost of $175,000.

A JAPANESE paper has been suspended and its two editors sentenced to four years' imprisonment for "menacing the peace of the country."

TYPHOID fever is very rare in China. Sewers are unknown in that country. The refuse and sewage matter is collected in the cities by men who carry it in pails on a yoke, and sell it to the farmers.

EVERY fairly large house in Tokio has its own bath-room; but, besides this, there are no less than 800 baths in the city Tokio, where 300,000 persons bathe daily at a cost per head of 1 sen 3 rin, or about a half-penny.

THE Japanese suffer from many special diseases, due to a too exclusive diet on fish and rice and to the want of exercise, especially from indigestion, but they escape a great many by their exquisite personal cleanliness.

RECENT very trustworthy calculations of the population of the Chinese Empire by Russian authorities reckon it at 382,000,000, and the annual increase at 4,000,000. Not one in ten thousand ever heard of the religion of Jesus Christ.

SMOKING is so common in Japan that all of the men, and most of the ladies, smoke, the girls beginning when they are about ten years of age. The ladies have pipes with longer stems than the men, and if one of them wishes to show a gentleman a special mark of favor, she lights her pipe, takes a whiff, hands it to him, and lets him smoke.

JAPAN commenced railway building in 1870, and at the end of last year had 10,402 miles in operation, with 874 miles more under construction. About one-half of the mileage is owned by the Government. The rapid progress made by this enterprising country is in striking contrast to the timid conservatism which has prevented her great neighbor, China, from allowing the locomotive upon her soil with the exception of the building of a few miles of local road chiefly for coal transportation. While Japan is prospering, infused with the spirit of the nineteenth century, China is still centuries behind the rest of the world.—Railway Age.

INEXPLICABLE PHENOMENA.

FIFTEEN years ago, when a gentleman began the culture of bees, he suffered severely from stings, but they have now lost their force. For several years past they have caused only a slight and rather pleasurable sensation, and that lasts only for a few minutes. But this thorough inoculation against bee poison leaves him as susceptible as ever to the sting of a wasp.

THE largest known springs are those bursting up from the ocean floor. Off the coast of Florida, in the Gulf of Mexico, a few miles from the shore, a large spring of fresh water rises to the surface, furnishing water to the fishermen and sailors, who dip it up in the midst of the salt water of the gulf. A few miles from the eastern shore of Florida, nearly opposite Matansas, a large spring of fresh water boils up in great abundance.

THERE is a wonderful well down near Del Norte. The force of the water brings up from the depths an occasional lump of native silver or a gold nugget. Local scientists claim that at a great depth and under enormous pressure the water is washing away a ledge of rock whose softer parts go into solution and give the water its mineral qualties, but whose gold and silver, not being dissolved, are brought to the surface in a metallic state.

A BALDWIN COUNTY, Florida, boy while swimming in the river was seized with an itching pain, which exhausted him immediately, and had it not been for his playmates present he would have drowned. After coming out of the water his arms and body commenced to swell until the boy presented an "inhuman" appearance. Physicians were summoned, who were at a loss to know the cause of the boy's peculiar condition, but suppose he in some way came in contact with something poisonous. The sufferer continued to grow worse until death relieved him of his pains, which were very severe.

ATTAINMENTS OF THE TITLED.

PRINCESS BEATRICE is writing a book on lace, to be illustrated by herself.

THE Czar of Russia is a collector of postage stamps and bird's eggs, and plays the French horn, and is a clever performer on the piano.

THE small Archduchess Elizabeth, daughter of the late Crown Prince of Austria, is said to be growing exactly like her mother. The little girl is an enthusiastic entomologist, and never leaves the Castle of Laxenburg, where she lives, without a butterfly net.

PRINCE LOUIS OF BATTENBERG formerly took a fancy to the career of a printer, and became so far a master of his profession as to set up type in a highly commendable fashion. Subsequently, when the star of Battenberg rose to its zenith in the political firmament, Prince Louis relinquished his unpretentious calling and became an officer in the British navy. A short time ago, when serving on the Dreadnought, it occurred to him to turn his early training to account, so he printed a history of the Dreadnought and presented a copy to each of his shipmates.

ALL the royal family of England have some artistic pursuit. The Queen is musical, paints, models, and is learned in lace. The ex-Empress Frederick pursues both sculpture and painting. The Prince of Wales understands ceramics, bronzes and bric-a-brac, and dallies with the banjo. The Duke of Edinburgh is a violinist, and a collector of postage stamps and other curios. The Duke of Connaught studies the art of war with enthusiasm, and gathers coins, autographs and Oriental treasures. The Duke of Albany was a Shakespearian scholar and collector. The late Princess Alice, Princess Christian and Princess Louise followed painting and modelling from their girlhood, while Princess Beatrice, though an indifferent artist, would have made her fortune on the stage.

STILL UNCONFIRMED

No Further News About Robert Ray Hamilton's Death.

EVA'S LAWYER SAYS HE LIVES

General Schuyler Hamilton Anxiously Awaiting Definite Particulars.

The Tragic Death the Principal Topic of Conversation—Speculating on Eva's Dower Rights—Her Attorney Says She Will Have the Use of One-Third of Her Husband's Real Estate.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Although no more definite news regarding the reported death of Robert Ray Hamilton has been received by his friends in this city, it is generally believed that the man whose corpse was found entangled among the branches of a tree overhanging Snake River, Idaho, was Hamilton, and that he met his death through the slipping of his saddle girth.

General Schuyler Hamilton, the father of Robert, said that he had been anxiously awaiting some definite news, and that the suspense was more than he could bear. He had taken no steps toward recovering the body of his son, or ascertaining positively that he is dead, because the distance is so great that he was certain complete details of the accident would reach here long before any messenger could get to Idaho.

Speaking of the sad situation General Hamilton said in a voice that trembled a little in spite of himself: I have been wounded in the war with bullet and sword and am not unaccustomed to shocks, but this is the hardest trial I have ever been called upon to face. You can readily understand how hard this uncertainty is for a father to bear, and I am entirely at a loss as to what I can do. I have not seen my son since last May. If it prove that the report which we now hear is true I shall, of course, have the body brought East, and buried in our family plot at Greenwood.

His Death Discredited.

Col. Charles W. Fuller places little credence in the report of Robert Ray Hamilton's death. He said last night at his home in Bayonne, N. J.: "I don't believe Mr. Hamilton is dead. There is some mistake about it. The whole thing looks very 'fishy' to my mind. I read the account of the alleged finding of his body in Snake river in the papers and the facts do not strike me as being either plausible or probable.

"I tell you I don't believe he is dead at all. If he is dead the manner of his death must have been different from the accounts given of it. Why, let me ask, should a man go on a five days' hunting expedition unaccompanied? It is not customary to do such a thing.

"Of course if Mr. Hamilton is dead the fact will have to be proved before they can administer upon his estate. If he left a will he may have left his property in such a way as to cut Eva out of a third of his personal property, but no one can deprive her of her dower rights. If he is dead she will at least be entitled to the use of one-third of his real estate as long as she lives. Mr. Hamilton's property, I understand, is mostly in real estate."

How Eva Received the News.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 16.—When Head Keeper Patterson and his wife, the matron of the prison, broke the news to Eva Hamilton she became greatly excited and asked for further details. One of her first questions was whether the lawyers would contest her right to her putative husband's property. Then she asked the warden to allow no one to see her, and her request was granted.

If Mrs. Hamilton's presen good behavior continues she will end her prison life in May next, and if the Court of Pardons at its next session takes a more favorable view of her case than it has so far done she may be released at an earlier day.

Baby Hamilton.

Baby Beatrice Hamilton, who has been so much talked about, is at present with Mrs. Roop, at No. 459 Franklin street, Philadelphia. The child has been provided for by Mr. Hamilton, who seemed to feel that he was bound to care for the little one. He had given the child his name, and it therefore had a claim upon him. Last Christmas he sent Baby Beatrice two pins of gold and turquoise and an illustrated story book which related the history of "Little Lord Thumb and his man Damian." He sent a letter with the presents to Mrs. Roop, in which he inquired about the health of the child, and requested Mrs. Roop to give it the best of care, as he was interested in its welfare.

After American Counterfeiters.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16.—Superintendent Bell, of the United States Secret Service, arrived here last night accompanied by two detectives. They are after counterfeiters who have located in Canada. Mr. Bell says that a gang of the most clever American counterfeiters have been located in Ontario for some time, and have been issuing not only the ordinary "green" goods, but also a lot of well executed imitations of old coins. The detectives claim to know the whereabouts of the gang.

Destructive Fire in Lynchburg.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 16.—Lynchburg was visited by one of the most destructive fires known for years. Half a block on Main street was wiped out in which were the Western Union telegraph office, Kinckles boot and shoe store, Crump & Larkins dry goods establishment, Crafts cigar store, and Lewis & Jennings grocery. Several parties narrowly escaped death and two women were injured by the breaking of a ladder.

THE PRESIDENT'S OUTING.

He Will Remain in the Mountains All This Week.

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 16.—The President has decided that he will not return to Washington this week unless he is obliged to do so on account of pressing public business.

The weather having become very invigorating he desires to take advantage of it to the last possible moment. The President brought with him from Washington a budget of data referring to the River and Harbor bill. When the bill reaches him he will be prepared to consider it and reach a prompt decision.

It has not yet been learned here whether or not the bill has been approved by Speaker Reed. There are good reasons for stating that President Harrison has not yet definitely determined whether it will be necessary to call an extra session of Congress.

Hon. John W. Mason, Commissioner of Internal Revenue visited the President by invitation. The two gentlemen had a long conference on current topics and arranged to fill several vacancies which exist in the Internal Revenue service.

KILLED BY ELECTRICITY.

The Horrible Sight Witnessed by a Theatre Audience in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—As the audience were leaving the New Park Theatre at about 11:15 last night, a lineman was seen to climb the electric light pole in front of the theatre, and many stopped to watch him.

Suddenly it was seen that something was wrong. The man became limp, and the sizzle of burning flesh was heard by the crowd below, who stood horrified.

It happened that Superintendent Fipps of the Brush Electric Light Company, had visited the theatre. He came out at this moment and taking in the situation at a glance, procured assistance and released the man from his terrible position. But the victim was past all help and died before he reached the hospital, whither he was taken as soon as possible.

It was learned that the man's name was Kopp, but no other information concerning him was obtainable.

The Dead Miner Found.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 16.—The body of George Ford, a miner, was found this morning. His lamp had set fire to gas in No. 3 shaft at South Wilkesbarre last Friday. At the time, Ford was standing on the edge of the bucket, which was of iron, eight feet high, and hung in the shaft 200 feet from the bottom. It was supposed that the shock threw him to the bottom, and as the shaft was badly wrecked, the bucket was not drawn to the surface.

Charged With Infanticide.

WARSAW, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The case of Anna Schirm, charged with infanticide in killing her babe in Attica last November, was called in court here. The district attorney moved that the trial on this charge be allowed to go, and that she be tried on the second indictment, which charges her with concealing the birth of her child. The judge ruled in accordance with the request and a jury was obtained. The trial is proceeding to-day.

Connecticut's Democratic Convention.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 16.—The State Democratic Convention is in session here to-day. Three names are mentioned for Governor: Guzon B. Morris of New Haven, Ex-United States Treasurer James W. Hyatt of Norwalk, and Col. William H. Stevenson of Bridgeport. It is generally thought among the best observers that Morris will be nominated.

Money for Strikers.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Secretary Hayes, of the K. of L., arrived in this city from New York last evening. He had with him a large sum of money, but said that he was not at liberty to say how much. The money was distributed among the strikers. One man claimed to have received $18, and another said that each had received $5.

Assault With Intent to Kill.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 16.—Marshal Frey's men promptly arrested—"from a description telegraphed"—John Baker, a Hungarian, who is wanted at Pottstown, Pa., on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Baker was arrested as he alighted from a train at the railroad station.

No Alarm Felt at Troy.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Although the water is rising fast, the State dam is pronounced perfectly secure and no alarm is felt. Storehouses along the river front have adopted precautions, The water is over the docks, and lower portions of the river front buildings are flooded.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Tariff Bill Sent to a Conference Committee.

NAMING THE HOUSE CONFEREES

The Speaker Expected to Announce the Committee This Afternoon.

Chinese Unlawfully in This Country Must Return to Their Native Land. Mr. Kennedy's Speech Called Up Again. It is Generally Believed that the Money Stringency is Over.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The House received the Tariff bill with Senate amendments from the Ways and Means Committee, and after two hours' discussion voted to non-concur in the Senate amendments and send the bill to conference.

No little speculation is being indulged in as to who will be the House conferees upon the Tariff bill. It is expected that Speaker Reed will announce the appointments this afternoon. It is probable that the list will include Messrs. McKinley, Burrows or Dingley, Payne, of New York, and Gear, of Iowa, Republicans, and Messrs. Mills, McMillin and Flower, Democrats.

Inasmuch as the House committee has reported in favor of extending to February 1 the time when duties may be paid upon goods imported previous to the passage of the bill, it is anticipated that the House conferees will insist upon this provision. The Senators, too, are expected to concur.

The very strong probability that the Senate conferees will concur with the House in the amendment extending to February 1 the time within which goods imported before the enactment of the law may be taken from bond at the present rate will, in the opinion of the Treasury officials, do much toward quieting the flurry in the New York money market.

TO RETURN TO CHINA.

Chinese Unlawfully in this Country Must Go to Their Native Land.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The Treasury Department has informed the Collector of Customs at El Paso, Texas, that "the department has decided that the law providing for the exclusion of Chinese contemplates the return to China, as 'the country whence they come,' of Chinese found and adjudged to be unlawfully within the United States, whether they entered from China direct or from an intermediate country, and that such Chinese should be returned to China via the port of San Francisco, Cal., as the most convenient point of exit from your district."

A Move Against Mr. Kennedy's Speech.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—In the House Mr. Enloe of Tennessee rose to a question of privilege and offered the following resolution: "That the Clerk of the House be directed to communicate to the Senate the fact that the House reprobates and condemns the utterances of the Hon. Robert P. Kennedy, a Representative from the State of Ohio, delivered in the House September 3, reflecting upon the character and integrity of the Senate as a body." At the request of the Speaker, Mr. Enloe withdrew his resolution for the present.

The Money Stringency.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—It is thought here that the money stringency is over. The most potent factor is the prospective extension of the period for the withdrawal of goods from bonded warehouses to February 1. General Nettleton said that he thought this latter measure afforded fully 50 per cent. of the relief, and that the danger had been passed.

Lynn's Gain in Population.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The Census Office announced the population of Lynn, Mass., to be 55,684. This is a gain in the last ten years of 17,410.

Bigamist Utter Pleads Guilty.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Sept. 16.—In the county court, Judge Beattie presiding, Ernest V. Utter, the bigamist, was arraigned. Wives number one and two were in the court room. Utter changed his mind in regard to his guilt since last term and pleaded guilty. He was remanded for sentence. Seeley W. Utter, indicted for assisting Ernest to escape from Middletown jail in the attire of wife number two, was discharged.

Canada and the McKinley Bill.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—It is reported that the Dominion Government will shortly announce the abolition of export duty on pine logs, in order to meet the alternative provision in the McKinley bill relative to Canadian sawed lumber. It is calculated by officials here that the McKinley bill will reduce Canadian exports to the United States by at least $10,000,000 per annum and imports to a proportionate extent.

A Railroad Station Agent Drowned.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 16.—F. W. Hunt, the New York Central station agent at Jordan, this county, was found lying face downward with his hands extended at the bottom of the stream known as the Skaneateles outlet. He was subject to heart disease, and it is supposed, that a sudden attack coming on he fell headforemost into the water.

Struck by a Train and Killed.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 16.—Jonathan R. Wilson, a leading citizen of Rohrerstown, was struck by a passenger train while crossing the track at Swarr's Crossing, and instantly killed.

FINED $500.

The Case Against Hale for Shooting Cowles at an End.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 16.—When the case of C. C. Hale, of Cleveland, Ohio, charged with shooting with intent to kill his brother-in-law, Eugene H. Cowles, in this city, last June, was called in the court of Queen's Bench, the counsel for the prisoner said he wished to withdraw the plea of not guilty of the charge and substitute one of aggravated assault.

The opposing counsel accepted the plea and said they were unwilling to prosecute. Judge Cross summed up the case and said he would impose a fine of $500, which was promptly paid, and the case came to an end.

Switchmen in Convention.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association of North America is holding its fifth annual convention in Central Labor Union Hall. Heavy Election Expenses.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The Police Commissioners held a long secret session to consider how much money will be required for election expenses under the new ballot law. It was said that the election would cost the city about $450,000, or $150,000 more than last year under the old law.

FIGHT IN THE CORTES

A Priest Assaults Major Serpa Pinto in Parliament.

GREAT EXCITEMENT AT LISBON.

Shops and Offices Closed to Hear the Debate on the African Agreement.

Report of Wholesale Robbery and Murder in Cuba—An Insurrection Feared. Dock Masters May Advance Wages at Southampton—Bread Riots Expected in Italy—Moussa Bey Captured Again.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The reassembling of the Cortes caused great excitement throughout the city, as a stormy debate on the Anglo-Portuguese treaty was expected. Shops and offices were closed and thousands of citizens of all classes wended their way to the Parliament buildings, which were besieged by an enormous crowd, clamorous for admission, hours before the session opened. The authorities had taken precautions against disorder, but official interference was unnecessary, as the crowd was well behaved.

Soon after the opening of the Cortes Senhor Ribeiro, Minister of Foreign Affairs, moved the adoption of the Anglo-Portuguese treaty. He began to read the various modifications which the Government had adopted in order to assuage the public hostility to the treaty, but before he had gone far he was silenced by the progressist minority, the opposition members hissing and hooting so vigorously that the Minister could not make himself heard.

Amid the tumult Major Serpa Pinto arose and shouted to the progressists, "Hold your tongues!" Upon this a progressist priest named Brandao assaulted Serpa Pinto, and a lively pugilistic encounter ensued. The President was utterly unable to restore order, and finally suspended the sitting.

When the Cortes reassembled Senhor Ribeiro introduced the English convention, with several modifications.

The House referred the convention to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, whereupon the progressists moved that Lieutenant Continho, who seized the steamer James Stephenson at Chiromo, deserved the confidence of the country.

TROUBLE IN CUBA.

Sensational Report of Disorders, Open Brigandage, Pillaging and Murders.

MADRID, Sept. 16.—The newspaper Imparcial of this city publishes an article in which a very sensational aspect is given to the affairs of Cuba, with the result of creating a good deal of a scare in some quarters, although many attribute the highly colored news of disorders in the Spanish dependency to political exaggeration.

The Imparcial describes the island as in a state which almost amounts to anarchy, and gives particulars of the disturbed condition of the country on what is apparently reliable authority.

It quotes the most flagrant cases of open brigandage, prints accounts of the pillaging of railway trains and the murdering of passengers by the highwaymen, tells of the burning of farms by desperadoes and overwhelms its readers with records of all sorts of crime, which it represents as rampant throughout Cuba. It states that commerce is ruined and that the public is hopeless of redress, and expresses the fear that unless Spain takes immediate and energetic measures she will find herself involved in another great insurrection.

It is generally believed here that there is ground for this alarming report, but how much is doubtful, while in diplomatic circles the account is received with considerable doubt, and later news is awaited with some concern.

Moussa Bey Captured.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 16.—Moussa Bey, the Kurdish Governor of Armenia, who was sentenced to exile for the outrages perpetrated by him upon Christians in that province, and who escaped from custody some time ago, has been captured near Brussa, fifty-seven miles southeast of Constantinople. He broke one of his legs in attempting to escape from the police.

Bread Riots Expected in Italy.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—A dispatch from Rome says that there is great industrial stagnation in Italy, particularly in the larger cities. The number of the unemployed in Turin, Genoa and Bologna is so large that the authorities are alarmed, and it if feared that unless some remedial action is soon taken bread riots and other disorders must ensue.

The Dock Companies Come to Terms.

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 16.—It is now announced that the dock companies are willing to grant an advance of wages to the firemen and seamen. This may lead to a speedy termination of the lockout.

Betting on To-Night's Fight.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 16.—Betting on the Bowen-Carroll fight, which will take place to-night before the Olympic Club, has been very lively to-day. The pool-rooms received several thousand dollars from the north and west to place on Carroll, and betting, which had been 11 to 10 in favor of the Englishman, rose to 5 to 4. Bowen's friends accepted the offers rapidly and bets were soon laid at even money until the Carroll money in the pool rooms was exhausted.

Over 105 Years Old.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—Mrs. Frances Constantine died at West Manayunk, last night, aged 105 years and 6 months. She was born in Philadelphia. Her first husband was killed in the war of 1812.

AN EX-RABBI BEATEN.

Attacked While at Prayer in the Synagogue and Thrown Into the Street.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 16.—Ex-Rabbi Max Roden, of the Polish Synagogue, was beaten during the morning while at prayers, and thrown bodily into the street. He was deposed last week because he opened a butcher shop and tried to get the trade of the congregation. A new rabbi, Moses Skonwitschki, of New York, is now officiating.

Roden entered the synagogue with Harris Adolphus. Their right to remain in their seats was disputed. They resisted, and both were beaten and thrown into the street.

They have made complaint against seven members, who will be arrested. Adolphus charges Henry Feglestein of larceny of the buttons which the latter tore from his vest during the assault.

The Murder of Councillor Rossi.

BERNE, Sept. 16.—The killing of Councillor Rossi who was shot at Bellinzona, Canton of Ficino has been traced to a radical named Costijitone who has fled.

THE LATEST LIE OF ALL.

John Kean, Jr., Has Not Bought the Plainfield Water Contract, but the Shoe May Eventually be Put on the Other Foot.

It is not necessary to tell the people of Plainfield that any statement that the franchise of the Water Works Co., of Plainfield has been transferred to John Kean, Jr., or anyone else; or that the contract is sold to him or anyone else, for $30,000 or any other price; is false. The people did not see it in THE PRESS, so they know it is not so. But some of our contemporaries less wise than the people may copy the falsehood as a fact.

In the first place it is thoroughly impossible for Contractor Moore to sell out, or even transfer, the franchise, because it has been granted to the Water Works company of which he is only a representative. It would be as ridiculous to say that Carman Parse had sold the charter of the First National Bank to John Kean, Jr.

Then, too, the contract is absolutely unassignable without the consent of both parties; and probably the most important party to it is the city. Until the city gives permission the contract can not be sold or bought, and such permission has never been asked by Contractor Moore or the Water Works Co.

A PRESS reporter saw Contractor Moore this morning. He was busy explaining certain specifications to his foremen regarding the work now being done. In answer to the question whether he had heard the report that he had sold out his contract to John Kean, Jr., for $30,000, and that suits against him had been discontinued and judgments arrested as a part of such deal, he said: "I have not sold, assigned or turned over in any way, the Plainfield water contract or franchise to John Kean, Jr., or anyone else. I have not seen John Kean, Jr., for some time. There are no suits against me to my knowledge, to be discontinued; and there is no judgment against me anywhere. I did not meet John Kean, Jr., yesterday at any place or at any time.

"I could not sell or transfer the water contract if I wanted to, because it is not mine. It belongs to the Water Works company, and even they could not sell or transfer it without the consent of the city that gave it."

Inquiries elsewhere succeeded in discovering not the slightest foundation for the false report that John Kean, Jr., had bought the contract for $30,000, and the proceedings of the Council published elsewhere, show that the story was a lie. In fact future developments will probably show that the deal will go the other way. Instead of John Kean, Jr, and the Water Supply Co., absorbing Charles K. Moore and the Water Works Co., the latter combination will take in the former.

This is as it should be. The city's enemies through the news and by action brought before the Supreme Court, have cast a blot upon the contract of the city of Plainfield with the Water Works company. Until the legality of the contract is finally settled, the Water Works company (although possessed of all the money necessary to complete the contract) naturally do not want to continue the work under a contract that might be annulled, and thus leave them with the job half finished but with no authority to proceed under except the general law for corporations which has no provision to prevent every petty property owner along whose front the mains might run, from obtaining an injunction to stop the work.

Therefore a meeting was held in the office of the Corporation Counsel, last evening, and the Water Board heard the statements of both the Water Works Co., which has a contract amenable to a law that is questioned, and the Water Supply Co., which has a charter which is a law unto itself. The Water Works Co, is willing to let the latter in on the strength of the charter they hold, which in the possession of the Water Works Co., would give it all the standing and protection it may now lack. Then if the law is set aside the work can be continued under the charter.

THE PRESS has taken the position it has in this matter from purely philanthropic motives mixed with an appreciation of the credit due Contractor Moore for the gallant fight he has made against the money and power of one who endeavored to so financially cripple and choke him that he would be compelled to break his faith with the city and betray the friends who had formed the company back of him. It is consequently a source of congratulation that the position of things has been reversed. Instead of the very favorable contract that the City has secured through the efforts of Councilman Newhall and others, being wiped out and the works completed under the charter that is bound by no restrictions for the good of the people; the charter will be made use of only as a protection to the carrying out of the contract and its provisions. A few weeks ago, as stated in these columns, John Kean, Jr., was offering stock in the Supply Co., if the Water Works Co., would get down and out. Thanks to Contractor Moore's brave stand, the shoe is now on the other foot. The Supply Co., will be the one to step down and out, and its members will be permitted to come into the Water Works Co., upon the surrender of their charter thereto.

TWO CHILDREN POISONED.

An Almost Fatal Illness Attributed to the Eating of Cheap Candies.

Asa Collier's two children became violently ill, a few days ago, and for a time were considered in a dangerous condition. They gave every symptom of having been poisoned, either by arsenic or by some similar substance. Dr. T. S. Davis administered antidotes and saved their lives. No others in the family were ill, and the cause of the poisoning was a puzzle. It is surmised however, that the young people had eaten some of the cheap candies which school children get hold of, and which are often highly colored and flavored with poisonous substances.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram C. Hooley, has a little sister now.

James Allen Sangston is in town again for a short vacation before going on the road for the wholesale drug trade during the Winter.

John B. Sharp, of Newark, and Josephine Talliant, of North Plainfield, were married by the Rev. C. B. Mitchell at the M. E. parsonage on Grove street, last evening.

M. H. Brandon, of West Front street, has entered his black gelding Wichita in the races of Tuesday, Sept. 23, at Waverly, and J. H. Fosher has entered Frank F. for Wednesday, Sept. 24.

Miss Minnie French, daughter of L. M. French of Craig place, has entered the Freshman Class at the Woman's College at Baltimore, of which Dr. J. B. VanMeter, formerly of this city, is President.

The Rev. Father Connolly, parish priest of Montville, a suburb of New London, Connecticut, and well known in this city, where he had numerous relatives and friends, died very suddenly Thursday afternoon last from neuralgia of the heart. Funeral services were held in the church of which he had been the late pastor, on Sunday, at the conclusion of which the remains were conveyed to Meriden, Conn, his old home, and where his mother now lives. Yesterday morning services were held in the church of St. Rose of Lima, at Meriden, thirteen clergymen taking part in the ceremonies, and the singing being rendered by forty choristers. The edifice was crowded to its utmost capacity. The remains were interred in the family vault. He was thirty-six years of age, and out of the class of students that were ordained with him, but one now remains.

Will the Crescents Beat the Yankees, Thursday?

Gregg and Jones will be the battery on Thursday against the Norwich team, and the rest of the nine will also be just the same as that which played against the West Ends, Saturday. The Connecticut men will come loaded, as they want to win this inter-State contest more than any game they have played during the season.

All who saw Saturday's game are satisfied that the Crescent team has more sand than any combination of ball players on the diamond today. They were deep in the mud of a strange ground, and the ball was being banged continually over their heads, yet they never broke but held the West Ends down to two scratch runs. Any other team under the same circumstances, would have gone to pieces in the fourth inning.

Consequently there is much hope that that same nine on Thursday will uphold the honor of New Jersey against Connecticut. A fine game is assured anyway. The Norwich battery, Ryan and Hackett, are said to be a "piece of work" that it is a great treat to look at.

A Newark Wedding Adorned by a Plainfield Bridesmaid.

One of the largest social events and prettiest home weddings that ever took place occurred on Wednesday evening at Brick Church, N.J., at 7 o'clock, at the residence of Edward Wilde, No. 9 Prospect street, the contracting parties being his youngest daughter, Miss Edith Beatrice, and Luther Pomeroy Bryant, of Northampton, Mass. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George W. Smith, of Hackettstown, brother-in-law of the bride. The ushers were Messrs Fred Robley and Elston French, of Orange. Misses Annie Belle Smith and Alice Cary, two little wee-tots carried baskets of flowers, which they strewed before the bride. They led the procession, wearing white mull dresses and white sashes, made Marguerite style; two bridesmaids followed, Miss Ida Wilde, the bride's sister, and Miss Harriet French, of this city. A very pretty and artistic feature was an aisle formed by six young ladies holding ribbons through which the bridal procession passed.

The Carpenters and Joiners Present Bryant School With a Flag.

The American flag now waves over all Plainfield's schools when in session. Just after the noon hour of today, the pupils and teachers of Bryant school met in their assembly hall, where the Rev. A. R. Dilts, presented the school with a handsome flag from the Carpenters & Joiners Union of this city.

The exercises that ensued included the singing of national hymns and addresses. The Rev. Dr. Hurlbut accepted the gift on behalf of the Board of Education, and J. B. Probasco, M. D., another of the Trustees, made the closing address. The scholars passed a vote of thanks to the Union and closed by singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

TO FULFIL THE CONTRACT.

The Water-Works Company to Consult With the Water Board in a Plan for Avoiding Litigation and Finishing the Works.

Every member of the Plainfield Common Council was present at last night's special session. Besides the auditing and payment of several street laborers' bills only two matters came up—the street railway project, and the water-works question.

All that was done concerning street railway matters was the granting of the request of the Plainfield Street Railway Company to change their proposed route so as to go from LaGrande avenue through Richmond street, to Third and to Peace.

Concerning the water-works, Councilman Newhall, Chairman of the Water Board, reported that as a result of the consultation between the Board and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, the following notice had been served on the Water Company:

To the Water Works Company of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—You are hereby notified that the corporate authorities of this city insist upon the full and entire completion of the contract between the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield and the water works company of Plainfield for the construction of water works in said city, in strict accordance with the terms thereof and within the time therein limited, and that in case of any default on the part of said company action will be taken forthwith both against said company and its sureties.

The city is advised that the writ of certiorari granted by the Supreme Court in the case of the State, Israel Lewis, Prosecutor, against J. Herbert Johnston, et als., does not operate to prevent the continuation of work under said contract, and the city hereby gives notice that it will resist any claim for extra allowance of time on account of said suit. Demand is hereby made for payment on or before September 15, instant, at 2 P. M., for the sum of $1,000 now due under clause 58 of said contract.

By order of the Water Board as empowered by the Common Council.

CRAIG A. MARSH,
Counsel to the Corporation.

Dated September 12, 1890, Plainfield, N. J.

Mr. Newhall added that no response had yet been received. In view of the legal proceedings and apparent delay in the progress of the works, he continued, the Water Board had thought it wise to suggest to Supervising Engineer Rudolph Hering that some arrangement be made by which the monthly payments to Hering could be discontinued for a time. In response Mr. Hering had sent the following:

To the Plainfield Water Board:

GENTLEMEN:—I of course consider that I am personally bound to supervise the construction of the water works until their completion, as per my contract with the city. But in view of the situation as stated by you, if the work is indefinitely stopped, I consider it but right and proper to have the monthly installments cease till work is resumed.

Yours truly,
RUDOLPH HERING.

Mr. Newhall further stated, that he had just received from the Water Works Company, the following letter:

To the Honorable Council of the City of Plainfield:

SIRS:—In view of the litigation now pending in the Supreme Court relative to the contract for a water-supply awarded to this company in December, 1889, and the probable delay consequent thereon, this company desires to place before your honorable body a plan for the practical carrying out of the essential features of said contract within a short time and without the embarassment of further litigation.

Through lack of time we are unable to present this plan in a formal manner at to-night's meeting, but we hold ourselves ready to explain the matter in open meeting this evening, by our counsel, or by a formal communication to your Board at some future time. We can only add that as the season for out-door work is rapidly passing away the negotiations should be entered upon at once.

THE WATER-WORKS COMPANY OF PLAINFIELD,
CHAS. K. MOORE, Attorney in fact.

On motion of Mr. Hetfield the entire matter was referred to the Water Board for the Board to report on at the next meeting.

Hoerster Acquitted.

The charge of selling beer to a minor, made against Eugene Hoerster by Marshal Rutledge, was tried before Justice Hardy, last evening. There were four witnesses sworn for the complainant—Lewis Sprigg, Jr., to whom it is alleged the illegal sale was made; his brother and two others.

Mr. Jackson, of Jackson & Codington, was counsel for Hoerster. On cross examination by Mr. Jackson, Lewis Sprigg admitted that before Hoerster sold him the liquor he asked him if he was over 21, and that he informed Hoerster he was. Two of the other witnesses for the borough admitted young Sprigg appeared to be over 21, and one said he himself had offered him a ticket to vote at the last election under the impression he was of full age. On his own behalf Mr. Hoerster swore he honestly supposed young Sprigg was of full age, both from his appearance and statements. Under these circumstances Mr. Hoerster's counsel claimed he could not legally be convicted. Justice Hardy took this view of the law and discharged Mr. Hoerster.

SHALL WOMEN BE ADMITTED?

An Important Election to be Held Soon in Methodist Churches.

An unusual event will take place in the Methodist churches throughout the New Jersey Conference, Wednesday, Oct. 29. An election will be held in every church of the conference, and men and women will be allowed to cast their ballots together for or against one object. Already the election has been announced in many of the churches, but many members do not understand its significance.

At the last session of the General Conference of the church in 1888 there was a lively discussion over the admission of women as delegates to the conference. There were two or three elected from the Pacific State, and they demanded seats with the other delegates. For several days the discussion waxed hot, one side declaring that to thus endow women with the legislative function was contrary to the teaching of scripture, and the other holding that as women were invaluable in the church work, they should be allowed to present their views as delegates in the conference. When the vote was taken there was only a majority of three in the lay delegation against admitting the women, but a majority of thirty-three in the clerical delegation. This was a close vote on a question that was looked upon as very important in church government. To settle the matter in the future, the conference decided to submit the question to the annual conference throughout the country, and through them to the individual churches. The New Jersey Conference last Spring fixed October 29 as the day for the election. The result will be important to the church. There are a great many women of the church who are opposed to the movement, and there are many men who favor it, so the voting will be not confined to women on one side, and the men on the other. The ministers of the various churches are required to announce the election several times from their pulpits.

State Scholarships for Plainfield Pupils.

Notice has been read in the Plainfield public schools regarding the provision made by the last Legislature for scholarships in the State College, Rutgers Scientific School, at New Brunswick. In the college are maintained four full courses—civil engineering and mechanics, chemistry and agriculture, electricity, and a special course in agriculture. Appointment to a scholarship entitles the student to a full four years course. Under the law today there are scholarships for every Assembly district, which ambitious students in the public schools can try for.

The County Superintendents have charge of the examinations, and from them circulars may be secured setting forth the standard of knowledge required in candidates.

The law provides that if several properly-qualified candidates for appointment pass the examination from the same Assembly district all who are suitably qualified shall receive appointment to such free scholarships, excess from certain Assembly districts being counterbalanced (as they will be) by vacancies in other Assembly districts, provided only that the entire number of appointees shall not exceed the entire number of free scholarships created by the State.

Popular and Appreciated Wherever He Goes.

(From the Quincy, Ill., Journal.)

Fred G. Wheatcroft, of Plainfield, has been in Quincy and about THE JOURNAL office for nearly two months. He was sent out by Potter & Co., to put up and start THE JOURNAL'S new machinery—and most excellently well has he done his work. Mr. Wheatcroft is a good mechanic. But he is something better than that—he is a good man. He is master of his business—and in a modest, patient, kind, obliging way he has taught us all that he could. Not many men are willing to do this. While looking out for his employers' interest, he has at the same time taken great interest in our welfare, and has done everything he could to make our start a successful one. Potter & Co. will never send out a truer man than Fred G. Wheatcroft, or one who will more creditably represent them. This acknowledgment is made because it is due to a deserving man. Mr. Wheatcroft has won the respect and esteem of every one about THE JOURNAL office, and will take back with him the sincere good will of us all.

The Bookmakers' Juries to be Struck on Friday.

Judge VanSyckle, of Union county, on Friday will supervise at Elizabeth the drawing of struck juries to try the indicted bookmakers and the officials of the Linden Park Association and the New Jersey Jockey Club. A strong effort is to be made to secure convictions, if possible. The Union County Prosecutor is to have the aid of some noted lawyers of the State in the conduct of the trials, which promise to be decidedly interesting. Subpœnas have been served on all the indicted parties to appear on Friday at the jury drawing.

Messrs Marsh and Newhall's Turn.

It is a matter of mystery why the news should make an attack upon the Corporation Counsel and Councilman Newhall in the Water Works matter. The paper states in effect that Contractor Moore "hoodooed" them into making a contract, all in his favor, under which the city has no protection nor rights that the water works company is bound to respect. So false a statement must be made through pure cussedness.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

NO WELL-BRED person ever jests or sneers at things which are sacred in the eyes of even the humblest person.

THE environments of earth are the scaffolding of character, through which man may build to the skies.

OLD Gentleman—"Have you Goldsmith's Greece?" Book Clerk (stiffly)—"You'll have to go to a harness-maker's for grease, sir."

WAITER (at the club)—"There's a lady outside who says that her husband promised to be home early to-night." All (rising)—"Excuse me a moment."

A HEARTY laugh, occasionally, is an act of wisdom; it shakes the cobwebs out of a man's brains and the hypochondria from his ribs far more effectually than either champagne or blue pills.

LONGEVITY—"Longevity? I should say longevity did run in the family," said Mrs. Spriggins. "Why, John was six foot two, Bill was six foot four, and George he had more longevity than any man I ever see. He was six foot seven if he was a foot."

"GRAND singer, isn't he?" said the hostess to one of the guests. "Unfortunately, the room is too small, and he can not let out his voice." "I think he ought to let it out; it would certainly sound better outside, and it would do it good to get the air."

PERCY, who was just out of skirts, was one day strutting around in his first suit of jacket and trousers, when a lady remarked: "Hello! I guess some one has some new clothes." With crushing force came the reply: "Them ain't clothes—them's pants!"

"WHERE does that new dentist reside?" Policeman—"You mean the one who extracts teeth without pain?" Stranger — "Yes." Policeman — "Go round the corner. You will have no trouble in finding his place. You can hear his patients yell a mile away."

A LEARNED man has said that the hardest words to pronounce in the English language are: "I made a mistake." When Frederick the Great wrote to the Senate: "I have just lost a battle, and it's my own fault," Goldsmith said: "His confession shows more greatness than his victories."

FIRST DUDE—"How is it that you get invitations to balls, parties, weddings, and like festivities?" Second Dude—"It is the simplest thing in the world, my dear fellow. When I suspect that any of my big-bug acquaintances are going to give a blow-out, I tell them that I shall be out of town. They imagine it is safe to invite me. They do so, and lo and behold, I bob serenely up. Strategy, my boy, strategy!"

ALL real progress is slow. Sudden jerks give a backward impetus and but little eventual gain. The lessons learned in youth, and seemingly forgotten, bear fruit in maturity. The struggles to do right that seem so hard and so often ineffective are steadily leading to the state where right-doing is a pleasure. The efforts we make for any worthy object may not seem successful to-day or to-morrow, but they are a part of the grand work that is going on slowly but surely, and no one of them can we afford to lose.

A FRENCHMAN was walking calmly along, when from behind he received a blow from a knife just between the shoulder-blades. The wounded man turned quickly round and displayed to the horrified would-be assassin a face quite unknown to him. "Oh, I beg your pardon, sir! I mistook you for some one else," he exclaimed, most politely, as, raising his hat with one hand, with the other he withdrew his weapon. The wounded stranger was not to be outdone in politeness by his mistaken assailant. "Oh, pray don't mention it," replied he, as with a low bow he hurried off to the nearest surgeon.

TIPS FOR TIDY HOUSEWIVES.

FRUIT or rust stains on table linen or other white clothes may be removed by soaking in a weak solution of oxalic acid.

TO CLEAN mirrors, sponge them perfectly free from all dirt, drying with soft cloths, and when quite dry rub a little powdered blue over the glass, polishing it finally with a soft old silk handkerchief.

AFTER thoroughly sweeping a dingy carpet, wipe it with a damp cloth partially wrung out of a mixture of water and ox-gall in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of the latter to a gallon of lukewarm water.

BRONZES may be plunged into boiling water until warm, then cleaned with soap-suds and dried with old linen cloths. If this is ineffectual try beeswax and turpentine, rubbed on and off with clean, soft cloths; sweet oil, and polishing with a chamois is another remedy.

THE smoked and dusty globes of chandeliers may be nicely cleaned by soaking them in hot water, to which a little sal soda has been added. Then put some ammonia into hot water, immerse the globes and scrub briskly with a stiff brush. Rinse thoroughly and wipe dry.

PAINTED furniture can be wiped off with a little milk and water, and look bright as new. Bamboo, rattan and reed furniture can be cleaned with a damp chamois. I do not believe in the use of furniture polish; it may do for a time, but better use a soft flannel with a few drops of kerosene for polished furniture.

I WANT to tell those who have fine specimens of coral which have become soiled by the dust settling in it, how they can clean them. I took mine and dipped them up and down a number of times in a pail of water. Then put them out through a good hard shower. If you have not a good grass plot, put them on plates, so the dirt will not spatter into them.

GILT picture frames may be brightened by taking sufficient flour of sulphur to give a golden tinge to about one and a half pints of water, and in this boil four or five bruised onions, or garlic, which will answer the same purpose. Strain off this liquid, and with it, when cold, wash with a soft brush any gilding which requires renewing, and when dry it will come out bright as new.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Protection of Mine Timbers from Decay.

The German Government mine Altenwald, near Saarbrucken, has, since 1888, conducted a series of experiments to ascertain the most effective means to prevent from decaying the pine timbering, which is subject to great pressure in the airways. Lime, coal tar, tar and carbolineum were tried in such a manner as to enable to compare their relative protective value. The results as published in Ztsch. f. d. Berg-, Hutten u Salinenwesen show lime to be the weakest. Coal tar preserved the outside of the timber, while the core was found completely decayed. Carbolineum proved by far the best, and is now being used on all the timbering of the upcast in that mine. The mine timbers, made of wood peeled and dried, are twice painted over with the carbolineum above ground and require each, when 2.5 meters long and 0.25 meter in diameter, in the first application 4-5 kilogramme and in the second 3-5 kilogramme, so that, at a price of 34.5 pf. per 1 kilogramme, the total cost was: For material 48.3 pf. and for labor 14 pf., or altogether about $0.15.

The Phonograph as a Disseminator of Disease.

It is reported that the Philadelphia park commissioners have ordered the disuse of the public phonographs heretofore in use in Fairmount Park, on account of the danger of their serving to disseminate disease. This danger is doubtless very slight, like that of injury to the ear, and probably neither danger is worth consideration if the instrument is kept reasonably clean and used properly; but its promiscuous use in a public park does not seem to admit of perfect security in this respect, and the announcement that the phonograph company intends to substitute a plate ear piece for the penetrating one now in use, avowedly for the reason that there are persons who object to the present form, goes to show that the Philadelphia commissioners are not the only people who entertain the idea of danger in the phonograph.—N. Y. Medical Journal.

Improvement in Photo-Etching.

The Papier Zeitung, of Berlin, announces that a discovery has just been made in etching, and especially in photogravure. As usual, the drawing is traced on a plate of zinc, either by an artist or by photography, with any suitable etching ground. This plate, backed with asphaltum, is laid in a bath of dilute acid. It is then put in circuit with a dynamo, the other pole being merely placed in the acid. When a current is allowed to pass, the acid attacks the metal with surprising rapidity. A few minutes suffice to bite the plate, and the depth of the etching can be easily controlled. It appears to us that the action is probably due to the depolarization of the surface of the metal, which in the ordinary method of etching becomes covered with a film of hydrogen, or, at all events, with a number of minute bubbles, which make the biting irregular unless the plate is incessantly rocked and brushed.

Nervous Debility.

Weakness, Nervousness, Despondency and Depression of Mind.

We are careless of our strength, vigor and energies in youth and early life. We use them up in business, work, pleasure or dissipation, and suddenly find ourselves old before our time, broken down in health, exhausted in brain and nerve power, and left without physical energies, nerve strength or ambition. Then follows that terrible despondency—that gloom and depression of mind which is a thousand times harder to bear than pain. It blots out hope, happiness and ambition, and makes life seem scarcely worth living, turns nights into sleepless, restless anxiety, and days into almost hopeless despair.

Luckily, there is a great and wonderful restorative which will give back to the weakened and exhausted system the strength it has lost; a marvellous remedy which imparts strength and vigor to the brain and nerves, vitalizes and invigorates all the physical powers, dispels, as if by magic, the despondency and gloom of mind, and restores us again to that grand degree of lusty strength, of bounding pulse and strong physical and nerve power which in ignorance or folly we have exhausted.

This wonderful discovery is Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great brain, nerve and strength restorer. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and can be procured at any druggist's for $1 per bottle. It is an absolute specific for nervous and physical debility. Persons with weakened nerves and exhausted vitality can regain perfect and complete strength by its use. It cures malaria, restores lost energy and invigorates the weakened vital forces in old and young. Try it, and you will never regret it.

POSITIVE PROOF.

I was afflicted for five years with nervous debility, and last Winter I was down sick with it. I had a good doctor, but got only temporary relief. I then took six bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura and it cured me.

SHEAVES OF RHYME.

A Pleasant Surrounding.

A maiden who
Had none to woo
Her waiting heart's affection.
Upon her face
Displayed a trace
Of sadness and dejection.

"What charms," said
"Around us lie
In field and wood." Her forehead
Put on a scowl
I heard her growl:
"I think the place is horrid."

But later on
Across the lawn
I saw the self-same pouter,
With features gay
In gladness stray—
A lover's arm about her.

"Oh, is this not
A pleasant spot?"
I earnestly propounded;
With blushes red
She sweetly said:
'I'm pleasantly surrounded."

—Chicago Post.

The Newsboy.

Joe was a newsboy, mister,
Differ'nt from all the rest;
Scarce a day over seven,
An' a weak little chap at best.

Timid an' bashful, sorter;
'Most like a gal in his ways;
Never would chaw terbacker,
An' cuss, an' take in the plays.

An' 'stead of tryin' to down him,
The fellers was kind to Joe;
An' lots bought papers of him, s'cause
Of the bump on his back, yer know.

An' I froze from the first right to him,
An' he somehow collared to me,
Till we parded it all 'cept night time—
Lived with his mother, you see.

She had worked till the fever took her,
An' nothin' was left to eat;
But the kid, you kin bet, was plucky,
An' so he struck for the street.

An' hustle? Well, now you're shoutin'!
Sallied right in like a brick!
All for that mother of his'n
Lyin' so weak an' sick!

Ketch him foolin' his money
Away like the other chaps,
Matchin' a feller pennies,
Or playin' a game of craps!

You could see him there with his papers,
Under his poor, thin arm,
If the day was a day of sunshine,
Or the day was a day of storm.

An' so at last, when I missed him,
You'd best believe I was quick
In gittin' around to his mother's
To see if the kid was sick.

An' I saw she was softly cryin';
He'd been took in the night, she said;
An' the poor little chap didn't know me—
Flighty an' out of his head!

Yer see, such knockin' about, sir,
'Ull do fur fellers like me,
But it wasn't the right thing, nohow,
For a babby as weak as he.

An' 'scuse me, but I can't help it;
I know that it ain't just right
Fur a great, big chap to be cryin',
But Joe—he died last night!

It ain't no use a talkin';
I tell yer, mister, it's hard
To think that I've got to lose him,
When I banked so much on my pard.

So I've come to you for some flowers—
A bunch to put in his hand—
An' up where he is, why, may be He'll see them and understand!

—Echo.

A Poet's Wooing.

In weaving rhymes about her name,
Her agile form, her rosy cheeks,
The beauty she could rightly claim,
I squandered hours, and days and weeks.

In weaving rhymes about her soul,
The subtle music in her speech,
The hours and days away did roll,
Yet she was ne'er within my reach.

I spent a year, it seems to me,
In weaving rhymes about her heart;
Yet I was deep in misery,
And from all happiness apart.

Alas! for the unhappy times
That come to mortals when they err—
While I was busy weaving rhymes
Another youth walked off with her!

—Nathan M. Levy, in Munsey's Weekly.

Wouldn't You?

I'd like to stray through forest aisles
Where nature wears her sweetest smiles,
Where gentle zephyrs all the woodland blow
soms softly woo;
There where the wild bird ever stays
And brooklets trill their roundelays
I'd like to pluck a little sprig of heartsease.
Wouldn't you?

I'd like to go through meadows fair,
Where clover blossoms scent the air,
And wander hidden grassgrown paths and brush
away the dew;
I'd like to hide in tangled dells
And listen to the fairy bells,
And bathe my tired spirit in the music.
Wouldn't you?

Oh, I would quit the flurry
And the ceaseless haste and hurry
Of prisoned, wall-bound cities. I would go where skies are blue.
I'd quite forget the grinding mart,
And, lying close to nature's heart,
I'd steal her sweetest, peace-begetting secrets
Wouldn't you?

—Chicago Post.

My Wife.

She paints my meerschaums blue and gold
To decorate the wall,
And with my razor bright and keen
A lead pencil doth maul.

To light a lamp she oft will use
A fresh-receipted bill.
She is my own—my wedded wife,
And so I love her still.

This seemingly unchanging love
Deride you may, until
I say she always always talks.
That's why I love her still.

—Luctus H. Washburn, in Judge.

A Recipe for a Day.

Take a little dash of water cold,
And a little leaven of prayer,
And a little bit of morning gold,
Dissolved in the morning air.

Add to your meal some merriment,
And a thought for kith and kin,
And then, as your prime ingredient,
A plenty of work throw in.

But spice it all with the essence of love,
And a little whiff of play,
Let a wise old Book and a glance above
Complete the well-made day.

—A. R. Wells, in Christian Union.

Going for the Cows.

Come, Jennie, to the pasture lot
With me to bring the cows,
Just o'er the hill, a pretty spot,
Where Blink and Brownie browse;
The brook is glad; near by it grows
A lily here and there;
Beside it, too, there's bud and rose
To wear upon your hair.

The sun is going slowly down,
But there's no dew as yet;
No need to lift your Sunday gown
For fear of getting wet.
The thrush will sing his vesper song,
The blackbird spread his wings,
The swallow dip and fly along
The brook that for him sings.

We'll walk so light and talk so low
They'll never know we're near;
I'll at the bars the toll forego—
If that's the thing you fear!
So, Jennie, come this once for me,
Nor purse your dainty lips
To make the bud that tempts the bee
And birdies when he sips!

—W. S. Sayder, in Century.

POLO PONIES.

Where They Come from and How They Are Bred.

Facts About a First-Class Animal—A Tussle Between a Pony and a Bronco Buster—"Cutting"—Ponies with Histories.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

Some interesting and valuable facts in relation to polo ponies, where they are raised and procured, were obtained not long since by the writer from one of the most prominent pony-raisers in this country.

Polo was introduced into the United States about 1873, through the agency of James Gordon Bennett, Oliver Iselin, Schuyler Crosby, Delancey Kane and others.

The first ponies were procured without very careful selection at San Antonio, Tex., and upon their arrival here many of them broke their necks in being halter-broken, and in various other ways proved unsatisfactory. In a short time it was thought best to raise the standard height of polo ponies from thirteen hands, two inches to fourteen hands, and later another inch was added, making the present standard of fourteen hands one inch, which is just under the Westchester Polo Club rules, the object being to get a horse with low motion and great strength of back, so as to carry weight well and at the same time be of good size. From the fact that in late years only a few of the large number of ponies shipped to the East have been retained by polo clubs, particular attention has been paid to speed. An outcome of this is the Pony Racing Association recently formed. The inaugural meeting of the association was held at Meadow Brook, Long Island, in June last. Old ponies, as a class, are not particularly handsome animals, by reason of their coming from the plains where they are exposed to the chilling blasts of the winter, scantily fed and generously branded. The experienced polo player has but one object when mounted on his pony in a game and that is to "get there," hence, very little attention is given to the color, brand marks or appearance.

The age of a first-class polo pony ranges from six to ten years, and he must possess low action, his mouth must be like velvet, his temper good, he must be quick as a flash in movement and willing to throw himself five feet to the right or left by the simple pressure of the rein upon the neck. A pony of this description can be found only in the plains country of the South and West, where cattle are held on the open range. These ponies in times past were found in large quantities in Kansas, and later in Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. Owing to the fact that to-day the cattle in Kansas are held within inclosures, and that there is a man on every quarter section of ground in Oklahoma, the present generation of ponies in the above-named places are not bridle-wise in the least. Texas, particularly the Pan Handle district, Indian Territory and some portions of Colorado and New Mexico are still good fields from which selections can be made. The best ponies, from a point of desirability, are obtained beyond the Red river in Mexico, but the disposition of these upon arrival in New York precludes their usefulness. Ponies with the best dispositions are found among the Indian tribes, from the fact that the colts are brought up and handled around the camp; the mares, as a rule, do the hard work.

OUT IN A STORM IN THE CANONS.

The requisites of a first-class cow pony are those of a polo pony. This can not be taught him unless he has an object in view such as a cow or steer.

Ponies that are bridle-wise on one side only are so from the fact that they have been in the hands of one cowman for a long while who was either right or left-handed as the case may be, or from the fact of his always using one hand to carry the whip or "quirt." In this connection it is gratifying to know that the practice of giving each cowman a twelve to fourteen-foot cattle whip has become obsolete, and he has now the end of his lasso or a whip two feet in length known as a "quirt." The long whip was in too active use, consequently the horses and cattle were worried and driven too much.

On his native heath a Western pony can take the conceit out of many a graduate of the riding schools. For instance, not long ago at Silver City, Ind. T., a gentleman selected eleven ponies out of a bunch of twenty-six with the proviso that any one of them could be ridden before the final purchase.

The order was given to rope a particular one of the herd, but the rope settled over the neck of another, which proved to be just what was wanted. The owner did not like the turn of affairs, but as he had made his promise he was obliged to stick to it. A bronco buster was called up, an extra stout double cinch saddle was adjusted and the man climbed on. Then the fun began, and for about three minutes was witnessed a veritable Wild West show. At the close of the first half of the exhibition the rider found himself about ten feet away and over a nine-railed staked and ridered fence. The pony was caught, the man braced up and he climbed on again. This time the pony made for a patch of wild plum bushes and pitched and tossed in them until he was almost exhausted and the clothes eradicated from the bronco buster, who had stayed there "just the same." The buster finally got him out of the patch and rode all over the prairie until the animal was effectually subdued. As so much trouble had been caused the owners the pony was purchased as a curiosity, if for nothing more.

In the course of time, and that at no great distance, it is going to be very hard to find a large assortment of ponies under fourteen hands one inch in height, because the owner of every bunch of stock horses from season to season puts a larger stallion at the head of his herd, and, if possible, one with better blood, principally of the thoroughbred strain. Blood tells, and the ponies are being rapidly bred up in size. People here in the East have erroneous ideas as to the value of a good cow pony in his own country. In the extreme Southern portion of Texas can be purchased a bunch of mixed stock—mares, young colts, yearlings, the aged and decrepit, by taking them as they come—for from ten dollars to twenty dollars per head. A bunch of from twenty-five to fifty broken-down, worn-out and culled-out cow ponies can be procured at from thirty dollars to sixty dollars a head. In ninety cases out of a hundred, if a person really knows what he wants and can get a cowman to turn him loose among his herd, the herder will not sell him the horse he picks out, because it will be one of his favorite cow horses or fancy cutting ponies. The word "cutting" can be explained as follows: If you should go to a cowman and buy two hundred head of cattle of a certain age or brand, and these cattle should be in the open range or a field of some eight or ten miles square, with others, for whom they have found attachments, by trying to set apart or cut out the ones you have purchased, you will very soon ascertain why certain ponies are held at such high figures. With a good cow pony or cutting horse all you have to do is to ride into a bunch of cattle and show your pony the animal you are after and he will do the rest. You are only obliged then to sit in the saddle and hold on; he will follow that animal right and left on a full run, keeping just at the right position at the animal's hip, watching with a trained eye every movement, and quickly herding him off when he has run out into the small bunch or cut. He is back and ready for another one as soon as you show him the one you desire.

A pony that gets mad, plunges and pulls on the bit; one that is stupid or makes you work your passage, would be of no use, as a steer would put his tail over his back and return to his former companions.

One of the largest pony farms is situated in Wabaunsee County, Kan., about twenty miles from Topeka, and contains about eight hundred acres. This is the general headquarters of the business. There are also other farms in Harper, Barber, Comanche and Stevens counties.

Some of the polo ponies at present in the vicinity of New York have very interesting histories. One of them, for instance, was ridden by a woman, manfashion, into Oklahoma when the rush was made, and he procured for his energetic owner a choice piece of bottom land in advance of the crowd. Another was driven to the wheel on a four-in-hand stage-coach, between Kingfisher and Fort Reno, in Oklahoma. X.

Cost of an Introduction.

Brown and Smith step into a saloon and meet Jones. Brown and Jones salute each other and then Brown says: "Mr. Smith, let me introduce you to my friend, Mr. Jones."

Mr. Smith (who has had several social glasses)—Now, Brown, this introduction is not at all necessary. I've known Jones longer than you have. Jonesey, old boy, put it there! (They shake hands effusively.)

A while after Brown and Smith go out and Smith says: "Confound it, Brown, why did you introduce me to that man Jones? He borrowed ten dollars of me."

"You said you knew him better than I did," returned Brown.

"Oh, well, I said that just for effect."

"Well, it had its effect, you see."

"Yes, and I am out ten dollars."—Texas Siftings.

First New Yorker (to a friend)—Do you know some good life insurance company that you can recommend?

Second New Yorker—Yes, half a dozen. Any hurry about it?

First New Yorker—Yes; I want to get my life insured right away. And say, if any thing should happen to me won't you look out for my family?

Second New Yorker—Goodness gracious! man, what desperate step are you about to undertake?

First New Yorker (in solemn tone)—I'm going on a steamboat excursion.

Second New Yorker—If that's so get insured before you leave; you are taking desperate chances.—Texas Siftings.

FURGESON'S KICK.

He Objects to Plaques as Disturbers of Domestic Bliss.

TROLLING one day last week in an aimless sort of way through Central Park, I saw Furgeson, a young gentleman with whom I am slightly acquainted. He was sitting on a bench wearing a linen duster and a look of unutterable woe. I naturally asked him what was the cause of his mental depression, and he replied candidly that it was his wife, to whom he had recently been married.

"The old story—too much mother-in-law, I suppose," I remarked.

"No, it's not that. I took good care to marry an orphan. The trouble is, my wife has taken to painting plaques, decorating china, etc. It seems that fad is reviving among the New York women, and my wife has got it bad," replied Furgeson, with a sigh.

I remarked that I thought painting china was a rather harmless sort of a fad.

"Yes, that's what I thought until I had some actual experience."

"How did your wife acquire the habit?"

"From a Mrs. Flam who lives in my neighborhood. Mrs. Flam has no children and nothing else to keep her busy, so she cultivates the various fads. I had noticed that my wife had something on her mind, and at last she told me that she was going to decorate some plates."

"You should have discouraged the idea at once."

"I did, but it was too late. I told her that in my opinion the proper way for a wife to decorate a plate was to first warm the plate and then decorate it with some nice roast turkey, a slice or so of the breast, and a second joint preferred with a little of the stuffing and some cranberry sauce, Irish potatoes, etc."

"What did she say to that?"

"She replied, bitterly, that men thought of nothing but their stomachs, and to keep a husband in a good humor the only way was to feed the brute;" and from the direction of her eyes I think she meant me.

"In what way did her painting china plates cause such disastrous results?"

"Well, in the first place, I remarked that her friend, Mrs. Flam, was kept so busy painting her face that I had not supposed she could find time to paint any thing else, whereupon my amiable wife responded that some men spent more time painting their noses than a dozen women did in painting their faces. This was another dig at me because my nose is a little red on account of my defective circulation."

THE FURGESONS DISCUSS THE MATTER.

"Did she go to painting china plates?"

"Did she? When I came home to dinner on the very next day the table was decorated with the unwashed breakfast dishes and my wife was riveted to a chair painting away for dear life. I asked her why she was painting a cartwheel on a plate, and she said it was a passion flower and that I was a fool. I sank wearily into a chair, but I bounced three feet into the air because I had sat down on a freshly-painted plate on which were two blue and red butterflies, which did not match the new nine-dollar dove-colored pants I wore. And the way my wife lamented over those butterflies. I'll have to have a new ceiling made for those pants, but that was a mere trifle compared with what was coming."

"What other sufferings did you undergo?"

"My sufferings were simply indescribable. I am also a sufferer from dyspepsia, and nothing affords me relief except raw whisky taken internally. I was seized with an acute attack in the middle of the night, and groping my way to the sideboard I took a tremendous swallow. The supposed whisky felt like a red-hot porcupine going down my throat; but when the doctors got to work with their stomach-pumps, it felt like pulling the same porcupine back by the tail. I had got hold of a bottle containing some preparation for removing paint from the hands. It almost removed me from the face of the earth. Oh! no, there is nothing dangerous about these female fads," added Furgeson, sarcastically.

"Well, you managed to survive."

"I suppose so, but every day brings about a fresh crisis in the family. It was a week before I even partially recovered from the effects of that remedy for dyspepsia. This morning, just as I was beginning to crawl around, my wife, who had been painting steadily without turning a hair, all at once began to be very affectionate. She said: 'Charles, dear, you are looking so much stronger and better. All that you need now is a little fresh air and exercise.'"

"She was certainly very considerate."

"That's where I, too, was fooled, for she hung a basket containing two dozen heavy plates, gaudily painted, on my arm and told me to take them to a firm that bakes the china plates these fool women paint. What do you say to that?"

"That was pretty tough."

"However, I tottered off like a little man, when a flashily-dressed man stopped me and asked how much my boss charged a week to send meals to a family of two. He thought I was a waiter from a restaurant, seeing me with what he supposed was a basket full of dirty dishes. I used some bad language, and, before I knew what was coming, he had me down, bumping my head on the sidewalk. Just feel that cushion-shaped wen on the back of my head. We were separated, and, at first, I felt a thrill of bliss because all the plates were broken, but I thought of what my artist wife would say when I got back, and then I strolled into the park and was contemplating suicide when you came up. I expect I have lost my position. Oh, no, these female fads are perfectly innocent."

Afraid to Pray.

The New Minister—Do you mean to say, madam, that you fear to pray?

Old Lady—Yes, I know the prayers will be answered, of course; but they're not always answered with discrimination. For years and years my husband had to get up before daylight in order to reach his work on time; and the long, slow rides in street cars were injuring his health. Well, I prayed that he might be relieved of this great trouble and danger, and in six months a great, big, ugly elevated railroad was run up our street and I haven't seen a ray of sunshine since.—Life.

Mature Deliberation.

Friend—I understand you are going to stop publishing your Sunday edition because you are convinced that the religious sentiment of the times demands it.

Editor—Yes, sir.

Friend—Is this the result of a sudden change of thought on the part of the proprietors?

Editor—Oh! dear, no; we have been eleven years making up our minds.—Puck.

It Has Reached the West.

Editor of Arizona Kicker (looking over some copy)—I wish I had that fellow within range of my old six-shooter.

New Reporter (nervously)—What fellow?

Editor—The man who sprung that French book on us. Can't you write up an account of a dog-fight or a lynching party without calling it a "Pastel in Prose?"—Light.

Sizing It Up.

Mrs. Tangle (putting her head out of the window)—Who's that knocking at the door?

Man (below)—Here's yer ice, lady—a ten cent piece.

Mrs. Tangle—All right! Just pass it through the keyhole, please, to save me the trouble of coming down-stairs.—Light.

Why Cronin Killed the Parrot.

Mrs. Cronin—Arragh fagballah! An' phot hov yez done?

Cronin—Oi says out loud t' mesilf phin Oi put down th' sped: "Cronin, yure th' chrazy fool;" an' so sev me, he repated it afther me. Oi'm dead shtuck an parrits, but Oi can't shtand mockin' bur-r-rds!—Puck.

The Summer Girl Again.

McCusick (at summer resort, pointing to young lady surrounded by six or seven admiring young men)—I say, Jack, isn't that your affianced over there?

Jack (gloomily)—Yes—that is I don't know. She was before I came here!—Texas Siftings.

A Very Serious Drawback.

"Why did you never marry, Major?"

"Well, it was a curious thing; but the only woman I could have been brought to marry labored under a very serious drawback."

"What was that?"

"She was never born."—Jury.

The Same Old Stale Air.

Guest at Summer Hotel—I expected to find fresh air at this country place but I was disappointed.

Friend—How was that?

Guest—Why, as I got to the hotel the band was playing "Annie Rooney."—West Shore.

Similarity of Tastes.

Miss Oldmaid (cultivated pianist)—Yes, I always play classic music; Mozart, Beethoven and Haydn, you know.

Little Boy—You're just like my mamma. She don't play any thing but the pieces that was new when she was young.—Puck.

An Exception.

"I read the other day that Byron was club-footed," said Cholly. "That just shows that physical infirmities do not conflict with genius."

"No," said his friend, "unless one happens to be a block-head."—Munsey's Weekly.

A Skeleton in the Closet.

"Yes," facetiously remarked the clerk in the president's office, while making an annual, "this is our pass time."

"Alas!" murmured the haggard-looking stockholder, "back of every worldly pleasure there is a dead-head."—Puck.

He Wasn't Built for a Copper.

Neighbor—What would you like to be?

Johnny—Policeman.

Neighbor—You would never do for that. Whenever there is a fight you are always around.—Texas Siftings.

Returning from the Picnic.

Ethel—There is Jack sitting on the other side of the boat. Doesn't he look tired?

Maud—Yes, have you been talking to him to-day?—The Continent.

He Knew by Experience.

Wife—I hear that Cumso is rich now—that he has feathered his nest.

Husband (thinking of the milliner's bill)—Well, if he paid for the feathers he wouldn't be rich.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Time for All Things.

She—Isn't it about time, Dick, that we broke our engagement?

He—Why is it?

She—Because every one has stopped talking about it.—Munsey's Weekly.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Inits Worst Form.

BENTON, LAV. Co., WIS., Dec., '88.
Rev. J. C. Bergen vouches for the following: James Rooney who was suffering from Vitus Dance in the worst form for about 18 years was treated by several physicians without effect, two bottles of Pastor Koenigs Nervel Tonic cured him.

Prejudiced, yet Convinced.

So. Norwalk, Con., May, 1889.
Although I took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic with a certain prejudice, it has done me so much good that I must thank him for it, because now I can sleep again. Since the terrible catastrophe of the Johnstown flood, where I lost five members of my family, terrible fictions occupied my mind, so that I was since quite despondent. But now I come to myself again, and attribute this to the good effect of the Tonic.

Our Pamphlet for sufferers of nervous diseases will be sent free to any address, and poor patients can also obtain this medicine free of charge from us.

MR. BLAINE'S LETTER

He Writes Again on the Subject of Reciprocity.

VALUABLE TO WEST AS EAST.

He Refers to Men Who Lock the Stable After the Horse is Gone.

Several Bills Passed by the Senate—The Anti-Lottery Measure Now Goes to the President—Action on the Kennedy Speech—Congressman Quinn Says Gen. Grant's Remains Will Not be Removed.

BOSTON, Sept. 17.—Mr. Blaine has written a long letter to Colonel Clapp, of the Journal, excusing himself from attending the annual banquet of the Boot and Shoe Club.

He declares that the reciprocity matter will be as valuable to the West as to the East. He insists that we can secure the trade for breadstuffs for 40,000,000 in Central and South America and the West Indies if we deal wisely with them in the matter of admitting their sugars under special reciprocity regulations.

"The worst proposition of all," he says, "is put forth by those who say, 'Let us put sugar on the free list now and next year we will take up the subject of reciprocity.' If I understand their logic, it is to make sugar free this year without condition, and next year to ask Spain if she will not kindly consent to grant us reciprocal trade? Holding the complete vantage grounds themselves, the proposed policy transfers the vantage ground to Spain.

"Instead of granting a favor to Spain to-day, we are to ask her for a favor to-morrow. Those who take this ground belong to that class of careful guardians of property who prepare a very strong lock for the stable after the horse is gone."

THE ANTI-LOTTERY BILL.

It Only Awaits the Signature of the President to Become a Law.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The Anti-Lottery bill having now passed both houses of Congress, it only awaits the signature of the President to become a law, and there is not likely to be any unnecessary delay on that account.

The postal authorities are prepared to enforce it vigorously, and it is therefore important that the public should understand its provisions.

The bill gives great power to the Postmaster-General, and after it becomes a law it will be very dangerous for any person to meddle with lottery tickets.

It forbids the carrying in the mail, or delivery at or through any post office or by any mail carrier, of any letter, postal card or circular concerning any lottery, or any list of drawings of the same, or any lottery ticket or part thereof, or any check, draft, bill, money, postal note or money order for the purchase of any ticket.

It forbids carrying any newspaper, circular, pamphlet or publication of any kind containing any advertisement of any lottery, or containing any list of prizes of any such lottery.

It forbids any person from depositing or causing to be deposited or knowingly sending or causing to be sent any such matter by mail. It provides that proceedings for the violation of this law may be instituted either in the district at which the mailing was done, or at the place which it is carried by mail for delivery, or at any place where it is delivered to the person addressed. It provides for preventing the delivery of mail containing registered funds or money orders addressed to lottery companies or their agents.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

The Senate Passes Several Bills and the House Acts on the Kennedy Speech.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The Senate agreed to the conference report on the Railroad Land Forfeiture bill—yeas, 30; nays, 13; the Democrats voting in the negative and the Republicans in the affirmative. The House Anti-Lottery bill was then taken up, read and passed. The House bill for marking the lines of battle and the positions of troops of the army of Northern Virginia at Gettysburg, Pa., was passed. Also the Senate bill appropriating $75,000 for a public building at Bar Harbor, Maine.

The House spent a long time in discussing Mr. Enloe's resolution censuring Mr. Kennedy for the language used in his speech on Sept. 3 reflecting on Senator Quay. The matter was finally disposed of by the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. Bayne, referring the whole subject to the Judiciary Committee of the House for investigation.

Mrs. Hartranft's Pension.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—On motion of Congressman O'Neill, the House ordered a conference on the bill to pension the widow of General Hartranft. Morrill, Craig and Lewis were appointed conferees.

MORRIS NOMINATED.

Connecticut Democrats Select Their Former Candidate for Governor.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 17.—At the Democratic convention held here last night, Luzon B. Morris was unanimously selected as the candidate for Governor at the approaching election. The total number of votes cast were 396. Morris's only opponent, Hyatt, withdrew, leaving the former a clear field.

The ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant-Governor, Joseph W. Alsop, of Middletown; Treasurer, Marvin H. Sanger, of Canterbury; Comptroller, Nicholas Staub, of New Milford.

The platform adopted says: "The Democratic party of Connecticut reaffirms its adherence to the platform adopted by the National Democratic Convention of 1888, and condemns the Republican party for its attitude upon the great questions affecting the welfare of the people as a revival of the most odious doctrines of that Federalism which has ever sought to establish in this country an aristocracy of wealth and despotism of legislation, etc.; declare for such a revision of the tariff as shall admit crude materials of manufacture free and lighten the burdens upon the necessities of life."

The platform "denounces Mr. Blaine's interpretation of protection, Speaker Reed's Czarism, and the Force bill."

COSTLY MURDER TRIAL.

Third Week of the Cal Wood Murder Case at Glens Falls.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 17.—This is the third week of the Cal Wood murder trial and the evidence is still uncompleted.

Dr. Frederick Petersen, Dr. Matthew Field, of New York city, experts in cases of insanity, were sworn. When hypothetical questions were asked by the prosecuting attorney, the answer was "sane," and when asked by the defence, "insane."

Several relatives of Cal were put on the stand during the day. In nearly every instance the testimony showed that they had deemed Cal an odd character, but not insane. The people will not finish before to-morrow or Friday. The defence will examine several witnesses at the conclusion of the testimony for the people.

The tax payers are growling about the cost of the trial.

A Wealthy Citizen Kills Himself.

BOSTON, Sept. 17.—Dr. E. M. Ferris, a wealthy resident of Brookline, committed suicide in his office, No. 30 Summer street, this city, by shooting himself through the head. He came to his office in a carriage, accompanied by his wife and children, who remained in the vehicle while he went upstairs. He had only seated himself in his chair when a pistol shot was heard and the employes saw Mr. Ferris roll back in the chair. They ran to his assistance, but he was past help and died in a few minutes.

Will Count New York Again.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Health Board canvassers of the Second Ward reported that they had found the population 1,196, against 922 as reported by the census enumerators of the United States. The Health Board thereupon passed resolutions declaring that the result indicated that the Federal census was "inaccurate and incomplete," and that an accurate census is necessary for the Bureau of Vital Statistics. The Mayor was accordingly authorized to make a complete enumeration.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Congressman Quinn, of New York, has finished a canvass of the House as to the sentiment on the Plumb resolution for the removal of the Grant remains, and states that he will beat it should Mr. O'Neill, of Philadelphia, who has it in charge, call it up. The new spurt the New Yorkers have recently taken has made a great change in the sentiment of the House in this matter

ANOTHER CLUB OUT

The Athletics Will Not be Able to Finish the Season.

NO MONEY FOR THE PLAYERS.

Much Indignation Expressed by the Men Who Have Accepted Releases.

A Day of Rain Prevents Several of the Clubs from Playing—The Brooklyn League Team Defeats Boston—Anson's Pets Still Winning—Only One Game Played by Brotherhood Clubs.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—The stockholders of the Athletic Baseball Club held an adjourned meeting last night, when it was announced that because of the inability of the financial committee appointed yesterday to raise the necessary funds, the club will not be able to continue the season.

The players, who had assembled in expectation of receiving the money due them, were notified that no money had been raised, and that those desiring their releases could have them. Much indignation was expressed by the men, and nearly all of them are said to have accepted releases. Sums ranging from $300 to $600 are due them. Robinson, Shafer and Seward have suits pending for their salaries, and on the issue of these will depend the action of the other players.

The players were asked to make a tour of the West and take chances of getting their money, but refused. The organization of a team to play out the schedule is a remote possibility.

CRUELTY TO LUNATICS.

A Woman Chained in a Smoke House for Fifteen Years.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 17.—The State Board of Lunacy has become aware of the fact that in many different sections of the State lunatics are kept confined miserably in order to save their keep at a proper asylum, the number so kept in confinement being almost incredible.

The latest case unearthed is in Richland Township, Venango County. The victim is a woman named Margaret Orr, and she has been kept by her brother on a farm near Emlenton station on the Allegheney Valley railroad. She is about 40 years of age, and has been confined in chains in a smoke house for over fifteen years.

Superintendent Culph of the County Poor Farm, made the horrible discovery and it was with difficulty that he could induce the brothers to allow her removal to the Warren Insane Asylum, where she is now.

Stories are in circulation of another case, where a crippled lunatic is said to be confined in a small room without proper care, and officers are hunting it up.

PASSENGERS IN PERIL.

An Accident on the West Shore Road at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 17.—An accident occurred on one of the West Shore trains that run every few minutes between this city and the fair grounds.

The train, consisting of five cars crowded with passengers, was returning from the grounds, the engine moving backwards. On a steep embankment, 50 feet high; the tender left the track and rolled down the bank. The engine and three cars also jumped the track but stopped at the edge of the embankment. Daniel Hummel, a barber, was standing on the front platform of the first car and was crushed to death. None of the other passengers were hurt. The fireman was somewhat bruised.

The engine was badly damaged and the front part of the first car was crushed to pieces. The rails were torn up for a distance of 600 feet.

Torrey for alienating the affections of the plaintiff's wife. The complaint charges that Ward conspired with Mrs. Torrey to induce Torrey to visit a house of illfame in Chicago, and thus provide the wife with lawful cause for divorce; also that Ward was intimate with Mrs. Torrey. The defense is a general denial.

BOWEN KNOCKED OUT

Whipped by James Carroll in Twenty-One Rounds.

THOUSANDS SEE THE BATTLE.

The New Orleans Boy Terribly Punished, but Had No Complaint to Make.

Carroll's Victory Due to His Fine Defence Savage Fight Between Tommy Kelly and Tommy Russell Spectators Beg to Have the Battle Stopped—Slavin a Favorite for Monday's Battle.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—The great lightweight fight between Andy Bowen of New Orleans and Jimmy Carroll of San Francisco was fought last night at the Olympic Club rooms. About 3,000 people were present, and they paid an admission fee of $5 and $3 each.

The fight was for a purse of $3,000—$2,500 to winner and $500 to loser. Mr. John Duffy was chosen referee and the timers were C. J. Cousins, Billy Crittenden and M. F. Fitzfadden. Bowen was seconded by Arthur Upham and Jimmy Sweeny, and Carroll by Robert Fitzsimmons and Doc O'Connell. Bowen weighed 130½ pounds and, Carroll 132½.

The ring was pitched on river sand with a thirty-foot square enclosure, within which was marked off as neat a twenty-four-foot ring as was ever seen. A St. Andrew's cross was formed at 9 o'clock, and a good handshake marked the evening's performance at fisticuffs.

Bowen crossed over to Carroll to bet $500, which was promptly accepted, but the club refused to allow the bet.

Time was called at 9:29. Carroll was crowding Bowen and then drew him out. Carroll feinted and Bowen backed. Bowen landed lightly with his left on Carroll's shoulder, and followed it with a right hander on the jaw. Carroll tried with his right and failed.

In the second round sparring for wind seemed to occupy the men's time. A quick exchange followed and right and left handers followed and honors were even. Carroll hit Bowen and nearly knocked him down. Bowen hit Carroll, and repeated the performance with his left hand on Carroll's jaw. Bowen's round without a doubt.

The third, fourth and fifth rounds were given to Carroll. In the sixth Carroll smashed Bowen and got smashed with a right in return. Bowen knocked Carroll down with a right hand swing and staggered him a moment later with a strong right hander on the jaw. Carroll led and hit Bowen a right hand belly punch and got a right hander in the jaw for his pains. Bowen now hit Carroll a left hander on the shoulder, and time was called. This round was even, both men being very tired.

From the sixth to the fourteenth Carroll was the aggressor. In the thirteenth round Bowen landed on Carroll's stomach, and Carroll knocked Bowen down with a right-hander. Bowen was groggy and Carroll weak; too weak to knock out his man. Carroll knocked Bowen down with a terrible right. Bowen took awful punishment, and reeled all over the ring.

Bowen was virtually beaten in the 14th round, when he received two heavy blows which so seriously hurt him that he never fully recovered, but he showed the most remarkable spirit and fought seven rounds more, although he was so groggy he could scarcely stand on his feet.

He maintained his reputation for grit to the last.

When the men met for the twenty-first round Carroll forced Bowen, the latter led and missed. Carroll hit Bowen on the neck. Bowen landed a light one. Carroll landed right and left and Bowen fell exhausted. He rose and fell again and then was counted out. Bowen's gameness was applauded to the echo. Bowen was terribly punished, but he had no complaint to make.

Carroll's victory was due to his magnificent defence. Bowen hit out as well as ever, but he could never land his blows or break through the defence, and only got in a few blows.

HAD TO STOP THE FIGHT.

Tommy Russell Beaten So Badly that the Spectators Interfered.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Tommy Kelly, the "Harlem Spider," and Tommy Russell, also of Harlem, fought a rattling battle in New Jersey last night. The match was with hard gloves, ten rounds, the referee having authority to order additional rounds. Russell weighed 110 pounds and Kelly about 114. Kelly did nearly all of the leading, but Russell stopped many of his blows neatly. Kelly got in hard on Russell's face. Russell won first blood in the third round, but in the sixth Kelly hit Russell right and left all over the ring and finally knocked him down.

Russell was game, and fought as hard as he could in a groggy condition. At the finish of the tenth round Russell was still on his feet, but the beating he got in the sixth had taken away his strength. Two additional rounds were ordered. In the twelfth, Kelly landed blow after blow on Russell's mouth, nose and eyes, and had him bleeding so badly that the spectators asked the referee to stop the fight. This was done, and the victory awarded to Kelly.

Tommy Warren Secures a Draw.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 17.—The fight between Tommy Warren and John Van Heest for $500 a side, came off at about midnight, in the vicinity of the State line between New York and Pennsylvania. It resulted in a draw after 11 rounds had been fought, though the fight was fairly won by Van Heest.

HAMILTON IS DEAD.

No Doubt Now of the Unfortunate Man's Tragic Fate.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Letters have been received by Schuyler Hamilton, brother of Robert Ray Hamilton, from John D. Sargent, the keeper of the ranch where Hamilton was staying, and from Casimir De R. Moore, who was visiting there at the time, giving full particulars of the sad story.

Of course, all the details can never be known, for no one saw Hamilton die. He was miles and miles away from any living human being at the time, and his body was not discovered until more than ten days had elapsed after he met his terrible fate.

The letters state that the body was buried at a spot overlooking Mary Mere Lake and the Teton Mountains, where Mr. Hamilton asked to be buried in case he died in the West.

No Suspicion of Foul Play.

General Schuyler Hamilton, father of the drowned man, said to a reporter: "There is little room for hope now," he said sadly; "the two letters received by my son Schuyler end all uncertainty as to the truth or falsity of the report of my son's death. I have no doubt that he is dead, and that he died in the manner indicated in Mr. Sargent's letter. There is nothing in the details so far received to justify a suspicion of foul play. Mr. Sargent was well recommended to my son by Mr. Wendell Goodwin and other friends, and I see no object that any one out there could have in bringing about my son's death. Neither do I think he committed suicide. My son was too brave to take his own life, and had plenty of courage to live down the cloud which temporarily overshadowed his career."

Mr. Hamilton's fortune is estimated at $500,000. It was inherited from his grandmother chiefly, and consists of real estate in buildings.

The family of Mr. Hamilton announce that the body will be brought to New York and buried in the family lot in Greenwood Cemetery.

ERICSSON AT REST.

His Body Deposited in a Chapel Built to Receive It.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17.—The train bearing the body of Capt. Ericsson arrived at Filipstad at 9 a. m. At many places there were appropriate decorations to mark the occasion. When the train reached Filipstad the whole population turned out.

Twelve miners carried the body into a church, where Bishop Rundgren performed the funeral service. The coffin was then deposited in a chapel which had been erected especially for its reception in the adjoining cemetery, which is the finest in Sweden.

The officers of the warship Baltimore are being feted on all sides. The King received them at noon, and they had prominent places at the gala operatic performance last night. When the American officers entered the opera house the orchestra played the American anthem, and the audience rose en masse.

BY THE WAY.

—Read Boehm's advertisement in to-day's PRESS.

—Howard Hummer, night ticket agent at the North avenue railroad station, resigned last night.

—There will be plenty of seats provided for to-morrow's ball match, but you must go early to get the best.

—The Elizabeth Wheelmen will hold their ten-mile race Saturday, September 27, at four P. M., over the Rahway course.

—Admission tickets purchased for the ball match with the Trentons, Saturday, September 6, will be good for admission to the grounds to-morrow.

—To-morrow's game between the Norwichs and the Crescents, will not be called until four o'clock. The 2:30 train from New York will be in time.

—Street-Commissioner Meeker has turned his attention to the broken culverts at Eighth street and Arlington avenue, and elsewhere about the city.

—An adjourned meeting of the Board of Officers of the Children's Home, will be held to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. parlors.

—Cyclers who are not anxious to spend a night in the lock-up, or to pay a fine, or suffer both inconveniences, are advised to keep off the sidewalks in Montclair.

—To-morrow at 4 o'clock P. M., the Crescents and Norwichs will play a match in this city for the inter-State Championship of New Jersey and Connecticut.

—The ladies will be especially pleased with the Norwich team, to-morrow. They are all gentlemen, handsome looking and fine players; and they will wear their best suit of clothes out of compliment to Plainfield's fair women.

—That migratory plague of fleas has now reached New Brunswick. It didn't stay long in Plainfield, nor in Newark, but from the way the troublesome insects have swarmed into possession of New Brunswick's houses the inhabitants fear that they have at last found a place which suits their fancy.

—Young men with a good common school education who want to better their condition in life are advised to consider seriously the opportunity offered by the Young Men's Christian Association in the short-hand class that is soon to be organized. Information concerning the class will be furnished at the rooms.

—Lillie Young, the merry maiden who caused a sensation last week Sunday by accepting the "dare" of her escort and leaping from the deck of a Coney Island steamboat into the waters of New York Bay, is one of the chorus girls who will appear in "The Pearl of Pekin" on the stage of Stillman Music Hall, to-night.

—Wilkinson, Gaddis & Co., are most fortunate in securing as a representative of their cigar department so experienced, affable and popular a salesman as Henry Louis Ryckman. He has made but one visit to this city, and that only to acquaint himself with the trade; yet he has at once created a favorable impression which together with the high esteem in which are held the goods he handles, will surely result in profitable custom for his firm, in Plainfield.

—The preparations which were in progress all day yesterday, to remove the post office from its old location in the Schorb building to new quarters in the handsome Clarkson edifice, were followed last night by the removal itself, and this morning Plainfielders found the doors of the old office closed, and Postmaster Pope and his staff of clerks hard at work in the new office, with the mail all properly distributed as usual, and the discipline of the service not one whit disturbed.

Seven Successful Sister Societies.

Seven societies of Christian Endeavor—the Park Avenue Baptist, the Congregational, the First Presbyterian, the Trinity Reformed, and the Warren Mission, of Plainfield; the Baptist, of New Market; and the Presbyterian, of Dunellen—will hold their first meeting as a Local Union, in the Trinity Reformed church, to-morrow evening. Reports from each society will be read, showing their growth and giving a record of their prosperous work. Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of Plainfield and the Rev. W. C. Stinson of Dunellen. Spirited Christian Endeavor hymns will be rendered by a chorus of fifty voices, under the leadership of M. Marvin Dunham. Everybody will be welcome. The service of song will begin at 7:45.

The time for the execution of the judgment was up Saturday, but it was not passed, since Mr. Moore decided to accept Mr. Kean's generous offer to help him out of his difficulty. It is understood that Mr. Kean gives him $30,000.

"We intimated this much," is good, but the ignorance of the man who wrote the above, and the vagary of his mind, is further accentuated by the fact that he spells judgment twice on Monday with one "e," and once on Tuesday with two.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Alfred Holmes, of East Fifth street, has gone to Princeton College.

Mrs. Alfred Osborne, of Post Oram, is visiting Mrs. George Firstbrook.

W. H. Lyon and family are back from Kinsico, Westchester county, New York.

J. Allen Sangston leaves today for Kunja-muck Inn, in the Adirondacks, where he will spend a long vacation.

Mrs. T. A. VanZandt has closed her Summer cottage at Ocean Grove, and with her family is at home again on Crescent avenue.

Mrs. A. C. Vail and family have returned to their home at Madison avenue and Eighth street, after a two months visit to Wiscasset, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilkisson and family, have given up their home at Seventh street and Madison avenue, and removed to Washington Territory, where they will join their son who has established himself in business there.

Cards are out for the marriage of Miss Mame E. Volk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Volk, of Cherryville, Hunterdon county, to A. M. Vanderbeek, of this city. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday afternoon, October 1, at one o'clock.

Miss Anna Ticknor, one of the most popular teachers at the Franklin school, has been compelled by illness to forego the pleasure of resuming charge of her class this month, and will spend the early Autumn at health resorts. She will return to Plainfield and her school probably in late October.

The Crescents' Good Omen.

During the game of base ball which the Plainfield Crescent League team lost to the West Ends at Somerville, last Saturday, the skies above the field of the contesting nines were clouded, and lightnings were flashing and thunders were roaring near at hand. When the train load of Plainfielders, ruminating over their defeat, left Somerville behind them and sped away towards home, the sunshine came glimpsing through rifts in the cloudland, and a bit of rainbow was painted by nature's master-hand on the horizon just before them. The bow of promise grew larger and brighter as they neared the city of their home, and as the train dashed up the final stretch the perfected bow seemed to hover just overhead—an indication to the minds of the trustful souls who had lost their money, or had refrained from betting, that the day of storms for the Crescent League was past, and that the coming games against the West Ends would be all sunshine for the Plainfield boys.

The Opening Ball of the Season.

The third grand ball of the Oriental Social club, to-morrow evening, at Amphion Hall, promises to be a great success. The music will be by Prof. Samuel D. Frazee. The officers of the club are: President, F. Talliant; Vice President, W. B. Sharp; Treasurer, E. I. Vroom; Secretary, G. MacIntyre; Sergeant-at-Arms, W. Marsh.

The dance will be in charge of General Director, Benj. F. Crane; Floor Manager, James T. Mullen; Assistant Floor Manager, Edward C. Searing, and Floor Committee, Edward McCann and Charles Keller.

A Church Burned at Somerville.

The First Reformed church at Somerville was burned at five o'clock this morning. The firemen answered the alarm promptly, and saved the building from utter destruction, but the organ was considerably damaged by smoke and water, and the belfry and tower were destroyed. The fire is attributed to the spontaneous combustion of old rags in a closet filled with rubbish.

IN THEIR BEST SUIT OF CLOTHES.

The Norwich Team Will be Here To-morrow for Their Return Game With the Crescents.

A telegram to THE PRESS from Norwich says that the ball team will leave there to-night for Plainfield, and will consist of the same players that defeated the Crescents 7 to 0 in Connecticut, "They will wear their new uniforms," says the message, "and the batting order will be: O'Connell, third base; Quinn, first base; Ryan, pitcher; Hartnett, left field; Long, second base; Gardner, short stop; Hackett, catcher; Snow, right field; Moore, centre field."

The Crescents batting order will be the same as last Saturday: Hatfield, right field; Martin, short stop; Lufbery, second base; Wiegand, first base; McIndoe, left field; Lever, centre field; Gregg, pitcher; Jones, catcher; Lee, third base.

Still a Chance for an Ice Famine.

The ice famine that has been threatening to visit us for the last few months is said to be on the point of realization. About the last of October, dealers say, the Maine and Lake Champlain ice crops will be practically exhausted. The small cities in central and Western New York are already suffering from a scarcity, and are competing for the visible supply. In Pennsylvania, too a considerable demand has sprung up recently for New York State ice, and the Westean cities are looking Eastward for supplies to make up the shortness of the crop on the inland lakes.

Ordinarily New York dealers get ice from the Hudson for about $2 a ton. The present price for large restaurants and hotels is approximately $12 a ton. Most dealers prophecy that prices will boom shortly to the starvation point, but there is a suspicion that this prophecy is in the interest of still higher prices

Central Tennis League.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

The Westfield Tennis club on Saturday last were obliged to relinquish their claim to first place in the Tennis League, by losing a game to the Roselle Tennis club on the latter's courts. The Westfields were represented by Messrs DeWitt and Sansom, and the Roselles by Messrs Warner and Smith.

The Roselles, by rather indifferent playing, lost the first set 5 to 6, but their play in the next two sets greatly improved, resulting in their winning both sets by 6 to 3 and 6 to 2. The record to date is:

| | Won | Lost |
|---|---|---|
| Roselle | 4 | 1 |
| Westfield | 4 | 1 |
| West End | 1 | 3 |
| Fanwood | 0 | 4 |

The Comic Opera This Evening.

"The Pearl of Pekin," a delightful comic opera, the scenes of which are laid in China, will be presented at Music Hall, this evening, by a company, under the management of Edward E. Rice, whose name alone should assure a fine performance. The opera admits of beautiful scenery and costumes, and its music is of the popular order, abounding in catchy airs and strong choruses. Although the "Pearl of Pekin" has never been sung here before, it has made great successes in the larger cities, and the company who will appear here includes many of the same people who have made it famous.

A Dangerous Fall.

Mrs. E. Sheridan, a guest of the Netherwood Hotel, raised one of the windows at the end of the reading room, the other night, and supposing the piazza extended around that side of the Hotel, stepped over the sill into space.

She fell about sixteen feet and landed on a hard gravel driveway. She was found unconscious by one of the laundry girls. Her arm was broken in two places, but she luckily escaped internal injury although so bruised that she is still confined to her bed.

The Owner the Bigger Beast.

Some criminal left his horse and wagon standing on Front street, near the post office, from eleven o'clock yesterday morning until after five, when S. E. Flower of the S. P. C. A., took the starved and thirsty animal to Seguine's stables, where it was fed and watered. When the owner turns up he can get his horse by paying its board bill. He will also get, probably, a warrant of arrest for cruelty to animals.

A Strong Case Against Linke, Says Captain Grant.

Frank Linke, a wholesale liquor dealer on West Front street, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of selling liquor to minors. Before City Judge Codington he pleaded not guilty, and his trial was set for Friday morning at ten o'clock. The complainant in the case is Police Captain Grant, who has been securing evidence carefully and judiciously, and who says he is sure of procuring Linke's conviction.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is of inestimable value. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Mrs. McKeown Tired of Her Husband.

Alexander McKeown, a rich coffee merchant living in Fanwood, has been sued by his wife for divorce. The case was before Chancellor McGill yesterday and he gave the defendant ten days to file an answer.

"Good for young and old. We know of no better tonic for the system than Hires' Improved Root Beer. It is delicious, effervescent, sparkling, appetizing, and a helper of temperance. ### Connecticut Republican Convention.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 17.—The Republican State convention met at the Hyperion Theater this forenoon A temporary organization was formed by selecting ex-Lieutenant-Governor Cook as chairman and appointing committees on credentials, permanent organization and resolutions.

Sudden Death of Judge Dick.

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 17.—News has reached here of the sudden death at Johnstown of Judge C. L. Dick. For several years past deceased has been prominent in railroad litigation. He was also the legal representative in this section of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Killed by a Tramp.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Sept. 17.—John Bonner, aged 45, was murdered by "Dublin Jim," a hard character of this place, who, in company with a band of tramps, attacked Bonner in the woods a mile from here. Bonner was stabbed many times, and fatally, in the breast. The accused pleads self defense.

A Phonograph to Record on Two Cylinders.

A phonograph to record on two cylinders simultaneously, so that one may be retained as a file, or so that a message may be repeated from one cylinder to another, is one of the most recent improvements in this line. The construction is said to permit of listening to the record on one cylinder and simultaneously therewith dictating a reply to the other cylinder, or to allow two persons to dictate at the same time. It will also reproduce two like messages simultaneously, thereby greatly increasing the volume of sound, or a cylinder bearing a record may be placed in the phonograph with one having no record, and the record be reproduced on the plain cylinder while the operator listens. This phonograph is a patented invention of Mr. James P. Magenis, of North Adams, Mass.

Corrosion of Zinc in Contact with Brick.

A German paper mentions the fact that under some conditions sheet zinc, when in direct contact with brickwork, suffers to an appreciable extent from rapid corrosion. In building the Berlin city market-halls a portion of the zinc-work which rested upon brick walls was found to be deeply pitted at a number of places, particularly where the metal was close to the bricks. Chemical examination of these resulted in showing that they contained as high as one and fourteen-hundredths per cent. of soluble salts, of which the destructive effect increases by moisture. The proportion of such salts varies with different kinds of brick, while in some there may be nothing to induce any such corrosion. As a preventive, roofing felt or similar material may be placed between the zinc and brickwork.

PRESERVALINE is the name of a preparation sold to milk dealers to enable them, by adding it to their milk, to palm off stale milk on the community. It is supposed to consist mainly of boric or of salicylic acid. Ten per cent. of the milk furnished to Brooklyn is said to have had this substance added to it. The persons concerned profess that the milk is not made injurious by this procedure, but it is very obvious that it may become injurious under certain circumstances, and the State Dairy Commission is quite right in declining to leave that question to the milkmen's discretion.—N. Y. Medical Journal.

Manganese Plating of Iron as a Protection from Rust.

According to our Italian contemporary, Progresso, articles of iron can be protected against rust by sinking them near the negative pole of an electric bath composed of 10 liters of water, 50 grammes of chloride of manganese, and 200 grammes of nitrate of amm onia. Under the influence of the current the bath deposits on the articles a film of metallic manganese which prevents them from rusting.

ENGINEER DUNHAM'S "BONANZA."

Every Cent He Gets He Earns, and the Charges Against Him Are False.

Charges which would be serious if true were published in The World this morning against F. A. Dunham, of Plainfield, Road Engineer of Union County. When a PRESS reporter called on Mr. Dunham to interview him regarding the matter, the busy engineer had not yet learned of the publication of the article, and was shown the following:

The annual report of the County Collector of Union County has been published in book form and it will now be in order for the Republican Board of Freeholders, who had the authorizing of the expenditures noted in it, to rise and explain for the enlightenment of the astonished taxpayers. It will be interesting to know how an official whose salary is fixed by the Board of Freeholders has been allowed to draw a sum nearly five times greater than what he was supposed to receive.

When the County Road bill was passed the Board appointed F. A. Dunham, of Plainfield, as Supervising Engineer of Construction on the county roads at a compensation of $8 per day. He had the privilege of hiring two assistants at a salary of $2.50 each per day. Collector Wood's report shows that Collector Dunham has received on account of county roads the following sums at various times during the year: $837 00, $1,048.13, $686.13, $767.50, $1,530.50, $1,020.12, $979.50, $758.50, $570.88, $1,360.87, $994.50. Total, $10,603.72.

He also drew on account of bridges $63.67, 88.50, 77.08, 253.50, 42 50, 105.72, 49.01, 35, 39. Total, $753.98. This would make a grand total of moneys received by Engineer Dunham for his services of $11,357.70.

Supposing he worked every-day of the year, including Sunday, he would be entitled, at the rate fixed by the Board, to 365 days' pay at $8 per day, a total of $2,920.

His two assistants, presuming they had also worked the same time, would receive 365 times $5, their combined salary, amounting to $1,825, or a total for the engineer and his assistants of $4,745, all they were legally entitled to receive, on the presumption that they were on duty every day in the year, a rather unlikely thing to believe, as Mr. Dunham must have put in some of his time in earning the $753.98 which he is credited with getting on account of bridges.

Collector Wood's report shows that Mr. Dunham drew $10,603.72 for county roads alone, or an excess of $5,858.72 more than the combined salaries of himself and his assistants.

The taxpayers are entitled to know by what process of mathematical calculation a man whose salary is fixed at $8 per day, and his two assistants at $2.50 each, can figure up that the county of Union owes them $16,603 72. It is to be hoped this will be answered by the Freeholders in a more satisfactory manner than was the query put to the Board recently by Franklin Leonard Pope as to why the mud and clay were mixed with the Telford used in the construction of certain of the county roads, under the supervision of this exceedingly well-paid engineer.

Without any hesitation Mr. Dunham opened his books in the presence of the reporter and exhibited his method of keeping the road accounts.

Instead of himself and two assistants being the only workers for whom he draws pay, the number approaches two score. He has twelve different county road contracts under way, and for each contract is obliged to provide a supervising engineer and from one to two inspectors. Each engineer is paid $8 per day, the same as himself, and each inspector is paid $2.50 per day—eight hours constituting a day's work. When one of his engineers works two hours the county is charged $2, for a quarter-day's labor, and when one works twelve hours the county is charged $12. This same method is employed in keeping the time of the inspectors. In every instance the county is charged for the actual work done—no more, no less. Any one of ordinary intelligence willing to recognize the truth can see that it doesn't take many months for twelve engineers and ten or fifteen inspectors, working from two to sixteen hours a day, to run up a considerable bill. The principal engineers have of necessity been working over time a great deal, while some of the others have put in many short days. A conscientious record has been kept of each man's time, Mr. Dunham and his right hand man, Andrew J. Gavett, going over the books carefully each evening, to see that every detail was correct. The books have been open to the entire staff in Mr. Dunham's office ever since the county road work was begun, and if there had been any crookedness it would have been immediately discovered.

Those who know Mr. Dunham and Mr. Gavett—and who in Plainfield does not?—do not credit them with any desire for illegitimate spoliation of the public treasury; but even if they had combined to pocket over-charges, and had successfully subsidized the dozen of office employes who from a thorough knowledge of the proper charges and of the entries on the books would have known all about it, they could not even hope that falsified accounts would pass successfully the scrutiny of the Auditing Committee of the Board of Freeholders and the examination of the Board itself. The Freeholders have investigated thoroughly every account that has been presented, and no money has been expended except for work actually done.

The payments that have been made to Mr. Dunham on the county roads account has included, besides the salaries of engineers and inspectors already mentioned, the earnings of the office staff constantly at work on maps and other preparatory matters and of the surveying groups who stake out and curb lines and the grades. Then there are numerous incidentals, such as livery hire, which run the monthly expenses up to considerably more than $1,000, and for all this outlay Mr. Dunham of course has to be recompensed. The only money which he receives from the county actually for himself is his regular salary of $8 per day; and this weak attempt of The World correspondent to show that he has been pocketing wholesale illegitimate gains must be credited to ignorance or viciousness.

Mr. Dunham himself does a great deal of over time work, and of course gets paid the regular rate of $1 per hour. Mr. Gavett worked sixteen hours a day till he nearly killed himself and had to take a vacation, from which he has just returned, with his weight still twelve pounds less than normal. The other engineers, inspectors and surveyors, are also worked hard. Engineer Dunham and his assistants have a great deal to do before cold weather sets in. They have been pushing matters for the best interests of the people. None of them has received a cent that was not his due, and none of them has attempted or desired to defraud the taxpayers. The Board of Freeholders have audited all accounts and have been satisfied in every instance with the honesty of the service and the thoroughness of the work. And Mr. Dunham's books are open for the inspection of every Doubting Thomas who is open to conviction.

WOMEN WHO KEPT THEIR PLEDGE.

Total Abstainers Removing Prejudice Against the Waters of Foreign Lands.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of LaGrande avenue, says that the idea that when one goes abroad he must drink the wines of European countries in preference to the waters is altogether wrong. During her foreign trip this Summer both the Doctor and herself drank nothing but water, and were in the best of health, while those who were afraid of Adam's ale and who indulged exclusively in manufactured drinks were in many cases visibly affected by the liquors. At a recent meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, of which she is President, she caused a profound impression among the members by announcing that on shipboard and during the journey abroad she was deeply grieved to see a pastor who is a great friend of the Union throughout the land and who is known personally to many of the members in this and other cities, drink fermented liquors freely, setting a pernicious example to young people whose lips had hitherto been guiltless of the bowl, and establishing within himself, apparently, a taste for that which he had taught others to shun. She deprecated earnestly this example of failing to practice purity as well as to preach it.

Miss Clementine Yates, who also had just returned from a long visit to foreign shores, indorsed heartily what Mrs. Tomlinson said concerning the drinks of other countries. The temptations, she said, were many, but if one had strength of will and faith he could withstand all arts and keep from violating his pledge. During the many long months she spent among strange nations she shunned all wines just as though she were at home, and drank nothing but native waters, and remained in perfect health.

The women unite in declaring that good water abounds in every clime, and no one need drink of anything else except from choice. Health and happiness, they add, attended the drinking of water in the old world long before the new world was discovered, and health and happiness still attend water-drinkers more than winebibbers, the world over.

Good Fruits in Local Markets.

Doubtless the best California grape now to be purchased is the Tokay. This grape is coming into the market in good order. It is most attractive in appearance, but will be in its best condition in about ten days. Tokays of excellent quality may be bought from the vendors for from 12 to 15 cents per pound. The best at present come in packages containing five pounds, and may be purchased from the fancy fruiterers for $1 per package.

Melons are no longer of good quality. The excessive rains have seriously affected the quality those grown near by, and the South Jersey crop is about all gathered.

Cranberries will be abundant this season, but growers, owing to the scarcity of apples and other fruits, expect to receive high prices.

Tomatoes will be abundant and comparatively cheap all this week. Long Island farmers have to sell them to the wholesale markets for not above 30 cents per box of 50 pounds each.

Reports from the sweet-potato producing sections are to the effect that a large crop will be gathered this season. There is a large crop of white potatoes, and most potato dealers and speculators are inclined to the opinion that the Government reports underestimate the potato crop. There is no doubt but that there will be a great State and Eastern crop.

The Success of the Season.

Although the Broadway theatre will accommodate thousands of patrons during the next two weeks, and though seats can now be purchased for any night of the engagement, yet Francis Wilson and Company will leave behind them thousands with an unsatisfied longing to see and hear more of the "Merry Monarch." There was never so decisive, deserving and distinguished a success in the history of light opera. There is not a mistake in it. Years of experience had taught Comedian Wilson and Manager Canby just what to leave out, and the result is perfection in all parts. The music is particularly pleasing, and the lines generally good. Wilson falls down stairs as an entrance, and is on the stage most of the time. He has now an opera all his own, that he has built to fit himself and his excellent company. The consequence is it is almost faultless.

—Ryan who pitches for the Norwich team is an Apollo. He can throw a ball all around a batter's neck, and he hits out of sight.

THE ENGAGEMENT RING.

Daring Exploit of a Lover in the Wild Ozark Region.

The first one usually doesn't cost much; but it costs enough, for all that, says the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. You are about twenty when you begin looking over the jewelers' advertisements and find yourself wondering if she will be pleased with what you save and pinch so to get. At length you have bought it. Then comes the eventful evening; you stroll down the street feeling your importance at every step; with thumping heart you pass into your love's sweet presence; there she sits expectant; before you know any thing about it her hand is in yours. Over her taper fingers the jeweled band is slipped, and what follows immediately you remember so well it need not be recalled.

Hank Hilliard was born and reared away down in the wild Ozark region of Christian County, Mo., almost within gunshot of the famous Bald Knobbers of South Missouri. He had never been out of the county, much less out of the State, and his ideas of engagement rings were limited. When pretty Sallie Diggs—pretty in spite of her length, shambling walk and freckles—insisted upon a ring before she would consider the engagement binding, Hank was nonplused.

He expostulated without avail, scratched his head, thought a long while and finally went away. He came back the next afternoon, his brown face wreathed in smiles.

"I've got her," he exclaimed, and, reaching in his pocket, he drew out a great ring of brass.

Sallie smiled and reached out her hand. Hank slipped the ring over the girl's largest finger, and, leaning near the simple maiden, whispered:

"Now, Sal, air ye satisfied that weuns is engaged?"

"Yes, Hank," Sal whispered, shaking the ring around on her finger; "but say, Hank, whar did ye git it?"

"Ye won't tell?"

"Nope."

"Hones'?"

"Hones', Hank?"

"Ef ye must know, I cut it outen dad's Sunday galluses."

Sal slipped over into Hank's arms, and, as their freckled, sun-burned cheeks touched, the girl whispered:

"Say, Hank, ain't ye 'fraid yer dad'll lick ye when he finds his galluses busted?"

A MODERN MUMMY.

It Can Be Seen in the Establishment of a Kansas City Undertaker.

There has been a great deal of valuable time lost and a considerable waste of paper by writers who have deplored at length what they termed the lost art of embalming—the art in which the Egyptians are said to have excelled every people since man's creation. There is an undertaker in Kansas City who, according to the Star, has demonstrated beyond a doubt that he can do better work in embalming than even the Egyptians did in their palmiest days of cultivating the art. Nor does he require the profuse use of oils and spices and bolts of linen goods to protect the subject from the ravages of time. No mummies are recovered with the features well preserved. The friends of Clarence Wagner can find no difficulty in tracing the familiar lines of his face, his perfect features and auburn hair and mustache, if they will only visit the undertaking rooms and request to see the embalmed body. Wagner was a native of Germany, and when he died, October 16, 1888, he was thirty years of age. He lived in Kansas City for several years, and was well known in many German societies. His death was due to quick consumption, and occurred in the German Hospital in this city. Sickness had absorbed all his means before he was taken to the hospital, and after his death no one claimed the body, which was prepared for burial and held for orders for its final disposal, but none came. The undertaker then conceived the idea of making some experiments with embalming fluids concocted by himself and the opportunity for a fair test as to their efficacy and durability was afforded. After the arteries were emptied about a half gallon of liquid preservative was injected in them. This liquid contained considerable salt, but the other component parts are kept secret. Every day for a month injections of the liquid were made and the skin thoroughly rubbed with another preparation. The body gradually decreased in size and in six months' time it was thoroughly prepared to retain its shape for eternity. Numerous experiments on this subject with the ordinary destructive fluids and with the elements of wind and weather have been made, but it remains intact.

A Boy With Many Wives.

A correspondent of the Indian Daily News has furnished the details of an extraordinary case of polygamy. A Brahman of Bengal gave away his six aunts, eight sisters, and four daughters in a batch in marriage to a boy less than ten years old. The ages of the brides of three generations varied from fifty years to three months, and the baby bride was brought to the marriage ceremony on a brass plate. Among the Kulin Brahmans, it is said, the man who receives in marriage the majority of the daughters of a family is also bound to have the rest, otherwise the minority must suffer a lifelong celibacy. The correspondent concludes: "Hundreds of instances like the above might be given if needed."

No Cipher Was Needed.

A remarkable telegram broke up the entire establishment in a big New York store recently. The head of the firm received a dispatch conveying this information: "A mosquito ill to-day. Can't come down." He called in the other partners and the chief clerks for a consultation. They had no cipher that fitted the telegram, but after awhile light dawned upon one of the party. A bright young man in the store rejoices in the name of Amos, and, being under the weather, his mother wrote this telegram: "Amos quite ill to-day. Can't come down." Business was suspended for an hour while the establishment was recovering its equilibrium.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

The thirty-third or last degree in Scottish Rite Masonry will be conferred at Cleveland this month on a larger number of prominent Masons than ever before at any meeting of the Supreme Council. Applications for this grade are not received, but the honor is bestowed for special service and upon the recommendation of active members of the Supreme Council residing in the several States. The number that can receive the thirty-third degree is limited to one for every hundred thirty-second degree Masons in each State.

The picnic recently given in Illinois for the benefit of the Masonic Orphans' Home realized nearly three thousand dollars for that institution. An example of Masonic charity certainly worthy of imitation.

Thurlow Weed was perhaps the staunchest anti-Mason that ever lived, and yet when the Grand Lodge of New York recently began to pay off the debt of the Masonic Hall in that city the trustees found a large block of the seven per cent. bonds securely registered in the name of Thurlow Weed, on which his heirs drew a handsome income for many years. The efforts of the wily statesman to destroy Freemasonry did not seem to weaken his faith in its securities as a profitable investment.

Odd-Fellows.

The decoration of chivalry was conferred for the first time in Canada at a recent meeting of Rebekah degree members at Windsor, Ont. Mrs. Reid, the Noble Grand of Naomi Rebekah degree staff, was the recipient of the honor, which was bestowed in the presence of a very large audience.

An Odd-Fellows' temple at Grand Forks, N. D., is nearly completed and will be dedicated next month. It is a handsome structure, costing nearly $30,000.

The Veteran Odd-Fellows' Association of New York gave its first annual banquet last week. There were upward of a hundred members at the feast, although twenty-one years of active consecutive membership in the order is necessary for admission to the association.

Improved Order of Red Men.

The annual session of the Great Council of the United States will be held on the Boston reservation September 9. Great chiefs from all parts of the United States will attend and a great pow-wow will be held.

The Supreme League of National Chieftains of the United States will assemble in Boston September 3. This is the uniformed body of the order, and the citizens of Boston will be treated to a parade of noble adopted savages in full war-paint.

Ancient Order United Workmen.

The Supreme Recorder, M. H. Sackett, has just issued his monthly report for July, 1890. It shows a net gain of membership of sixteen hundred during the month. In some jurisdictions there was a material decrease of membership that month. Illinois seemed to suffer most, the loss being three hundred and thirty, principally due to suspensions for nonpayment of dues. Some of the other jurisdictions had a notably large increase, Kansas appearing in a particularly active and healthy condition.

Knights of Pythias.

The reports of the Grand Keeper of Records and Seal of Illinois, for the Pythian year just closed, shows a net increase of three thousand members in that jurisdiction, and thirty-seven new lodges organized. The Grand Lodge will meet in annual session at Bloomington, September 21, and a lively session is expected.

Knights of Honor.

The annual session of the Grand Lodge of Illinois will convene at Springfield September 16. During the past year the order in that State has been peaceful and prosperous, and an interesting session is expected. Some very important measures for the extension of the order in the State will come up for action, and no doubt cause a lively debate.

McDOUGALL.

About Currants.

E. P. Roe writes: "Currants are but half appreciated by the world. People rush around in July in search of health. Let me recommend the currant cure. If any one is languid, depressed in spirits, inclined to headaches, and generally 'out of sorts,' let him finish his breakfast daily for a month, with a dish of freshly picked currants. He will soon doubt his own identity, and may even think that he is becoming a good man. He will be more gallant to his wife, kinder to his children, friendlier to his neighbors, and more open-handed to every good cause. Work will soon seem play, and play fun. In brief, the truth of the ancient pun will be verified. 'That the power to live a good life depends largely upon the liver.' Out upon the nonsense of taking medicine and nostrums during the currant season. Let it be taught at the theological seminaries that the currant is a 'means of grace.' It is a corrective, and that is what average humanity most needs. They are fast growers. Every cutting of young wood six inches long, will make a new plant in a season; and they will thrive almost anywhere."

A NEW mill for the manufacture of paper from moss has been recently established in Sweden. Paper of different thickness and pasteboard made of it have already been shown, the latter even in sheets three-quarters of an inch thick. It is as hard as wood, and can be easily painted and polished.

A COUNTRY COURTSHIP.

Driving the cows from the upper meadow—
Beauty and Brindle and Bess—
Now in the sunlight, now in the shadow,
And now in the wind's caress;
With song as sweet as at morn the starling
Is wont to the skies to trill,
Mollie, the farmer's daughter and darling,
Comes tripping adown the hill.

Purple and black are the braided tresses
Her dainty temples that crown;
Light is her step on the sward it presses,
As fall of the thistledown.
The squirrels peep from the wayside hedges,
As the maiden moves along,
And count it chief of their privileges
To list to her jocund song.

Down where the alders and slender rushes
Border the rivulet's banks,
And the widened sweep of the water gushes
Under a bridge's broad planks;
Whistling a love-song, in broken snatches—
His hat pushed back from his brows—
Robin, the miller, awaits and watches
For the coming of the cows.

Up to their knees in the stream, the cattle
Drink deep of its crystal flow;
Little they care for the lovers' prattle
Or the bliss the twain may know;
Their heaving sides with their draughts distended,
They enter the path again,
And crop the grasses, with heads low bended,
On either side of the lane.

The shadows deepen; the dew is sprinkling
With diamonds all the meads;
And faint and far, in the distance tinkling,
The sound of the bells recedes.
Still on the bridge where the water glistens,
As the moonlight on it falls,
The miller talks, and the maiden listens,
But the cows are in their stalls.
—William D. Kelly, in Ladies' Home Journal

THE COUNTERFEITERS.

How Patty Lockwood Discovered a Bogus Money Mill.

A few miles from the Connecticut river, boundary line between lower New Hampshire and Vermont, may still be seen the scattered remains of a tiny colonial settlement. There is a legend which tells of a school-master, who, reaching the little hamlet, footsore and weary, after an unavailing search for a place in which to open his school, exclaimed: "Eureka! I have found it!" as he saw before him a brick school-house, newly built and teacherless. Since then the small settlement, which had a school-house before it had a name, has been known as Eureky, and bricks from the original school-house, in proof of this christening, are carefully preserved. One June day in Revolutionary times a middle-aged man plodded along the Crown Point road, which ran through Eureky on its stony way across the Green mountains to Bennington, the chief high road from the New England coast to the State of New York. He was short and sturdy, and carried under one arm an iron box, secured by a padlock. As a lumbering ox-team or whistling wood chopper passed him, on their way home from a long day's work, he pulled his hat well down about his face the better to hide his beetling brow and deep-set eyes. Coming at length to a narrow bypath he struck off to the left of the Crown Point road, and, reaching a broad-faced, well-built house he looked sharply about, and finding that he was unobserved, tapped upon the window pane.

"Hello! McAndrew, is that you?" called a subdued voice from within.

"Black river," answered McAndrew, giving a private countersign, and the door was opened.

Although the rumble of thunder was in the air, a huge fire blazed in the mammoth fire-place of the room which McAndrew entered, and it was evident from the appearance of the two unkempt men present that they were engaged in some nefarious occupation. Their voices were lowered, and they moved noiselessly in their stocking feet from the fire-place to the table, filling coin molds with melted metal.

"How much did you use of it at Charlestown?" asked one of the men, lifting McAndrew's box and shaking it gently.

"A little is left," answered McAndrew. "But to-morrow will be our day, for Stark goes through here on his way to Bennington, and we will treat his soldiers to their fill with our illegal tender."

For a few hours all three worked like bees, melting, molding and stamping their bogus coin. Then they dropped it, still warm, into McAndrew's box, and placed it, for safe keeping, in a cave dug in the bank just back of the house.

This accomplished to their satisfaction, they returned to the house, threw wide the outside door in order to cool the rooms below, while they went upstairs to examine the treasure hidden there. Pushing back a secret panel in the wall, they stepped into a small, closely-boarded room, and opening a wooden box looked in.

"Those pesky rats have been at work again," exclaimed one of the men, taking out a handful of nibbled money.

"Let me see it," said McAndrew, and gleaning among the bits, he collected a quantity of counterfeit scrip, which he distributed equally among them.

"Remember, lads," he said, "no paper goes for less than three York shillings; there's a deal of work in making this," and he gathered up, and fondly looked at his share.

This paper currency was shorter and narrower than the "greenback" of today, and had upon its face a picture of an Indian, guiding his frail canoe down a reckless stream, illustrating the motto, "Pass me along," printed below it. Many of the good people of Eureky were not as ignorant as they seemed of the counterfeiters' "plant" in their midst, but in those troublesome times it was deemed the better part of valor to leave them undisturbed.

Patty Lockwood, the hardy daughter of a pioneer race in which the women were as fearless as the men, had been watching long past midnight with a sick neighbor (neighbors were then far apart), and regardless of flashing clouds and heavy thunder had already gone half a mile on her return home when the storm broke into a frenzy of wind and rain. Before her was the counterfeiters' house. The door was still open, throwing an alluring stream of light far into the storm-beaten pathway, and Patty stepped inside for shelter without any hesitation.

The counterfeiters, still upstairs, had grown merry over the contents of a brown jug, also kept in the panel-room, and become so unguarded in the fancied security of the late hour that Patty's quick ear caught the words: "Here's to our good luck." Another voice sang jovially:

"Our money bright
Buys rum at night
For the weary soldier boy;
For what cares he,
Or what care we,
If it is all alloy?"

And the others joined in the chorus:

"From daylight till dark
We'll cheat old Stark,
Yankee Doodle Do—"

"Hark!" cried McAndrew, as Patty ran out into the night, slamming the door after her, "what was that?"

"Only the wind shutting the door," answered the soloist; "you needn't turn pale."

"Hush-sh!" said the third, as they went down-stairs on tip toe.

The jingle rang so persistently in Patty's mind that it disturbed the three hours for rest still left to her upon reaching home. She was glad of the first rays of morning light, showing that it was time to dress and drive home the cows for their early milking.

"From daylight till dark
We'll cheat old Stark."

she hummed, alternately with "coo mooly, coo mooly," as she climbed the hills to the waiting cows and let down the bars to their pasture.

"Coo mooly, coo mooly," she called again; but they did not seem willing to come, and, following the direction of their raised heads she saw a large troop of soldiers coming along the Crown Point road under the leadership of General Stark, on an early march to Bennington. Never had Patty seen so many people at once. Standing one side as they passed she stared hard at them and at the heavy cannon dragged in the rear.

General Stark was not an entire stranger, for he had twice taken a meal at her father's house. Suddenly impressed with the idea that he ought to hear this rhyme, which seemed to indicate some trouble in store for him, she snatched off her sun-bonnet in order to run the faster, and overtook and stopped him.

"Benona Lockwood's girl, as I'm alive!" exclaimed General Stark. "What can we do for you?"

"Oh, nothing," answered Patty, her pink cheeks deepening many shades as she caught her breath. "You have enemies in that house yonder," and she pointed to the counterfeiter's house. "Late last night I heard them singing this about you," and she repeated the jingle.

"Here, my boys, into that boarding-house yonder," commanded General Stark, "and don't you let a man escape!"

The willing soldiers, many of them having overheard Patty's rhyme, fell upon the counterfeiters' house and raided it from cellar to garret, the panel room only escaping their invasion. Two of the counterfeiters were captured, and the third, McAndrew, "'tis said," hid in the cave for safety; as he was never seen to come out it is supposed he died there.

"Patty," said General Stark, handing her a piece of the cheat money as a memento of the occasion, "who knows but you've turned the poor colonists' luck, and the English may get a sound thrashing at Bennington? The flavor of a small success makes the boys hungry for a larger one. Three cheers for Patty Lockwood, my lads!" and the General waved his hat.

"Three cheers!" called the soldiers, lustily.

"Three cheers!" repeated the Eureky villagers, standing near in a small group.

"Three cheers!" echoed Mt. Ascutney a mile away, as the soldiers continued their march to victory and death.

The only perfect specimen of the counterfeiters' paper money may be found in the Boston Museum, and the coin and stamp molds are in the possession of the descendant of an old Eureky family.—M. Carrie Hyde, in Congregationalist.

SHE OUTWITTED THEM.

The Ancient Maiden Calmly Made Use of an Unfamiliar Tongue.

In a semi-fashionable boarding-house "on the hill," in Washington, resides, as a guest, a maiden lady, cultured and clever. Like some other nice people, she is rather sensitive on the subject of age, and this, of course, was the subject of some quizzing among the thicker-skinned boarders. The blank left at the house by the enumerator was spread out on the parlor table, and the inmates requested to fill in the various spaces as to their antecedents, etc. Secrecy was, of course, out of the question, and considerable curiosity was evinced as to how our ancient maiden would treat the query as to her age.

When her turn came she was equal to the emergency. She quietly filled in all the desired information, and when the eager eyes around scanned the "age column" they found they could make nothing of it. Every thing else was written out in a neat, clear hand, but here they were stumped.

"Why, Miss Arabella," said the landlady, smiling sweetly, "I am afraid the enumerator will not be able to make this out," pointing to the item in question.

"That?" said Miss Arabella, placidly. "Oh, that is written in German, you know, and if he can't read it they can at the office, of course." And she calmly retired, well aware that not a soul in the house but herself understood a word of German.

A Heavenly Expression.

An Episcopal clergyman of Indiana tells this as a true story: Recently one of the prominent members of his parish died. After the funeral the widow found great comfort in telling her neighbors about the many virtues of her late husband, even mentioning that he took the greatest delight in playing cards as an innocent pastime. She must have been thinking of him as he appeared in his "customary attitude," for she said: "Jacob looked so well when they opened the coffin at the church. He had not changed one particle. There was, oh! such a heavenly expression on his face! He looked just as though he held four kings."

A SPOOL OF TWIST.

A Screaming Farce, with a Moral, in Two Acts.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ.
Mr. Chauncy Purseproud.
Mrs. Chauncy Purseproud.
Miss Kitty Gumchaw (Saleslady).
Mr. Bill Gall (City Expressman).

ACT I.

SCENE I.—(Dry and Fancy Goods Emporium of Messrs. Linnen & Dolly. Mrs. Chauncy Purseproud at small-wares counter, presided over by Miss Kittie Gumchaw).

Mrs. Purseproud—A spool of twist, please.

Miss Gumchaw (busy arranging her bangs, with aid of hand-mirror)—Beg pardon.

Mrs. P.—A spool of twist.

Miss G. (leisurely giving finishing touches to her bangs)—Yes'm; in a moment. What shade?

Mrs. P.—Mauve.

Miss G.—I don't think we have that shade. We have had it, but—light or dark?

Mrs. P.—Light.

Miss G.—Ah, here it is! I knew we had had it, but I thought it was all gone. Will you take it with you?

Mrs. P. (haughtily)—Certainly not. Send it. (Gives Michigan avenue address.) I want it to-day, sure.

Miss G.—Yes'm, certainly. Cash! Cash!! Cash!!! Where are you, Cash? Here, Thirteen! you take this. Come a-runnin'! What you're busy? I'll report you to the floor-walker if you don't come and take this right off! Don't you make any mouths at me, you sassy thing, you! Hurry right back, now—get out, quick!

ACT II.

SCENE II.—(Mr. and Mrs. Purseproud's bedroom at eleven p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Purseproud asleep. House dark. Servants all in bed.)

Mrs. Purseproud (starting up suddenly)—Mr. Purseproud! Chauncy!

Mr. Purseproud (gruffly) — Hey? Whacher want?

Mrs. P.—There's some one ringing the door-bell.

Mr. P.—Well, let 'em ring. It won't hurt the bell any.

Mrs. P.—But there's no one to go to the door. The servants are all in bed in the attic rooms, where they can't hear any thing.

Mr. P.—They wouldn't budge if they did hear. (Bell rings furiously).

Mrs. P.—Do get up and go to the door. It may be something important. A telegram, perhaps. May be mother is ill, and has sent for me. (Screeches out). Y-e-e-s; in a moment. Hurry, Chauncy.

Mr. P. (more anxious than he seems)—Where in thunder's the matches? Never can find one when I want it. (Bell rings loud and long). Yes—yes. Good Lord, don't jerk the bell wire out! I'm coming!

Mrs. P.—Chauncy! You're not going down to the door looking like that!

Mr. P.—Well, I am. You want me to go and make a full dress toilet for some messenger boy, or some idiot, who wants to know where John Smith lives? Humph!

Mrs. P.—Well, I'd put something on, anyhow. What if it should be a lady?

Mr. P. (scornfully)—A lady! Queer lady, to go racing round, banging doorbells at midnight. I'd go down, just as I am, if I knew there were forty ladies there! (Goes down. Falls over chair in hall. Swears. Can't find door knob. Swears some more. Mrs. P. calls out for him to "stop that." Opens door, so as to scrape one of his bare feet. More swearing).

Mr. P. (standing in vestibule, clad in virgin white, and calling to some one outside)—What you want?

Mr. Bill Gall (city expressman, greatly belated)—Is this Mr. Chauncy Purseproud's house?

Mr. P.—Yes, it is.

Mr. Bill Gall—Package from Linnen & Dollys'.

Mr. P. (icily)—This is a nice time of night to come around with packages! If I had my gun I'd shoot you!

Mr. Bill Gall—Ye needn't jaw me, old man; I couldn't help it. I had orders to leave it, sure, and I had to come a mile out o' my way; and—

Mr. P.—Oh, shut up. Gimme the package.

Mr. Bill Gall—Here it is.

Mr. P.—Where?

Mr. Bill Gall—How

Mr. P.—Where, fool?

Mr. Bill Gall—Here, chump!

(Mr. Purseproud paws around in the darkness, trying to feel the package, which Gall suddenly flings into the vestibule, and runs down steps).

Mr. P.—I'll report you, young man!

Mr. Bill Gall—Report and be ——!

(Purseproud bangs and locks the door, and then gets down on all fours in vestibule, and feels around for package, using awful language. Finds package, and flies upstairs with it between his thumb and fore-finger.)

Mrs. P.—What is it, dear?

Mr. P. (rudely and vulgarly mimicking his own wife)—What is it, d-e-a-r? I'd ask, if I were you! It's that! (Unrolls paper, and throws spool of mauve twist at Mrs. Purseproud. She catches it, deftly, in one hand, and says, calmly) Why, it's my spool of twist!

Mr. P. (fiercely)—Your spool of twist! I'll just be ——!

Mrs. P.—Chauncy!

Mr. P.—Well, by—

Mrs. P.—Mr. Purseproud!

Mr. P. (gritting his teeth)—Well, I—I—I—

Mrs. P.—I'd be ashamed to make such a fuss about nothing.

Mr. P.—Nothing! You call it nothing to have a man and a horse raiding the streets of Chicago at midnight, with a spool of twist, that you could have carried home in your pocket. You call it "nothing," to have your worn-out husband wakened out of his sleep to prance around after an infernal little spool of twist! Hang me, if you wimmen can't be the blamedest—

Mrs. P. (coldly)—Mr. Purseproud, remember that you are talking to your wife! I decline listening to any more such language, and will pass the remainder of the night in the guest chamber. Good night, sir!

(Exit Mrs. Purseproud. Mr. Purseproud flings himself into his bed, rolls himself up in the bed-clothes, and mutters often in his sleep)—A spool of twist! Humph!—Light.

A Loving Menage.

Mr. Cræsus Bullion (aged seventy-five)—I notice, Evalina, that you have been lately calling me "dearest swan." It's a very pretty term; what is the allegory?

Mrs. Cræsus Bullion (aged twenty, one year married)—You know a swan lives one hundred years, and it seems as though you might live to that age, doesn't it?—Jewelers' Circular.

JUDGING BY APPEARANCES.

Thin Person—Mr. Cleever, I think I'll trade with you hereafter. I've been buying my meat from the butcher across the way.

Cleever—Well, you look it!—Munsey's Weekly.

Breaking It Gently.

Lynching Party (whispering before knocking)—Break it gently to her, Ike!

Alkali Ike—You bet! (as the lady of the dug-out appears) Howdy, Widder Hosley?

Mrs. Hosley—What do you mean? I'm no widow. Where's Hank?

Alkali Ike (triumphantly)—Yes you air! See that thing hangin' on the jack oak limb, over thar in the edge uv the tall timber? That's Hank!—Munsey's Weekly.

A Slur on the Singers.

"Yes," said the minister, "I have bade farewell to my congregation. I have determined to go and try to convert the heathen."

"Then surely, Mr. Whanger," said the soprano, reproachfully, "you won't forget to visit your choir."—Philadelphia Times.

His Vacation.

Foggs—Did you enjoy any vacation this year?

Talbot—Oh, yes.

Foggs—I'm glad to hear that. Where did you go to?

Talbot—Oh, I did not go away; but my wife did—savey?—Munsey's Weekly.

A Good Guesser.

A—I'll bet that Jones has got a red-headed wife.

B—Yes, he has. But how do you know, as you say you never saw her?

A—Nothing, only I saw him yesterday with his head tied up, and he was looking for a place where they mended furniture cheap.—Texas Siftings.

Scriptural Authority.

"No, Johnny," said Mrs. Cumso, decisively, "you can not go fishing."

"But the Bible says I ought."

"What do you mean?"

"It says: 'Spare the rod and spoil the child.'"—Judge.

TRAGEDY IN CHURCH

An Angry Father Attempts to Stop a Marriage.

THE CEREMONY INTERRUPTED.

Shot at His Son While Standing in Front of the Altar.

The Bullet Missed and the Old Man Was Disarmed by the Priest—Objection to the Bride's Creed the Cause of the Tragedy—The Father Attempts Suicide and Then Disappears.

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 18.—Henry Cassel, of 170 Clendening avenue, attempted to kill his son last night while the latter was about to marry Miss Mary Deely, aged 19, in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church. The bridal couple were standing before the altar and the Rev. Father Sheehan was in the act of performing the ceremony when Cassel, who had got into the church without being seen, jumped up and, pointing a pistol at his son, deliberately fired. The ball failed to hit the young man and lodged in the wall.

As Cassel was about to fire a second shot Father Sheehan sprang towards him and disarmed him. The priest's hand was severely scratched in the struggle.

There was great excitement for a time among the large crowd. The bride fainted and was taken in charge by some of her friends. During the excitement Cassel, the father, made his escape from the church and had not been arrested up to this morning. It is believed he killed himself. His reason for attempting to assassinate his son was that he opposed the marriage because he did not want Miss Deely for a daughter-in-law.

The bride and her parents are Catholics and are communicants at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, where the marriage took place. The groom and his parents are German Lutherans and are members of St. John's German Lutheran Church on Fairview avenue.

The father of the groom was opposed to the marriage because of the differences of creeds. He stormed and swore, but to no purpose. The young man would not submit, and declared he would marry the girl of his choice.

The son's name is Alfred Cassel, and he is 21 years of age. He said that his father had warned him not to marry Miss Deely.

When the excitement had died out the couple again stood up before the altar and Father Sheehan went through the ceremony without further interruption.

THE CENTRAL STRIKE OFF.

D. A. 246 Gives Up the Battle on Account of Lack of Funds.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 18.—The New York Central & Hudson River Railroad strike is off.

The Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, D. A. 246, held a meeting at 10 o'clock and after looking the matter over carefully decided to declare the strike off. Accordingly, they issued a manifesto directed to the different districts ordering the strike at an end.

"Not that we do not still maintain that what we contended for was just," said Treasurer Price, "but because of lack of funds to carry on the contest."

Is It a Double Elopement?

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 18.—This place is excited over the disappearance of Annie Baker, 18, and Mamie Robinson, 17, the first the daughter of Colonel Baker, a wealthy resident, and the latter daughter of Contractor Daniel Robinson. The girls packed their clothing and concealed it in Mr. Robinson's barn. Yesterday they told their parents they were about to visit friends. They have not been seen since.

URGED TO REVOLT.

The Contents of an Inflammatory Circular Found in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—The Arbeiter Zeitung, the organ of the German Socialists, prints a translation of a long circular which, it alleges, was picked up in the city. It says it must have been issued at the instigation of John Bonfield for the purpose of raising an Anarchist scare and assisting him in the effort with which he is credited to get the appointment of chief of police. It is also suggested that it may have been issued to influence Governor Pifer to refuse the petition for the pardon of Oscar Neebe.

References in the circular to recent occurrences at Bohemian coal mines, and the general tenor, however, rather indicate that the circular was not intended to have any bearing on affairs in this country.

It is addressed "to the oppressed and disinherited." In bloodthirsty language it pictures the alleged intolerable conditions of society, the "monster of capital" which sheds "rivers of blood" in its greed for wealth.

It speaks of tyranny as "fastened to the breast of the people and sucking out its vitality." The chains of slavery are made to clank, the "police monster" flourishes the whip and club and helps tear one by one members from the body of the people.

The people are urged to destroy the capitalistic system and establish a society based on love, fraternity and equality. "Your duty calls upon you to take dynamite and the dagger against your innumerable murderers," says the circular. "Never appear with empty hands."

It concludes with the statement that Anarchy is the only system which can satisfy all wants of human society. "Then arise brothers and sisters of the laboring class," is the last sentence. "Arise up in arms; arise for the social revolution; destroy the existing system of robbery which threatens to crush you, and found the system of Anarchy."

THE BIG BATTLE.

Interest in the McAuliffe-Slavin Fight Increasing in London.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The following special cable was received from London: The interest in the McAuliffe and Slavin battle is increasing. The fight is the main topic in sporting circles. A well known bookmaker has received a commission from a syndicate of Australian bookmakers to back Slavin. Betting rules at 6 to 5 on the American, but the Australian money may change this.

Several of the English bookmakers have laid heavily against Slavin, and Lords Churston, DeClifford and Lonsdale have also backed the American. McAuliffe's trainers are satisfied with his condition and are sanguine that he will win.

Sporting men are in a quandary over the date of the fight, but it is expected to take place on the 22d. It has not been definitely settled who will second the American.

Complaint Against "Men About Town."

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—J. L. Ward, the keeper of a boarding house directly in the rear of the building occupied by the well known Lambs Club, a resort of actors and "men about town," appeared before Police Justice Reilly to-day and applied for warrants for members of the club, alleging that the club is a nuisance, and especially complaining of the noises emanating therefrom in the early hours of the morning. Justice Reilly issued summonses for the club's house committee.

Four Million People Homeless.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—The steamship City of Rio Janeiro, just arrived, brings advices from China and Japan. The Yellow River flood and other floods continue to absorb all attention in China. Four million people are homeless in the province of Chihi and in Shantung the misery is almost as great. Cholera is prevalent in Shanghai and also in the northern districts. Seven Europeans have succumbed to the disease.

Grand Master Sweeney Blames Lee.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 18.—In an interview with Grand Master Sweeney regarding the Central strike, he scored the local leaders of the switchmen for calling the men out here. BROOKLYN HAS A CLEAR LEAD.

Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston Fighting Hard for Second Place.

Kelly's Brotherhood Team Almost Sure of the Championship—New York and Brooklyn Stopped Again by the Rain—Chicago and Cincinnati Play Twelve Innings Without Breaking the Tie.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Brooklyn's defeat of Boston counts for a good deal more than it appears at first glance. These clubs are the National League leaders, and the result just about insures the championship to Brooklyn. There is but little doubt of that now. Brooklyn has a clear lead of 46 points over Boston. The latter and Philadelphia and Chicago are beautifully bunched. Boston is four points ahead, while the latter leads Chicago by only three points.

Kelly's Brotherhood club continues to win while New York and Brooklyn have been stopped by rain.

THE TRIP TO JOHNSTOWN.

The President and Party Enthusiastic Over the Beautiful Scenery.

CRESSON SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 18.—Upon the arrival of the President's train at Johnstown, the distinguished travelers were met at the station by Mayor Rose and a committee of citizens. The drive through the city and up a winding road to the top of the mountain, some 1,600 feet above the level of the sea, was enjoyed very much by the President.

At the summit of the mountain, a scene of great magnificence was afforded the party, the sides being the location of the Grand View cemetery where upwards of 700 unknown dead, who met their fate during the Johnstown flood, are buried. There is a vast expanse of mountainous country splendidly cultivated, stretching out in all directions as far as the eye can reach.

Private Secretary Halford was quite overcome when he was shown the 700 pure white tombstones which dotted the area set apart for the unknown. Speaking with the representative of the United Press in regard to the matter, Mr. Halford said that the very narrow escape of his wife and daughter from the rushing waters during the eventful night of the flood was vividly portrayed before his eyes as he gazed upon the sorrowful picture of the monuments directed to the memory of these, less fortunate than his family, who at that time lost their lives. The party left Johnstown at 1 p. m., en route for Greensburg, where they had been invited by State Senator and Mrs. George Huff of Westmoreland County. The President gave a public reception for about half an hour. After an elegant lunch the party returned to Cresson.

$2,000,000 FAILURE.

A Prominent Firm in Boston Forced to Make an Assignment.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 18.—S. Gardner Chase & Co., bankers and brokers, No. 146 Devonshire street, have failed, and an assignment for the benefit of the firm's creditors has been made to James T. Phelps, general agent of the National Life Insurance Company, No. 159 Devonshire street.

The firm is one of the most prominent in that line of business in Boston, and the failure is a surprise. No exact figures of the liabilities can as yet be given, but the assignee states that they will amount to $2,000,000. The members of the firm are G. Gardner Chase and Charles E. Legg. The business was started by Papendick, Chase & Co. Mr. Papendick died in 1869 and Mr. Chase conducted the business alone until 1880, when Mr. Legg was admitted as partner.

A statement of liabilities and assets will be prepared as soon as possible and a meeting of creditors called.

The failure is generally regarded as the result of a misfortune that could not be averted, and the kindliest expressions are heard on all sides for the crippled house. The impression is strong, also, that the trouble will not be far-reaching, and that its effects on the market will be only temporary.

Secretary Windom Will Not Resign.

MURDER AND SUICIDE

Domestic Troubles Cause a Terrible Tragedy.

A WRONGED HUSBAND'S CRIME.

He Shoots the Man He Suspected of Ruining His Life.

Returning Home He Kills His Two Daughters and Then Takes His Own Life—The City of Portsmouth, N. H., Excited—A Mob Around the House During the Shooting.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 18.—A terrible tragedy occurred here last night and there is great excitement. A mob of several hundred people surrounds the house where the bodies of three dead persons partially attest the extent of the crime.

Fred H. J. Hein, aged 45 years, a cooper in the employ of the Eldredge Brewing Company, has a family of three daughters, the eldest, Carrie, aged 15 years, keeping house for him, his wife, who it is said was unfaithful, having left him several months ago. Since she left it is reported the girl Carrie has become wayward.

Hein's troubles preyed upon his mind until he resolved to end them, and remove from temptation the three female members of the household. Two of them and the murderer himself lie dead in his home, while in the hospital the third daughter lies dying with a bullet in her neck, and at his home Chas. W. Taylor, a well known hardware merchant, whose name has been connected with that of Mrs. Hein, lies with two bullet holes in his back. Before the discovery of Hein's dead body officers and citizens were scouring the city in search of him, and had he fallen into the hands of the mob he would have been lynched.

Story of the Murder.

Charles W. Taylor, a stove dealer on Market street, while entering his residence at State and Union streets at about 7:30 last night, was rushed upon by Hein, who fired two shots in rapid succession, both of which took effect in the small of Taylor's back. Taylor's wife and neighbors heard the report of the revolver, and he was taken into the house. A large crowd gathered around the house and the police were obliged to force them back. The physicians were successful in extracting one ball, but were unable to find another. In reply to questions Taylor said that he does not know what prompted Hein to shoot him.

Shot Three Times.

Shortly before 8 o'clock people in the vicinity of Hein's house heard five pistol shots fired in rapid succession, and Maud, the 18 year old daughter of Hein, ran out of the house and down the street. She proceeded but a short distance when she fell on the pavement, saying: "Father has shot me." The girl was taken to the hospital, where she now lies in a critical condition. Three shots were fired at her, all taking effect.

The Murderer's Horrible Work.

The lower part of Hein's house was the scene of the murderer's most horrible work, and it shows evidence of a desperate struggle. The kitchen was covered with blood and everything was in great disorder. Just outside the back door of the house lay two bodies, Carrie, the oldest girl, lay with her face covered with blood, the bullet having entered the left side of the face, passing upward toward the brain, death having resulted instantly. Across her prostrate form lay Bertha, the youngest daughter. When found she was unconscious and she expired in fifteen minutes, the bullet that caused her death having entered her head just behind the left ear.

An Excited Crowd.

Sheriff Coffin arrived at Hein's house at 8:15, and detailed men to search for the murderer. Meanwhile Marshal Joy and a force of officers arrived and it was decided to closely examine the chambers. As they entered the front chamber they found the dead body of Hein stretched on the floor. A bullet had passed through his head from the revolver which lay by his side. The crowd which had gathered about the house were highly excited and had the murderer been taken alive he certainly would have been killed by them.

Sudden Death of a Rabbi.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 18.—Rabbi T. A. Moses, of New York city, died of apoplexy here last night. He had been conducting the services of the Hebrew congregation during the past week, and had just dismissed the audience when he was stricken down. He was 60 years old, and leaves a widow and several children.

The Bottom Fell Out.

HUFF'S CHURCH, Pa., Sept. 18.—Owing to the late heavy rains, an iron ore mine at Rittenhouse Gap sprung a leak, and 10,000 tons of ore disappeared in a sink hole 200 feet deep, carrying with it two engines and all the machinery. The mine is supposed to have been situated over a subterranean cavern.

To be Expunged from the Record.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The House Committee on the Judiciary decided to introduce a resolution as a substitute for Mr. Enloe's, providing that the language used by Mr. Kennedy be expunged from the "Congressional Record" and censuring Mr. Kennedy for his unusual proceeding.

$8,000 for Dempsey and Fitzsimmons.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—The Metropolitan Club has made an offer of a purse of $8,000 for a fight between Dempsey and Fitzsimmons.

THREE STATE CONVENTIONS.

Samuel E. Merwin Nominated for Governor by Connecticut Republicans.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 18.—United States Senator Platt was elected permanent chairman of the Republican State convention. When nominations were in order, H. G. Benton of New Haven placed the name of Samuel E. Merwin of New Haven before the convention, and prolonged applause followed his efforts. General Dwight of Hartford moved the renomination of the ticket of two years ago, but the motion fell flat.

The informal ballot resulted: Merwin, 388; Bulkely, 51. The ballot was made formal and Mr. Merwin was declared the nominee amid great applause.

The ticket was completed as follows: George Augustus Bowen of Woodstock, for Lieutenant-Governor; George P. McLean of Hartford, for Secretary of State; Stevens Henry of Rockville, for Treasurer; Lyman S. Catlin of Bridgeport, for Comptroller.

Massachusetts Republicans Nominate.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Governor Brackett, Lieut.-Governor Haute and Treasurer Marden were renominated by acclamation by the Republican State Convention.

The platform indorses the administration, congratulates Speaker Reed on his conduct of affairs in the House and the indorsement he received by his reelection in Maine; recapitulates with praise the work of legislation done by the present Congress; demands the passage of the Force bill; supports the Civil Service Commission and recommends the extension of its methods.

New Hampshire's Republican Convention.

—At Sebring's you will find a large stock of children's clothing at moderately low prices.

—The regular meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will take place this evening.

—Thomas King, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was fined $5 by Judge Codington, last night.

—MacDonald, the uptown grocer, has started a special sale of mixed tea, as low as 15 cents per pound. His announcement is on the third page of today's PRESS.

—The man who set the first act of the Pearl of Pekin last night probably meant well; but Mr. Mattox ought to know that those deep-sea flats of his will hardly pass for a "view of city in distance."

—Good singing, interesting reports and instructive addresses will be features of the Local Union meeting of the Christian Endeavor societies at Trinity Reformed church, to-night. Everybody welcome.

—At a meeting of the Crescent League, last evening, it was announced by the Committee on Subscriptions that almost $2,000 had already been pledged by a part of the members towards the building fund for a new club house.

—On one of its docks at Jersey City the Central Railroad has seen fit to place a sign which says:

BOATSNOTTOLANDHERE.

He who runs has no show at all with an inscription like this, and it is said that vessels from all parts of the world daily put in at the dock while their crews endeavor vainly to get at the meaning of the sign.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Wm. M. Stillman has returned from Castine, Maine.

H. Frank, of Newark, is the new night ticket agent at the North avenue railroad station.

The Fourth Congressional District Democratic Convention, which was held at Belvidere yesterday, and to which John Vetterlein, John Bodine, Lewis R. Blackford and Henry Woodland, of North Plainfield, were delegates, renominated Samuel Fowler of Sussex county, for Congress.

The Fourth Congressional District Republican Convention, which was held at Somerville today, and which H. K. Carroll, J. H. Cooley, Chas. P. Sebring and S. B. Woolston, of North Plainfield, attended as delegates, nominated Richard F. Goodman, editor of the Newton Register, Sussex county, for Congress.

A Lesson For the Plainfield Management.

In an article published in one of the Somerville papers, regarding the recent trivial and fleeting victory of the West Ends over the Crescents, occurs this brief but comprehensive expression of tribute to those to whom the credit is due:

The West End management should be complimented on the team it has secured.

That is the story in a nutshell. The praise belongs to those who laid off Conklin, Frelinghuysen, Cuff and Black; not to fill their places with better players in O'Rourke, Reilley, Farrell and Bowes, but with men who with the stick could bat out a victory over their betters in the field.

In view of such a scheme—which was understood and undenied for many days before the series commenced—the Crescent managers should have strengthened their nine accordingly. They should never have entered a pony battery against a team of stallions. The day before the game THE PRESS told them what to expect. That Festive Five, Reilley, Bowes, O'Rourke, Farrell and Harkins, kept the Crescent fielders guessing all the afternoon where the next hit would drop, and if the ball had not been water-soaked some of their hits would not have dropped yet.

Let the shrewdness of the West Ends' managers be a lesson to the Crescents', to the end that accounts may be balanced, that honors may be easy, and that THE PRESS may say next Monday, in the words of the discerning Somervillian—"The Crescent League management should be complimented, etc."

Good for young and old. We know of no better tonic for the system than Hires' Improved Root Beer. It is delicious, effervescent, sparkling, appetizing, and a helper of temperance. Satisfying the thirst, enriching the blood, and fortifying the system against the advances of disease. A 25 cent package makes five gallons. Sold everywhere.

SAID THE JUDGE WAS BOUGHT.

And Now the Slander Will be Sifted Out, and the Originators Punished.

A crowd of excited people thronged the City Court room this morning anxious to hear Bridget Newman, a neighbor whose bibulous ways and foul tongue have repeatedly made her familiar with court methods. Their desire to testify against the woman concerning the latest disturbance she has caused suffered disappointment, however, for she pleaded, through her lawyer, non vult, and threw herself on Judge Codington's mercy.

It was quite evident that Mrs. Newman had been guilty of gross breaches of the peace. Besides getting intoxicated, she had taken possession of the entire section of the Boulevard which is known as her neighborhood and defamed the wives and mothers, living and dead, of the inhabitants, and paraded up and down the street, her sleeves rolled up, and her arms flourishing, daring the men to come out and fight, declaring her ability to knock them all to smithereens in three short rounds.

The last time Mrs. Newman had appeared before Judge Codington she was fined $15, so in this instance the Court doubled the penalty and made it $30.

This sentence seemed very just, to the minds of the complaining witnesses and others, while Mrs. Newman's lawyer thought it excessive and gave notice that his client would appeal to a higher Court.

"Do so,"—said Captain Grant—"and we'll knock your case higher than a kite. We have a score of witnesses, and the higher Court will probably double the penalty, for appealing."

But if Mrs. Newman wasn't satisfied, and thought she had been fined too heavily, the crowd of witnesses against her were of the indignant opinion that she had been let off lightly. They seemed to have an idea that her offense called for solitary confinement for six or eight years, and howls of protests rent the air. The "women folks took on dreadful," as an observant colored gentleman remarked, and said that Mrs. Newman would be only too happy to pay even a $100 fine as long as she was permitted to go free and abuse decent people who didn't drink, while a gentleman named Harding approached the judicial bench, shook his forefinger in the air, and shouted forth this pronunciamento:

"I think this Court has been bought long enough!"

Then he went on to declare that it was impossible to get justice at Judge Codington's hands, that the Court had been bribed at different times, to "let up" on Mrs. Newman and other "friends of Paddy Day's," and that he and others would "take the case further," where justice could be obtained against the woman who had "called his mother out of the grave" and assailed her memory with vile words.

Instead of committing the excited Mr. Harding for contempt of court, Judge Codington very patiently heard him through and then quietly made an announcement that frightened the man and drew a slim apology from his lips.

"I have heard," said the Judge, "of charges similar to this before, and I shall trace them to their source and punish severely those who have instigated such a slander."

Harding said that he hadn't intended his statement as an insult to the Court. He "had only repeated what others had told him."

"You just made the charges yourself," was the reply, "on your own responsibility."

Harding said the story was common talk in the Boulevard, and he thought Mrs. Newman and Patrick Day had started it.

"I have heard of the story," said the Judge significantly, "and have been told that you yourself had invented it. It is a gross insult to the Court, a wrong for which there was no cause, and I shall see that the proper parties are dealt with as they deserve."

Still protesting that he didn't mean the Court any harm, Mr. Harding left the room, accompanied by others whom Mrs. Newman was said to have slandered, and avowed their intention of visiting the Grand Jury and getting their bibulous and belligerent neighbor indicted.

Short-Hand Free.

The Young Men's Christian Association announces that a goodly number of applications have been received for entrance into the short-hand class. The Association is of course gratified that its efforts to help young men in this educational and practical way is so much appreciated, but it would remind all young men that the advantages to be derived from the study of this art are inestimable and any who have the necessary foundation of a common school education and who are going to enter business or any of the professions or who want to improve their minds should seriously consider this opportunity that is so generously placed before them. The class will open on October 11, and all who want to study short-hand should be enrolled before that date. As is well-known the cost is merely nominal—being simply the price of a membership in the Association.

"Standing with reluctant feet is a period of "maidenhood" which is perilous in the extreme to a vigorous, healthy womanhood. Reckless exposure at certain times, has wrecked many a fair young life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is of inestimable value. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

NO LAMENTATION FROM SOMERSET ST.

Plainfield's Damage Not Considered When a Few Cents May be Made by It.

The only other honest paper in Plainfield falls into line with THE PRESS in the following expression of opinion concerning those irresponsible scribblers who have been, and still are, such a curse to this city:

Inaccurate accounts of local events, written by irresponsible pens and published by New York papers, are again doing harm to the best interests of Plainfield. The stories which have recently gained currency of the imaginary work of incendiaries, has had the effect, so a local insurance agent tells The Times, of bringing instructions from the various insurance companies to insure no more barns here. It required the most energetic work on the part of the agents to convince the companies that the stories were untrue, and in every way unreliable. One carelessly written story can work more injury to the well being of a city than the writer may think. It is the property owner who feels the effects of this the quickest. That the insurance companies were convinced of the accuracy of their agents' statement is for Plainfielders a matter of congratulation. —Central Times.

This paper, some weeks ago, fought day after day against the enemy of the city who was damaging its good name and good fame by sending all sorts of lies and sensational stories to the New York World for the sake of fifty cents or so. The result was that the editor of the World discharged the man—writing the discharge in the presence of a representative of THE PRESS, and showing it to him. The man discharged was one by the name of Morrison.

The World editor explained that he had not known the man was irresponsible until he had been overwhelmed with personal complaints and letters from most of the best citizens of Plainfield protesting against the way the city was being misrepresented. The name of the scribbler explains why only THE PRESS and The Times protest against Plain[illegible] bad treatment abroad.

THE COLORED CONTINGENT IN COURT.

Tenants Under the Same Roof Fall Out and Tell the Court Their Troubles.

The colored people had an inning before the City Court this morning, when Isaac Jones, his wife Lucretia, and various relatives, appeared to inform Judge Codington what a bold bad man James O'Neill was. James isn't an Irishman, if his name has a Celtic twang. He is a brunette of the same type as Jones, who has none of the Hebraic attributes which the preliminary part of his title would indicate.

Isaac's complaint was that James had visited the apartments of Lucretia by violence, had heaped gross insults on her good name and had hurled foul blots at the escutcheon of her family. The story of this turbulent time was graphically told by Isaac, and Lucretia, and Dorcas the grandmother, and others of the Jones contingent, who all agreed that James had "talked wretched" and had made scandalous charges.

O'Neill cross-examined the witnesses to the best of his ability, and besides airing a prolific vocabulary succeeded in getting the women to give details, still more convincing against him, which they had forgotten till he prodded them up.

In his own defense O'Neill had no witnesses but himself. Two others had promised to come, he said, but it was evident that they had carelessly omitted to note down on their visiting lists this important engagement. As James seemed to think it necessary for him to give a verbal autobiography of his entire career he soon convicted himself of acts of immorality which had not hitherto been disclosed. The trouble with the Joneses was all brought about because they harbored the woman who was not his wife, after he had cast her off in spite of her seven years' faithfulness to him.

In the midst of an extended conversation in which the complainant and all the witnesses took part Judge Codington managed to squeeze in the announcement that O'Neill's fine was $5. Then O'Neill told the Court what a deeply-wronged man he was.

RED MEN ENTERTAIN.

The Plainfield Tribe Hospitably Received in New Brunswick.

The Ahwaga Tribe of Red Men, of New Brunswick, spent a most enjoyable time in entertaining twenty-one members of the Miantomo Tribe of Red Men, of Plainfield, Tuesday evening.

Owing to the unpropitious weather, the local warriors were under the impression that their visitors would defer their intended visit, but in this they were in error, as the Plainfield men arrived in town by the road leading from the Landing, while a delegation from Ahwaga were searching for them on the road from Highland Park. Their arrival, although somewhat unexpected, was thoroughly enjoyed, and the incident of missing the committee of welcome was made the butt of many spicy jokes during the evening.

The guests were received by Sachem Goodwin, who introduced them to the other members, after welcoming them in a neat speech. After the transaction of general business and the conferring of the third or Chief's degree upon five members, the company, numbering sixty-one, repaired to the Bradley cafe, where a sumptuous banquet of dainty morsels was served in grand style under the charge of Brother Snedeker, the caterer of Ahwaga Tribe.

After full justice had been done to the good things provided, and the inner man's cravings were appeased, they returned to the wigwam, where songs, speeches and recitations passed the hours until midnight.

Previous to leaving the Council room, the Haymakers' degree was conferred upon twenty persons.

The Plainfield Red Men returned home to their squaws at an early hour yesterday morning. They were well pleased with their visit and promised to go again.

Killed on the Pennsylvania Road.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 18.—A young man, in whose pocket was found a card bearing the name Anthony Ryan, Savannah, Ga., was killed by a freight train on the Pennsylvania Railroad near Conestoga bridge. Both legs were broken and his skull crushed, death resulting instantly.

THE best class of life insurance companies prefer not to take risks on drinking men, and some of them absolutely decline to issue policies to men who habitually use alcoholic or malt liquors in the form of drams.

IT is evident that, so far from being a conservator of health, alcohol is an active and powerful cause of disease, interfering as it does with the respiration, the circulation and the nutrition; nor is any other result possible.—Prof. Youmans.

THE word toxical means poison and originally signified the poison in which arrows had been prepared for battle. The poisoned arrow was not more certainly an instrument of death than is the poisoned cup of the modern saloon.

ONE hundred and fifty times as much as is annually paid to the clergymen of the United States, and one hundred and eighty times as much as is paid every year by the whole world for the cause of missions, is annually expended to support the liquor traffic.

"O MADNESS, to think use of strongest wines
And strongest drinks our chief support of health,
When God, with these forbidden, made choice to rear
His mighty champion, strong above compare,
Whose only drink was from the liquid brook."
—Milton.

THE consequences of the vice of intoxication are so many and so fearful that it is difficult to enumerate even the outlines of them; and to pursue them in all their melancholy details would require a volume.... The mere pecuniary loss to the Nation may be fairly estimated at a little short of fifty millions of pounds sterling per annum.—Report of a select committee appointed by the House of Commons in 1834, and including Lord Althorp and Sir Robert Peel.

AS I LOOKED at the hospital wards today and saw that seven out of ten owed their diseases to alcohol. I could but lament that the teaching about this question was not more direct, more decisive, more home-thrusting than ever it had been.... It is when I think of all these, that I am disposed to give up my profession, give up every thing and go forth on a holy crusade, preaching to all men—"Beware of this enemy of the race."—Dr. Andrew Clark, one of the physicians to her Majesty, the Queen, and to Gladstone.

VIEWED FROM THE INSIDE.

The "Central Times," Which Speaks for the Water Charter Owners, Sets All Anxiety at Rest—in Its Own Mind.

Recent developments, although accompanied with much that is not clear, have established two or three important facts. One is that the organization of the Water Works Company is of such doubtful validity that capitalists, after careful examination, are unwilling to invest money in the enterprise. Another is that work upon the plant is practically at a standstill, and it is now impossible for the Company to comply with the terms of their contract, at least in respect to the time when the works should be finished.

The litigation now pending, in the natural course of such events, will probably delay all further proceedings on the lines formerly laid down, for more than a year. If the decision should be favorable to the Company, work might be resumed and the plant completed sometime in the future; but if the ultimate decision should be otherwise the whole thing would collapse. It is true a bond for the faithful performance of the contract is held by the city, and has been signed by responsible parties; but whatever the law may be it does not seem sensible to say that the bond could be enforced if the contract is adjudged to be illegal. Unless, therefore, some important change is shortly made in the situation of the matter, litigation and delay will ensue for an indefinite period, and no one can predict the outcome.

It was, no doubt, in view of these facts that the Water Company sent a communication to the Councilon Monday evening, asking permission to present a plan for carrying out the essential features of the contract in some other manner than that heretofore contemplated. The matter was prudently referred to the Water Board and no doubt that body will give it careful and intelligent consideration. The object to be attained is the construction of water works without delay by an energetic and solvent company. No theoretical notion or pride of opinion should be allowed to stand in the way of this desirable consummation. Government by litigation, even at its best, is but a poor way to transact public business, and never has been a favorite method with the conservative people of Plainfield.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that the change in the method of completing the works now proposed, will be examined with a view to obtaining some important, practical results, and not for the purpose of scoring some minor point, or turning a sharp corner here and there. The absence of water works and a sewer system is a very serious detriment to the growth and prosperity of our city, and an effort to supply this want should be made in the manner tested by successful experience elsewhere. We have no time or money to waste in experimenting with unheard of schemes or novel methods, nor is noisy controversy desirable.

The Times is able to inform its readers that the Plainfield Water Works Company has disposed of its property to a new company which will continue the construction of the works. After arrangements have been made and matters satisfactorily adjusted, the work will be rapidly finished with the idea of giving to Plainfield the most complete and thoroughly equipped system of water works possible. The organizers of the new company are men of undoubted financial and executive ability. The people of Plainfield may rest assured that the interests of their property and the public health will be amply protected by this disposal of a matter of such vital importance to the community.—Central Times.

But just hold on a day or two, Mr. Times, if you will. It is a piece of presumption, of course, on the part of THE PRESS to have anything more to say after you have finally arranged and settled the matter; but you might allow the Common Council to have a finger in it.

You repeat what THE PRESS said days ago—Plainfield's two companies will amalgamate. The Water Works company with its contract, will take in the Water Supply company with its charter; and the name and title of the latter will absorb the name and title of the former, for business purposes.

"This is as it should be," said THE PRESS of Tuesday. This new combination will submit a proposition for completing the Plainfield water works that, judging by the standing of the Plainfield men connected with the deal—whose names have been published exclusively in these columns—will be all that can be desired. In fact, they will even agree to the $15 hydrant rental, and free water to schools, churches, municipal buildings and two public fountains.

But before you can assure the people, Mr. Times, that the work will be finished by the new company, you should wait until you read in THE PRESS the report of the special meeting of the Council which the Water Board will call in a few days to hear the new company's proposition.

Suppose they decide to do what should have been done before—make a contract for water and sewer to be both put in at the same time.

And then suppose they decide to throw the whole matter open to bidders again?

Possibly some other company would, under such circumstances, underbid the Contract-Charter combination.

Wait, and watch, and read THE PRESS.

AN EQUINE PARADOX.

Critique Talks Horse, and Makes Some Rambling Comments on the Treatment Which Man's Best Friend Receives at the Hands of His Masters in Plainfield.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—One of those so-called "odoriless excavating" flotillas we all know so well was at work in the Park the other day when the S. P. C. A., ought to have been on deck. These caravans, whose "connection with ——— & Co.," is only too obvious, like farce-comedies always go in three parts: two sections favoring the tank play, and the other one resembling the legitimate drama, carrying the pumping apparatus which is inimical to the success of the entire outfit. Before the latter engine, on the occasion in question, was assembled what might have been described in a general way as a live horse, although it wore a disheartened aspect and seemed to care very little about living. When the task upon which the concern had bent its energies was completed, the man who had this animal in charge besought it to move, but the poor beast remained as cheerless and stiff as the new Music Hall curtain. Whether this lack of interest and animation was to be attributed to ennui, nervous prostration or spring halts was an open question, and its answer was apparently beyond the man I have mentioned, for he at length becoming weary of persuasion, produced a good-sized rope and flayed the unlucky animal without mercy until some one in the next yard protested and got a promiscuous fusillade of profanity for his trouble. The horse was pretty badly abraided in places, and, although he took his punishment patiently, seemed to feel thoroughly discouraged. There are too many ill-natured drivers in Plainfield who let their bad impulses get away with them on the slightest provocation. The horses are, as a rule, better than their masters from a moral point of view, and do not always deserve one-tenth of the bad treatment they receive. "Professor" Gleason, who was here in the Summer, said that the only way to handle a horse was to treat it kindly, and then he proceeded to contradict himself by frightening every horse he "tamed" within an inch of its life. His policy may be the best one, but it is generally safe to try the other way and be genuinely respectable to the animal kingdom. The good people who were giving away copies of "Black Beauty" to the end that the condition of our hack-horses might be ameliorated, may also do well if they turn the light of their benevolence upon the lot of horses in other walks of life.

To Offset Hired Batters With a Hired Battery.

(From the New York Sun.)

New Jersey is probably the most enthusiastic State in the country as far as base ball is concerned. There is hardly a hamlet, village, town or city that does not boast of its superiority at the national game. Between no places in the State is the rivalry more pronounced than between Plainfield and Somerville. Both towns have had for several years superior teams, but the strangest thing in connection with their organizations has been that their nines in the main have been made up partly of professionals. Both teams consider themselves as amateurs, and upon this basis the games are played. This year the two towns are making unusual preparations to beat each other. A series of three games has been arranged to decide the question, and Umpire Quinn has been engaged to officiate at the three games. Last Saturday the Somervilles won the first game by a score of 2 to 1. Next Saturday the second game will be played at Plainfield.

Upon the Somerville team are such players as Pitcher Harkins of the Clevelands and Brooklyns; Cuff, an old professional catcher; Tom O'Rourke, who caught for Jersey City and subsequently went to the New York (N. L.) team; Jack Farrell, who stood at one time the equal of any second baseman in the country, and Al. Williams. On the other hand, the Plainfields are making an extra effort to strengthen their team for next Saturday's game. They want a good battery, and are willing to pay for it. An offer has been made to Rusie and Buckley of the New York (N. L.) Club. To get them for next Saturday they would be willing to pay as high as $100 apiece. If they can't get Rusie and Buckley they would likely offer equally as clever a battery the same amount. The Plainfields' cry is "Anything to beat Somerville!"

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

CALIFORNIA WINES.

They Are Very Strong of Alcohol, and Hence Quite Intoxicating.

Passing through Southern California recently, and being introduced by a mutual friend to the proprietor of one of the wineries there, a person who had come over from Europe, I learned some things about California wines that may be of general interest and help toward a correct understanding of their nature. The "mission grape" of which the wines are made, probably so named from its introduction by persons connected with the early Romish missions to California, is not found in France, but is found in Spain, Portugal and a part of Italy. It is sweeter, however, as it grows in Southern California than it is in Europe. For this reason it is not suitable for making "dry wines." By this term the gentleman appeared to understand wines made from grape-juice, containing only so much grape-sugar as would be entirely changed in its fermentation. He stated that in fermentation we can get only sixteen or seventeen per cent. of alcohol, which statement agrees with those of others, the alcohol then becoming strong enough to arrest further fermentation by its preserving the remaining sugar from decomposition, as it preserves other substances immersed in it.

The grapes are put into a machine which cleans out all the stems, crushes the grapes, and filters out all the pulp, seeds and skins. It has three filters through all of which the first flow of juice, if not the whole of the liquid, runs. Other persons acquainted with the working of the winery spoke of there being three runs of the grape-juice, the first run being used for making the wine called "angelica," the second for making sherry and port wine, and the third for claret. They stated also that water is sometimes poured on the pulp and skins for the third run, which reminds one of the ancient custom of doing the same thing to make the posca or sour drink of the Roman soldier.

The proprietor did not seem inclined to give any information about selling the grape-juice as unfermented wine, though others affirmed that he sometimes sold the sweet juice. He boils down quantities of it, but insisted that it should be called "grape molasses," and not wine, although he was referred to the Roman custom of calling such wine defrutum and sapa.

As to the making of the wine called "angelica," he said it was the sweet grape-juice mixed with twenty per cent. of "the spirit of wine." By this term he meant the alcohol he distills from inferior grades of wine. At the time of my visit he was said to be distilling brandy, as the season for gathering the grapes and making wine had passed. He poured out a little of his angelica for me to test its character, and the simple smelling of it showed that it was strong with alcohol. He stated that no such wine is made in Europe, but that there is a sale for it in America, and that it will not ferment, which all will understand to be true who are familiar with the nature of alcohol. The twenty per cent. of alcohol is strong enough to preserve the eighty per cent. of sweet juice from any decomposition by vinous fermentation.

He also spoke of making other "sweet wines," as sweet sherry, etc., and said they were fermented wines, but that after fermentation had taken place and they were fortified so as to contain eighteen to twenty per cent. of alcohol a portion of unfermented grape-juice was then added to give them a sweet taste. Of course, in this case, as with the angelica, after the wine has been fortified so as to contain eighteen to twenty per cent. of alcohol, the sweet juice introduced into the wine will be preserved from all change and give the wine a sweet taste.

Speaking of the California claret, he said that the European clarets contain seven or eight per cent. of alcohol, but the California clarets have eleven or twelve per cent. of it. The gentleman who introduced me afterward said that the clarets made in California sometimes contain as much as fifteen per cent. of alcohol.

Thus it will be seen that the California wines are very strong of alcohol, and hence must be quite intoxicating. And we should be careful not to be deceived by their names. It is evident that the angelica may with propriety be spoken of as an unfermented wine. But still, from this we must not imagine that it is an unintoxicating wine, as is generally understood, when we speak of unfermented wine. And again, this wine is manifestly very different in its nature from ordinary wines, so far as its nourishing properties are concerned. Ordinary fermented and yet pure wines contain but a mere trifle of nourishment, but the angelica, if made as described, must be very nourishing, although the nourishment can be obtained only with great accompanying evil and danger from its being mixed with so much alcohol. The best grape-juice is said by chemical authorities to contain as much or more nutriment than an equal quantity of the best milk. And as the California grapes are exceptionally fine, if the angelica contains eighty per cent. of the best grape-juice, it must have a large amount of nourishment. And in respect to the other sweet wines which are fermented, if they have any considerable quantity of grape-juice put into them after fermentation has ceased, in proportion to the amount of this which they contain they must be nourishing also. Apparently, therefore, some of the California wines should be spoken of with discrimination, and not be regarded as of the same nature as ordinary European wines, even though these wines may be pure and manufactured from European grapes, and yet we should not ignorantly or foolishly delude ourselves with the idea that the California wines are not very harmful intoxicating drinks.—Rev. C. Hartwell, in National Temperance Advocate.

DECLINING A TREAT.

An Interesting Conversation Between a Couple of Collegians.

The following conversation was heard between two collegians, who were discussing a class dinner:

"Of course," said one (with a consequential touch of self-complacency and patronage students call "fresh," and which only length of days can cure) "if a fellow hasn't wit enough to know when to stop, he'd better be careful at first. Some heads are built weak, you know."

"Careful in what?" interrupted I, and both laughed.

"Why, drinking, of course," said the first speaker. "A fellow has to take his seasoning sooner or later. Some can stand it. Some can not; at least for a while."

He was, as I have intimated, a freshman. His friend, a bearded senior, the only son of a rich man, slapped him good-humoredly on the shoulder.

"When I was your age, old fellow, my father said to me: 'If I had my life to live over I would never take a glass of wine or smoke a cigar.' I answered: 'It would be foolish not to profit by what such a sensible man says.' I have never tasted wine or touched tobacco, and I am glad of it—gladder every day I live. I might have been 'built' with a strong head—and then, again, I might not."

"What do you say when you are offered a 'treat?'"

"I say: 'No, thank you, I never take it.' Generally that settles the matter quietly."—Better Day.

IN the late night operations conducted by Sir Evelyn Wood, in England, to test the value of electric light in war, it was found that there was considerable difficulty in controlling the action of the light. It was dazzling for those advancing on it, but it could be gazed at through field glasses without inconvenience. It also enabled a fine sight to be taken on rifles at the heads of the gunners in the redoubt. It was also discovered that capes should be worn at all night operations by attackers, and scabbards should be dulled, as the glitter of scabbards and red coats rendered discovery easy.

IT is suggested that electricity could very advantageously be applied to the tricycle. A prominent electrical journal says: "A practical electrical tricycle would be a lazy man's delight, and as the electric light is generally available, power for charging the batteries would not be hard to find. Tolerable success has already been attained with such machines, the power required is not large, and the necessary weight of battery and motor can be brought within quite reasonable limits. It would not be a difficult matter to bring out such a machine, and it would probably find a considerable number of users in favorable localities."

A WEAKNESS SOMEWHERE.

The investigation showed that this terribly fatal accident was caused by the weakened and overstrained condition of a single vital strand of the otherwise strong bridge.

So it often is in the human system. How many people there are who have a weakness somewhere. They appear to be in fair health, but they have malaria, a stomach trouble, a kidney or liver disease, a weakness in the back, a nervousness or trembling, strange sensations, depression of the mind, a sense of anxiety, accompanied by a weak, tired or languid feeling. Others become sleepless and wake more tired mornings than when they retired; their head feels dull and heavy, they have little or no appetite for breakfast, and their old time energy and ambition appear to have deserted them. Thousands are troubled by indigestion, gas in the stomach, accompanied by a nervous and irritable condition.

These are all apparently slight weaknesses. A person may have, at first, only one or two of these symptoms; but they are to the body what the weakened strand is to the bridge, and any overstrain of the brain, nerves or physical system may precipitate the unfortunate person into utter mental, nervous or physical prostration and exhaustion.

It behooves all, therefore, when they detect even the slightest weakness in the system, to procure immediately that great strengthener and invigorator, Dr. Greene's Nervura. Nothing will so quickly and surely restore the tired and overworked brain, and strengthen and invigorate the weak, worn out and shattered nerves. No other remedy in the world so rapidly regulates the system and restores the vital strength, both nervous and physical, and hundreds of thousands of people, when weaknesses of the system were detected, have, by the timely use of this wonderful remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura, warded off serious diseases, and been restored to sound and vigorous health.

It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and may be obtained at any druggist's for $1 per bottle.

Savor of Life and Health.

I was broken down with nervous and physical prostration before using Dr. Greene's Nervura, and life was a burden. Now life is a joy and sleep is a luxury compared to it before taking Nervura. I relish my food and my nervousness has left me, so has the numbness. I wish I could shout loud enough so that all the world could hear, and tell them the good Dr. Greene's Nervura has done me. It has made me from a weak, trembling, nervous, irritable man to one who feels he is on the highway to long years of health and happiness through Dr. Greene's Nervura and the blessing of God.
